[illegible]'s Insistence on Oriental Monroe Doctrine Disclosed to Financiers.

If Bankers Persist in Trying to Make Loans will Complain to Washington.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—Disclosure that Japan is insisting on a "Monroe Doctrine" for China, so far as Chinese financial things are concerned, was made here today in discussion of pending plans for the financing of Chinese industries by American and Japanese capital.

The subject is under consideration by the financiers of interest in the United States and Japan, but strong intimation is given in Japanese circles that if American bankers decline to recognize the Japanese [illegible] "Monroe Doctrine" the Japanese government will take up the question with the government in this country.

BASIS IS POLITICAL.

The basis for Japan's adoption of the policy in China was explained in [illegible] phrase, "The political stability of China is essential to Japan." The [illegible] stability" of China at present is not regarded as superlative.

It is explained that Japan cannot [illegible] American financiers to foreclose on a Chinese railroad for [illegible] they might have provided the capital and which defaulted on its interest charges. Nor would Japan be willing for America to take as security for loans any taxes of any nature, as this might involve the taking over or control of some customs stations and the sequestration of receipts, which would be entirely unsatisfactory to Japan.

"SAUCE FOR GOOSE."

The United States, it is expected, hardly would tolerate Japanese control of customs in any country on the American continent or in Santo Domingo, or in Cuba. Conversely, Japan does not purpose that the United States shall exercise any such power in China.

Emphasis is laid in Japanese circles on the desire of that country to co-operate with America in financing Chinese industries and belief is expressed that such can be arranged. At the same time, almost equal stress is laid on the explanation that Japan will not countenance any financial negotiations which would give American capital, or the capital of any other nation, control of Chinese customs or enterprises.

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Chairman V. G. Hinshaw today issued a call for a meeting of the National Committee of the prohibition party to be held in Chicago, January 16, 17 and 18, to plan a campaign for the election of a "dry" Congress in 1918.

German criticism of the Allied peace terms bitter.

COMMENT ON THE SITUATION.

The Rumanians have won a success against the Germans and captured a line of German trenches, but elsewhere in the Rumanian sector the German forces are marching steadily onward and they are said to be making ready to reach Bessarabia before spring. While German criticism of the Allied peace terms is quite as severe as expected, it is the belief of the authorities in Washington that the bitterness of the Germans will dissipate itself in the same way that the bitterness of the French and British spent itself after the first announcement of the Kaiser's overtures for a peace conference. At all events, it is clear that Mr. Wilson is not going to let up on his efforts to terminate the war.

A war conference of the Villa commanners is to be held today near Chihuahua city. The activity of the Villa bandits is unabated. Tomorrow is the day set for the announcement that Mr. Wilson will order the withdrawal of the Pershing punitive expedition from Mexico.

TRENCHES CAPTURED.

Rumanians Win in Counter-Attack.

Germans are Building Bridges for Contemplated Drive into Bessarabia.

Mackensen Hustling Matters in Order to Get There Ahead of Spring Thaw.

BY ARTHUR S. DRAPER.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—Mackensen's troops have pushed ahead on the lower Sereth and at certain points on the Western Moldavian frontier. In the latter sector the Rumanians followed up their successful offensive of Thursday with a counter-assault yesterday that drove the enemy from a line of trenches in the Kasino Valley.

At the junction of the Sereth and the Buzeu Bulgarians, of the army section that conquered Dobrudja, captured a monastery held by the Russians. Northwest of Braila Turkish troops of the same division stormed the town of Mihalea, capturing 400 men and driving the remainder of the garrison into the Sereth.

DRIVEN BACK.

North of the Slanic Valley German troops under Von Gerck drove the enemy back from height positions and took 170 prisoner, seven machine guns and a large amount of booty. Along the Oituz the situation remained unchanged, both sides failing to gain in sharp attacks. Private advices from the Rumanian front state that the Teutons are rapidly constructing wooden bridges across the marshy lands of the lower Sereth and Danube, preparing, it is believed, for an invasion of Bessarabia. There are no indications that Hindenburg intends to allow his Rumanian offensive to slow down at any point.

The strongly reinforced German units on the Riga front took the offensive yesterday against the Russians south of Lake Babit, but were beaten back. Petrograd states that the attack was made in dense formation, following the tactics employed by the Germans on the Russian front during the first two years of the war.

AIR ATTACKS.

Aeroplanes of both sides carried out spirited attacks on enemy encampments, thirteen German machines bombarding the station and town of Radzivilow and Russian fliers assailing the enemy's batteries near the village of Krughov with machine gun fire.

The readiness of King Constantine to comply with the terms of the Allies' ultimatum probably is due to the failure of the Kaiser to give him assurances of military assistance before the Entente blockade threw Greece into a condition approximating starvation.

Undoubtedly Emperor William told his brother-in-law that he could not help him for several weeks. His reasons are perfectly apparent. Just now Germany is in need of food for body and mind. Her campaign in Moldavia is much more nourishing than would be an attack against the Allies along the bleak, mountainous Macedonian front.

THE TIME ELEMENT.

Mackensen is expected to drive into Bessarabia, and he must work against the clock. Last February and well into March Bessarabia was an impassable country, with soil even heavier and stickier than that in Flanders. To get there before the thaw he must increase his pace.

Bessarabia is inhabited by a million and a half Rumanians. If the Germans could conquer both Moldavia and Bessarabia they would probably set up an independent government, in the hope of inducing the Rumanians to side with them when peace was made.

Failing there, Hindenburg may strike into Bukowina and Galicia, where the country is more suited to spring fighting. Though it is possible that he still intends to send Falkenhayn with big forces against Macedonia, it is less likely because of economical and practical as well as military reasons.

THE WEST FRONT.

However disparagingly Hindenburg speaks of the west front, it remains his chief worry, for he knows that when the next Anglo-French blow falls he must rush his troops there. In the west the big battle of the war remains to be fought. The westerners now have all the best of the long argument with the easterners. The die has been cast. All plans have been laid.

Not the least important question considered at the Allies' Rome conference was Macedonia. When the period of inclement weather is over it is apparent that some decision will be reached there.

Only the barest outlines of the interesting Balkan campaign are possible, but they are necessary to an understanding of future development. In the first place, the Serbians deserve infinite praise for the bravery and skill with which they have come back.

Upon these soldiers, wearied with four years of fighting, impoverished and exhausted to the point where housands have died because they could not digest their food, fell the burden of repulsing the Bulgarians'

EARLY PEACE OR ARMISTICE.

Schwab is Believed to Have Information on the Subject.

[DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BALTIMORE, Jan. 13.—Charles M. Schwab is believed to have direct information that an early peace or armistice in Europe is probable. For this reason, a big change in the plans for the immediate development of the $50,000,000 improvement programme of the Pennmary Steel Company at Sparrows Point has been outlined by those controlling the Bethlehem Steel Company. It was learned that there will be delay in practically 25 per cent. of the original programme, but that the entire plan as outlined in Baltimore by Mr. Schwab would be eventually carried out. The cancellation of a big contract involving several hundred thousand dollars for the erection of the superstructure of the smithing works at Sparrows Point has been cancelled along with the announcement to the contractor that the Bethlehem Steel Company would retrench for the present.

WARSHIP-BUILDING CHALLENGE ISSUED.

BETHLEHEM COMPANY OFFERS DANIELS HIS CHANCE.

Agrees to Build Two at Same Cost as in Navy Yards, Without Additional Expense or Commission of Any Kind—Offer Born of Patriotism.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 13.—Speaking before the Terrapin Club here tonight on the complaint of the Navy Department against the high bids received for warships, Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Company, said that his comapny had determined to make an offer to the government that if it will build two of the four authorized battle cruisers in navy yards, the Bethlehem company will construct the other two at the ascertained cost of building the ships in the government yards, without additional expense or commissions of any kind. "We also will contract to have our ships ready for service ahead of the government ships," he said.

Drawing attention to a letter written by the Secretary of the Navy to the chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, asking for an appropriation of $12,000,000 to equip navy yards to build the four ships, Mr. Grace said the request was made without any assurance that the government can build the cruisers cheaper than private shipbuilders.

ACT OF PATRIOTISM.

"It would be a real advantage to Bethlehem Steel ship yards to be relieved of any obligation to enter upon this naval construction," Mr. Grace said. "The profit from it cannot possibly amount to much and the responsibility is enormous. But we do feel a patriotic obligation in the matter and we realize that it is our duty to do everything we can to make our plant and experience available for the use of the American government."

Referring to a recent announcement that a British manufacturer had underbid American concerns for shells for the navy, Mr Grace said it should be remembered that the British navy has seen but little action and that it is entirely conceivable that there is a surplus of naval shells on hand which the British government might be willing to have its munition makers dump in the United States and turn the proceeds into shells for use on the battlefields.

VIENNA PAPERS SCORE ALLIES' NOTE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM (via London) Jan. 13.—Vienna newspapers express the greatest indignation over the peace demands of the Entente Allies. The Fremdenblatt, commenting on the demands for the liberation of the Slavs Rumanians and Czech Slovaks, says:

"Many peoples under Entente rule would be happy if they possessed the rights and liberties already possessed by the peoples under Austro-Hungarian rule."

The newspaper thinks that the whole note originated in England and adds: "Premier Lloyd George's speeches show where the center of the opposition to the peace idea lies."

Wilson Bent on Ending War.

Will Ask the Germans for the Statement of Their Case if Necessary.

Public Sentiment in Stricken Countries Expected to be His Main Ally.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—A statement of terms from Germany, and her allies at least as comprehensive as those set forth by the Entente in replying to President Wilson's note is the next move hoped for here in the peace negotiations.

Whether time will be allowed for the Teutonic nations to state their terms on their own initiative, or President Wilson will make some move to give an opening, remains undetermined. There are indications, however, that if no statement of the Teutonic terms is forthcoming within a reasonable time, the United States may seek a means to indicate the desirability of such a course.

AS TO THE MEANS.

It was reiterated today that the President had not determined on his position and it was pointed out that in his note he said he was indifferent to the means employed for comparing terms. He is reluctant to judge between the two replies and has not made known his impressions of the Entente note. In other administration quarters it has been suggested, however, that the objects which the President had in mind could be best promoted now by the Central Powers publicly declaring their terms.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT.

Officials are watching particularly just now the trend of public sentiment abroad and the apparent change since the dispatch of the President's note has proved a source of increasing gratification. The first feeling of indignation among the Allies because of the coincidence of the President's proposal with that of the Central Powers has abated, it is believed here, and is being replaced by a conviction that good may come from the American note.

There is no indication in official circles, however, that an early peace is thought probable. On the contrary, the statement of the Allies' objects, it is recognized, has made acceptance by Germany very difficult for the present, however far it may have gone toward establishing a preliminary basis which may facilitate peace negotiations when the end of hostilities does come. The administration is acting on the assumption that the bitterness engendered by the war cannot be healed in a moment, but that every step towards that end brings a final rapprochement nearer.

CHANGE EXPECTED.

First expressions of bitterness in Germany over the Entente reply are somewhat discounted here and it is felt there may be a change of sentiment just as there was in the Entente countries in regard to the President's note. It is conceded, however, that for the present, popular desire for a prosecution of the war will be quickened.

The German view here is that there is little likelihood of a public statement of specific terms by the Teutonic Allies at this time unless a further move to that end is made by the President. Should a request for such a statement be forwarded to Berlin, however, it is declared Germany probably would comply.

It has been the contention of Teutonic diplomats that in proposing a peace conference Germany fulfilled the President's suggestion that an early occasion be sought for discussion of terms, and that no other step is called for unless there is a second and more specific request.

AMERICAN COURT OF ARBITRATION.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Creation of an American court of arbitration, empowered to effect peaceful settlement of controversies among the nations on the American continents, was suggested at the annual meeting of the New York State Bar Association in Brooklyn today.

A resolution was adopted, authorizing the appointment of a committee to report on the advisibility of establishing the court of arbitration. Charles E. Hughes was elected president of the association.

TRACING EXPLOSIONS TO WIRELESS WAVES.

New Yorkers Recall the Statement of a German Newspaper that an Inventor was Working on a Device of the Kind and They are Inclined to Suspect that it may be in Use Now.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—The mysterious destruction of munition plants in New Jersey calls to mind the remarkable statement made in a newspaper which reached this country from Germany about a year ago, that a German inventor was working on a death-dealing device, which, when perfected, would astonish the world.

While the article did not go into details, it was hinted that the invention consisted in sending certain peculiar electric waves by means similar to a wireless apparatus, which waves, while invisible, would act with the celerity of a bolt of lightning and destroy everything they came in contact with. It added that with such an appliance a submarine could operate under water and sink any ship within a radius of twenty miles and that the apparatus could similarly be handled in the air.

While it is only a supposition that the mysterious explosions in New Jersey were the result of any such remarkable invention, nevertheless the war in Europe has brought so many surprises that anything seems possible. In accordance with the article in the German newspaper, an invention of that kind could readily be utilized in destroying munition plants, though the operator be miles removed from the plant.

TO PREVENT REBUILDING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Legal action calculated to prevent the rebuilding of the munition plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry Company at Kingsland, N. J., and to fix responsibility for the explosions in the E. I. Du Pont-Nemours Company's works at Haskell, N. J., was decided upon tonight at meetings of the Kingsland Board of Commissioners and of the Council of Pompton Lakes Borough, in which the Du Pont plant is located.

Mayor Hirschfield of Pompton Lakes Borough, in a statement tonight, declared that frequent disastrous explosions followed by fires in the Du Pont plant and the fact that responsibility for them had not been determined, had aroused the public generally.

Michael Dunn, public prosecutor for the Pompton Lakes Borough, said the explosion in the Du Pont works was "inexplainable" and that he had placed no credence in a report that a plot was responsible for the disaster.

Fragments of human bodies found in the ruins at the Du Pont plant today, according to County Physician Robert Armstrong, indicate that at least two lives were lost in the explosions.

It was learned tonight that a quantity of nitroglycerine stored near the buildings of the Du Pont concern, failed to explode, although the windows of the magazines were shattered.

The authorities of Kingsland decided to ask for a court order restraining the Canadian Car and Foundry Company from rebuilding the plant which was destroyed Thursday night.

The Grand Jury of Bergen county, New Jersey, has begun an investigation of the explosion at Kingsland. Prosecutor Thomas J. Huckin of Bergen county, declared tonight that efforts were being made to locate persons who worked in the munitions and who since the explosion have left Kingsland. The grand jurors, he said, desired to interrogate them as they were reported to have been in the building where the fire started.

VILLA'S WAR COUNCIL TO BE HELD TODAY.

Commanders will Meet at San Andres, Chihuahua. Firing in Vicinity of Guadalupe Opposite Fabens Starts Report Bandits had Occupied the Town—Civilians Impressed at Torreon Have Escaped.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EL PASO, Jan. 13.—A war council of Francisco Villa's commanders is expected to be held tomorrow at San Andres, Chihuahua, west of Chihuahua city, according to reliable information received here late today and transmitted to Washington by government agents.

Firing in the vicinity of Guadalupe, Chihuahua, opposite Fabens, Tex., yesterday, started a report here that Villa followers had occupied the little town, which is thirty miles southeast of Juarez. Officers of the Georgia Cavalry and Second Georgia Infantry commands patrolling the border opposit Guadalupe, reported having heard shooting, but said none of the patrols had reported any evidences of fighting near the town.

CRUISER IS A WRECK.

Milwaukee's Crew is Rescued.

Warship Strikes the Beach in an Attempt to Salvage Submarine H-3.

Vessel, Just Overhauled, Said to be Worth at Least Seven Millions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EUREKA (Cal.) Jan. 13.—Shortly after 8 o'clock tonight the last member of the crew of the cruiser Milwaukee, which went ashore near here today, was landed on the beach. Not a life was lost and but one man was hurt in the difficult work of rescuing the hundreds aboard the stranded vessel.

EUREKA (Cal.) Jan. 13.—As darkness closed down tonight about half the crew of the United States protected cruiser Milwaukee, which went ashore on the Samoa Beach near here about 4 o'clock this morning, had been transferred through a roaring surf in safety to the beach by means of a breeches buoy and two lifeboats. On board the Milwaukee when the current carried her into the surf were eighteen officers and [illegible] men.

Navy officers here expressed the belief tonight that the cruiser will be a total loss. The Milwaukee, which draws 22.6 feet, had been thrown by the breakers into water that was but twelve feet deep at the low tide and the derelict was keeled over at an angle of twenty degrees. Her double bottom was filled with water and her engine-room flooded. It was generally believed she had a hole in her hull.

CAUGHT BY CURRENT.

When the Milwaukee was caught by the current and carried into the breakers she was pulling on a cable attached to the stranded submarine H-3, which went ashore December 14, about half a mile from where the Milwaukee now lies. The monitor Cheyenne and the navy tug Iroquois, farther off shore, both had lines to the Milwaukee and were endeavoring to hold the cruiser from the clutches of the surf.

The tidal current and the weight of the heavy steel hawser that was fast to the submarine proved stronger than the combined power of three vessels and all were being dragged shoreward when the hawser leading to the Cheyenne snapped and left the little Iroquois to battle alone with the tide that was sweeping the Milwaukee into the breakers.

Boatswain Frank Bruce, commander of the Iroquois, held on as long as he dared and then saved his vessel from the Milwaukee's fate by cutting the hawser. Lieut. William S. Newton, in command of the Milwaukee, tried to follow Bruce's example and get rid of the steel hawser fast to the H-3 which was dragging him into the breakers. But it was too late.

ORDER CAME TOO LATE.

The hawser, half a mile long and weighing twenty-four tons, could not be slipped in a moment and before the order to let go could be carried out the Milwaukee had been gripped by the first line of breakers and was hitting the bottom.

The fog which had enveloped the Milwaukee since before daylight lifted at intervals during the forenoon and revealed the cruiser lying 300 yards off shore, broadside on to the beach with heavy seas breaking over her. At times the combers which crashed against the stranded hull threw water clear over the tops of the funnels.

For nearly ten hours the crew waited on the lee side for the help from the shore that had been summoned by the Milwaukee's wireless. The sun broke through the fog and it was seen that all on board were wearing preservers.

Lying as she did at an angle of nearly 20 degrees it was impossible to launch any of the cruiser's own boats, but shortly before 9 o'clock this morning the lifesavers of the Coast Guard Service reached the scene from their station two miles distant.

SURF BOAT APPEARS.

Later a surf boat from the Humboldt Bay station was hauled across the sands to the beach near the Milwaukee.

The Milwaukee's crew had made fruitless efforts to drift a line to the beach. The coast guardsmen, however, got into action with little delay and soon shot a line from the shore to the stranded cruiser. It was the work of a few minutes to stretch a cable and rig a breeches buoy.

Meanwhile the Cheyenne had approached to what seemed dangerously near the breakers and tried to shoot a line to the cruiser. The first attempt failed but the second line sailed directly over the cruiser and landed on the beach. It was not needed, however.

Coxswain T. S. Decker was the first man to be trolleyed ashore in the breeches buoy. As the Milwaukee rolled toward the beach the cable slackened and Decker was immersed in the breakers. The cruiser took a roll seaward, the cable Austrians Hold That Terms of Entente Allies Intended Only for Home Consumption.

Responsibility.

ENGLISH ARE BLAMED FOR CONTINUING WAR.

Ethnographic Theory of Reply Might in Practice Cause Chaos.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VIENNA (via London) Jan. 13, 10:50 p.m.—The Austrian newspapers, discussing the Entente peace terms contained in the reply to President Wilson, express the opinion that the documents are intended by the Entente Powers for home consumption. Some of the papers insist that, in view of the actuality of the statement, the Entente "must be on the verge of insanity to advance at this time so impossible a programme."

The papers unanimously agree that the Entente proposal concerning the subject of races would, if carried out, wipe out Austria-Hungary, which is composed of ten different peoples. The monarchy, therefore, will be obliged to carry on military operations with renewed vigor.

BRITONS BLAMED.

English statesmen are looked upon as solely responsible for the continuation of the war, according to the papers. Says the Neue Freie Presse:

"The policy of the will-o'-the-wisp luring of the nations into a morass is continued so that an Englishman may not recognize that his government is bad, insincere and unfit to remain in power another single day. Lloyd George will fall through this sooner or later. We hear the cry of wounded animals of prey. On their heads falls all the guilt. We desired peace sincerely."

"SWELLED HEADS."

The Wiener Tageblatt says: "The note's tone is one of super-arrogance and swell-headedness. England, in her unmeasured vanity, wishes the continuation of the war. It is altogether a question for her allies whether they are flattered or not for having spilled their blood in England's behalf so far, but to give up more blood, more strength for England's vanity and not make peace, is a crime toward their own peoples."

The Socialist Arbeiter Zeitung says: "The intervention of the neutral world has been of inestimable value, having given us a diagnosis of the case, which is bad enough. At any rate, the war objectives now are delineated. Now that the warring governments have had their word, the neutral governments, and in certain degrees, all the peoples may be heard from."

DIPLOMATIC EPISODE.

Die Zeit says:

"The Entente's attitude has made President Wilson's peace intervention a mere diplomatic episode."

This view is shared by the Weiner Journal, which adds: "England is our arch enemy, all the others are merely her accomplices. Against England our great fight is directed. With all their means, with every arm, the Central Powers must annihilate this deadly foe of Europe, must shake this power with rotten foundations, so that Europe may get a rest. We know how to meet England until a united Europe realizes this danger and acts against England united."

THE "BOERSEN'S" VIEW.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan 13, 11 a.m. (via London, 10:32 p.m.)—Discussing the probable effect of the note of the Entente Allies in answer to President Wilson in America, the Boersen Zeitung says:

"Most European neutrals must now recognize which side has real wishes for peace and which has an unparalleled plan of conquest in which they must completely destroy the European equilibrium and leave England sole master of Europe. Yet the effect of the note in America is more difficult to prognosticate, as Americans always have distinguished themselves by a strong endeavor to reach justice and reasonableness. . . . And one should think that with this document in hand they should not hesitate to see where their sympathies belong.

"The Entente's plan can hardly further America's purely political interests for the demolition of the German Empire, which is pre-supposed, for the realization of the Entente's plan, would certainly lead to very undesirable consequences for America's relations with Europe."

AS TO WITHDRAWAL.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Inquiries about the withdrawal of National guardsmen from the border and Maj.-Gen. Pershing's command from Mexico made today by Congressmen at the War Department, renewed reports that a military move of that character would be ordered soon, probably next week.

Secretary Baker told each caller that he hoped the militia would be returned home within a short time, but could not say definitely what plans the War Department had.

Announcement has been made that the next move in the Mexican situation had been decided upon by President Wilson and would be made known Monday in New York when the Mexican members of the joint commission leave the United States.

Candido Aguila, Mexican Minister of Foreign Affairs, telegraphed to Consul-General Denegri today a request to deny reports that Luis d'Antin, the American attache of the embassy here, had died from other than natural causes.

"Louis d'Antin's death," the Minister said, "was occasioned by cerebral congestion, which he suffered at Monterey on his way to Queretaro, as a result of a cardiac affection which he suffered prior to his death. He died at San Luis Potosi."

Unwilling to accept as true the official version of the death, Mrs. Irma D'Antin, his widow, appealed to the State Department today for further investigation and for assistance in having his body returned to the United States.

SPEECH OF GERARD CORRECTLY QUOTED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Ambassador Gerard's much-discussed speech on his return to Berlin, in which he was quoted as saying that "Never since the beginning of the war have the relations between the United States and Germany been as cordial as now," was reported substantially as made, it was said at the State Department today.

The text will be examined carefully and it is probable some announcement will be made later. It is stated officially that the department's request of the Ambassador to send on his exact words is in no way a reproof to him, but is a customary procedure.

Ambassador Gerard's speech has caused more comment abroad perhaps than any utterance by an American diplomat since the war began. The German newspapers attached much significance to it, especially as it followed so closely on Ambassador Gerard's visit to President Wilson and Secretary Lansing here and on the President's note to the belligerents.

In general the German Chancellor's supporters and those looking to an early peace approved it, while the Chancellor's enemies and those urging vigorous warfare regarded his suggestion that so long as the present German officials continue in power no trouble was likely as an undue interference in Germany's internals affairs, which should justify his recall.

BIG ARMY SWINDLES REPORTED IN BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from The Hague says that the German newspapers are appealing to the public to assist the Parliamentary Committee in the investigation of alleged gigantic swindles connected with army contracts. The public are invited to report to the committee every abuse of this kind which comes to their knowledge. Even anonymous communications will receive attention and investigation.

THE SUPREMACY OF "THE TIMES"

It's Lead as an Advertising Medium in the Year 1916

Concurrent with other important events in Southern California, the closing of the old year marks a big lead in the volume of paid advertising printed in The Times over all its rivals.

Again, careful investors and buyers of newspaper publicity in this section of the country during the past year have demonstrated their faith in The Times by inserting more separate advertisements and more liberal space in its advertising columns than in those of any other newspaper.

The merchant who uses pages to exploit his goods and the individual who offers to sell, or wants to purchase anything, are agreed as to the certain results accruing from advertising in The Times. It is as indispensable to one as to the other, proving it to be the most efficient advertising medium in California.

The following tabulated statement indicates concisely the pre-eminence of The Times in Los Angeles:

ADVERTISING IN LOS ANGELES NEWSPAPERS FOR 1916.

	Lines.
THE TIMES	13,140,574
Second morning newspaper	9,906,288
Third morning newspaper	7,596,526
First evening newspaper	6,995,268
Second evening newspaper	6,746,082
Third evening newspaper	3,028,494

Further evidence of The Times being the logical and economical medium in reaching the masses is the fact that it continues to print more "liner" or "want" advertising than any other two newspapers on the Pacific Coast. An incomparable record, proving beyond all controversy its peerless supremacy in the advertising field.

VIEWS OF PRESS ON ALLIED REPLY.

ENTENTE DEMANDS DECLARED MAD AND FRANTIC.

Desire for War of Conquest on Part of Great Britain and Her Friends Asserted Established in Answer to Peace Proposal—New Resolution Born.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 13 (via London, 1:15 a.m.)—The Berlin Lokal Anzeiger, commenting on the Entente's reply to President Wilson, says:

"To every German in whose heart there is a trace of the sense of honor and dignity, a glance at this document will destroy the last fragment of a desire for peace. It is impossible that a German can wish a peace that has the appearance foreshadowed by this document. The Entente Powers have now established that this is a war of conquest."

The Deutsche Tages Zeitung says that "Now, as heretofore, our enemies strive for the realization of demands which would result in the destruction of Germany as a great power and condemn the German nation to be stunted and crippled."

The Tageblatt says that the Entente demands can only be regarded as mad and frantic. "Germany, in its note," says the paper, "made it clear that there was no unbridgeable gulf between its conditions and the programme recommended by President Wilson. The Entente Powers have said more distinctly what they desire, but simultaneously they block every path which might lead to peace."

The other Berlin papers generally take the view that the Allies' reply puts an end to the peace hopes. The Taegliche Rundschau says that "War by notes is thus exhausted for the present."

"From the Sereth and the Mediterranean," it continues, "another war is calling with a more impressive voice."

The Kreuz Zeitung declares that the Entente programme must suffice to convince the keenest pacifist that the war will continue.

"The German government," asserts the Kreuz Zeitung, "will be backed by the entire German people the more heartily and resolutely it wages war."

COMMENT IN BERLIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (via London, Jan. 13, 7 a.m.)—The German press, although expressing indignation at what it considers slurs on the Central Powers in the reply of the Entente to President Wilson and although angered at the peace conditions, finds consolation in the belief that the note will serve to weld together all classes into an unconquerable and determined whole.

Papers like the Tageblatt and the Lokal Anzeiger emphasize this expected effect of the Allies' reply and almost ignore the second German note, which was published simultaneously. The Pan-German press, on the other hand, gives the German communication the greatest importance and hails it as a sign that the leaders of the Central Powers are finally coming around to their view in regard to Belgium and other moot questions.

The Entente's specific delineation of its aims is accepted in general with relief as finally eliminating all guesswork and allowing every one to see just what is at stake. The extravagance of these aims, according to the Lokal Anzeiger, binds Central Europe a thousand times tighter together. The Tageblatt thinks that the note, instead of being a heavy blow for Germany as predicted, really makes things easier because it will serve to arrange all differences of opinion. This paper believes that the reply "at one stroke unite such opposites as the Socialists, who are desirous of avoiding any rejection of overtures, with the Moderates, who favor a business peace and with the annexationists, who insist upon total defeat of the enemy.

"The enemy's demands," continues the Tageblatt, "are foolish and senseless and such that no German could consider them for a second."

The Tageblatt sarcastically touches on the Allies' declaration that they have no intention of destroying the German people and says that in fact the Entente does not demand that every German be drowned or otherwise obliterated.

POPE NOT READY TO ACT ON PEACE.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Jan. 13.—"It is confirmed that Pope Benedict has firmly decided not to participate now in any action, pending toward peace, that might appear to favor the Central Powers, rather than any other nation," says a dispatch from Rome to the Temps. "It is pointed out that there is a difference between religious manifestations and prayers for peace and the purely diplomatic action of the United States, Switzerland and other neutrals."

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR; SECRET PEACE MOVES.

Grand Duke Cyril's Visit to Berlin of Major Importance.

BY HARRY CARR.

FROM sources of unquestionable reliability I learn that the Grand Duke Cyril of Russia has lately paid a secret visit to Berlin.

This cannot be interpreted otherwise than as a secret move for peace. It has long been certain that when peace came it would be due to the pressure of an impending settlement between Russia and Germany.

In considering these great diplomatic relations, it is well to disregard every word that every government gives out officially. The various white books and yellow books and green books issued by the diplomats of the different governments at war are political documents. As a usual thing, they are so outrageously silly that they deceive no one. They are interesting only as curiosities. Sensible people reject all the notes, declarations, proclamations and other works of fiction, and consider the probabilities.

From the outset there has been something strange and mysterious in Russia's connection with this war.

SECRET PACT.

It is no longer a diplomatic secret that a year or so before the war Russia and England entered into a war pact whereby, in the event of a European war, British transports were to enter the Baltic Sea and convey Russian troops to the French war front.

The German secret service found out about this pact and reported it to Wilhelmstrasse. After repeated conferences it was decided by the German diplomats to withhold this from the Kaiser. They knew that if the War Lord learned of this plot he would insist upon either forming new army corps or transferring some of the then existing German corps to the shores of the Baltic as a defense against this projected war move. In which case the world would excitedly point to the belligerency of the German government and place upon the Central Powers the onus for the war.

War finally broke in August. Yet the February previous to that the Kaiser and the Czar went on a long yachting trip together in the North Sea. A trip that was supposed at the time to have some diplomatic significance.

STRANGE MOVES.

Since the outbreak of the war the moves of Russia have been equally mysterious.

In the opening phases of the war, while the German army was advancing upon Paris, the Russian army astonished the world—and the German General Staff—by the speed and effectiveness of its mobilization.

Six months after the beginning of the war Russia defeated even the great Hindenburg and sent him packing back in a hurry on the occasion of his first attempt to capture Warsaw. Then it appeared to blow up and lose its effectiveness.

Since that time the Russian army has shown the most astonishing ups and downs. These reversals of form are accounted for in official explanations by the fact that the Russian army is superior to the Austrian army, but inferior to the German.

On account of the dubious loyalty of some of the Slavic troops in the hodge-podge Austrian army this is true in a measure; but there must be some deeper and more dangerous reason for this mystery of Russia.

In the fortress of Nowo Georgievsk I saw whole trainloads of ammunition; yet the garrison surrendered. I have since learned that the ammunition did not fit the guns. Why was this wrong ammunition sent?

The Grand Duke Nicholas is seen in 1915 winning perhaps the brightest laurels of any general in the war. He is suddenly taken away from his command and sent to the Caucasus Mountains. Why?

After remaining quiescent for a long time this expedition comes to life and scatters the Turkish troops in Armenia like a whirlwind. Then just as suddenly the army seemed to vanish. Without encountering any defeats, it suddenly seemed to blow up? Why? What has become of the big Russian army which took Erzerum?

GENERALS DEPOSED.

From time to time, queer reports have come in from Russia of the famous generals being deposed and even imprisoned. Four or five army corps commanders are said to be in the great prison fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul's. Why?

One of the great generals who seems suddenly to have vanished is Gen. Rennenkamp who had a German name and a great fame as a Russian army commander.

Last year, a great revolution broke out in Moscow; only the most vague details of it ever reached America.

Of late these reports have come in again. Another revolution is said to be in progress.

A distinguished Polish editor and politician who is visiting Los Angeles tells me that these revolutionary troubles are the real explanation of the failure of the Russian army to go to the rescue of Rumania. Part of the Russian force was heavily engaged with the German troops in the Carpathians. Owing to internal troubles it was not possible to send in sufficient reinforcements to save Rumania.

This is neither the end nor the summit of the Russian mystery, however.

MYSTERIES.

Why was Kitchener sent to Russia? And, about that time, why did Russia suddenly enter into a new alliance with Japan—an alliance almost openly in opposition to the interests of Great Britain? In time of peace, this alliance would have been resented by Great Britain as an open act of unfriendliness and might have led to war.

And, by the way, how did Kitchener really meet his death and where and why? There was something altogether too hazy about that drowning off the Orkney Islands. The death of a great national hero is not passed over so easily.

Latterly, to these other mysteries have been added the blowing up of a great munition factory—the Krupp of Russia—near Moscow. And the destruction of seven ships loaded with American munitions in the harbor of Archangel. Is it probable that this could all have been the work of Germans? It is an overtax on our credulity. Something very queer has been eating at the vitals of Russia. What were those two famous suppressed speeches in the Duma? In a general way we know that one dealt the charge that one of the Russian generals had been discovered to be a secret agent of Germany. The other was officially announced to have dealt with "Russo-English relations." But what was said about English-Russian relations that the Russian government deemed a danger to the cause?

SOMETHING QUEER.

The recent advance of the British troops into Mesopotamia is another very strong indication that something queer is going on. The British government can have no hope of winning the war in that quarter. In fact, to make this advance, it must have been necessary to take British troops away from more important quarters of the field of war. No sensible person can see this advance in any other light than this That the British see the end of the war at hand and are seeking to head off the Russian government from getting too strong a foothold in Persia.

There is no question but that Russia and Germany have been doing considerable commercial trading across their border for several months past—a traffic winked at by both governments.

In my opinion, although fighting may continue until summer, the war is virtually ended now. It is more than likely that the terms of peace are already under discussion, if not by the two alliances, at least by individual members of the different alliances.

PUBLIC OPINION.

What the diplomats are waiting for now is the swing of public opinion. All the governments have fed up their people by promises of great victories. They have fattened dubious military actions into fake victories. They cannot now suddenly announce that the thing has failed and they must enter an unsatisfactory and bootless peace.

It can be safely said that every great government in Europe is now anxiously planning to save itself from its own people.

Every Foreign Office in Europe is about in the condition of the mind of a man who is on the way home and is trying to compose a speech that will make his wife receive with kindness, the fact that he has just lost the week's salary at poker.

Not being insane, both of the alliances now see that a final and real victory for either side has become impossible.

They must tell the people that all the sacrifices, all the deaths, all the maimed bodies, all the sightless eyes, all the sorrow-stricken homes have been in vain. And the telling requires time and tact.

KAISER SAYS ALLIES HAVE DROPPED MASK.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM (via London) Jan. 13, 4:45 a.m.—The following proclamation by the Emperor to the German people has been officially published in Berlin:

Our enemies have dropped the mask. After refusing with scorn and hypocritical words of love and peace and humanity our honest peace offer, they have now, in their reply to the United States, gone beyond that and admitted their lust for conquest, the baseness of which is further enhanced by their calumnious assertions. Their aim is the crushing of Germany, the dismemberment of the powers allied with us and the enslavement of the freedom of Europe and the seas, under the same yoke that Greece, with gnashing of teeth, is now enduring.

But what they could not achieve in thirty months of the bloodiest fighting and unscrupulous economic war they will also fail to accomplish in the future. Our glorious victories and our iron strength of will with which our fighting people at the front and at home have borne all hardships and distress guarantee that also in the future our beloved fatherland has nothing to fear. Burning indignation and holy wrath will redouble the strength of every German man and woman, whether it is devoted to fighting, to work, or to suffering.

Wee aer ready for all sacrifices. The God who planted his glorious spirit of freedom in the hearts of our brave people will also give us and our loyal allies, tested in battle, the full victory over the enemies' lust for power and rage for destruction.

GERMANS ARE DRIVEN FROM BRITISH OUTPOST.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 13, 11:33 p.m.—The report from British headquarters in France tonight reads:

"Early this morning the enemy temporarily forced his way into one of our posts northwest of Serre, but was immediately driven out and the post was reoccupied by us. Thirteen German prisoners, including two officers, were taken in this area.

"Yesterday evening an enemy raiding party attacked another small post held by us west of Vimy but was driven off. A minor enterprise undertaken by us during the night against enemy trenches west of Wytschaete was entirely successful. A few additional prisoners were secured in the course of these two encounters.

"This morning the enemy exploded a small mine north of Guinchy, no damage being done to our trenches. We carried out effective bombardments of the enemy's positions at various points along our line north of the Somme and south of Neuve Chapelle. Elsewhere the usual artillery and trench mortar activity continued."

RUTHLESS WAR OF THE U-BOATS.

Berlin Editor Tells the Government How to Answer the Allies.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

THE HAGUE (via London) Jan. 13.—The Berliner Kreuz Zeitung editorially urges the immediate opening of a ruthless submarine campaign by Germany as a reply to the Entente peace demands. It says that, owing to German hesitancy in the use of Zeppelins against England, the British have had sufficient time to find a means to foil Zeppelin attacks. It draws the parallel that unless submarine warfare is undertaken without delay the British will likewise find some new shield against the U-boats.

NOTE OF ENTENTE CALLED ARROGANT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (via London, Jan. 13.)—The morning edition of the Lokal Anzeiger calls the Entente note arrogant and insolent, filled with hypocrisy and prevarication.

This newspaper believes that everywhere in Central Europe, where the people perhaps had grown weary of the war, the note will change any possible weakness into determination to obtain victory. It then summarizes the significance of the Entente's aims regarding the Central Powers—loss of provinces for Germany, complete destruction of the Austrian monarchy, loss of Constantinople and Asia Minor for Turkey and deliverance of Bulgaria to revengeful neighbors, and concludes that the note will weld all together a thousandfold stronger than the "London paste" binds the Entente. The newspaper says the only remaining question of any importance is how neutrals will take the note with its "falsifications of history" and invites them to a careful comparison of it with the German note. Like the Tageblatt the Lokal Anzeiger sees impoliteness to President Wilson in the note because it challenges the soundness of his judgment.

BERLIN CLAIM CONTROVERTED.

German and Austrian Notes to Neutrals Answered.

"Who Started the War?" is Again to the Front.

Small Nationalities' Rights Discussed in Reply.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 13, 12:45 p.m.—An authoritative statement issued here today gives the British view of the German and the Austrian notes to neutrals. It repeats the assertion that Germany was responsible for starting the war, inasmuch as the proposal for a conference was rejected. This refusal, it is pointed out, was given on July 27, 1914, while it was not until July 31 that orders were given for a general mobilization by the Russian government.

The statement deals at length with the German charge that the proposals of the Allies regarding the rights of small nationalities lacked sincerity, in view of the treatment of the Irish and the Boers, the subjugation of Northern Africa, the suppression of foreign nationalities in Russia and the treatment of Greece. On this point the statement says:

"As for Ireland and South Africa, their sons have shown on many battlefields, as the Germans know to their cost, that whatever differences there may have been between those countries and Great Britain they are now united with the rest of the empire in repelling German aggression.

"Northern Africa, at the beginning of the war had not Germany, too, great colonies in Africa? Did not they obtain those colonies by similar means to those which placed the French, the Italians and British in coastal Northern Africa?

It is pointed out that the whole of Russia is united against the Central Powers, while as regards Greece, "the Allies have done no more than exact, in their capacity of protecting powers, the guarantees to which they were entitled against German intrigue to protect the safety of their own armies."

LAWS OF WAR AT SEA.

Dealing with the charge that the Allies were the first to violate the laws of war at sea, the statement says:

"From the very beginning the Germans sowed mines indiscriminately on trade routes in defiance of all international law and with total disrespect of the rights and lives of neutrals. . . . The right of cutting off supplies of an enemy is a well-recognized belligerent right practiced by all nations. The avowed purpose of the submarine campaign of Germany was to cut off the supplies of these islands. This campaign has been carried out ruthlessly and with total disregard of the rights of neutrals and of their lives. Even the Germans cannot pretend to excuse such crimes as those of the Lusitania, the Arabic, the Sussex and many others.

"The Germans profess to regard as inhuman the employment of starvation as a weapon. Were they of the same opinion in 1870, when they starved the city of Paris?"

The statement charges that Germany herself started the war in Africa by an attempt to raise an insurrection in South Africa and says the Germans are better supplied with munitions and machine guns in Africa than are the Allies.

Denial also is made of charges of bad treatment of prisoners and attention is drawn to the events in Belgium, the Armenian massacres and the alleged ill-treatment of prisoners in the Wittenberg camp and elsewhere.

"Have the Germans forgotten," the statement continues, "that the Chancellor admitted the violation of Belgian neutrality was wrong, but claimed it was justified by military necessity? As for the treatment of Belgium, the world will not readily forget the massacre of Aerschot and Louvain, the forced levies of Belgian funds and the inhuman, barbarous deportations which are being carried out this day."

It is improbable the Allies will make any further comment on the German and the Austrian notes.

RECALL LAWSON IN LEAK QUEST.

Bernard Baruch and Others to Testify Tomorrow.

Full Powers Conferred upon Congress Committee.

Expect Contempt Proceedings to Make Broker Talk.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Members of the House Rules Committee, armed with the broadest authority to compel witnesses, and particularly Thomas W. Lawson, to answer questions, will resume on Monday their investigation of rumors that advance information reached Wall street on President Wilson's peace note.

Determined to go to the bottom of the situation from every angle before reporting to the public on the Wood resolution for a sweeping Congressional inquiry into "leak" stories, the committee has subpoenaed all persons and papers that it considers might shed light on the rumors. Besides Lawson, Bernard Baruch of New York and several other New York and Chicago brokers have been asked to testify Monday. All of the telegrams sent from Washington on December 20, the day stock market speculators are reported to have profited by advance information, also have been asked for.

RECALLING OF LAWSON.

Interest in the recalling of Lawson to the stand overshadowed among members of Congress tonight all other developments in connection with the reopening of the hearing. Under a resolution adopted by the House today the committee is empowered to compel him to answer any question. The resolution was drawn at an executive session of the committee, which endeavored to make it broad enough to cover every possible avenue of escape from contempt charges for any witness, and the House in adopting the proposal as soon as it was presented, displayed a willingness to go as far as possible in strengthening the committee's hand.

QUESTIONS FOR LAWSON.

Lawson will be interrogated from a set of written questions, now being prepared. He will be asked among other things to name the Congressman who told him a story about a Cabinet official, a banker and a Senator being involved in a profit-making conspiracy in connection with the leak and also to name the trio themselves. If the Boston financier fails to answer, the plan is to cite him for contempt and give him an opportunity to make answer before the bar of the House. Then if he stands by his refusal he will be turned over to the sergeant at arms, and the House may order him held until he decides to answer, or it may refer the case to the courts.

Officials expect the contempt proceedings will be necessary, for they do not believe Lawson will answer the committee's questions.

OIL SHIPMENTS MOUNT SKYWARDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LOS ANGELES HARBOR, Jan. 13.—Five big tank steamers have arrived here for oil cargoes during the past three days and a sixth is due tomorrow. The Caddo, arriving today from Antofogasta, will load a return cargo for the Standard. The Richmond, which arrived yesterday, will sail tomorrow for Honolulu. The Beldredge sailed yesterday for Vancouver with cargo for the Union and the Coalinga will sail next week for South American ports. The San ■ is expected from South America to load a return cargo.

The oil shipments are growing by leaps and bounds. Half the arrivals from foreign ports during the month of December were oil tankers, which loaded for either the Union, Standard or General Petroleum stations. Last year the General Petroleum Company alone handled over its wharf 1,344,581 barrels of oil. The oil companies are making much business for local shops and supply houses, as the steamers in the South American trade do not go further north than this port, excepting when it is necessary to go into drydock.

The Union tanker Coalinga now in port here is being given a general overhauling at the Miner fill. The boilers have been blown down and the engines are being overhauled, while the steamer is given a coat of paint. She will load 80,000 barrels of fuel oil for Chile.

RECALL LAWSON IN LEAK QUEST.

ernard Baruch and Others to Testify Tomorrow.

ull Powers Conferred upon Congress Committee.

xpect Contempt Proceedings to Make Broker Talk.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Members of the House Rules Committee, armed with the broadest authority to compel witnesses, and particularly Thomas W. Lawson, to answer questions, will resume Monday their investigation of rumors that advance information reached Wall street on President Wilson's peace note.

Determined to go to the bottom of the situation from every angle before reporting to the public on the Wood resolution for a sweeping Congressional inquiry into "leak" stories, the committee has subpoenaed all persons and papers it considers might shed light on the rumors. Besides Lawson, Bernard Baruch of New York and several other New York and Chicago brokers have been asked to testify Monday. All of the telegrams sent from Washington on December 20, the day stock market speculators are reported to have profited by advance information, also have been asked for.

RECALLING OF LAWSON.

Interest in the recalling of Lawson to the stand overshadowed among members of Congress tonight other developments in connection with the reopening of the hearing. Under a resolution adopted by the House today the committee is empowered to compel him to answer any question. The resolution was drawn at an executive session of the committee, which endeavored to make it broad enough to cover every possible avenue of escape from contempt charges for any witness, and the House in adopting the proposal as soon as it was presented displayed a willingness to go as far as possible in strengthening the committee's hand.

QUESTIONS FOR LAWSON.

Lawson will be interrogated from a list of written questions, now being prepared. He will be asked among other things to name the Congressman who told him a story about a Cabinet official, a banker and a Senator being involved in profit-making conspiracy in connection with the leak and also to name the trio themselves. If the financier fails to answer, the plan is to cite him for contempt and give him an opportunity to answer before the bar of the House. Then if he stands by his refusal he will be turned over to the Sergeant at arms, and the House may order him held until he decides to answer, or it may refer the case to the courts.

[illegible] expect the contempt proceedings will be necessary, for they [illegible] believe Lawson will answer the committee's questions.

THE BRITISH LINE.

Few persons, even here, appreciate the fact that the British hold a line in Macedonia longer than their front in France. In the few opportunities at their command they have made fine headway against an enemy outnumbering them.

In the second place instead of helping the Germans in their Rumanian campaign the Bulgars cried for assistance. This upset Mackensen's time table, how seriously the spring offensives may show.

Before he undertook the Dobrudja campaign Mackensen had to organize and train a Bulgarian reserve army. This took time. Eventually he is likely to find that these delays will prove costly and that his whole campaign may end abortively. The Allies can thank Sarrail for this, though just now his forces are under a cloud in some quarters.

Close observers believe the Bulgars have had almost enough fighting and will not be so tough customers in 1917. When the weather permits there will be heavy fighting and possibly decisive battles. Sarrail has laid the groundwork.

RUSSIAN REPORTS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PETROGRAD, Jan. 13 (via London, 2:22 p.m. British Admiralty for wireless press.)—Heavy forces of Germans attacked the Russian lines yesterday east of Kalnzem, south of Lake Babit on the Riga front. The War Office announced today that the attacking forces were driven off. The official statement also says:

"An enemy aerial squadron consisting of thirteen aeroplanes dropped about forty bombs on the station and town of Radzivilov. Our aeroplanes having made reconnaissances behind the enemy, notwithstanding his heavy artillery fire, descended to about 1400 meters and bombarded, with machine gun fire, the enemy's battery near the village of Krukhov, twenty versts east to Zolich Zolotchv."

Rumanian forces in the region of the River Kasino in Moldavia, after a violent battle yesterday with Austro-German troops, succeeded in throwing the Teutons back and occupying their trenches, says the Russian official statement issued today. North of the Slanic River, the invaders forced back the Russians from a height.

The text of the statement follows:

"Rumanian front: The enemy pressed back our detachments from one of the heights north of the River Slanic.

"Enemy attacks against the heights heights south of the River Oituz were repulsed.

"Rumanians attacked the enemy west of Monestar-Kachinul, on the River Kasino, and after a violent struggle, succeeded in throwing back the enemy and occupying his trenches. The Rumanians captured three machine guns."

GERMAN REPORTS.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 13 (via Sayville.) —Further successes have been won by the Teutonic forces both along the Russian frontier of Moldavia and on the Sereth line to the southeast, army headquarters announced today. At the junction of the Buzeu and Sereth Rivers, Bulgarian troops captured a monastery and Turkish troops took the town of Mihalea by storm, capturing 400 of the garrison, the rest of whom were drowned in the Sereth.

The announcement follows:

"North of the Slanic Valley we again gained ground. Four officers and 170 men were captured.

"On both sides of the Oituz Valley, strong hostile attacks failed.

"At the junction of the Buzeu and Sereth the Bulgarians captured a monastery. Northwest of Braila Turkish troops stormed the town of Mihalea. Of the Russian garrison 400 men were captured and the others, on attempting to escape were drowned in the Sereth.

"British troops attacked again, today, the German lines at Serre, north of Ancre, on the Somme front. They gained a footing in one advanced position, army headquarters announced today, but otherwise were sanguinarily repulsed, the Germans continuing to hold the main position.

"Comparative calm continued to prevail," says today's official report from the Russo-Galician front.

"East of the Cerna, hostile companies advancing toward Stravina were repulsed," says today's official report from the Macedonian front.

An official statement issued today by the Austro-Hungarian Admiralty says that on the night of January 12, an Austrian aeroplane squadron successfully dropped bombs on the Italian aerodrome near Belgena. Several full hits, the statement adds, were obtained in the new hangars.

BRITISH COMMUNICATION.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 13, 4 p.m.—A raid on the Anatolian Coast by a Russian squadron is reported in a Central News dispatch from Petrograd. The Russians sank forty Turkish sailing vessels which were carrying food to Constantinople.

ARE WE SOON TO BECOME A RACE OF BALD-HEADED MEN?

PROF. JOHN H. AUSTIN

Hair Specialist of Chicago, Who Is Now at Hamburger's, Talks Most Interestingly About the Hair.

He says that baldness is increasing rapidly among men and points out some of the reasons. Prof. Austin is probably right in saying that about one man in every hundred ever thinks about his hair at all, except to comb it two or three times a day. If it falls out he looks anxiously at the falling hair, and then promptly forgets it until the next time he uses the comb.

A man will give the utmost attention to his teeth, because he knows that when trouble arises he will have more trouble and probably lose his teeth if he doesn't go to a dentist promptly. But his hair doesn't ache, it just gradually dies, and when it is nearly gone, and the roots are dead, he anxiously tries a dozen different remedies at once and then resigns himself to baldness.

Prof. Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonic, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

Prof. Austin examines the roots of your hair with a powerful microscope. He finds out just what is the trouble with YOUR HAIR, and then he tells you what to do for that trouble.

It doesn't cost a penny for the examination, and it puts you under no obligation to follow his advice if you don't want to do so.

Prof. Austin has devoted thirty-eight years to studying the hair and scalp. Surely it will be worth the few minutes it takes to let him turn the microscope on your hair.

During the past two years Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp of our patrons—they enthusiastically appreciate this free service.

He will make FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATION of the hair and scalp all this week in his private office on the second floor, Hamburgers. Hours, 10 to 12 a.m. and 2 to 4 p.m.

AVIATORS TO BE AIDED BY POWERFUL LIGHTS.

[BY. A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

HEMPSTEAD (N. Y.) Jan. 13.—To enable members of the First Signal Corps and First Aero Corps to fly at night, searchlights of more than 1,000,000 candle power each have been installed at the aviation field here. The lights are on platforms sixteen feet high and will illumine an area of more than four miles. A dozen flood light projectors also have been installed for the illumination of the landing field.

The officers of the government aviation squad, it was announced today, are arranging a flight to Washington to witness President Wilson's inauguration.

FOR AMENDMENTS TO RESERVE ACT.

[BY. A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—Amendments to the Federal Reserve Act, designed to place the United States on a thoroughly sound basis of financial preparedness for whatever the future may bring during the continuance of the war and after its termination, have been put into definite form by the Federal Reserve Board and soon will be introduced in Congress.

The chief unforeseen financial problems which the country has faced since the war started, have resulted, board officials believe, from the huge gold importations, which have tended to upset former economic and financial conditions, and the recommendations for new legislation are aimed principally at controlling loan extensions based on these gold accretions.

"Amendment of the act," said a statement issued by the board today, "seems necessary to enable us to deal effectively with the new international problems which seem destined to play so important a part in our domestic life. The banking system of the United States should be prepared to meet effectively two conditions of opposite character—one the excessive and uncontrolled inflow of gold, the other the excessive and unregulated outflow of gold.

"The amendments proposed are designed to provide means for controlling an over-extension of loans based on new accretions to our gold stock and to provide for the mobilization and concentration of gold holdings of the United States so that the flow of gold back into Europe or to South America or to the Orient may be arranged without forcing any violent contraction of loans or causing undue disturbance to legitimate business.

Angeleno Victims of Wreck Near Kansas City are Seriously Hurt.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Jan. 13.—Mrs. Claborn P. Randolph, who with Mr. Randolph was injured in a grade crossing accident yesterday at Lenexa, Kan., had not regained consciousness at St. Mary's Hospital today. The condition of Mr. Randolph, though slightly improved, is still considered critical by the physicians.

Mr. and Mrs. Randolph were touring in their automobile from their home at Los Angeles to Detroit. At the Breyfogel grade crossing near Lenexa, they waited for a freight train to pass but did not see the Frisco passenger train coming in the opposite direction on the other track.

The two-day State convention of growers will come to a close tonight. The rain last night prevented the field demonstration of fig growing this morning.

DISMISS CASE AGAINST WRIGHT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—The case against Rev. A. Curtiss Wright of Ramona, near here, was dismissed in the Superior Court today by order of Judge T. L. Lewis. Rev. Wright's trial recently on a statutory charge made by Barbara Beardsley, 14 years old, resulted in a disagreement. Judge Lewis, in ordering the case dismissed, said all possible evidence has been presented at the first trial, and that a new trial would merely be a repetition of testimony previously given.

HOW BRITAIN GOT THE U-41.

Details of the Engagement by German Survivor.

Plot to Destroy the Only Eye-witness, Alleged.

Parallel of the Baralong Tragedy is Indicated.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 13 (via Sayville.)—The official report of Lieut. Crompton, a survivor of the German submarine U-41, sunk by the British on September 24, 1915, the case which the German government has characterized as a second Baralong incident, was made public today.

Lieut. Crompton, after being wounded and a prisoner in England, was interned in Switzerland, whence his report was received. Previous statements by the German Admiralty have charged that the account he gave of the circumstances of the sinking and the after treatment of the two survivors showed a deliberate attempt to do away with the only eye-witnesses on the German side. The destruction of the U-41 is alleged to have been carried out by a British patrol ship which flew the American flag throughout the engagement and which afterward attempted to run down a rowboat containing the two survivors, who also are said to have been ill-treated after finally being taken on board the British vessel.

FROM THE REPORT.

Lieut. Crompton's report in part reads:

"On the morning of September 24, the British steamer Urbino, bound to England, was sunk by artillery fire about thirty miles southeast of the Scilly Islands. The crew had been allowed about half an hour to depart. When the Urbino was listing heavily and burning a smoke cloud was sighted. Submarine U-41 submersed and let a steamer pass at a distance of about 200 meters. The steamer flew the American flag. It had no neutral sign on the side.

"The submarine emerged and ordered the steamer to stop. This order was immediately obeyed. We signalled to send the documents on board. This was not answered by the steamer, which gave the countersignal, 'I am stopping.' At the same time the steamer prepared to lower a boat. On the submarine the gun on the bow had been made ready.

"When the vessels were about 300 meters apart the steamer suddenly opened a violent fire, first with rifles along the whole railing, then from 7.6-centimeter guns hidden behind the ship's side at the bow and stern.

HIT BY SHELLS.

"The submarine had received several hits by shells shortly before the conning tower was submerged. During the entire engagement the steamer flew the American flag. To be sure the flagstaff was turned down but the flag was not replaced.

"As the submarine went to the bottom I was lying unconscious in the tower in consequence of a wound. When I returned to consciousness I was swimming. After being in the water for some time I was passed by the steamer at a distance of about 50 meters. I called and raised my arms but was sneered and spit at by sailors. After a long time I saw an empty lifeboat of the steamer Urbino. When I had climbed into it I heard the helmsman calling for me and took him in. In consequence of loss of blood, I was lying in the boat aft, while the helmsman sat at the bow. After some time we saw the steamer again. We stood upright in the lifeboat and waved our hands. The steamer changed her course and approached us at high speed. Soon we observed a man standing in the bow, who directed the course of the boat. As the steamer did not reduce her speed there was no doubt that she intended to ram us. Finally they threw a rope and took us on board.

"Aside from the officers of the Urbino, whom we recognized, nobody wore a uniform. The crew of the steamer, according to the declarations of the first mate, belonged to the royal naval reserve, but all of them, including the officers, were clad as civilians. When we arrived on board we were led to the stern and had some brandy. As no surgeon was aboard, the helmsman bandaged me as well as possible. Then we were locked in a box standing on the deck.

ARRIVAL AT FALMOUTH.

"On the morning of September 25 the steamer arrived at Falmouth. A surgeon came on board and bandaged the British. The helmsman observed that ten hammocks with wounded and dead were taken off the steamer. At this time I was taken out of the box but had no medical attention until the next day at noon.

"In the afternoon the captain of the Corvette, who spoke German perfectly, tried to interrogate me. I told him my name and in order to cut off all questioning regarding the submarine, declared that I had been unconscious when she went to the bottom. I had been separated from the helmsman on the morning of the 25th. The helmsman was interrogated on the bridge after me.

On September 26 I was taken on land and conveyed to a military hospital, being first lodged in a room with four British officers. The next day I was lodged in the barracks. I was temporarily tied in bed as I was suffering from violent cramps. A sentinel with a fixed bayonet constantly stood at my bed. For the rest the treatment was good. Surgeons and ambulance attendants took care and were friendly

"On the morning of October 6 I had to get up in order to be taken to a large hospital. I was put on board torpedo-boat No. 17, which soon made for sea. At noon we arrived at Plymouth. Escorted by a drunken warrant officer and six sailors, I was carried to the naval detention barracks at Devonport.

CONVICT RATIONS.

"After repeated requests I obtained a bed. The rations were those of convicts and I could not eat them in consequence of my broken jaw. The medical assistance was insufficient. When I complained of this to the commander of the penitentiary he told me that he himself was sorry for it, but that he had explicit orders from the commander at Plymouth. At my request the commander called three days later and remedied some deficiencies. The helmsman, in spite of all his protests, remained for about four weeks in the penitentiary.

"As I was in danger of becoming blind in the right eye, also, I was taken on October 11 to the military hospital at Devonport. The broken jaw was treated again and a foreign substance detected. On October 18 I was operated upon and a brass screw which had been driven in by a shell explosion was removed. At the place where the jaw was broken from within and without serious abcesses had formed meanwhile. Several brass splinters were shortly afterward removed from my left eye, the last one in January, 1916. The treatment was generally good, but frequently the attendants stole food. I was not allowed to write letters.

"On November 6 I was transported to the York military prison, where I again met the helmsman. The commander telegraphed the Admiralty asking for instructions, and received in answer an order to give no information. In these circumstances complaints were useless. There was no surgeon in the prison. About once a week the commander called with an oculist, who gave me very little care. After eight days the wounds in my temple became inflamed again and my jaw again swelled up. As there was no surgeon, the helmsman cut the wounds with a pocket knife. The wound in the temple has not healed to this time and continues suppurating.

TO THE AMERICAN EMBASSY.

"On January 18, 1916, I sent a report to the American Embassy in which I pointed out particularly that submarine 41 was fired on by a steamer flying the American flag. I also described the destruction of the submarine and the treatment of survivors in prison. When, in the middle of February, I had received no answer, I reported again, but received no answer. In March a gentleman from the American Embassy arrived at Dyffryn Aled. When I asked him whether he had received my reports he said he knew nothing about them and supposed that my reports were still in the War Office, as all communications directed to the American Embassy must first pass through the War Office. When at the end of May a physician's committee arrived at the camp at Dyffryn Aled. I was immediately accepted for internment in Switzerland. On June 10 a second examination took place at the officers' camp at Holy Port. The committee, contrary to regulations, as far as I know, was composed of five British and only two Swiss physicians."

RIGHT TO EXAMINE MOONEY'S PAPERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—Decision on the legal right of the defense in the murder trial of Thomas J. Mooney, to examine papers bearing on the case and which are now impounded with the court, will be handed down by Judge Franklin A. Griffin, Monday, at resumption of the trial. Mooney is charged with complicity in the bomb explosion here July 22, 1916, which claimed ten lives.

The papers were seized recently by the District Attorney's office in a raid on the offices of Alexander Berkman's San Francisco publication "The Blast." It was during a heated argument over these letters yesterday that assistant District Attorney, Edward A. Cunha, charged that Berkman, his assistant, Miss M. E. Fitzgerald, Robert Minor, treasurer of the International Workers' Defense League, together with Mooney and four others were implicated in a conspiracy against the life of Gov. Johnson of California.

LACK OF SUPPLIES MENACES SMELTERS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TUCSON (Ariz.) Jan. 13.—Unless supplies reach the smelters in this district within two weeks, curtailment, if not a shutdown of production must come, according to reports circulated today in mining and smelting circles.

Ore is piling up on the smelter yard sidings, it is said, and the plants are working double shifts but still are unable to keep up with productions. Only two weeks' supply of coke is left at the big plants, it is said.

MILLION NEEDED FOR SAN QUENTIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN QUENTIN, Jan. 13.—Nearly $1,000,000 is to asked for the maintenance and improvement of San Quentin prison during the next two years in the budget just completed by Warden James Johnston and sent to the State Board of Control today for approval before it is tendered to the State Legislature. Of this amount $706,000 is for maintenance and salaries and the balance for improvements, including two new cell buildings.

The prison is now more crowded than at any other time in its history, according to prison officials. The prison population is now 2420, and all of the old dormitories, abandoned in 1913 as unsanitary, are being used.

The principal items in the budget are: For salaries, officers and guards, 1917-1918, $276,000; maintenance for two years, $430,000; two new cell buildings, $200,000, and $30,000 for new farm buildings and machinery for the furniture, shoe and ice plants.

The proposed cell buildings would be wings of those constructed in 1913 and would have a capacity of 800 single cells. It is proposed, if the appropriation is allowed, to furnish the new structures from the prison factories. The maintenance and salary items of the budget show a slight increase over the last appropriation, due, it is said, to the increased convict population.

WHERE TOMMY MEETS POILU.

British and French Armies Get Chance to Mix.

One Section of the Line is the Place of Contact.

Each has Greatest Respect for the Other.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMIES IN THE FIELD (France) Dec. 29.—There is a point on the western battle line where the British Tommy and the French Poilu meet—where the alliance between Great Britain and France becomes a reality.

There they are dug in, the man in khaki and the man in pale blue. There in the long watches of wintry nights, in the front trenches, they sit about a charcoal fire and smoke and think together, and make understandable signs and sounds, though it is seldom that either can speak the other's tongue. It is not a show spot, this meeting place of the two great allied armies in France, nor is there a definite mark to show the dividing line. It is just a mingling point, not an abrupt juncture. For perhaps a hundred yards at the joining sector the French and British soldiers fraternize and visit.

There is no break in the line anywhere along the front and from time to time the meeting place of the armies is shifted, according to the plans and the agreements of the French and British staffs. Often the Germans are at a loss to know who is opposing them—French or British—and all sorts of ruses and subterfuges are resorted to in the attempt to gain information. It is considered of great importance on both sides to know just who the fellows are in the opposing trench and when there is a relief, or change in the line, the world war resolves itself, at least locally, into a hazardous game of hide and seek.

RESPECT EACH OTHER.

Tommy and Poilu have the greatest respect for each other and if Tommy has been over very long he generally knows a phrase or two of French, which, coupled with the war slang that is common to both armies, gives a medium of communication mutually enjoyed. In the front-line trenches they share and exchange their little belongings like so many school children swapping lunch goodies at recess time. Cigarettes, tobacco and chocolate are traded back and forth and oftentimes the midnight meal for Frenchman and Englishman is heated over the same little stove, carefully concealed from the enemy, lest a hand grenade should upset the supper plans.

This stubborn, dogged, foot-by-foot warfare, with its mire and mud, its redoubts and dugouts and its intricate geography of trench upon trench, seldom lends itself to pictures of martial splendor, but without design or arrangement there occurred a few days ago a spectacle which will live long in the memory of the few outsiders privileged to witness it.

Two great contingents of the French and British armies met upon the road, exchanged salutations, and passed. One was "coming out," the other "going in." Each column must have been at least seven miles long. And with each was all the paraphernalia, the panoply and the impedimenta of modern warfare. There was no studied display to the spectacle, no full dress, no glinting steel nor burnished brass. The day was cold and gray and wet and everywhere was a grim realization of the business, the machinery of war—war just over the horizon.

DIFFERENCE IN TYPES.

When the two columns were fully abreast the military picture had attained its fullest expression. From a point of eminence one could look down upon the undulating road and see for miles the two-colored ribbon formed by the marching men—the British khaki on the right, the French blue to the left. The columns were made up of infantry and field artillery—horse artillery, the British call it. There are the famous French "75's" or "soixantes quinze"—the extreme of gun simplicity and effectiveness. Some were painted blue and others had a mottled coat to make them fade all the more vaguely into the landscape and thus cheat the prying eyes of hostile airmen. Their smoke-stained muzzles and mud-splashed barrels were eloquent of the fact that these were no novices at the game of war. They were out of the line now for a brief respite, only to go in again later.

Opposite the "75's" were the British 18-pounders—not so slim and graceful, perhaps, as their French prototypes, but just about all that a gun should be. British gunners are willing to admit that the French gun is "rather some weapon," but they have a real affection for their own field piece which is absolutely unshakable.

Punctuating the blue and khaki ribbons now and then were little patches of smoke and steam rising from the field kitchens, for dinner was being cooked "on the go." It was a little after noon that the two columns halted and there, mingled in a roadway lined with the gaunt remains of shell-torn trees, Tommy and Poilu sat down and ate, side by side.

PASSING SPECTACLE.

It was the good fortune of the correspondent of the Associated Press in the field with the British armies to motor through the entire length of the blue and brown columns. It was easy to see that the passing spectacle of the opposite army was of intense personal and professional interest to Frenchman and Briton alike. The French never cease to marvel at the Scotchmen, in their khaki tunics, plaid kilties and bare knees. The Scots who were in the long brown line on this particular day had a small but vigorous pipe band with them, and the Highland music delighted the passing Poilus.

And to the British eyes the French soldier is magnificent. Tall and stalwart men rode and marched in the blue line that passed the brown. Many of them had been in the fighting since the first days of the German invasion, but the more than two years of the hardships of war apparently had made no inroads upon their magnificent physique. Strong and clean of limb they were, some of them fiercely bearded despite the serio-comic ukase of a few months ago that the beard of the Poilu must go. But without a beard a Poilu would cease to be a Poilu. All were splashed with the inevitable mud of the broken battlefields. The horses, looking warm and happy in their long winter coats, were fairly covered with mud, as well.

Something about the spectacle reminded one of Civil War days in America. Perhaps it was the old limber wagons in the line. They tried other sorts of more modern wagons at the beginning of hostilities in Europe, but soon the old limbers came back into their own.

GERMANS SEIZE WAR CARGO AND SINK SHIP.

BERLIN, Jan. 13 (via Tuckerton, N. J.)—The German government has transmitted to James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador, a note concerning the sinking of the Norwegian steamer Tripel by a German submarine. The Overseas News Agency gives out the following portion of the note:

"As stated by the German naval authorities, the Norwegian steamer Tripel November 10, 1916, was stopped by a German submarine, which, after making certain that the cargo was steel and iron for the Italian war command and destined for Genoa, took possession of it. Since it was impossible to bring the steamer into a German port under existing circumstances, the ship was sunk. A sufficient time before this the crew were allowed to leave the steamer. The weather was very favorable, and the Spanish coast was hardly ten miles away. A full guarantee was given for the rescue of the crew."

The steamer Tripel, 2488 net tons, left Baltimore October 22 for Genoa. A Reuter dispatch received in London November 11 last reported that the steamer had been sunk by a submarine and her crew saved.

LARGE TRANSPORT SUNK BY GERMANS.

[BY WIRELESS AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 13 (via Tuckerton.)—On December 28 a German submarine sank a transport steamer of 8000 tons off Cherbourg, says the Overseas News Agency. The steamer was escorted by a destroyer.

DENIAL BY LONDON.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 13.—According to an Amsterdam dispatch the Berlin government has issued the following official statement:

"One of our submarines on December 28 sank a British transport in the English Channel. The transport was steaming with darkened lights and measured about 8000 tons. She was convoyed by destroyers."

In making denial of this announcement the secretary of the British Admiralty said tonight:

"The above report is absolutely untrue."

GERMAN PROPERTY SOLD IN VIGERIA.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONDON, Dec. 31.—The public auction of German property in Nigeria—which aroused so much interest in and out of Parliament through opposition to neutrals being allowed to bid—was commenced November 14 before a large attendance of business men interested in the West African trade. Nineteen lots of property situated in Lagos, of the total of ninety-four, were put up and disposed of to British interests for $1,491,250.

The biggest price of $230,000 was paid by a London firm for one lot comprising the freehold site and premises formerly occupied by the Woermann steamship line, of an area of 8000 square yards.

The smaller lots were taken by Liverpool merchants interested in African trade.

THREW OVER MAIL TO SAVE HIS SHIP.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Jan. 14, 1:43 a.m.—A Reuter dispatch from Stockholm says:

"The captain of the Swedish steamer Ingeborg, belonging to the Thule line, who has returned to Gothenburg from England, states that his steamer was stopped in the North Sea by a German submarine and that he was compelled to throw into the sea all the mail from Entente countries, consisting of 700 sacks. Otherwise, he said, the German commander threatened to take the ship to Germany."

CANNED DOGFISH LABELED GRAYFISH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SEATTLE, Jan. 13.—A packing-house at Friday Harbor, Wash., has just canned 300 cases of dogfish and plans to complete 15,000 cases before the end of the season. The label on the cans says: "Grayfish, a new food packed at the request of the United States Bureau of Fisheries and under methods approved by it. The grayfish is esteemed in European countries, but hitherto has been unutilized in the United States."

The machinery used in salmon canneries is well adapted to canning grayfish and the same tins are available. There is a large demand for grayfish eggs for use in tanning leather. They are half as large as a hen's egg. Grayfish was served last night at the annual dinner of the Washington Newspaper Institute, at the University of Washington and was pronounced excellent.

NEW FEDERAL OATH AN ISSUE IN COURT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BOSTON, Jan. 13.—Questions involved in the refusal of members of the National Guard to subscribe to the new Federal oath are to be reviewed by the United States Supreme Court. The Circuit Court of Appeals in this city was instructed today to forward to the Supreme Court a certified writ in the case of Alexander W. Emerson and A. P. Lowell, both members of the Massachusetts National Guard, who refused to take the new oath. After a ruling in their favor by the District Court, the Court of Appeals held that they were still subject to military duty under the terms of their old oaths, basing the findings largely on the ground of public policy.

RACE BETWEEN BULLET AND ARMOR KEEPS UP.

No Longer are the Battleshp and Big Gun the Only Participants in Endeavor to Solve Problem of Irresistible Force and the Immovable Body—Utility of the the Steel Hats.

BY EDWARD C. CROSSMAN.

THE nose of the modern military man-killing bullet is considerably out of joint. There flourishes a base conspiracy to keep it out of places where it desires to enter. Where but a year or two ago it plunged happy and unobstructed through the human frame when correctly piloted from the muzzle of the rifle, now about half the time it bangs its sharp bow against hard and unsympathetic armor. A most astonishing and unexpected land version is one of the old, old race 'twixt projectile and protective armor. No longer are the battleship and the big gun the only participants in this strenuous endeavor to attain the theoretical and much-debated stage of an irresistible body striking an immovable one.

From the days of the old Merrimac with her iron sides from which the shot of the Yankee ships bounced like peas off a stone wall, there has been a steady and mighty even race between armor and projectile, as applied to fighting ships. No sooner was armor perfected out of heat-treated and massy steel plates, than some ballistic shark cruelly developed a gun and shell that would zip neatly through said plates at a range some miles beyond the horizon. Then within a few months, another armor shark would develop still more improved armor that wouldn't even dent from the impact of the shot of the erstwhile irresistible gun, and so on ad infinitum.

LAND FIGHTING.

But nobody dreamed that land fighting would ever develop, first protective armor, and then special projectiles from the rifle made to penetrate this armor and make it again useless.

The experts said that the modern bullet with its steel or German silver jacket and its high speed and its slender pointed form, would just naturally zip through anything in its way—short of a brick wall, plenty of dirt, or four inches of dry sand, which queerly enough stops the most powerful modern military bullet. This being the belief, nobody even dreamed of trying to keep out a bullet by means other than lots of dirt in the form of intrenchments. Fashion said that troops had either to scatter out in skirmish formation to minimize the chances for getting hit, or else they had to dig themselves nice little burrows in the dirt. That was the extent of the scemes for keeping well-meant bullets from their billets.

The beliefs were well founded. A bullet that goes through a half-inch of mild steel at the muzzle, and a quarter inch at 500 yards hardly offers much encouragement to the hapless infantryman to appear in the cast-iron pants and shirt worn by the elite of the middle ages. They undoubtedly were hot on a hot day, and did interfere with running, which is an important thing for consideration in these times. Also if the wearer fell down they had to set up shears and a block and tackle to get him again on his tootsies.

SNEER AT GERMANS.

In the early days of war, the British had one grand snort and sneer among their many said snorts, at the German pickelhauben, which is Kaiserese for helmets. "Just like the (censored) Huns," they yowled, "wearing a fool helmet with a spike on it to make their men more visible when prone, merely to add to the fearsome appearance of the German infantry. They can't scare us for nuts—not they." And more of the same sort. Presently it turned out that the German helmet would stop many a shrapnel bullet that had lost a little of its enthusiasm and would slow down the vicious ones until they merely flattened themselves out on the Teutonic head instead of inflicting fatal wounds. Shell splinters and sabre cuts were likewise delayed on their way when they struck the German version of hat.

Once more the "Dutch" demonstrated that if they didn't have any backs to their heads, they kept mighty busy what little head they had.

The French promptly "saw" the German headgear and raised 'em five, with a helmet of their own, much heavier than the German headwear, not intended for use on long marches, and capable of stopping most anything but a bullet from the military rifle at short range.

The British followed suit. Now we have both of the allied belligerents on the west front wearing strong helmets made out of special heat-treated steel and shaped to prevent most missiles from hitting fairly at right angles and so getting through. The British, and the French as well, issue their men two sets of headgear, the shrapnel helmet and a regular cap to wear when not actually under fire, the "iron pot" then being carried at the belt. Reports vary as to the weight of the new style headwear, but it lies between three and six pounds.

Meeting the allied move to turn their infantrymen into armored cruisers, the Germans evolved a supplementary piece of steel to fasten to the front of the helmet for trench work, and finally a "trench mask," like an inverted water bucket, made of steel so heavy it will turn a rifle bullet at short range and covering the wearer's head and neck completely, outside of two slits opposite the eyes. This is intended only for use in the trenches, not for any sprinting along the roads of Europe.

CRAZE FOR ARMOR.

All of this craze for armoring the infantryman—unprotected for 200 years—arose not from any deficiencies in the penetrating power of the bullet, but from the many other things that come the way of the poor soldier, from shrapnel, the most deadly combination in use in the present war, to shell splinters, grenade fragments, and even lance thrusts and saber cuts in the open fighting. Taking care of the bullet was an afterthought when the helmets proved to be so comfortable when the weather was full of cast-iron fragments and shrapnel balls.

Shrapnel is merely a shell with a light bursting or propelling charge, ahead of which are 250 half-inch round lead bullets. When the charge is fired by the time fuse, the bullets are kicked out of the steel casing just as shot is driven out of a shotgun barrel, the speed being 200 feet a second added to whatever speed the shell itself had at the time of bursting. It is a most murderous invention against unprotected men, because the leaden bullets spray a large area of ground below the bursting shell and they have enough penetration to kill. On the other hand, being lead, and round and without much speed, the shrapnel missiles are easily stopped—hence the shrapnel helmet and the German pickelhauben.

Now comes the Frenchman with a modernized form of the ancient cuirass, which the ancient cuirassier brand of cavalryman used to wear to turn from his body lance thrusts and saber cuts and possibly the bayonet of the opposing infantryman. The new cuirass is made up of some 160 pieces of tempered steel, joined with 564 electrically-welded links. It weighs seven pounds and six ounces, and is worn under the tunic like a vest. It is guaranteed to turn shrapnel, spent bullets, shell splinters, lance thrusts and saber cuts. Only Pre'r high-speed military bullet at short range can get through it.

The British makers have obtained the right to make this, and the officers who have $25 to spare go to France with this comfortable protection against the rigors of a bullet-laden winter.

USE OF THE "TANK."

The British "tank" was nothing more or less than a moving armored fort, a battleship on wheels, and all that made it useful was its armor. Now the Germans claim to have evolved one far superior in armor and speed to the English. Aeroplanes—light, feathery, airy structures of wings and piano wire stays in the opening days of the war—now wear armor for the protection of their occupants and the engine and gas tank. At every turn the bullet finds its pathway more or less obstructed by hard steel.

Not long ago a representative of a Philadelphia firm with a contract with the French government made repeated trips to the testing plant of a certain powder company and had the affable testing man shoot the American service rifle at the sample they had of a new helmet for the French. Finally they turned up with a sample that at forty yards turned the bullet of the American service rifle! In other words, the army rifle of no nation now at war could get through that helmet at a range of just across the street!

The formal photostat record of the test lies before me.

"Wearying of the attempt to shoot a hole through this helmet with our 150-grain service bullet, they turned to the special 180-grain bullet used for long-range target shooting and hitting with the blow of 2914 foot pounds instead of 2428 foot pounds. Still the weighty missile failed to get through this helmet, while it whizzes through a cool half-inch of mild, untreated steel. The official record for the first five shots reads merely 'No dent, no fracture.' This is far more than the original light-shrapnel helmet of the French would stand."

So much for the armor end of the game. At every step the poor bullet found itself shut more and more out of the human body for which it was created.

Now comes the chap at the other end of the game—the type-brother of the chap who always bobbed up with a still bigger gun and shell when they got battleship armor "shell-proof." This man, a Capt. Clay of our regular army, has evolved a military bullet with a steel core surrounded by the usual lead-bullet filling, and normal jacket. Instead of going through a half-inch of mild steel it gets through a full inch. Instead of penetrating the old-type French helmet at 2500 yards it penetrates it at 4500 yards. Instead of glancing off oblique surfaces, as does the ordinary bullet, its soft nose makes it "bite" and it penetrates steel plates at a most impossible angle for the old or normal form of bullet.

It gets through the present aeroplane armor at a range of from 1500 to 2500 yards—that is, from a bit less than a mile to nearly a mile and a half. It romps through the present field-gun shields and aprons, which turn ordinary bullets at 100 yards. It slips neatly through the latest form of French cuirass, made of half-inch plates covered with seven layers of canvas, proof against the ordinary bullet.

So it comes about at last that the astonishing tendency to revert to the ironclad fighting man of the Middle Ages is at last checked by the logical evolution of a still more efficient steel-penetrating bullet, and the scrapping of tanks, trench masks and aeroplane armor is in order.

No ship has ever worn armor that the gun of some other ship couldn't get through if hit fairly at not too long a range. Now it appears that no infantryman and no tank and no aeroplane is going to enjoy any more immunity than the fighting ship, because improvement in steel treatment and armor process will be merely followed by improvement in armor-piercer bullets.

RICE GROWERS WILL OPEN WAR ON DUCKS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—The rice growers of the Sarcamento Valley have declared war on ducks and other feathered animals that virtually unmolested have lived well and luxuriously on the growing rice crops. They will seek to have the Legislature enact a law which will permit them to kill, in and out of season, all wild fowls in their territory.

Stories of depredations committed by ducks in the rice fields have been related to the legislators by representatives of the growers and they obtained a sympathetic hearing from Senator Herbert W. Slater of Santa Rosa, chairman of the Fish and Game Commission.

At present the farmers are liable to arrest and punishment under the laws of the Fish and Game Commission should they attempt to protect their property by shooting game birds out of season.

Either the ducks and birds must go or a budding industry will perish, the growers have told the legislators. They will ask that a protective measure be passed in their interest.

PAROLES FORMER PASTOR.

Clergyman Who Deserted Wife is Freed by Gov. Capper.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

TOPEKA, Jan. 13.—Gov. Capper today paroled from the State prison W. M. Stuckey, former pastor of a Williamsburg (Kan.) church, who deserted his wife and children in 1909 to elope with a 17-year-old girl member of his church and later fled to Florida and married a Cuban woman while his appeal on a five-year sentence for abduction was before the Supreme Court.

Stuckey had served about three years of his five-year sentence. He has been in a Kansas City hospital for the last two months with a broken hip sustained while drilling with the prison fire brigade at the Lansing penitentiary.

Cruiser a Wreck.

tightened and Decker was snapped thirty feet into the air. He landed in good shape, however.

Lieut. Harvey S. Haislip, who was in charge of the cutter which capsized in the surf on Wednesday, came next. Speaking for Lieut. Newton, commander of the Milwaukee, he said:

"Everyone on board is safe and well, but we want haste in getting the men ashore. We were caught in the surf and fog. When we found we were in the surf we tried to slip the cable to the H-3, but the line was too long and heavy and we could not get it clear in time. I don't know whether the bottom is damaged or not. Our fires are all out."

SIX SAFE ASHORE.

The first surf boat was launched at 2:29 o'clock. It was manned by men from the Cheyenne and Iroquois, which, in the meanwhile, had come into the bay. Six of the Milwaukee's men were brought ashore safely. The second boat brought back five men. By this time they were bringing two men at a time in the breeches buoy and by dusk nearly 200 men were on the beach from the wrecked cruiser.

Only one man suffered injury, so far as known. This was G. B. Roth, the seaman who suffered a fractured shoulder Wednesday when the Milwaukeee's surf boat capsized. His shoulder was broken again as he was being brought ashore today.

The work of rescue, it was announced, would continue all night, until every man was off the derelict. Great fires have been built on the beach to furnish the lifesavers with light.

The surf boats weer operating up to a late hour, but, owing to the strong currents sweeping in the lee of the cruiser, this method of getting the men ashore was becoming extremely hazardous.

Lieutenants Milton S. Davis and Eric F. Zemke were planning to make a preliminary survey of the wreck tomorrow. The Milwaukee, they said, recently left the drydock, where she received extensive repairs. According to navy officers here, her stranding, as it now appears, will mean a loss of approximately, $7,000,000.

The second man rescued was Lieut. Harvey S. Haislip, injured Wednesday when he was spilled with eleven others into the sea.

Fifty men and "Sea Rover," the ship's dog mascot, had been landed by 3:30 o'clock with the aid of two surf boats. Lieut. Haislip said the ship's false bottom was flooded and all her fires were out. Another survivor said there was eight feet of water in one fire room and that two boilers had shifted.

The body of H. R. Parker of Santa Barbara, Cal., member of the crew of the United States cruiser Milwaukee, was found at the entrance to the harbor here today. He was lost Wednesday when he and eleven shipmates were overturned in a small boat in an attempt to put a line aboard the stranded submarine H-3.

CAPERTON WILL ACT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—In addition to personally supervising salvage work on the Milwaukee, Admiral Caperton, acting upon his own initiative, is expected to appoint immediately a court of inquiry to investigate and fix responsibility for the accident. Upon the findings he will recommend whether Lieut. W. F. Newton, commander of the Milwaukee, shall be tried by court-martial.

ADMIRAL TO SAIL.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—Admiral Caperton, commander of the Pacific fleet, this afternoon received orders from the Navy Department in Washington to proceed to Eureka on his flagship, the cruiser San Diego, and assume charge of the salvaging of the cruiser Milwaukee. The admiral announced that the flagship would sail at 7 o'clock tonight and expected to reach the Milwaukee at daylight Tuesday morning.

CROCKER WOOD COMMITS SUICIDE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—Crocker Wood, well known in the automobile business here and California, ended his life tonight at 9:30 o'clock by leaping from the window of his apartment on the eleventh floor of No. 155 Riverside drive. Mr. Wood was 25 years old and the son of Edwin O. Wood, also in the automobile business and who, because he is ill in a hospital, has not been informed of his son's death.

Three weeks ago Croker Wood came here from San Francisco and underwent an operation. It is said that he withstood the shock of it fairly well, but lately had been extremely nervous. He lived with his father, mother, sister and brother, Stanford Wood. His mother and sister went to a theater tonight and his brother to the automobile show. He was left in charge of Miss Ida M. Sirles, registered nurse.

The Knabe Ampico Reproducing Piano Triumphs in a Public "Acid Test"

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 8TH, at the Hotel Biltmore, in New York City, the final perfection of the new Knabe Ampico Reproducing Piano became a matter of public record.

An ultra-critical audience of musicians and critics heard Leopold Godowsky play the A Flat Ballad and C Sharp Minor Scherzo of Chopin, and then Liszt's Etude de Concert. Immediately afterward the Knabe Ampico repeated the numbers, reproducing with uncanny fidelity to the original all the easily recognizable characteristics of Godowsky's playing.

Seldom has a new invention had a more impressive demonstration. And judging from the applause which the remarkable recital brought forth and the comments which followed, seldom has there been such a wholesale conversion of skeptics.

A NEW MUSICAL INSTRUMENT

The Knabe Ampico is a new instrument, the only genuine reproducing piano on the market today. The Knabe Ampico is without legitimate competition. Though others are making similar claims, we unqualifiedly challenge a comparison between the Ampico and any other player mechanism on the market today.

While the Knabe Ampico is primarily a reproducing piano, reproducing with unerring exactness the interpretation of the artist who plays the master roll, it is more: the Knabe Ampico will play any 88-note roll, to which the operator may impart his own interpretation; and, lastly, the piano itself remains unchanged for hand playing.

Our library of music rolls embraces the entire range of musical composition, all played by artists of world-wide fame.

Godowsky, Ornstein, Volavy, Wittcenstein, Hambourg, Goodson, Gabrilowitsch, Friedheim, Carreno, Bauer, Hofmann, etc., etc., all play for the wonderful Knabe Ampico Reproducing Piano.

GODOWSKY MUSIC ROLLS

In justice to our readers, the Knabe Piano, Godowsky and ourselves, we feel it our duty to state that Godowsky's choice of all pianos is the Knabe. And the only place in the Southwest you can hear a true reproduction of this lightning fingered pianist and hear him on his own choice of piano—The Knabe—"The World's Best," is at the Fitzgerald Music Company.

TO MAKE EFFECTIVE THE ADAMSON LAW.

SUGGESTIONS FOR MACHINERY IN COURT BRIEF.

Proposed Indorsement of Ten-hour Contracts Submitted to Supreme Justices—Clauses in the Act are Defined by Department at Washington.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—In a supplemental brief in the Adamson law test case, received today at the Supreme Court for formal filing next Monday the Department of Justice makes suggestions for machinery to put the law into effect.

Under existing railroad wage contracts, the brief declares, the phrases "day's work" and "day's wage" have a well-recognized meaning in most freight service contracts to be "100 miles or less at ten miles an hour," by substituting a 12½ mile per hour "speed basis" for the existing 100-mile, ten-hour day scale, the brief asserted, the Adamson eight-hour standard can be generally put into practical operation.

PROPOSED INDORSEMENT.

The proposed indorsement of existing ten-hour contracts was submitted to the court

"Whenever under this schedule more than eight hours constitutes a day's work, the same is hereby reduced to eight hours, whether herein stated in terms of hours or in terms reducible thereto and all overtime shall be paid pro rata."

Regarding this proposed effect the brief added:

"The Adamson act declares in effect that every employee of the class affected, no matter what his task, shall be considered at the end of eight hours to have earned the contract price payable for a day's work. If he is worked longer, and he may be, such work will constitute overtime and entitle him to extra pay. The economic burden of this extra pay is counted on to produce an actual shortening of hours and this shortening can be effected without curtailing the mileage of the day's trip if the speed per mile is increased.

PURPOSE OF ACT.

"If, however, like passenger engineers and conductors, the employee is laboring at a task which can be and usually is accomplished in less than eight hours, he is of course unaffected by the act. The purpose was to decrease, not increase the hours of actual labor. It it only when set to a task of longer duration than eight hours that the act steps in and penalizes the employer by imposing overtime."

Fashionable Denver District Scene of Shooting.

Wife Recounts to Police Tale of a Night of Horror.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

DENVER, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Stella M. Smith told the police late today of events leading up to the fatal shooting of her husband, John L. Smith, in their home in a fashionable residence district early today. Mrs. Smith, the police declared, said her husband threatened to tear her clothing from her, among other alleged indignities, and said he was going to kill her and her daughter by a former marriage, Mildred Moore.

Mrs. Smith formerly was the wife of William A. Moore, prominent attorney, brother of Julian A. Moore, recently named district judge here, and a son of former Bishop David Moore, at one time located in Portland, Or. She was the step-daughter of Alfred Britton of Chicago and formerly of Fort Worth and other Texas cities, who made a fortune in the Beaumont, Tex., oil development.

NIGHT OF HORROR.

Dry-eyed, Mrs. Smith told officials of a night of horror, at the culmination of which, early this morning, she shot Smith with a small revolver as he attacked her once more. She told how she stepped over the man lying on the floor beside her bed, called a servant, and returning, she had feared that Smith was not dead and had shot him again with his own pistol, leaning over to place the weapon close to his head.

John Bindle, the servant who admitted Smith, and whom Mrs. Smith called, told of seeing her fire the second shot.

W. A. Moore, Mrs. Smith's husband until four years ago, went to the house about 4 o'clock this morning, summoned by a servant at the behest of Mrs. Smith, who feared for Mildred's safety. Moore took his daughter and went away without going into the house. Mildred cried at leaving her mother, he said, and asked him if he had heard her scream when Smith choked her.

THREATS BY SMITH.

Mrs. Smith said that as Moore drove away, Smith tried to shoot him, threatening to kill both man and girl, but that she struggled with him and prevented him firing the pistol he pointed at them.

Moore told of vain efforts to secure a policeman to accompany him to the house for Mrs. Smith's protection and said "I suppose I ought to have killed Smith myself but I hadn't the heart to do it."

Mrs. Smith is 43 years old. Her husband was 33. Smith formerly was a chauffeur in the Moore household.

The Smiths had been separated some time. The home where Mrs. Smith was living was owned by Mildred Moore, 12 years old, Mrs. Smith's daughter by her former marriage. At 2 o'clock Smith rang the door bell.

"I want to see Mrs. Smith," he told Bindle. Bindle told the police Smith had been drinking and he feared for his life.

Smith immediately went to his wife's rooms. There, according to Mrs. Smith, he tried to force her to drink from a bottle of liquor. A struggle followed, but subsided. Periodically, until the time of the shooting the struggle was resumed.

SERVANT TELEPHONES.

At 3 o'clock a servant telephoned to William Moore, Mrs. Smith's divorced husband, saying she feared for the safety of Mildred, asleep in another part of the house. Moore went to the house, remaining outside. He called a servant and drove away with Mildred. At that time Moore told the police he could hear Mr. and Mrs. Smith talking upstairs.

According to Mrs. Smith, Smith gave her his large revolver.

"If you don't kill me with the first shot, I'll kill you with my hands," Smith is alleged to have told his wife.

W. A. Moore, was at the police station today, while Mrs. Smith was being examined.

"I will stand by her and do everything possible for her," he said.

Up to recently the Smiths had been living in Oakland, Cal. They were married in Eureka, Cal., in 1913.

One of the causes immediately responsible for Mrs. Smith's act, according to her statement to the police, was a threat which her husband made against Mildred Moore. Referring to the slaying of her husban, Mrs. Smith declared to Chief of Police Armstrong:

"It was a small matter that happened out there, compared with what might have happened."

PHONES FORMER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Smith telephoned Moore, her former husband, at his hotel apprising him of the shooting.

"I have just killed him," she is quoted as saying over the telephone. "Bring the police."

When officers arrived at the Smith home overturned furniture in the hallway and rooms told the story of the struggle.

LEGATION SECRETARY TURNED DOWN, QUITS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—George Lorillard, secretary of the American Legation to Rumania and assigned by the State Department as confidential agent of the United States with the Serbian government, by request of the Central Powers, to care for their interests there, especially among prisoners, has resigned.

Official announcement of the resignation and its acceptance was made at the State Department.

He recently requested a transfer which was refused by the State Department and resulted in his resignation.

Unofficial reports today said that Mr. Lorillard spoke in derogatory terms of President Wilson's peace note. This, however, was discredited at the State Department.

TWO-CENT FARE RATE IN ILLINOIS AFFIRMED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—The supremacy of the Illinois 2-cent rate for passenger travel within the State was affirmed today by Judge Landis in the United States District Court, when he dismissed for want of equity the petition of twenty-eight railroads operating in Illinois, for an injunction to restrain the State authorities from prosecuting and establishing a 2-cent rate.

The right of the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize railroads to increase State rates above the point established by the State law had been argued several days.

Judge Landis held that the Interstate Commerce Commission had no power under the guise of removing discrimination against points outside the State to repeal the Illinois 2-cent law.

In a preliminary hearing Federal Judge Carpenter declared the case to be one of the most important ever brought before the Federal courts.

DROP DYNAMITE IN OIL WELLS.

BRITISH AND FRENCH DIRECT WORK IN RUMANIA.

Bakersfield Man Declares When Germans Arrived They Found Nothing but Seething Mass of Flames Where They Looked for Valuable Supplies.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—How British and French army officers directed the destruction of oil fields near Ploechti, Rumania, in order that they might not fall into the hands of the Prussians, was told today by Americans, employees of Rumanian oil companies, who were passengers on board the Stockholm, of the Swedish-American line, arriving here from Gothenberg.

According to John S. Campbell of Bakersfield, Cal., who was one of the party, the engineers doing the work were in charge of Maj. John Griffith. Explosives were dropped into the wells, blowing out the casings, while the oil storage tanks were dynamited. Fire was then set to the debris so that when the Prussians arrived ten days later they found but a seething mass of fire where they expected to capture a stock of petroleum that would be of inestimable advantage to them.

Mr. Campbell said he believed it would be months before the region could be made productive once more.

In the party besides Mr. Campbell were Mr. and Mrs. Everet Sadler with their children, Isabel and May; Mr. and Mrs. Peter McCabe, Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Shoemaker and their children, Robert and Letty, and Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Hoffman, with their children, Jean, Carol and Gretchen. They brought with them the body of Mrs. Mary Martin, mother of Mrs. Hoffman, who died while the Stockholm was held at Kirkwall. Mrs. Martin caught cold during the trip through Russia, it was said, and because of her age could not withstand its ravages.

Fred Hodiger, clerk at the Reardon Hotel, going to the aged musician's room to attend to his wants, found him lying cold and still.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

HERO OF MANILA BAY GROWS STEADILY WORSE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—Admiral George Dewey is extremely ill and, due to his age, his condition just before midnight was feared to be critical. The hero of Manila Bay was just 79 years of age last month. He has been suffering from a severe cold for several days and has grown worse steadily, suffering a sinking spell last night.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

On Serious Charge.

BOY HOLDS OFFICERS AT BAY WITH BIG REVOLVER.

ARMED with a revolver of the largest size made, William E. Hunter, a youth of 19 years, early last night held two officers at bay for almost an hour when they attempted to arrest him on the county road near Acton on a charge of contributing to the delinquency of a minor child. The boy only surrendered after the officers promised that Gladys V. Card, 13 years old, with whom he had been living for over a week, would not be harmed.

After disarming Hunter the officers went to a house on the Manning ranch, where the boy and his alleged bride were living, and placed the girl under arrest. She was taken to the juvenile home and Hunter was lodged in the City Jail. They will be taken into court Monday morning.

According to County Probation Officer Dunlap and Police Detective Berry, who made the arrest, young Hunter met Miss Card about Christmas Day. A few days later they informed William Zenor, the boy's step-father, that they had been married. They lived together, the police say, for some time. Juvenile officers were notified and made an investigation. They learned that the young people were not married and were about to make arrests when Hunter and the girl fled.

After a week of work the two were again located at the Manning ranch, where Hunter had taken the girl. Early last night the police in an automobile set out to arrest the pair, after a complaint had been sworn to by Mr. Card.

A short distance from the ranch young Hunter was seen walking down the county road. When he was stopped by the officers he at once drew the large revolver which he was carrying and announced that he was not the man they were seeking. Later he admitted the charge and surrendered.

FIRST DEGREE MURDER CHARGE AGAINST WELLS.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

COLUMBUS (O.) Jan. 13.—A charge of first-degree murder was filed today against Weldon H. Wells, former Kansas City broker's clerk, under arrest at Huntington, Ind., in connection with the murder of Mona Simon in a hotel here yesterday. Extradition papers will be sent to Huntington today.

Women of the Columbus W.C.T.U. tonight held short funeral services for the girl. Miss Simon's body was shipped late tonight to Grafton, W. Va., for burial near her old home.

BLAMES CRIME TO DRINK.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

HUNTINGTON (Ind.) Jan. 13.—Blaming drink for a condition which may have clouded his mind, Weldon H. Wells of Kansas City admitted tonight, the police say, that he might have killed Mona Simon in a hotel at Columbus, O. Chief of Police Baker regarded the prisoner's statement as a confession.

"If I did do it," Wells said, according to the police, "I must have been crazy. I was drinking hard, I know."

When told that a Columbus sporting writer had given information regarding his whereabouts, Wells is reported to have said:

"If Tom Dal said I was there Friday afternoon I must have been there. Tom wouldn't turn on me. He wouldn't tell anything on me that he did not know was right."

Wells said he would return to Columbus without requisition papers.

"JUDICIAL TYRANNY."

Mrs. Katherine Tingley Signs Her Deposition in Spalding Will Contest as Ordered by Supreme Court, but Protestingly.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Katherine Tingley, head of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society, with headquarters at Point Loma, near here, today signed the deposition she had given in connection with the Spalding will contest. The State Supreme Court recently ordered Mrs. Tingley to sign the document, and, after affixing her signature, she issued a statement declaring that she signed the deposition under the compulsion of "judicial tyranny and not of my own free will."

The fight over this deposition is another chapter in the legal contest instituted by Keith Spalding, son of the late sporting-goods magnate, who alleges his father was unduly influenced to leave the bulk of the estate to his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Churchill Spalding, one of Mrs. Tingley's foremost supporters.

MILLIGAN'S MURDER MORE COMPLICATED.

ANOTHER MAN CONFESSES TO HIS IMPLICATION.

Sentenced for Robbery at San Diego Prisoner Relates Story Blaming His Companion Whose Description Fits Baurdiuran, and Latter Laughs.

Fred Wilson, who was taken to San Quentin last week from San Diego, to serve an eight-year sentence for robbery, is alleged to have confessed to Deputy Sheriff Hubbell that he was implicated in the murder of Drew Milligan in Los Angeles, November 27. His description of his companion, whom he alleges fired the fatal shot, leads the police to believe that Jack Baurdiuran, who recently charged former Patrolman Albert J. Griffith with the killing of Milligan, is the man who was with him at the time the murder was committed.

If Wilson's statement is true Griffith is relieved of the suspicion placed on him by Baurdiuran's confession. Details of the confession have been forwarded to Chief Butler. Mr. Hubbell states that Wilson would not give complete details of the crime and for that reason he thinks he may be lying.

According to Wilson's story, he and a man about 30 years old, whose name he refused to give, but whose description tallies with that of Baurdiuran, committed a number of robberies in the vicinity of Los Angeles, including that in which Drew Milligan was murdered. Following the Milligan murder, for which he blames his companion, Wilson went to San Diego. Shortly after his arrival there he was arrested for drugging and robbing an elderly man. He was tried and convicted of this charge and is now serving an eight-year sentence. It is alleged that the officer suspected Wilson with being implicated in the Milligan murder.

When Baurdiuran was told of Wilson's confession yesterday he laughed uproariously.

"I would like to have this man Wilson brought here and have him pick me out of a crowd," he said. "I never heard of him before. It's all poppycock."

SHE KILLS JITNEY DRIVER, THEN SELF.

DOUBLE DEATH-DEALING AFFAIR IN SAN BERNARDINO.

Woman, Apparently Demented, Enters Bedroom and Sends Bullet Through the Sleeping Form on the Bed—She Believed Driver was Guilty of Negligence.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Jan. 13.—Mrs. Paul Tuphorn, age 34, tonight shot and killed Emil R. Shaffer, a jitney bus driver while he was asleep at the home of her mother at Urbita, and then turned the gun to her own head and fatally wounded herself. That love does not figure in the tragedy is declared by relatives, who say Mrs. Tuphorn, as the result of serious injuries received in an automobile accident at Pomona several months ago, was somewhat mentally deranged, and imagined a quarrel between Shaffer and her brother, Frank Fehn, was such that she should avenge. Fehn was ill in bed when Shaffer quarrelled with him. It is declared, after she had sent her daughter and a sister to a show, Mrs. Tuphorn entered a room in which Shaffer was asleep, closed and locked the door. Two shots were heard by the woman's mother and brother. When they broke into the room, Shaffer was dead on the bed as though he had been shot while asleep, and Mrs. Tuphorn was dying on the floor. The woman's husband lives at Las Vegas.

SUPPRESS I.W.W. RIOTS AT AJO, ARIZ.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

AJO (Ariz.) Jan. 13.—Rioting by 200 I.W.W.'s was put down this evening by Sheriff Miles and a handful of deputies, who broke some heads and arrested a Mexican leader and five lieutenants, including one American. The outbreak promises to result in speedy end of the I.W.W. invasion which has disturbed the district for several weeks. The trouble started when the Sheriff ordered one of the four women in red in the mob to cease abusive language. Red flags were waved and a dash made for the Sheriff. He stood his ground and with his deputies drove the mob back to Clarkstown headquarters.

THIS IS NO HUMBUG!

Cincinnati man tells how to shrivel up your corns so they lift out with the fingers.

Let folks step on your feet hereafter; wear shoes a size smaller if you like, for corns will never again send electric sparks of pain through you, according to this authority.

He says that a few drops of a drug called freezone, applied directly upon a tender, aching corn, instantly relieves soreness, and soon the corn, root and all, lifts out without pain. This drug is sticky but dries at once and is said to simply shrivel up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding skin.

It is claimed that a quarter of an ounce of freezone obtained at any drug store will cost very little but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet. Cut this out, especially if you are a woman reader who wears high heels. It is an ether compound.

TO SPEED WORK IN LEGISLATURE

Speaker to Name Committees Tomorrow Morning.

Assembly is Said to Oppose Any Waste of Time.

New Bill Aims to Legalize Woman Jury Service.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Speeding up of the work of both houses of the Legislature will mark the second week of the session, beginning Monday, it was anounced here tonight by Senate and Assembly leaders. Speaker Young will announce his committee assignments Monday morning and his action will complete the organization of the lower house.

The Senate committee chairmen planned to start their meetings and consider bills during Monday afternoon. These bills will be advanced to the second reading calendar and no further action taken on them until after the constitutional recess.

Senator Frank H. Benson, floor leader, said that among the upper house members there existed a real insistence to get down to work as rapidly as possible. Sentiment in the Assembly also is for less waste of time. The Senate is expected Monday to pass Benson's concurrent resolution for recess adjournment on January 26. It will encounter considerable opposition, however.

FOR WOMEN JURIES.

In order that there may be no doubt as the legality of women sitting as jurors in civil and criminal cases, Assemblyman Frank L. Ekward of San Mateo will introduce a bill next week amending the code to specifically include women jurors. Although women have been performing jury duty for some time in California the question of their status never has been determined, by court decision, according to Ekward. The bill will be presented at the request of Judge George Buck of Redwood City.

The Women's Legislative Council, representative of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, will back a bill of similar intent.

WHEN YOU WAKE UP DRINK GLASS OF HOT WATER

Wash the poisons and toxins from system before putting more food into stomach.

Says inside-bathing makes anyone look and feel clean, sweet and refreshed.

Wash yourself on the inside before breakfast like you do on the outside. This is vastly more important because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing illness, while the bowel pores do.

For every ounce of food and drink taken into the stomach, nearly an ounce of waste material must be carried out of the body. If this waste material is not eliminated day by day it quickly ferments and generates poisons, gases and toxins which are absorbed or sucked into the blood stream, through the lymph ducts which should suck only nourishment to sustain the body.

A splendid health measure is to drink, before breakfast each day, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless way to wash these poisons, gasses and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs but very little at the drug store but is sufficient to make anyone an enthusiast on inside-bathing. Men and women who are accustomed to wake up with a dull, aching head or have furred tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, sallow complexion, others who have billious attacks, acid stomach or constipation are assured of pronounced improvement in both health and appearance shortly.

Soldier Earl of Clonmell in Role of a Jonah.

Society Women are "Carrying on" in a Helpful War.

uel Berridge of Toft Hill, Rugby, and married the Earl, the seventh holder of the title, in 1901. They have two daughters living, but no son. This earldom, which is in the peerage of Ireland, was created in the year 1793, the family name being Scott. The first earl was successively Solicitor-General, Attorney-General, Prime Sergeant and Chief Justice of the King's Bench in Ireland.

The present Earl, who is 40, has been something of a Jonah man during the last few years. He volunteered in the first days of the war and, after seeing hard service, came home for what he intended to be a brief rest. He had to undergo an enforced one, however, for he promptly went down with a bad attack of influenza and stayed down for many weeks. Some years before the war he broke his arm while hunting and, while carrying it in a sling, met with a driving accident and was thrown into a ditch! Not many months afterwards he had the attack of fever in America which came so near to ending fatally, and just when he was recovering, received a cable apprising him that his London house, in Stratton street, had been severely damaged by fire. His Irish seat is Bishop's Court, Straffon, County Kildare, and he has another place near Leamington, Esthorp Hall.

DEPORTED BELGIANS MAY RETURN HOME.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

BERLIN, Jan. 12 (via London, Jan. 13, 6:10 a.m.)—Germany has notified Holland that Belgian workmen departed from the province of Antwerp will be given the option of returning to their homes in Belgium and, if unable to find work there, of removing to Holland or returning to Germany.

This step is taken in consequence of Holland's representations based upon the invitation of the military governor of Antwerp in October, 1914, addressed to Belgian fugitives in Holland.

The Military Governor assured the fugitives that if they returned they would not be drafted for forced labor for Germany.

The German communication explains that these assurances were given under quite different circumstances from the present and under the expectation that the war would be a matter of months only, but that Germany has decided to acknowledge and respect them.

SWISS POPULATION DECREASED BY WAR.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LAUSNNE (Switzerland) (via Paris) Jan. 12, 11:40 p.m.—The Gazette says that the population of Switzerland has decreased as one consequence of the war. According to the paper, both marriages and births are much fewer, a fact which is attributed to the increased cost of living.

Argument.

BROWN VS. WEINSTOCK SACRAMENTO SENSATION.

Los Angeles Senator Refuses to be Silenced in His Controversy with State Market Director and Declares Cost of Living is Higher Under the System Introduced by Governor's Satellite.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 13.—Senator W. E. Brown, Los Angeles, of anti-vivisection, anti-loan shark and anti-medical board fame is off the reservation again. He is talking right out in school about the way State Market Director Harris Weinstock is acting, and, now he is guilty of a much greater offense in that he refuses to be silenced and is talking right back to the "immaculate one" himself.

Two years ago Senator Brown became the happy father of a State marketing bill. This precocious youngster was expected to throttle the food trust and reduce the cost of living. Its prime feature was a market director—$5000 a year consideration—who should open public markets in the densely populated centers and sell foodstuffs at public auction directly to the consumer. Commission men were to be starved out and the distance between the finite and the infinite was to be appreciably lessened.

Harris Weinstock, one of the trump cards in the administration political deck, was appointed market commissioner and the Progressive press heralded the approach of the food millennium. All this was two years ago. Senator Brown is now wailing because we have a valuable market director and a high priced staff: but so much of the appropriation has been consumed in salaries that there is not enough left to open free markets and hold public auctions.

WEINSTOCK'S DEFENSE.

Senator Brown has been talking about this for several weeks; but Weinstock offers in evidence the Governor's recent historical message to show that his commission is doing as well as any of the rest of them. His record shows that he made a valuable trip back to Washington, D. C. and talked the situation over with an attachee in the office o fthe Secretary of Argiculture and a deputy of the Attorney-General, that he has delivered valuable addresses in different parts of the State and has presided at the organization of leagues of independent producers. The cost of food stuffs under State regulation shows as great an increase as could reasonably be expected.

Senator Brown says this is all wrong. In a statement to the press he avers that:

"My bill was intended to reduce the cost of living to the consumer by bringing him in direct contact with the producer. But Director Weinstock, instead of establishing markets to bring the producer and consumer together, has been going about establishing little trusts among producers so the cost of produce to the consumer will be higher instead of lower." Here follow a few interjections which are not reproduced. Invective is not argument.

Friends of the admin'stration have suddenly discovered that many people here are inclined to take Senator Brown's plaint seriously. They seem to agree that Weinstock went to work the wrong way and they decline to become indignant at Brown's demand for Weinstock's removal from office.

WEINSTOCK'S DEFENSE.

Market Director Weinstock has added to the gaiety of the Legislature by replying with a statement that he was not in favor from the start of the State selling farm produce, on commission or otherwise, and that Gov. Johnson gave his personal approval to the plan of action which he has been following.

Weinstock says that he has become convinced that the State could not decrease the cost of foodstuffs by opening public markets and selling direct to the consumer. He cites instances to show this has been attempted elsewhere and failed. Besides, the appropriation of $25,000 by the Legislature was insufficient for both salaries and markets, so the market idea had to give way.

This reply has not proved a happy one. Senator Brown comes back with the demand: "Why a State Market Commission if it cannot reduce the cost of foodstuff to the consumer?"

BROWN IS FIRM.

This was beginning to strike at the root of the whole theory of government by commission, so Senator Brown was quietly but firmly requested to desist. But he is still talking; says he has a right to talk about the proper bringing up of his own child, the State market bill; that Weinstock has proved a failure as a wet nurse and should be removed.

So far, Senator Brown has the best of the argument. If a free vote could be had right now in both houses of the Legislature, State Market Director Weinstock would go, and the State Market Commission along with him. The consensus of opinion i sthat Weinstock has made an earnest and honest effort to carry out the mandates of the State market bill, but that the child, like the father, is a victim of iridescent dreams.

PINE BLISTER RUST PREVENTION SOUGHT.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Jan 13.—State Forester G. Morris Homans left today for Washington, where he will attend a meeting of the Interstate Commission for the Prevention of White Pine Blister Rust. The commission is to meet in conjunction with the American Forestry Association.

Homans hopes to help in securing regulation which will prevent inroads of blister rust in California forests. The disease has a firm footing in some eastern States, according to the State Forester, and should it spread to California white pine forests valued at $96,000,000 would be endangered.

WANT VANCE WILT'S HANGING PREVENTED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13.—A plea to prevent execution of Joseph Vance Wilt at San Quentin February 9, convicted of murder in Glenn county, has been sent to Gov. Johnson by a number of San Francisco pastors and social workers. They believe Wilt innocent of the murder of Warren Smith of Germantown, a year ago, and voice the opinion that he is a victim of popular prejudice created by personal and political enemies encountered during a prohibition fight in which he was a leading figure. The Governor is asked to review the case.

A Simple Way To Remove Dandruff.

There is one sure way that has never failed to remove dandruff at once, and that is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, just get about your ounces of plain, common liquid arvon from any drug store (this is all you will need,) apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, if your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely disolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly, and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

AMONG THE STORES AND AMID THE SHOPPERS.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

Now is the time to buy:

The laces for all-summer use. There are sales, sales, sales! And laces are laces plus, for wear during the coming season.

Every piece of china which you need to complete the dinner set, or for the tea or breakfast table. The odd-piece china sale at that big house-furnishing store is going on!

The embroidery cotton that you will want for many months to come. A sale of it which says in knitting or crochet: "This is your opportunity!"

The average length of human life is soon to reach the 100 mark!

Scientific researchers tell us so; and it must be so.

Even further: They aver that at 100 we shall soon be young. I have always believed in such a possibility.

Some are inclined to cavil at the care with which our foods are safeguarded. The dust-proof carton, the germ-excluding package, each in turn has been the butt of ridicule; and yet, who knows how much our increased longevity has to do with these?

It seems to me that even during our lifetime—since we can well remember—and we are not even within hailing of that centenary mark!—food cleanliness has improved 100 per cent.

Even though, as the little girl remarked, "We are getting hygeniker and hygeniker, until after while we shall not have anything to eat!" this very care as to what shall go into the formation and the renewal of our bodies, has, doubtless, much to do with the lengthening of our lives.

So long ago that I have almost forgotten hearing it, there was a wise saw which ran: "We all must eat a peck of dirt before we die." And if we must, we shall at least have a longer time in which to devour it!

All Laced Up.

Never was there a season when laces were as much wanted as now, and never has there been a time when there were such offerings of lace as at present in one of the local stores! The transmutation of money into laces, seems like fairy lore—when the laces are as beautiful as those.

By Her Hose.

By her stockings shall ye know her! Thus might the phrase be paraphrased. Who dare wear hose of anything save silken texture when hose are so evident?

In that sale, where a single dollar travels as far as—well, I would say at least as two—there are hose of every texture and in colors such as every woman wants. Even the newly-popular grass greens are there; and next season, as well as now, hose of this—nature's own coloring—will be most popular. You see, when you wear green hose, especially as sports hose, it is difficult to detect the place where the greens of nature leave off and the hosen greens begin. Oh, yes, I forgot to tell you the whereabouts of that sale. Count seven while on Broadway—but you understand, I see.

Odds 'n' Ends.

I hope you know the difference between an "odds 'n' ends" sale and an "as is?" If not—better try both and learn.

At this odds 'n' ends affair you will find everything perfect, but not many of a kind. Odd cups and saucers, odd plates, odd everythings in china, but no sets. I love to con them over and to pick out a piece here and there—especially, when there are such bargains. I wonder if there is a woman so young or old that she does not love good china?

In the Chimney Corner.

That is where grandma used to sit and knit. Now she does "nit" sit in the corner, but rather she is a chronic gadder and the gayest of the gay; but there are women younger who love to knit, embroider and crochet, and it is for the younger generation that those cottons—embroidery and knitting—are sensationally offered. Just about a quarter of the usual price, is what is asked for these. And cottons are becoming scarcer and more scarce each day!

Three-in-one Chair.

Comfy though the chaise longue is, not in every room is there a place for it; and it is rather awkward to move around. That is why they made that triple one, at the reedcroftie place. Quite as loungy is it as the one-piece chair, and yet it may become, at one's volition, a chair, a rounded seat and a footrest or a dressing table seat. I call it a stroke of genius which fabricated such a chair. And, incidentally, it is beautiful, especially when upholstered to "go with" the remainder of one's room or house, or porch.

Entrancing.

The new cretonnes — although made in America—are, I truly believe, more entrancing than those seen heretofore. I revelled in a first glimpse of them, in the stockroom of that big Broadway store, where a wonderful collection of these fabrics has just arrived. Something poetical about nearly every piece, there was! One set out to be a formal garden, getting as far as the tops of stately trees and the tips of flowers, with a hint of sky—just enough of each to arouse the fancy. Another was a glorious peacock blue in tropical landscapes, as though the sunshine there was blue instead of golden and there were perching upon tropical plants, lovely snowy peacocks with their own coloring only upon the eye-like feathers of the tails. Inconsistent as a scene in dreamland and yet far from the bizarre, these wondrous fabrications were like an imaginative story which projects the thought to far-off wondrous things. One could not become prosaic in a room offset with draperies such as these.

It has Broken In.

Khaki Kool has not only taken all the sports clothes fortresses, but has now captured the citadel of neckwear! The very latest things in collars, flat, round and square, to supersede the ones of broadcloth and of silk—are those of khaki kool.

Footwear Must-haves.

"I always have certain kinds of evening slippers and then I am prepared for all occasions," said Evelyn. "Black satin, of course, and white; and for several seasons past—and I believe a number of those to come—a pair of gold and one of silver cloth." And in one of the "sales" you may bring up your shoe collection to Evelyn's essentials to ever-ready dress; for there are even slippers of gold and silver cloth in that sale offering.

Pure Food and How.

At the pure food show, opening next week at that big store on Lower Broadway, there will be for your benefit instruction not alone as to which foods are pure, but demonstration of just how to best prepare such foods for your family table. The same competent chef who has, for several seasons, given such instructions, will be again in charge.

Thus Saith La Mode.

The interest in neutral colors, such as tan, gray and ashes of rose, continue.

Fine handkerchief linen blouses are sometimes embroidered in color, in chain stitch.

Even gloves have their backs embroidered in some interesting color and design.

Many interpretations of the peplum blouse are used in fashioning cloth frocks.

There is a new shade of pinkish tan which is charming in silk and wool fabrics.

There is a fad just now for blouses of white net with linings of colored satin.

New is a muff of cloth lined with fur and embroidered with silk and silver threads.

There is nothing more smart than the one-piece frock of velvet. It should be embroidered.

New frocks have their skirts a bit narrower at the hem than they are around the hips.

A "barrel" effect is predicted for novelties for long coats, as well as skirts, for spring.

CORPSE IS DYNAMITED TO CONCEAL MURDER?

Woman Tells Police of Strange Crime She Says was Committed at Disputed Claim in Arizona in Which New Owner was Shot to Death and High Explosive Placed on Body to Destroy the Evidence.

RIDDLED with buckshot and then blown to pieces with a stick of dynamite, according to Mrs. A. Webster of No. 715 West Sixth street, was the manner in which Vincent Harry Ballard, her partner in a mining deal near Secret Pass, Ariz., met his death near his claim several days ago. One man, the woman told the local police last night, is under arrest in Kingman, taken after a long hunt with bloodhounds and an armed posse.

The story of the strange death of Mr. Ballard came to light here last night when Mrs. Webster was located on West Sixth street by the detectives following a request from the dead man's brother, C. I. Ballard of The Dalles, Or., to the police here to investigate the death of his brother. After hearing Mrs. Webster's story the police notified Mr. Ballard and, according to them, will take no further action.

Going into detail in regard to the death of her partner, Mrs. Webster stated that she and Mr. Ballard owned several claims near Secret Pass. Two claims adjoining theirs, and owned by a man named Smith, she says, several days ago reverted to the government when the owner failed to improve them. She stated that Mr. Ballard and she decided to take the claims over.

Upon the day of the [illegible] Ballard, Mrs. Webster [illegible] night, left the house in which both lived and started to the [illegible] claims. When she drove her machine to the claims at about [illegible] of the same day to take Mr. Ballard his lunch, she says she found him dead. Investigations showed [illegible] states, that a stick of dynamite had been placed on his body and exploded. The blast did not entirely destroy the body.

An inquest held over the body in Kingman, Mrs. Webster told the detectives, disclosed the fact that someone had killed Mr. Ballard by firing a load of buckshot at close range into his chest. The dynamite, according to her, had been exploded on the body in an effort to destroy it.

Following the inquest bloodhounds were used, Mrs. Webster stated, to run down the murderer and a man named Smith, she alleges, was run down and arrested. He was taken to Kingman and is now being held there, according to Mrs. Webster. The woman also stated to the police that she notified Mr. Ballard in Oregon of the death of his brother and expected to ship the body there.

Police here telegraphed the information given them by Mrs. Webster to Mr. Ballard and advised him to telegraph at once to the police of Kingman to establish the [illegible] the story.

The shattered body is at a [illegible] undertaking parlor.

Desperate.

LOS ANGELES GIRL NEAR DEATH BY HER OWN HAND

MY MASTER TAILORING
AT A PRICE THAT APPEALS!

Human institutions thrive only by virtue of individuality and of merit. The willingness with which the majority accept established conditions constitutes the barrier over which genius reaches progress.

We cannot win modern applause by ancient methods, nor expect to get out of any undertaking more than we put into it. Excellency in any direction consists in applying the genius of the ages to the task of the day, but every step onward must be visualized before it is enacted. We never get anywhere unless we start. When I opened my THIRD FLOOR SHOP I determined not to accept the principles of ordinary tailoring concerns as either guide or authority. Recognizing the best that has been done, only as a starting point, I endeavor to incorporate in the clothes I make and express in my service the highest degree of excellency that I can command by untiring, persistent effort.

Considering the short time I have been in business for myself, results have been particularly gratifying and the sanity of my theories is proven in practice. I am without a doubt producing the best clothes that any man can make for any money. You can't find any other clothes at the same prices that are in their class, and you can't get as good clothes at many places, NO MATTER HOW MUCH YOU PAY! These are plain unvarnished facts, of interest to YOU.

A $12.50 to $17.50 Saving on a Suit or Overcoat Is Worth Considering Gentlemen! Surrender Your Prejudices to Cold Reason!

Every thinking man knows that the great, hydra-headed monster of mercantile life is the "cost of doing business." For instance: It requires just so many yards of material to make a suit of clothes, no matter who takes the order or where he takes it. The same grade of designing and tailoring will cost the same amount of money, irrespective of the location or rent of the establishment that gives out the work. In other words: The actual value IN THE CLOTHES is exactly the same whether you place your order at an expensive, high rent location on Broadway, New York, or in a dinky shack at Watts. But there is a big, vast difference in the OVERHEAD EXPENSE of the two transactions! WHO STANDS THE DIFFERENCE? My simple organization and straightforward, economical business methods absolutely eliminate the crushing OVERHEAD—the haunting terror of so many retail concerns. This is why I can produce MASTER TAILORING at prices impossible elsewhere. Isn't it a logical and convincing reason?

I have just received a sumptuous assortment of the most exquisite woolen fabrics that it has ever been my pleasure to examine and admire. I selected these splendidly designed fabrics from the two highest grade mills in the world as my advance Spring offerings at $35 and $40. But to keep my men going at full tilt in spite of the usual January slump I offer hundreds of yards and scores of patterns of these wonderful woolens, tailored to your individual measure and according to your directions in the most masterly way—Suit or Overcoat at $22.50.

A Great Stimulating Temptation for This Week Only!

Do You Scorn Economy?

Perhaps you are quite content to pay even as much as $60 for a suit or overcoat, tailored exactly to your taste. If so, I can recommend a couple of good friends of mine in the custom tailoring business here, and several more in San Francisco. They make mighty good clothes at about $60 or so. But I find that most men in Los Angeles—among them leading bankers, merchants and professional men—do not object in the least to securing a satisfactory suit or overcoat at less than $60. Real economy is never an undignified practice.

I am not out to "get the money," in the sense in which this phrase is generally used. If I can't please you and deliver more actual clothes value than you expect, I don't want your money. Selling you just one suit of clothes don't mean enough to me to degrade my principles. I value too highly my reputation for honesty and integrity to throw it away for a few paltry dollars. It's your future business I am after.

Your service to me as an enthusiastic booster is something worth winning.

Are You Lost in the Crowd?

The paramount feature of my tailoring is style. I never subordinate that phase of the subject to any other. I believe that the individuality of clothes is of far greater importance to a man than the incidents of pattern and colors. I am confirmed in this belief by the fact that the men who visit my shop are MOST interested in style, and I affirm the belief by aiming to put into clothes at a reasonable price precisely the sort of individuality which is foreign to clothes of the popular-priced variety. ALSO, I SUCCEED IN DOING IT.

Let me show you my magnificent assortment of foreign and domestic woolens; also examples of my tailoring. Allow me to demonstrate the Style and Fit of the clothes I make, and while I may not take your order at the time, the clothes will so absolutely convince you of where I stand in the tailoring world that nothing short of a cyclone will keep you away from MY THIRD FLOOR SHOP when you do need clothes.

There is a wonderfully convincing element in clear daylight methods.

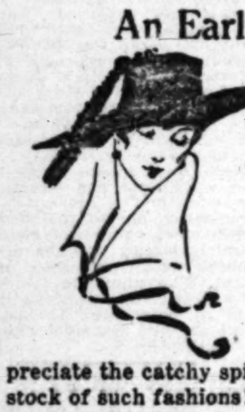
Spring Makes Her Debut Here Tomorrow Amidst a Whole Storeful ot Charming New Wearables for Women and Their Daughters

The Mode in Millinery

An Early Note of Spring



Spring millinery is always a delightful topic—and this season it is even more interesting than ever, because of the wide divergence of influences that affect the styles.

For instance, the enjoyment of peace brings out anew the smart sports hat with the same—yes, even added—gayety of color.

No woman can fail to appreciate the catchy spirit that pervades our well-selected stock of such fashions!

And the grimness of war leaves its stamp on 1917 Spring hats. But the hats are hardly so somber as war itself, for they take on rather the air of dash and vigor one expects—and usually finds—in military styles. One particularly good type is a purple chrysanthemum-braid hat selected from a premier milliner of New York.

And then the black satin hat—neither sports nor military, but just the proper hat for women who do not desire extreme styles. One such model is illustrated; square brim, cleverly bent up on the left side, and a heavy silk tassel fastened to the crown seems to hold the right side down. This hat is $17.50, and prices range both higher and lower on other equally beautiful hats.

Announcing New Suits and Frocks

Sport Styles principally of Khaki-Kool and kindred silk weaves for early Spring

An initial showing of suits and frocks that we feel particularly proud to display.

Smart garments that are in perfect taste for the sports and general wear for which they were intended. Yet no one of them oversteps the bounds of fashion into the realm of gaudy extremes.

Colors are brilliant—and combinations startling many times. Not uncommon are pure white or cream grounds splashed with disks or squares or odd figures of vivid shades.

And in addition to sports styles are the handsome modes of more sober type that we have selected for those who are perhaps more conservative in their tastes, yet who are always in Fashion's vanguard.

Numerous creations of satin and other silks will hold special interest for such women.

Windows and floor displays are completely Spring in tone tomorrow.

"Stielbied" for Needlework

The difficulty of obtaining steel beads from Europe has apparently stimulated inventive ability, for now we have "Stielbied."

Stielbied is a sort of tinsel wound on twine and when sewn on the article to be beaded it is almost impossible to tell the difference between the real beads and the imitation.

And in addition Stielbied is easier to work with and is much less expensive. 24 yards on spool—65c.

JITNEY BUS PEOPLE WAR AMONG SELVES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—On the grounds that it is contrary to the constitution to grant any individuals the exclusive right to a public thoroughfare, attorneys for jitney bus operators running on East Fourth street and Atlantic avenue, which were barred from those two thoroughfares today by the franchise purchased by the Long Beach Transportation Company, served the local city officials with a restraining order, in an attempt to defeat the city ordinance.

The insurgent jitneurs who have been plying these two lucrative routes and who were forced to either go out of business or seek other streets with the advent of the enforcement of the exclusive franchise measure further contended that the ordinance in question is "discriminatory and unreasonable."

Pending the service of the temporary injunction the free lance jitneurs have refrained from running on East Fourth street and Atlantic avenue. Attorneys Swaffield and Swaffield have been retained by the individual drivers affected by the franchise ordinance to fight the new city law.

FAIR'S SPIRIT WILL LIVE ON.

Exhibits and Music to Keep Exposition Site Gay.

Scientific Treasure Nucleus of Permanent Museum.

Out-door Grand Opera to be Made a Reality.

Plans for San Diego's post-exposition period, and for the future after that, are being worked out by exposition and park board officials there. Under the direction of Dr. Edgar S. Hewitt the splendid archaeological and historical exhibits that were the most important of the exposition are being rearranged, augmented and placed for a permanent museum.

For the post-exposition period of three months band concerts, organ recitals, drills of troops and some special events, together with the French, Canadian, archaeological and historical exhibits will be the principal attractions. Many of the buildings that will be necessary adjuncts to the permanent park have been donated to the city. The quaint Japanese Building has been given by the Japanese Exhibit Association, and also the Lipton Tea Building has been donated by Sir Thomas Lipton.

Col. J. B. Pendleton, commander of the Marine Corps troops stationed at the exposition, has asked that the State buildings, which it was at first decided to tear down, be maintained for officers' headquarters for the marine base on the exposition grounds. Some of the State buildings have been donated and it is probable all of them will.

MANY VISITORS.

So far the attendance has been larger than expected by the management. There has been a daily attendance of more than 1000 and the first Sunday after the close of the fair the attendance was more than 2700.

The more pretentious plans are for the permanent museum and park to be maintained by San Diego. The San Diego Museum Association, formed last year for this purpose, was given by the exposition of 1915 the priceless collection of Central American archaeology, the Science of Man and the Indian arts collections. When gathered by the exposition this collection was worth about $100,000, but is now priceless, as the originals of many of the specimens have been destroyed in the European war. The present collection is larger now than most museum collections in this country.

Dr. Hewitt, under whose direction it was gathered and who has had charge of the ethnological work of the exposition for the past five years, will continue research work to benefit the museum. He is head of the School of American Research and will be director of the San Diego museum.

It is the plan of the Museum Association to have an extensive art collection and this will probably be connected with other art galleries of the Coast for a circuit for art exhibits. Free lectures for the public schools, musical entertainments and other cultural activities will be fostered by the Museum Association, that the intellectual and spiritual growth of San Diego may keep pace with the commercial spirit.

DAVIDSON IS CHIEF.

G. Aubrey Davidson, who presided for two years as head of the exposition, has been chosen president of the museum organization, to succeed George W. Marston. Eugene Ferry Smith is secretary and Dr. Fred Baker and Miss Alice Lee vice-presidents. W. Temple Johnson is treasurer. The Executive Committee is composed of the officers and Wheeler Bailey, Mrs. Stephen Connell and Miss Alice Klauber.

By reason of the fact that Col. D. C. Collier, the first president of the exposition company, was the first to suggest a museum five years ago, he has been made an honorary life member.

The museum will be associated with research laboratories and will send expeditions into the field for research work in Central America, Mexico and other countries.

The ancient tombs and monuments of Central America, as reproduced for the exposition, are among the most important archaelogical exhibits in the country. These will again be installed in the California Building, now occupied by the French exhibit.

The entire California quadrangle, including the buildings extending to the Plaza from the California Building, will be occupied by the museum within the next three months.

A campaign for the financial support has been begun, to secure 1000 annual members who shall pay a fee of $5. The life memberships will be $100 each. The principal of the life memberships will not be touched by the association, but will be invested and the income used for the upkeep of the museum

MUSIC PLANS.

In addition to the museum plans for the exposition, the San Diego Music Festival, organized recently, will also answer the problem of what shall be done with the exposition. Through the generous backing of Schumann-Heink, John D. Spreckels and other San Diegans, the dream of the diva to make Southern California a center for out-of-door grand opera, or the Bayreuth of America, will come true.

The great Spreckels organ, the climatic conditions, the exquisite park, make the plan feasible.

The first music festival will be held next July. Schumann-Heink has placed her share of the guarantee, $10,000, in a San Diego bank.

TO SHARE PROFITS.

Pioneer Paper Company Employees Made Virtual Partners.

Announcement is made by the Pioneer Paper Company of the installation of a profit-sharing plan, coincident with the commencement of its twenty-ninth year in business in Los Angeles.

It has over 200 employees on its pay roll and is doing a business of approximately $3,500,000 yearly, a large portion of which is with South and Central America, Australia and the Orient.

In putting into effect a profit-sharing plan, it is the company's desire to promote harmony between employees and employer; to better the condition of its employees; to secure greater efficiency and thereby give its customers a greater measure of service. Every employee will virtually be a partner in the business.

Borax Bill,
Who will drive the twenty-mule borax team across the continent, starting next Friday.

Death Valley.

TWENTY-MULE TEAM HERE NEXT FRIDAY.

BORAX BILL TO TOOL CHARGES THROUGH CITY TRAFFIC.

Quaint Character will Handle Hundred Twenty-foot Jerkline Over Cavalcade Which Begins Across Country in Demonstrations.

Next Friday at noon, like a romantic wraith from California's colorful past, the twenty-mule borax team of the Pacific Coast Borax Company will be "tooled" through the streets of Los Angeles by Borax Bill, one of the few remaining "jerk-line" experts, on its long trip from coast to coast. This extraordinary cavalcade will approach the city from Huntington Park, traveling west on Vernon to Main and north on Main to Broadway. One of the features of this turnout, which is the only animated trade mark in existence, will be to see Borax Bill manipulate the "jerk-line" in the turning of a corner.

The jerk-1line is a strap 120 feet long. A steady pull means turn to the right and a series of short jerks a turn to the left. The team is known as leader, pointers, sixes, eights and nines and each is known by name. The off-six mule jumps over the chain and pulls at right angles when a corner is being turned. It requires months of patient training to teach the mules their respective stunts in the successful maneuvering of one of these cumbersome transportation units.

After leaving Los Angeles, the team will travel up the San Joaquin Valley, stopping at Bakersfield, Fresno, Madera, Modesta, Stockton, Sacramento, San Francisco and Oakland, where it will entrain for Cleburne, Tex., contining on to Galveston, thence by boat to Brooklyn, en route to Portland, Me. After reaching there, the trip will continue overland down the New England coast, through New York, the Middle Atlantic States and into the southern States.

The twenty-mule team borax is found principally in Death Valley, Cal., a wind-swept, sun-parched desert waste, 200 feet below the level of the sea, where the mean temperature i 137 deg. Fahrenheit, and the inhabitants consist principally of lizards, chuckawallas and rattlesnakes.

When borax was discovered in this valley in 1872, the principal problem was transportation, for the nearest railroad was 162 miles distant and the roads to be traversed were the worst imaginable. It was to meet this condition that the twenty-mule team was designed. For years borax was hauled from the mines to the railroads by this picturesque means and like every other phase of our early development a number of quaint characters were developed, of whom Borax Bill, who will handle this team, is one of the few survivors.

While borax has become a household word, and has largely been considered in this connection, it is, nevertheless, one of the most universally-used articles of commerce. It enters largely into the principal manufacturing processes of the world. The supply in Death Valley and the adjacent mines in Nevada is practically inexhaustible There are also large deposits found in South America.

BUSINESS WILL STOP ALL WARS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 13.—That future wars will be impossible because nations will be controlled by laws just as big and little corporations are now controlled, is the statement made here by Rev. Leslie Learned, rector of All Saints' Episcopal Church of Pasadena, in addressing the men of St. Luke's Church here following the monthly dinner of the local Episcopalian men's society.

Business corporations are today kept from destroying each other by laws that protect the little from the big, said Dr. Learned, and in years to come, when states, through the absorption of great industries, become in reality great corporations themselves the same laws will prevent the great world disaster of another international struggle.

DEAF MUTE BEGGAR ATTACKS AUTOIST.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PORTERVILLE, Jan. 13.—Lucine J. Rohlick, proprietor of a Main-street garage, was the victim of a strange assault at the hands of a mute beggar, who is believed to have gone suddenly insane. The mute entered Rohlick's private office in the garage building and when Rohlick got up from his desk to meet the beggar the latter sprang at him, struck him in the face, and then, pinning Rohlick's arms to his breast, bit him viciously several times on the hands. Rohlick beat the man off as a number of employees rushed into the room.

National Conference.

LOS ANGELES DUNKARDS WANT NEXT CONVENTION

DUNKARKS of California are starting a movement to secure a large attendance from this State at the national Dunkard conference, which convenes in Wichita, Kan., early in June. It is hoped to capture the next national convention for Los Angeles. This would mean the bringing here of from 10,000 to 12,000 Dunkards from all parts of the East and Middle West, representing one of the most substantial elements of citizenry.

The California delegation proposes to go to Wichita prepared to talk in season and out of season of the resources and delights of California. Several are planning to make the trip by automobile and to take their families. They will be especially equipped to tell of the wonderful good roads system that this State enjoys.

Twenty-eight years ago last month a party of representative Dunkards met in Kansas City, en route to California. Owing to a heavy snowstorm and blizzard some of the railroads were so blocked that members of the party were twenty-four hours late in their arrival at the meeting point. Elder D. L. Miller of Mt. Morris, Ill., editor of the Gospel Messenger, the official organ of the Dunkard church, was leader of the party, and, of course, he "wrote up" the trip.

His first editorial was dated "Under an Orange Tree at Covina, Cal.," and he told of the party's experiences in the snowstorms of the Middle West, and said: "We left Kansas City four days ago in a driving snowstorm. Today we are eating ripe, home-grown strawberries, with ripe oranges hanging over us."

His further word pictures were fascinating, and the result was that at the annual conference at Harrisonburg, Va., the following June an excursion was formed, made up of Dunkards as far east as Maryland and as far west as Kansas, and they came to California. Many of them are living here today.

The following winter many more Dunkards arrived, among them being Elder M. M. Eshelman, then a resident of Kansas, and Elder Henry Frantz of the Miami Valley, Ohio, who were leaders of a large party. Elder Eshelman now resides in Tropico. The arrival of this party marked a turning point in Dunkard settlement in Southern California. During their visit the boom hotel that had been built at Lordsburg was purchased and converted into a Dunkard college.

In 1889 there were only two Dunkard churches in Southern California. Today there are nineteen churches, with an active membership of 1608, educational and charitable institutions, and many other well-organized activities.

James Perry.

"SHARKEY" IDENTIFIED AS AN OHIO CRIMINAL.

THE veil of mystery shrouding the identity of "Tom Sharkey," one of the alleged looters of the San Jacinto postoffice on the night of December 29, has been lifted. The opinion of the Federal and city officers that the alias of "Sharkey" was merely used to cover the record of an ex-convict has been justified.

Yesterday, Postoffice Inspector Ranger, who has the case in charge for the government, received a communition from Henry J. Herbert, Chief of Police of Toledo, giving the criminal record of "Sharkey," who, when he was doing his "bit" in Ohio, was known as James Perry, the officers say.

Perry was three times convicted of burglary and larceny. The first was in March, 1892, when he served two years in the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus for this crime. The second conviction was in December, 1901, and he was given a stretch of ten years in the same institution. The third and last conviction was in March, 1909, when he was given a seven-year sentence and released in August, 1913.

He served his full time under the first conviction, but gained all the time possible under the law during his second and third convictions.

When the alleged "Sharkey" was arrested by Detectives Fitzgerald and Ziegler, at the Pacific Electric Station, there was found in his grip with the quart of nitroglycerin, bits of paper indicating that he had recently been in Toledo, one being a part of a Toledo newspaper, the other an unpaid garage bill made out by a local concern. Copies of his picture and description were sent broadcast throughout the country, and Chief Herbert at once recognized the man. The record of the Ohio penitentiary shows that he has been sentenced to nineteen years imprisonment by reason of three convictions.

Perry will be prosecuted by the State on the charge of putting high explosives in a public place frequented by human beings, and under the law he may get a life sentence if convicted. In addition there is the charge of having burglar tools in his possession, and the indictment that will be returned by the Federal grand jury charging him with robbing the San Jacinto postoffice.

Perry and his crowd got busy the day following their arrival in California, the record showing that they reached here on December 27.

FAMOUS ANNIVERSARY FITTINGLY OBSERVED.

WITH three grandnieces and one grandson of Gen. Andres Pico, and Miss Elizabeth Benton Fremont, daughter of Gen. John C. Fremont, present, the seventieth anniversary of the signing of the papers which formed the basis of the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, at the Cahuenga Chapel by Gens. Fremont and Pico, was celebrated yesterday at the monthly meeting of the California History and Landmarks Club. The meeting was conducted in the quarters of the Ruskin Art Club, in the Black Building.

A programme of special music, reminiscences and talks on the life of the two generals was carried out under the direction of Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes, president of the club. Miss Fremont will be made an honorary member of the club at the meeting next month.

The members of the Pico family who were present are as follows: Mrs. Romulo Pico, daughter-in-law of the late Gen. Andres Pico; Benjamin Stanley Pico, a grandson, and Mrs. Cathalena Pico Bell, Mrs. Charles Pierce, of San Pedro, and Mrs. Isabelle Davis, grandnieces. A correction regarding the birthplace of Gen. Andres Pico was made yesterday, it being definitely ascertained that he was born at San Diego instead of San Gabriel. The correction was made by Mrs. Maclay Walker, who read a short history of the life of the famous man.

Among the speakers yesterday was Maj. Samuel H. M. Byers, soldier-poet, who wrote the song of "Sherman's March to the Sea." Maj. Byers gave reminiscences of his service under Gen. Fremont during the Civil War, when the latter made his march from St. Louis, west.

Mrs. C. Q. Stanton, spoke of the "Treaty of Cahuenga," giving a history of the paper; and Miss Amelia P. Butler, regent of the Gen. Fremont Chapter of the D.A.R., read a paper on the life of Gen. Fremont.

DRINK HOT TEA FOR A BAD COLD.

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it, "Hamburger Brust Thee," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacupful at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once.

It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

MOTHER! LOOK AT YOUR CHILD'S TONGUE

Give "California Syrup of Figs" If Cross, Feverish, Sick, Bilious, Constipated—They Love It.

Watch Children Now! Guard Against Colds, Grippe, Sore Throat and Sickness by Keeping Liver and Bowels Free from Posions.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother; if coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has the grippe, or a sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrup. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of 'California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. See that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't merely ask for Syrup of Figs, but ask for "California Syrup of Figs." Remember, California.

CHARITY AND RELIEF.

Prisoner's Friend Society Makes Statement of Its Work.

The Prisoner's Friend Society of Los Angeles city and county, No. 2912 South Hope street, issued a circular on the 2nd inst. containing, among other statements, the following:

"Although our society is less than a year old we have reason to felicitate ourselves on the results we have accomplished.

"(1.) We have given to jail reform an insistent demand for public attention. This has been accomplished by persistent publicity, public meetings, a benefit concert, a button campaign, canvasses for membership, and chiefly by an educational campaign through the press, which has given us liberal help.

"(2.) There has been aroused such a public sentiment that thirty-five organizations, including the women's clubs, the Chamber of Commerce, Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, the Union Labor Council, the Municipal League, the Church Federation, the Y.M.C.A., the Y.W.C.A., and other influential organizations of the city have united to carry out the programme formulated by this society and presented to the City Council.

"(3.) A memorial, including reform policies in the treatment of prisoners, formulated by this society, has been presented to the City Council, which is now investigating the whole subject, and it seems quite assured that the city will have a new jail, a home for convicted women and a municipal farm for male prisoners.

"(4.) Schools have been established by the Board of Education, on the request of this society, in the East-side jail and the Central Station, which are doing splendid work, changing the atmosphere in the jails and impressing the unfortunates that the city is seeking their best interests.

"(5.) The society has formulated new legislation for indeterminate sentences for misdemeanants and for reduction of sentences as rewards for good conduct, and presented it to members of the Legislature.

"(6.) It has supplied clothing to, and found employment for, and secured the mitigation of sentences for numerous prisoners, and is doing this almost daily, besides looking after families of discharged prisoners and inducing prisoners to attend night schools in the city.

"(7.) It has secured an appropriation of $5000 from the City Council to be paid to prisoners who are true and faithful, in small instalments, as a partial reward for good conduct and to stimulate in them industrious habits and self-control, and also to provide for their keep for a few days after discharge, until they can find employment.

"(8.) It has supplied two chaplains for the jails, one who looks after the English-speaking and the other the Mexican prisoners.

"We desire that all who can possibly do so will send suits of men's clothing, including underwear. The distress at this time is very great.

"The society held its annual meeting on the 8th inst.]"

There Are Many Uses For The Valuable Tonic-Stimulant Duffy's

COUGHS AND COLDS
BRAIN FAG
EMERGENCIES
CONVALESCENCE
OLD AGE
TRAVELING

COUGHS AND COLDS weaken the system and open the way for more serious ills if neglected. The prompt treatment of a cough or cold with Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as directed, usually brings relief and may often forestall grip and pneumonia.

BRAIN FAG is usually the result of overwork, causing mental and physical depression. The use of a mild tonic-stimulant such as Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey stirs the vital organs to activity and helps the system to throw off the poisons accumulated in all parts of the body.

EMERGENCIES frequently arise (usually in the night when least expected) requiring immediate relief, and when a physician is not available. The use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey in an emergency assures prompt relief as it is a stimulant made for medicinal use only. It is dependable—it is pure.

CONVALESCENCE or the period of recovery from illness is usually a trying experience. The system being in a run-down condition does not always respond with the desired effect. The use of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey as directed, assists in strengthening the system by its stimulating action and may be retained by the most sensitive stomach.

OLD AGE does not necessarily mean a state of feebleness. Nature's machine merely slows up in its work and the use of the mild tonic-stimulant Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, as directed, accelerates the vital functions to a healthy action, thereby assisting the stomach in its important duties.

TRAVELING is a pleasure to many, but the changes of climate, drinking water and food, sometimes affect the digestive organs and cause slight indispositions. Prompt relief is obtained by the mild stimulating action of Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey, if taken as directed. The traveler's bag should contain Duffy's.

"Get Duffy's and Keep Well."
Sold in SEALED BOTTLES ONLY. Beware of imitations

NOTE Get Duffy's from your local druggist, grocer or dealer. $1.00 per bottle. If he cannot supply you, write us. Send for useful household booklet free.

WIDE EVANGELISTIC WORK BEING DONE.

Y.M.C.A. REACHES THOUSANDS OF MEN AND BOYS.

Significant Figures are Given Regarding Scope of Religious Activities of Great Organization. Plan to Double Number of Persons Being Reached by Speakers.

Figures concerning an all-year evangelistic campaign, carried on by the religious work department of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A., are contained in an annual report just submitted to the board of directors of that institution by A. L. Miller, religious work director. More than 50,000 persons in many walks of life in Los Angeles were touched in the course of the year's work, besides other thousands within the influence of the Bible in regularly organized Y.M.C.A. classes, most of which are conducted within the building on Hope street.

More than 21,000 men attended the 290 noon-day shop meetings held in various Los Angeles railroad and industrial shops. A total attendance of 22,531 is recorded for ninety-eight extension meetings of various kinds. During the year attendance figures for seventeen meetings for the city chain gang numbered 828, while eight evangelistic meetings held at the City Jail reached a total of 1050. At the County Jail the same number of religious meetings netted the same attendance. At the McKinley home, 212 meetings for boys were attended by 3251 boys.

A set of significant figures is appended by Director Miller as an indication of the spiritual value of this Y.M.C.A. evangelistic work. Among the items are the following: Conversions, 170; conversions outside of Y.M.C.A., 40; forward steps, 65; requests for prayer, 133; tracts given away, 4900.

Beginning next Tuesday it is planned to double the number of men now being reached each week by evangelistic speakers under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. At least six new shops will be opened for noon-day meetings.

SANTA ANA AIMING HIGH AS FACTORY CITY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 13.—With a fund that has already reached $85,000 through public subscriptions and that will soon be $100,000, Santa Ana has gone systematically into the business of making itself a manufacturing, as well as a "back country" city.

Through a businesslike organization, manufacturing plants are to be located in Santa Ana. The city has a wonderfully productive country all around it. With orange, lemon and walnut groves to the east and north bringing in millions and sugar beet fields and factories to the south and west bringing in more millions, Santa Ana has a permanency that nothing can shake. It is proposed now to add factories.

The plan adopted here, and one that is being worked out, has business principles and careful investigations as its foundation. Fake concerns need not apply. It is proposed to tie up every donation with a contract that will fully protect the donors. If a factory secures a site free, that site will be returned to the corporation that has been organized to handle the fund if the factory fails to maintain the pay roll it promises for five years.

Believing that the plan could not fail, committees selected by the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce and Santa Ana Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association, went forth among the people, and in a short snappy campaign raised $85,000.

The Santa Ana Industrial Fund is the name of the corporation. S. H. Findley, a County Supervisor, is president; J. S. Smart, vice-president; John Cubbon, treasurer, and J. A. Harvey, secretary. Other directors are A. J. Crookshank, J. C. Horton and J. S. Fluor.

Already two factory propositions have been offered and are being considered by the Trustees. One of these, if it is accepted as sound and worthy, will have a site given it by the Santa Ana Industrial Fund, under contract to make good. It will employ fifty men.

Brawley.

FIRST BLUSH OF SPRING IN IMPERIAL VALLEY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

BRAWLEY, Jan. 13.—Winter is over in the Imperial Valley and, as the genial sun warms the fields, causing the fruit buds to swell, 9000 acres are being planted to early fruits and vegetables. The increase in the acreage given over to furnishing America with its first taste of annual field delicacies amounts to more than 20 per cent.

Cantaloupes, tomatoes, peppers, peas, strawberries, early potatoes, lettuce—a great variety of eatables for which a demand has already come from the gourmets of East and West are being set in fields mellowed with the plow, and irrigated with the silt-bearing Colorado River water, rich in plant nutriment.

It is estimated that the total value of the early products shipped from this city this spring and early summer will total $3,000,000. A new ice plant with a capacity of 400 tons per day has been built chiefly to serve the growers of the fruits and vegetables. The California Vegetable Union is installing an ice crusher and elevator, which will be ready in time to handle the lettuce crop from 450 acres west of this city.

Cantaloupe men estimate that the acreage planted to the delicious Brawley product will be approximately the same as last year, but the output will probably be greater on account of better methods of planting, irrigating and harvesting the crops. There will be more than 4000 cars of cantaloupes hauled out of Brawley this year. The watermelon output will be about 600 cars. Last year's prices were highly satisfactory to the cantaloupe men, and they predict that they will get even better prices this year. The seeds are being covered with paper caps as they are planted.

Strawberries will bring thousands of dollars to the valley this year from those who cannot wait to eat his luscious berry when it ripens on the Coast. Probably 150 acres are being planted to these berries.

William P. Mansfield today received the first carload of seed potatoes that has reached the city this season, and he will get to work planting them tomorrow. Last year the raisers of early potatoes, which bring high prices on Coast and Eastern markets, were very successful. The first carload went through to Alaska. From 75 to 100 acres of potatoes will be planted in one section west of Brawley.

POMONA WANTS TRACKS LOWERED AT CROSSINGS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—Mayor Vandegrift has set on foot a movement which will mean an improvement involving the expenditure of close to a half million dollars in case it is carried through to completion. He has invited officials of the Salt Lake and Southern Pacific railroads to come here in the near future for the purpose of discussing a plan to depress the tracks of both lines to such an extent that fifteen grade crossings within the city limits may be eliminated.

His invitation to the officials is in keeping with a communication which he recently received from the State Railroad Commission, in which it was stated that the railroad tracks here should either be elevated or depressed in the near future. The Mayor thinks that the time to make the improvement is when everyone is in the notion, and he says that Superintendent Whalen of the Southern Pacific has been informed of the plan and has expressed this conviction that as many crossings as possible should be eliminated as soon as possible.

The city engineer has a profile which shows that trains entering the city from either east or west are compelled to climb a grade, and the elevation at the Garey-avenue crossing is something like nineteen feet above the valley level. It is estimated that deep cuts could be made to accomodate the railroad tracks, leaving the city to run its crossings over the tracks at street grade level, in the form of cement viaducts.

It is figured that crossings can be eliminated in this way at the rate of $30,000 each, and that the saving to the railroads in power, flagmen, gates, crossing bells, and time gained by not having to slow down in going through the city, coupled with the money saved by having no personal damage suits to settle, would more than offset the interest on the cost of the improvement.

BIG SHOW FOR GOOD ROADS FUND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDONDO BEACH, Jan. 13.—The members of the Elks Lodge of this city, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trustees and all civic organizations, have united as hosts for a monster benefit ball to be given in the Pavilion Auditorium January 24, for the Torrance-Redondo road, to raise the final $1000 for the improvement.

There will be ten vaudeville acts presented during the bill, which will probably be a masquerade. Mr. Ed J. Murphy, Postmaster, is chairman of the Programme Committee, and Lou Somers, superintendant of the bathhouse is manager. The list of those on the committees includes practically every business man in the city, and the Elks of the San Pedro lodge will also help stage the affair.

The bids for the work on the Torrance-Redondo road were advertised this week in the Southwest Contractor, and the work will probably be finished within ninety days. There is but two miles of road to be improved, which will link Redondo Beach with the industrial city.

SIXTY-TWO YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

ESCONDIDO, Jan. 13.—Mr. and Mrs. Morton S. Eddy, aged 83 and 80, respectively, celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary. Forty-two of their relatives and friends were present to offer congratulations. A poem, composed and read by Col. F. M. Woods of Lincoln, Neb., expressed the wishes of the assemblage in the sentiment that the couple might live to celebrate their eightieth wedding anniversary.

Natives of the State of New York, Mr. and Mrs. Eddy were married in Somerset, Hillside county, while residents of the adjoining town of Hudson, Lenawee county. A sleigh ride of thirty-five miles, in way below zero weather was the first event of the honeymoon. Mr. and Mrs. Eddy lived in Hudson for fifteen years after which they removed to Kansas. They came to California thirty-two years ago, and have resided in Escondido twenty-two years.

PLAN CAMPAIGN AGAINST ANNEXATION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Jan. 13.—Tentative plans were made at a meeting here at the Merritt Jones Hotel, Ocean Park, to form a committee to fight anexation to Los Angeles. Various speakers addressed the meeting and every one of the business men present declared that they were unequivocally against annexation to the larger city. Nearly 100 business men and property owners attended the meeting and a determined stand was taken against annexation.

G. M. Jones, a capitalist and large property owner, presided. He spoke briefly and urged that some steps be taken at once to combat annexation. The main point made by the speakers was that the beach districts would have no representation in the Los Angeles Council, and that, even if such representation were given to the Santa Monicans, the balance of power would be elsewhere.

Among the speakers were E. J. Vawter, banker; S. L. Berkley, Mayor of Santa Monica; Attorney Paul Schenck, William Jones and Judge M. R. King. Several names were mentioned for a committee to organize the fight against annexation. A meeting will be called within a week or ten days to complete definite plans.

PREPARE AN EXHIBIT TRAIN FOR THE EAST.

FRESNO, Jan. 13.—At the annual meeting of the directors of the San Joaquin Valley Counties Association here the following officers were reelected: John P. Irish, Jr., Stockton, president; George C. Roeding, Fresno, first vice-president; W. E. Booth, Usona, Mariposa county, second vice-president: J. B. Johnson, Fresno, secretary-treasurer; Walter C. Maloy, Madera, general manager.

The association maintained exhibits at the exposition in San Francisco during 1915 and for two year at the exposition in San Diego. An exhibit train is now being prepared to be sent on a year's tour through the East to interest the farmers and prospective settlers in the San Joaquin Valley.

PIONEER DIES.

Charles Eugene Slosson Succumbs to Disease after Nearly Thirty Years of Residence in Monrovia; for Years Active in Civil Life.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

MONROVIA, Jan. 13.—Charles Eugene Slosson, to whom the city of Monrovia probably owes more than to any other of its pioneer sons, died at his home, No. 210 West Lime, yesterday afternoon, aged 56. For twenty-nine years Mr. Slosson had linked his life with the upbuilding of the city, and disregarding many attractive offers to leave Monrovia he continued throughout his life to work and plan for his home town. It was his dream that Monrovia should take its place as largest and most important of the suburban towns and he gave a lifetime of rare ability in an attempt to bring his dream to pass.

Like most Monrovia pioneers, Mr. Slosson was first and last a real estate expert, though he was interested in dozens of business enterprises that helped to build up his city. He was one of the original directors of the old San Gabriel River Rock Company, now the great Pacific Rock and Gravel Company, and fourteen years ago helped to form the Monrovia Steam Laundry Company, of which he was manager for several years, in fact, until he retired from business last year.

Surviving members of the family are the widow, Mrs. Anna V. Slosson, and daughter, Miss Arline; mother, Mrs. Jennie R. Slosson; sister, Mr. Mary Etelson, brother, Frank A. Slosson, all living in Monrovia, and a second brother, John M. Slosson, who lives in Northwood, Iowa, formerly the family's home.

Funeral services will be held next Monday at 2 p.m. from the Renaker chapel, Rev. Mr. Colcord of Claremont College, who officiated at Mr. and Mrs. Slosson's wedding, being in charge, assisted by Dr. W. D. Landis, pastor of the Monrovia Presbyterian Church. Pallbearers have been chosen from among the pioneer friends of the deceased, and are G. M. Blake, J. H. Bartle, C. F. Moore, W. A. Chess, E. E. Rives, and W. H. Baker. Interment will be in Rosedale Cemetery, Los Angeles.

POLITICAL POT IS BOILING.

Beach Resort About to Have a Very Vigorous Campaign.

Effort Being Made to Unite Forces of Opposition.

Easy to Find Candidates for the Various City Jobs.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—Administration circles are buzzing with politics.

The pot began to boil today when it was learned that a slate had been put into the field to defeat Mayor William T. Lisenby, present Commissioner of Public Property, and Harry Riley, Commissioner of Finance, whose terms expire July 1.

It was reported today that a coalition of politicians had been formed for the purpose of gaining control of the city legislative body at the coming municipal election.

The slate launched today is said to include Frank S. Craig, for Commissioner of Public Property; F. M. Cates, incumbent, Commissioner of Public Affairs; Ira S. Hatch and Cora M. Morgan, Commissioners of Finance and Accounting.

It was announced that Mrs. Morgan and her political associates would start a weekly paper to continue to the end of the campaign.

Today's slate is only a starter. There is a score of men and several women after the three city commissionerships that will be open in a few months, and announcements of candidacies are now expected daily.

RANCHMAN CAUGHT WITH CABARAT GIRLS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

RIVERSIDE, Jan. 13.—Paul Holcomb, 22-year-old Corona ranchman, was brought to the County Jail here today on a charge of being intoxicated when he drove his car into a truck on the highway between Elsinore and Perris last night, while taking two cabaret singers from San Bernardino to the lake city. The girls were hurled underneath the truck and picked up unconscious by the driver of the truck. They were brought to the Riverside Hospital by a Perris physician. FULLERTON BRANCH NEARING COMPLETION.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

FULLERTON, Jan. 13.—Several hundred men are working on the new line of the Pacific Electric now building into this city. The road comes south from La Habra Valley running through the large ranch of Bastanchury; hence through the Bain property to a point on north Spadra avenue. It will cross this avenue on an expensive bridge, entering the city northeast of the high school. The freight yards will be on the old Annin property about one-half mile east of the center of the city, but the line is to come up Santa Fe avenue within a half block of the city for passenger traffic. The passenger depot, which is to be a modern structure, will be on Commonwealth between Spadra and Pomona avenues. It is said cars will be running into the city within a few weeks. It is also stated that the line will not be continued from this city to any other point at the present time.

Work has been commenced on the new Placentia Orange Association packing-house in this city. The house will be on the new line of the Pacific Electric and will cost, for the building only, $18,000. Then equipment will cost at least $8000 or $10,000.

ORANGE TREES NOW IN THEIR LOVELIEST FORM.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—Tourists from eastern States who are here for the winter and are doing more or less motoring over the magnificent boulevards of Southern California will find no better time than next week for doing their sight-seeing in the citrus belt. The orange trees were never more beautiful than they are right now. The trees are heavily laden with big, round, yellow fruit, and the thousands of acres of uniform trees are a magnificent sight when viewed from the long, smooth lanes of our far-famed highway system.

In fact, to see the orange groves at their best—to get a never-to-be-forgotten look at the beautiful trees with their wealth of sunkist fruit, one must do the motoring within the next couple of weeks, because after that time the fruit which is hanging on the outer branches of the trees—that fruit which is ripest now because of the many weeks of sunshine this winter—will be gone. The pickers have already begun to gather in the fruit, which gives that golden touch of life to the picture.

The golden harvest began in earnest this week. Prior to this time the growers picked only enough to fill orders, but now they have begun gathering for the open market, and the packing-houses will be running gaily from now until the last Washington navel is picked next spring. The pay roll of the orange pickers and packers in Southern California at the present time is probably running close to $50,000 a day. Good packing-house workers get from $2.50 to $3.50 per day. Some of the men who are expert packers make as much as $6 per day straight through the season. They pack in the Porterville district early in the fall and then come south for the navel pack in midwinter.

At Pomona the seven packing-houses of the San Antonio Fruit Exchange began packing fruit early this week. The output of some of the houses now is only a car a day, but some of them are putting out two cars a day. The daily pay roll of the packers in Pomona is about $1225, or about $7350 per week. At San Dimas the managers estimate that the pay roll for packing will amount to $100,000 during the winter and spring. Similar pay rolls will increase the prosperity in every city and town in the great and glorious citrus belt this year.

Girls! Curls Last and Look Natural

Hair stays curly and wavy for days in spite of wind, dampness, perspiration.

Try this! Before curling or waving your hair with pins, papers or a heated iron, just moisten each strand with atalpa water and you will be delighted how natural the curls and waves appear, and how long they last in spite of wind, dampness or perspiration. A small bottle of atalpa water will cost but a few cents at any drug store and there is nothing better to help retain the curls and waves or to soften, gloss or fluff the hair and make it look abundant.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Get Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 17 years and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, but a healing, soothing vegetable laxative.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth" now and then—a bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver and are constipated, you'll find quick, sure and only pleasant results from one or two little Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets at bedtime.

Thousands take one or two every night just to keep right. Try them. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

Raise High Priced Wheat on Fertile Canadian Soil

Canada extends to you a hearty invitation to settle on her FREE Homestead lands of 160 acres each or secure some of the low priced lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. This year wheat is higher but Canadian land just as cheap, so the opportunity is more attractive than ever. Canada wants you to help feed the world by tilling some of her fertile soil—land similar to that which during many years has averaged 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Think of the money you can make with wheat around $2 a bushel and land so easy to get. Wonderful yields also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming in Western Canada is as profitable an industry as grain growing.

The Government this year is asking farmers to put increased acreage into grain. Military service is not compulsory in Canada but there is a great demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for service. The climate is healthful and agreeable, railway facilities excellent, good schools and churches convenient. Write for literature as to reduced railway rates to Supt. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or to

SAN FRANCISCO FIRM PICKED OUT.

LANDS BIG CONTRACT FOR IRRIGATION IMPROVEMENTS.

Intake Above Hanlon's Heading is Let for the Sum of Two Hundred and Sixty-eight Thousand Dollars—Gate to be Called Rockwood in Honor of First Engineer.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

EL CENTRO, Jan. 13.—Directors of the irrigation district this afternoon let the contract for the construction of the new intake gate above Hanlon's heading to the Ross Construction Company of San Francisco, the price agreed upon being $268,000. The gate is to be called the Rockwood intake. Work of building the intake will be begun at an early date so that it can be finished before high water in June. James Kennedy and Welsh & Wright also submitted bids, but the first named firm were lowest.

The bids of the last two firms were merely informal proposals, exacting conditions dependent on the profit in the work.

This structure will be the most expensive of the kind in California, and is expected, with its improvements over the Hanlon Heading, to eliminate much of the silt which is wont to clog the Alamo channel.

The items in the Ross bid are as follows: Excavating pit, $42,200; excavating bank, $79,200; concrete work, $8435; reinforcing, $57,300; railroading, $1304; back fill, $4700; rock fill, $9400; sheeting, $53,000; incidentals, $5050.

The next item in the $3,000,000 improvements to be begun by the district is the excavation of a new canal from the new intake to the Alamo channel near Hanlon's Heading.

ALLEGATIONS of highly sensational character, bringing in the name of Mrs. Katherine Tingley, founder and head of the Theosophical Homestead at Point Loma, are the groundwork of a remarkable habeas corpus petition pending in the San Diego county courts. Coercion, espionage, kidnaping, conspiracy are charged by Dr. Fritz Sage Darrow, for six years Greek instructor at the homestead school, who seeks to wrest from his wife the custody of their young sons, Edward Goodall Darrow and Alfred Charles Darrow.

Dr. Darrow's petition for the writ was allowed by Superior Judge Lewis and the hearing, begun Friday, was continued to the 22nd inst. At Friday's hearing Mrs. Tingley made a general denial of the charges.

Mrs. Darrow, who lives at the homestead, has filed suit for divorce and was awarded the temporary custody of the boys, who are in the Raja Yoga School, operated at the Theosophical establishment. This order affecting the custody is contested by Dr. Darrow on technical grounds.

THE CHARGES.

It is charged in the habeas corpus petition that during nearly all the six years Dr. Darrow and his wife lived at the homestead, the boys have been members of the Raja Yoga School and have been separated most of the time from their parents; that, acting under the instructions of Katherine Tingley, the children have been refused permission to see their father oftener than once in two weeks and then only for one or two hours at a time; and that they have been compelled to report in substance the conversations they had with their parents on such occasions.

Dr. Darrow alleges that when called East on account of the illness of his aged father, he notified Katherine Tingley that it would be necessary to leave the institution and that he would take his wife and children; that Mrs. Tingley and Mrs. Darrow conspired together to prevent him from taking his two children with him to see their grandfather. He charges that to carry out this plan Mrs. Darrow and Mrs. Tingley and other persons acting under the dictation of Mrs. Tingley intercepted telegraphic communications from the petitioner's father, tampered with Dr. Darrow's mail, had his movements shadowed by detectives and prevented his wife from remaining with him in the bungalow they were then occupying. He also alleges that on October 3 Mrs. Tingley told him she did not know the whereabouts of his wife; that Mrs. Darrow and the children had left the homestead, and this, Dr. Darrow charges, was false.

He also alleges that when Mrs. Tingley learned he had consulted an attorney she caused him to be put under restraint to prevent him from communication with the attorney and he was unable to tele-

He charges that to carry out this plan Mrs. Darrow, Mrs. Tingley and other persons acting under the dictation of Mrs. Tingley intercepted telegraphic communications from the petitioner's father, tampered with Dr. Darrow's mail, had his movements followed by detectives and prevented his wife from remaining with him in the bungalow they were then occupying. He also alleges that on October 3 Mrs. Tingley told him she did not know the whereabouts of his wife; that Mrs. Darrow and the children had left the homestead, and this, Dr. Darrow charges, was false.

He also alleges that when Mrs. Tingley learned he had consulted an attorney she caused him to be put under restraint to prevent him from communication with the attorney and he was unable to telephone or get any communication. Afterwards, he alleges, he was drugged and put into an automobile and taken to Oceanside, where he was placed on a train, under the care of Dr. L. F. Wood, Sr. (a physician in the employ of the homestead,) and was taken to Salt Lake City.

The petition tells of a telegram from Dr. Darrow's father, Dr. Charles E. Darrow of Rochester, which it is alleged was intercepted.

All this, he says, was to prevent him from getting the custody of his children.

He charges that to further carry out this plan, Katherine Tingley persuaded his wife to institute divorce proceedings against him, which action was filed October 17. She charged that the doctor had departed from the State of California. On the contrary, the doctor charges, he was kidnaped.

He declares the children, 7 and 9 years old, are unlawfully restrained of their liberty by Katherine Tingley and says it is essential for their health and welfare that they be removed from the institution. He alleges their growth has been stunted by reason of the physical and mental restraint to which they have been subjected and that their minds have been filled with teachings from many branches of occult science and their natural ideas led, controlled and directed by means of hypnotic power exercised by Katherine Tingley, as the result of which, he believes, the children have been subject to mysterious diseases.

He alleges Mrs. Tingley desires to retain the custody of the children for financial gain.

He also alleges Mrs. Tingley persuaded and coerced his wife into giving her $4000, which sum had been left to Mrs. Darrow by her father.

The doctor states that during the entire six years he gave his services to the institution free, receiving in return free tuition for his children at the institution. He states he and his wife and family took up their residence at the Theosophical headquarters at the suggestion of Katherine Tingley.

The court order giving the temporary custody of the children to Mrs. Darrow is alleged to be void on a technicality, as it is said no papers have ever been served on the doctor or his attorney in the matter.

The doctor also states in his petition that his father is one of the foremost practicing physicians of Rochester, N. Y., and a man of large means, and charges that in retaining the custody of the children Mrs. Tingley hopes to profit financially.

Dr. Darrow is a graduate of Harvard, with several degrees. He was awarded an honorary scholarship that permitted a year's study in Greece, and then taught at Drury College, until, he declares, his open defense of the Theosophical branch headed by Mrs. Tingley necessitated his resignation. Then he removed with his family to Point Loma.

HER SIDE OF IT.

The habeas corpus proceedings Friday were brought before Judge W. R. Guy and Mme. Tingley, represented by Iverson L. Harris, appeared in court together with a number of members of the Theosophical home. Attorney W. J. Davis, attorney for Dr. Darrow, contended that, if the statements made in the affidavit of his client are true, the statements made by Mrs. Tingley in her answer are not true and demanded a full hearing. The habeas corpus proceedings, the motion made by Attorney Davis to set aside the court order, giving the temporary custody of the children to Mrs. Darrow and the habeas corpus proceedings against Mrs. Dar-

Los Angeles godmothers to Belgian soldiers in the trenches at the European war front.

Revelation.

MANY SCHOOL GIRLS HERE ARE "MOTHERING" BELGIAN TROOPS.

Begging Letters from Individual Soldiers who Ask American Maids' Pin Money Rouse Criticism—But there are Responsible "Marraines," Too.

HAVE you a little marraine in your family? Perhaps you have, and don't know it. Marraine is French for godmother; the word applies especially these days to women and girls who supply individual soldiers in Europe with tobacco, pipes, table delicacies and spending money. And there are scores of marraines in Los Angeles, many of them school girls whose parents know nothing of the daughters' godmother activity.

Investigation by some interested parents in Los Angeles has also disclosed the fact that numerous Belgian soldiers have secured the names of American school girls and are writing them letters that appeal to the sympathies and generosity of the little misses. The discovery of this godmother correspondence has raised a distinct issue in the question of American giving for the relief of suffering Belgium.

It is universally admitted the suffering of the Belgians is real and terrible; that every dollar and every wool sock given by Americans to relieve distress in that torn land is well given. Moreover, widespread sympathy for the Belgian cause has given strength to this realization.

On the other hand, the godmother letters from the Belgian soldiers have roused criticism in many quarters. It is pointed out that of all the unfortunate Belgians, the soldiers are perhaps suffering least; that every effort is bent by his own expatriated government and its allies to keep the Belgian soldier so clothed and fed and sheltered that he can continue to fight. The civilian population has no such advantages.

METHOD CRITICIZED.

Moreover, it is pointed out that the method used by many Belgian soldiers to secure American godmothers is distinctly irregular.

There are the regularly-formed associations for Belgian relief—efficient and energetic and reliable. If there is real need that the Belgian fighter find his godmother in America, why is it not done through such an organization, it is asked. In France the government has a hand in the matter, and there the practice seems to have won not a little approval.

But certain Belgians have secured, investigators declare, lists of names of school girls, contained in newspapers and elsewhere, and have written these children, 14 and 15 years of age, asking that they assume the role of marraine. The response is said to have included about twenty-five in every 100 of the young girls so approached; and it is also declared many have acted secretly, carrying on correspondence and sacrificing their pin money, and sometimes even more, through a spirit of sympathy, romance and whatnot.

News dispatches, moreover, add another element that irritates parents of small marraines. Various divorce suits recently begun in France and Belgium name godmothers as co-respondents, with the evidence letters that expressed more affection than stay-at-home wives relished.

COURTING WANT.

Then, it has been found not a few of these romantic young American marraines are in some instances actually going without the most ordinary necessaries, in order to supply tobacco to some soldiers.

A specific case in Los Angeles is that of the 15-year-old daughter of

LOS ANGELES HEIRS LAY CLAIM TO MILLIONS DENIED PARENTS.

HOW forty heirs, twelve of them of California and eight of this city, hope to divide an estate which, by reason of one of the most remarkably satiric wills on record, has lain idle for more than a century and now has an estimated value of $37,000,000, is told in the proceedings now under way to recover from the Danish crown the estate of Gen. Jurgen Moldt.

A further item of interest in the case is that none of the heirs is under 50 years of age, and two, who reside in Germany, are almost 100 years old. Among the Los Angeles heirs who hope to profit by the distribution of the immense fortune are J. J. Seeman of No. 664 West Washington street and Mrs. Ella Hitchcox, who has come to the city while the negotiations are being carried on. Another is Jarrie Seeman of Anaheim, 89 years old. Other California heirs are Fritz Jurgen Seeman and Hans Christian Seeman. Attorney David G. Hatheway of this city is handling the case for the American claimants and expects to leave for Denmark shortly to conduct the legal proceedings there.

The inheritance proceedings concern the strange will of Gen. Moldt, a prominent figure in Danish history when Schleswig-Holstein was still a Danish possession. More than a century ago, Gen. Moldt gathered together an immense fortune in specie. He married a German peasant girl by the name of Thanie Seemann; and so sure was he that his wife's poor relatives would seek to obtain a share in his tremendous fortune through the money he would leave his wife, he determined to circumvent them.

The terms of his will provided that the whole of his fortune was to go to his wife, and be for her use alone. There were no children. He further provided that on her death the money was to go not to the relatives of his spouse, but to the Danish crown, there to accrue interest of 2¼ per cent. for 100 years, at the end of which time the general stipulated that the heirs of his wife might claim what had been denied their fathers, with accrued interest. Thanie Moldt died shortly after her husband's death, and the money, as had been directed, went to the crown.

Twelve years ago the stipulated century expired and the government advertised for heirs of the Seeman estate. There was no response. For more than a year the government kept the investigation going, but the Seeman heirs were apparently all dead. Then one day from the Isle of Alsen came an old man of 98 years who proclaimed himself one of the heirs to the fortune, and told of hearing his father, who was a brother of Thanie Moldt, tell of the crusty old Dane's scheme to keep his wife's relatives from using his money. His claims were investigated and found valid; he had relatives in America, and one by one the heirs were located and notified. There are forty of them altogether. An attorney in Copenhagen is representing the heirs in Germany.

"I do not anticipate any great difficulty in getting the estate adjusted," said Mr. Hatheway. "Since the Danish government advertised for the heirs it probably will be willing to give up the money. I will go to Denmark in the spring, probably by way of Iceland."

Mr. Hatheway is a native of Denmark and was for this reason chosen by the heirs of the estate to represent them.

Two Million Dollar Job Requires Lengthy Blue Prints.

The contract between the Los Angeles Union Terminal Company and the Wurster Construction Company of Los Angeles and San Diego, calling for the construction of two of the group of buildings to be erected east of the Plaza at a cost of $2,000,000, was filed with County Recorder Logan yesterday.

It was one of the bulkiest documents the office has been called on to handle, because of blue prints measuring several hundred feet accompanying the contract. The contract price is $721,693.

LOVE BLOOMS ON SIDEWALK.

Chewing-gum Man and Paper Lady are Wedded.

Remarkable Curbstone Affair of the Heart Told.

Sunshine at Last in a Life of Pain and Trouble.

When Eros starts out for a killing with his bow and arrow he is not always particular where he makes his game preserves; he is as apt to choose a noisy street corner as a secluded conservatory. The corner of Sixth and Hill streets was the spot selected for his latest venture. The heroine in the sidewalk romance is the little crippled lady who for three years has sold papers and magazines at the steps of the First Methodist Church, and the hero is the old man who used to sit on the southwest corner of the street with an assortment of chewing gum, pencils and candies.

The little magazine lady, who at that time was known as "Mother" Hastings, and the chewing gum man, who is J. E. Buckbee, used to exchange greetings of the day by nods and friendly smiles. As often as business would permit, the gallant chewing gum man would cross the street to exchange bits of gossip with the lady who had won his heart by long-distance communications.

Came a day when the little old lady was left in the lurch by the man engaged to wheel her to and from her stand and handle change for customers. The chewing gum man came to the rescue and moved his stand across the street, where he could help the lady of his heart.

He wheeled her from her house in the morning and stayed with her all day to superintend the sale of her papers and magazines. Side by side they ate their meager lunch. The two have become familiar figures to Hill-street pedestrians, with their commercial partnership, but the matrimonial partnership has been unsuspected.

"Mother" Hastings, or, as she will now be called, "Mother" Buckbee, is a little woman with twisted hands and crippled limbs, but with a face that reflects happiness and good cheer. She has had more than her share of suffering from bodily afflictions and the stress of poverty, and through all has kept the beautiful spirit that prompted the lonely chewing gum man to look beyond mere beauty of feature to find it in the heart.

PATHETIC STORY.

She told the pitiful story of her life yesterday as she sat in the wheel chair, which she leaves only for her bed at night. She did not know it was pitiful, for self-pity is foreign to her nature; she told of her struggles with poverty and invalidism with the cheerful philosophy that is one of her chief traits.

"I have always been an invalid," she said. "I have never known the joy of walking, and up to a few years ago scarcely ever left the house. I was living in Portland, Or., then, and for ten years I lay in bed with only the telephone, which was attached to my bed, for company. I was quite alone in the world, and, as I had no more money at the end of ten years' constant doctoring, they wanted to send me to the County Farm. But I couldn't think of that. I made up my mind that, although my body was not good for much, while I had a mind I would use it.

"With not a dollar in the world, and with my wheel chair as my only bit of property, I started out. I hired a man to wheel me, telling him I would pay him next day. I hadn't the money, but I trusted to the Lord to provide for me. I rented a cheap room, and then I had the man wheel me down to the Journal office. I asked them to let me sell papers. They laughed at me at first, but one of the men gave me ten papers and told me to see what I could do.

"I didn't know how to sell papers, so I just lay in my chair with the papers on my lap afraid to say a word to people as they came by. But it seemed as if everybody noticed me. I was sold out in less than thirty minutes, and went back to the office for more. By night I had made more than $10. But that happiness didn't last, for the authorities said I was too terrible a sight for the children to see—they meant my crippled hands, I guess—and said I would either have to get off the streets or go to the county farm. They gave me money to get out of town, and I went first to Everett, Wash., and then to Seattle, but they drove me out of both places. Finally I reached Los Angeles, and I have been happy ever since. People are so good to me here, and the church people have let me have my stand at the foot of their steps.

"Yes, I sell real estate, too," she said in reply to an inquiry concerning the placards which hung about the stand. "Lots of people give their listings to me, and I make a real good agent, if I do say so myself."

"Yes, I am married," she said with a fond look at the man beside her. "He takes such good care of me, too."

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Buckbee,

Street vendors, he of chewing gum and such things; she of newspapers and magazines. They used to occupy opposite corners at Sixth and Hill streets. There was a cross-the-street courtship, a wedding and now there's only one stand.

MEEK AS LAMBS.

Bloodthirsty I.W.W. Bums will be Good Now After the Deserved Treatment They Received for Starting Revolution in County Jail.

After the severe treatment accorded them by Sheriff Cline and a number of his deputies when they attempted to start a bloody revolution in the County Jail, the twoscore I.W.W. bums were as meek as lambs yesterday. They promised to be good in the future and their shoes which were removed Friday because they used them in stamping the floors were returned to them.

Deputy District Attorney Guernsey said last night that he has an excellent case against the twenty-two who were taken from a train at Saugus by deputy sheriffs who were armed with sawed-off shotguns. They will be tried next Wednesday.

This gang escaped conviction when tried on vagrancy charges, the jury standing eight to four, but that they did trespass upon railroad property, Mr. Guernsey says can be established beyond a doubt and he feels sure they will be convicted this time.

Twenty of the bunch were sentenced to thirty days on the rock pile but they will not begin paying the penalty until their attorney has finished an appeal of their case. Meantime the gang will remain in the County Jail.

SUPPOSED BOMB PLOTTER HERE?

Alleged German Army Officer Much Wanted.

Rudolph Fritzen Gives Slip to Pursuers.

Local Teutons Deplore Man's Activities.

"Where is Rudolph Fritzen, sometimes known as Fritz Pieper, alleged German army officer much wanted during the recent Von Papen trial at San Francisco?"

Local German citizens of prominence have had word that he has been in Los Angeles during the past few days. Max Socha, editor of the Germania; Joseph Blust, Carl Hagen and numerous others have had inquiries about him. Also they have been told that he slipped into the United States by the way of Cuba, and that he is now on his way to Mexico, if not already in that country.

Several days ago it became whispered about town that the most expert of the alleged German bomb plotters had been seen in this city. Various haunts, dear to the heart of the local German population, were visited by Fritzen. In none of these places could the waiters, managers or proprietors give any definite clew to his movements, although he was recognized as the solitary stranger who had been coming in for some of his meals from descriptions given.

The mysterious stranger is said to me fomenting trouble in Mexico. Mr. Socha declared that there are a number of individuals of his stamp floating around the country.

"They appear to have a specific mission, and that is causing trouble and agitation over the matter of pro-Germanism in this country," he said. "It would not be at all surprising to learn that such men have been employed by anti-German sympathizers to stir up all the trouble they can. We have had a number of their stripe to deal with in Los Angeles, and they are given short shrift or attention by the large German population of the city. Unless a man can absolutely produce his credentials from the German government as to his past record and present relations he receives scant consideration."

The supposed dynamite expert, Fritzen, is a man of striking appearance. He is about 5 feet 10 inches in height, of very blonde hair and a regular Kaiser Wilhelm mustache and a ruddy complexion. His weight is estimated at about 190 pounds. Federal as well as police officers have been asked to look for him in connection with past bomb plots in New York, San Francisco and other places.

PEACE DOVE HEALS FAMILY TROUBLES.

WARRING COUPLE TO FORGIVE AND FORGET.

Court's Efforts to Reconcile Them for Children's Sake Meets with Success Ending Legal Fight Which Involved a Los Angeles Patrolman.

The dove of peace, seeing an open window in the home of Morris and Inez Southstone, who have been at odds, flew into the home and dropped the olive branch on a bureau. Mr. and Mrs. Southstone tacked it on the wall and yesterday they sought Judge Reeve of the Juvenile Court and told him they were going to forgive and forget.

The reconciliation ends a legal fight which threatened ugly charges. It came after a suit had been filed for the custody of their three children and another suit for $25,000 damages filed against Nelson I. Beals, a Los Angeles patrolman, for alienating the affections of Mrs. Southstone. Mr. Southstone charged that the policeman gave Mrs. Southstone money to go to Oklahoma. Mr. Southstone followed his wife, but did not succeed in healing the alleged breach.

When Mr. Beals was before Chief Snively on the charges growing out of the Southstone case, the evidence appears to have been that he admitted he had been engaged to Mrs. Southstone before her marriage and he had always loved her. He expressed a willingness to pay her expenses in a suit for divorce. The matter went no further, and Mr. Beals was not disturbed in his position on the force.

The reconciliation was the result of Judge Reeve's efforts when he heard the case referring to the custody of the children. He urged the couple for the benefit of their children to forget and make up, continuing the matter until March and allowing the children to stay in the home of their father.

In San Diego litigation.

Point Loma Suit.

row were for this reason continued until January 22, when the divorce suit against Dr. Darrow will be tried. Judge E. S. Torrance, appearing for Mrs. Darrow, stated that Mrs. Darrow was in the courthouse.

Attorney Davis contended that, while in her answer, Mrs. Tingley denied she had the custody of the children, she did not deny the allegations made concerning her domination and control of Mrs. Darrow and the children.

While in the courtroom, Mrs. Tingley, Mrs. W. A. Dunn, one of Mrs. Tingley's close assistants; Miss Alice Pierce and others were subpoenaed by Attorney Davis as witnesses in the habeas corpus action.

In her answer Mrs. Tingley stated she had given the doctor and his wife and family free food, clothes, medical aid and paid their laundry bills, with the one condition that the doctor teach Greek. She said he taught Greek about five hours a week, gave several lectures and wrote some articles for publication, did guard duty from one to one and a half hours a day and for manual exercise, gardening and so forth, that he had requested to be allowed to do.

WENT VOLUNTARILY?

She said he voluntarily left his wife and family October 7, saying he was going for an indefinite period. She stated that owing to an acute nervous condition he was suffering from, he asked that Dr. L. F. Woods accompany him.

She stated that since October 15 Mrs. Darrow and her two sons had not lived at the homestead, as Mrs. Darrow decided then to move herself and her children temporarily. She denied that the children were made to repeat to her all conversations held between them and their parents and denied intercepting telegrams, tampering with Dr. Darrow's mail or shadowing him with a detective.

She denied that she conspired to kidnap Dr. Darrow, administered drugs to him or had him transported to Oceanside.

As to the allegation made by Dr. Darrow that the children had become stunted in mind and subject to mysterious diseases through restraint and teachings of the home, she said that if they had diseases they were either inherited or contracted before they took up their residence at the school, and if their minds were weak or stunted, this must have been inherited or contracted previous to their residence there.

She denied she had ever received from Mrs. Darrow $4000 or a single dollar and that often she urged Mrs. Darrow to remain with her husband in spite of his cruel treatment of her.

She alleged she had never tried to dominate Dr. Darrow's wife or children and had never made any attempt to remove the children from the jurisdiction of the Superior Court.

The petition asked for the writ to be discharged.

Belgian Mothers.

H. M. Noyes. He learned she was a soldier's godmother by accidentally discovering in her room a letter from the godson. Then he found his child has secretly sent the Belgian her small savings, $7, that she needed for heavier underwear, and had also sent a box of small luxuries.

Here is the letter Mr. Noyes discovered:

"BELGIAN ARMY ON THE FIELD,
"B. 89 First Squadron,
"Somewhere in France.

"My dear little godmother:

"How lovely it is of you to become my little godmother, and you so young and must be so very pretty.

"My dear parents in Antwerp I have not heard from since October, 1914.

"I am a young fellow, 20. I am a handsome fellow and since the beginning of the war at the front, I did the battles of Liege, Antwerp and Yser. I have been wounded twice. Don't you hope that I will not be wounded any more? And can I hope to meet you some day?

"I hope also it is not necessary for us to tell you why we want a godmother. A parcel and a little money will always be received with great pleasure by us soldiers in the trenches, say once a month. We know your deep sympathy for us soldiers, we great fighters. I will give you a better description of myself as soon as I hear from you with remittances. Send me your photograph and the pictures and names of your school chums and we will write to them. Give us the names other schoolgirls and their addresses. My boy comrades are so handsome and it will be such fun.

"Yours sincerely,
"MAURICE BEYENS.

"P. S. In sending money each month, always register, for the censor steals money not registered.
"MAURICE."

Mr. Noyes, with other investigators, points out that some of the Belgian soldiers who are finding marraines by the letter route write only to very young girls, include flattery in the missives, and frankly beg. It is also questioned how many marraines some of the writers have in various parts of America.

THE BRIGHTER SIDE.

There is another sort of marraine in Los Angeles, however. She is the girl or woman of some means who is openly and intelligently fulfilling the godmother function, often to several soldiers. These, too, receive letters from their godsons and not infrequently there is a touch of real romance and genuine sentiment.

There is the case of the young Belgian officer who wrote his Los Angeles friend, Mrs. J. A. Donato of Benton way, herself a Belgian. He asked that Mrs. Donato find him a godmother with these specifications: Young, cheerful, lovely, serious at times and an enemy of banality.

Almost always the godsons ask for pictures of their marraines, and quite often they get them.

A photograph that reached her godson before he assumed that relation is responsible for the appearance of Mrs. Walter V. Pomeroy in the marraine role. Her picture, made by Matzene, was entered in an international beauty contest at Brussels just before the war, and won first prize. Then came the war and the picture vanished. Trace of it was found a few weeks ago, through receipt of a letter to Matzene. The missive was from a wounded Belgian soldier, and he asked that the photographer furnish him the name of the subject. It was done and a few days ago Mrs. Pomeroy received a letter from the soldier, telling her the picture had made his pain bearable as he lay in the hospital, and imploring her to become his godmother. She has.

AND MORE OF THEM.

Then, Miss Marguerite Rouseyrol, who is French, has a whole trio of godsons. Two are Belgians and one a Frenchman. She sent each a Christmas box, containing fruit cake, tobacco, an electric searchlight, a safety razor, field glasses, spending money and warm clothing.

Miss Gertrude O'Brien, a Pasadena society girl, has two "little orphans" fighting in the trenches. She denied herself the pleasure of all other gift-giving this Christmas and instead included in their boxes enough of the usual gift articles to supply twenty-four other soldiers besides her godsons.

Other Los Angeles marraines whose Christmas money has gone to Belgian soldiers are Miss Edna Price of No. 175 South Benton way and her house guest, Miss Bertha Ryan; Miss Doris Collins, a 19-year-old schoolgirl of No. 531 Shatto place; Miss Violet Stewart, a young English schoolgirl of No. 2722 South Normandie avenue, and numerous others, mostly schoolgirls.

These misses go farther than sacrificing their pin money. They have given numerous little parties and also bazaars and entertainments to raise funds for the purpose, and are frankly very much occupied and businesslike about their task.

TO SOUTH AMERICA.

[illegible] is this trade with the neighboring continent, according to Vice-President E. W. "We are [illegible] our limit to South America at the present time," said Mr. [illegible] "We could do a much greater [illegible] if we had the increased [illegible] facilities, which will be [illegible] supplied by the new refinery [illegible] by additional steamers. [illegible] everything possible has been done [illegible] the city of Los Angeles and the [illegible] of Wilmington in order [illegible] possible the rapid development of the new refinery. The City [illegible] has passed an ordinance [illegible] the one already in existence which regulates the storage of [illegible] and inflammable articles, [illegible] the new site is included in [illegible] district where oils can be stored. "Somewhere in France Blood is Flowing"

---Joan of Arc

FIVE centuries ago when fair France was darkened by years of warfare, a child girl, Joan of Arc, had a vision.

"Rise," said the "voices" of the vision. "Go to the King. Free France."

Joan obeyed.

She was then 17 years old, the only girl who ever commanded a nation's army.

One night her orders were disobeyed by troops some distance away. They had attacked the enemy and met defeat. The "voices" told Joan. She rose to the fullness of her stature and exclaimed:

"Somewhere in France blood is flowing." Her relief force turned defeat into victory.

Offi- corporation have offered up to $350,000 for this to be repaid in rent- for wharfage on its of the great new refinery will have an initial capacity of 10,000 barrels of crude oil per day. This will be just one-half of the size of the Union Oil plant at Oleum, on San Pablo Bay near San Francisco. Among the first construction work will be the erection of huge storage tanks, numerous stills, filtration houses, a research building, a lubricating plant, an asphalt plant and general office buildings.

The first products of the company will be gasoline, distillate, lubricating oils, naphtha, benzine and asphaltum. Kerosene will not be manufactured in the beginning, but may later be added to this list of products. There are more than fifteen varieties of lubricating oils in the list of those to be first manufactured.

The opening of the plant will give work to approximately 200 men, this number being increased as rapidly as the refinery develops. The construction itself will call for the employment of a number far in excess of this. Engineers are already plotting the ground and making necessary surveys for location of various portions of the refinery. Actual construction work is expected to start during the first week in March, and sooner if possible.

At the present time the officials do not contemplate the installation of a dry dock to handle the oil steamers. They are hoping that a concern of the magnitude of the Union Iron Works of San Francisco will arrange to open a shipbuilding or at least a repair plant on the local harbor. "There are many steamers that now pass up this port owing to the impossibility of making repairs or finding suitable dry-dock facilities in this vicinity," said Vice-President Clark. "Until such a plant is established there can never be the ocean traffic that Los Angeles hopes to obtain."

Progress of Industry.

UNION OIL OPENS A NEW CHILEAN STORAGE PLANT

Tank Steamer Discharges Cargo of Five Thousand Tons of California Product, Inaugurating the Fifth Installation of Stations in that South American Republic. Nitrate Industry Saved from Destruction .

THE Union Oil Company of California made its first delivery of oil at the new tank and storage station at Poblacion Vergara, located on Valparaiso Bay, Chile, a few weeks ago, when the oil-tank steamer Cordelia opened her bunkers and discharged 5000 tons of California crude oil at the newest of the company's South American storage stations.

This new storage station, situated between Calles Nos. 18 and 19, Poblacion Vergara, was constructed at a cost of $187,000 gold, on the site of a concession secured for the Union Oil Company by Duncan Fox & Co., under the direction of A. J. Barrett of San Francisco, and the work of installation was heartily co-operated in by the Chilean government.

BIG INVESTMENTS.

This is the fifth installation to be made in Chile, the other storage stations being located at Taltal, Antofogasta, Tocopilla and Iquique. These plants are all of the very latest type of construction and represent an investment of several hundred thousand dollars. They are so constructed that tank ships are permitted to anchor in the offing and discharge their cargoes by means of large pipes, laid out into the harbor or open roadstead, and a flexible armored hose is attached to these pipes which lie at the bottom of the sea. When the ship takes up her position at anchor this hose is drawn up and attached to the ship's bunker valves and the great force pumps are started and the oil forced from the ship's bunkers to the storage tanks on shore.

The stations also are equipped with force pumps for the purpose of loading cars that are taken inland to the numerous nitrate plants, where it is used for fuel almost exclusively, having supplanted coal in all but a very few of the smaller and unimportant plants.

This installation consists of two small 235-ton tanks and one large 8000-ton tank. There is a steel-constructed power-house, a battery of fifty-horse-power engines and two powerful pumps which have a capacity of unloading the great tank steamers at the rate of 2500 barrels per hour. The refill apparatus provides for the loading of nine twenty-ton tank cars simultaneously.

These storage stations receive their supply from a fleet of oil-tank steamers that carry from 10,000 to 15,000 tons of oil each trip and make regular stops at the company's various stations throughout the world.

SAVES NITRATE INDUSTRY.

The Chilean nitrate industry has been saved from demoralization by the Union Oil Company's foresight and enterprise, for had not this company expended thousands of dollars in the equipping of these stations and sent in great fleets of oil carriers to Chile the nitrate business would have been at a complete standstill for lack of fuel, as the European war completely shut off their supply of coal.

The Union Oil Company, having been first in the field, naturally received the bulk of the business of supplying the nitrate and mining industries with fuel oil. It numbers among its customers the mammoth Chilean Exploration Company, the Bethlehem Chile Iron Mines Company and the Braden Copper Company, concerns that use thousands of barrels of oil every month.

Despite the restrictions placed in trade by the operations of the German South Seas fleet before its destruction, Union Oil tank steamers made their regular trips to these countries and delivered the fuel that kept the wheels of industry in motion. They suffered the loss of their magnificent tank ship Elsinore, which was sunk by Admiral Von Spee's squadron in October, 1914, while returning to the United States after making a delivery of oil to Chile.

In addition to this it opened up a limitless market for California oil, its deliveries averaging 100,000 tons per month, a market which will mean millions to this State and which will be the means of opening up other vast trade opportunities to the merchants and manufacturers of not only California but the entire nation.

KINDLY FEELING.

The Chilean government has not been slow to recognize this vast service and as a result a very kindly feeling has been engendered toward all American enterprise seeking to form trade relations with the people of that great southern republic. The Union Oil Company has been one of the great pioneer oil exporters of this State. Its tank ships sail the seven seas and regular deliveries are made to practically all the Latin-American countries as well as to China, Japan, Russia and Hawaii.

SEEK MISSING GIRL.

Authorities Make Diligent Search for Inmate of Home Whom the Older Sister is Alleged to Have Kidnaped with Aid of Mexicans.

Deputy sheriffs in two counties are making a diligent search for Aurora Lujan, 17 years old, who is alleged to have been kidnaped from the True Love Home on Griffin avenue by Mrs. Refugio Orcerco, her older sister. The latter is being held in the Los Angeles County Jail.

Miss Lujan and an American girl, whose name officers will not divulge, are said to have been lured Thursday night from the institution by some Mexicans who appeared after the girls had been visited by Mrs. Orcerco. A big automobile was used in the transportation of the girls who are said to have been taken to No. 1130 Fickett street.

The following day the mysterious American girl made her escape from the Mexicans, having leaped from an automobile when the captors took them for a joy ride. She reported the matter to the probation officers who instituted a search for Miss Lujan.

Yesterday the officers received information that the missing girl had been taken to Santa Ana and the search there resulted in the arrest of Mrs. Orcerco. Miss Lujan, however, could not be found.

The purpose of the alleged kidnapers is not known, but officers believe the girl is in danger of mistreatment at their hands.

COLD FEET?

Freezing winds have seriously handicapped the suffragists who are picketing the White House. Are the fair ones with the yellow banners going to get cold feet before Mr. Wilson has had time to declare himself?

THE THAW CASE.

Harry Thaw is said to be recovering from his attempt at suicide. If there was ever a doubt as to Thaw's insanity surely that doubt has been forever removed. Is it not time for society to have done with sentimental mush and protect itself against perverts and criminals, regardless of their financial or social status and irrespective of whether their crimes are caused by congenital diseases or inspired by motives acquired by unnatural living?

LIGHTNING-CHANGE ARTIST.

A few weeks ago it would have been impossible to find a stronger opponent of the purchase of the distributing systems of the Pacific Light and Power Corporation and the Southern California Edison Company than E. F. Scattergood, chief electrical engineer of the Bureau of Power and Light. Now he has come out in favor of the power bonds. He reminds one of the music hall artists whose acts chiefly consist of quick changes. But Mr. Scattergood must have a hard time reconciling himself with himself.

COVETING DICTATORS.

Six months ago Bernard Shaw spoke to an audience of six thousand people at $1.25 a seat, setting forth "the urgent need of a great dictator, virile, commanding, an intellectual and dominating giant, preferably myself." The fact that he could make people pay five shillings a seat to be told that almost qualified him for the position.

Well, he has got his dictator; but alas, it isn't Bernard. David Lloyd George may not, according to Shaw, answer the requirements. It is so difficult to get all the virtues. And to think Lloyd George never even appointed Shaw to the war council. Graceless ingratitude!

PUNISHING VILLA.

Pershing's punitive expedition is to come to an end without anybody having been "puned." The withdrawal of the troops is to be followed, it is said, by the sending of an American Ambassador to Mexico City to represent the United States to the Carranza government. Villa and his outlaws are more active than ever in Northern Mexican states, looting and killing people of their own blood, shooting and stabbing Americans and threatening the United States borders. The presence of the Ambassador in Mexico City will doubtless be as effective as Pershing's troops were allowed to be. It is to laugh!

SURPLUS GOLD.

Gold is valuable chiefly because it is the established standard of exchange. It represents buying power. At present the United States has the greatest buying power of any nation in the world. But if the war continues to mutual belligerent exhaustion Europe will have nothing to sell. In that case what will we do with our gold? And if at the end of the war Uncle Sam should own all the gold bullion of the world, how will Europe buy the goods he will still desire to sell to her? Trade can never be profitable when one-half the world is bankrupt. We may yet have to face the paradoxical problem of how profitably to get rid of our surplus gold.

EVERY CITY HAS ITS ROAR.

People who live in the apartment-house district will sympathize with those who have addressed a petition to the Council asking that big motor trucks be prevented from operating in the apartment-house and residence districts between the hours of 9 p.m. and 6 a.m. The "rattle and roar" of which complaint is made is not pleasing, especially to those who find it difficult to woo sleep. But at the same time it must be remembered that the district from which most of the complaints come is very close in. Every city has its roar and as cities grow larger the roar never ceases. This roar about a roar is one which is sure to raise a roar from the owners of motor trucks and from the business houses which have to keep the trucks going all hours of the day and night.

NO CONSCIENCE NEED APPLY.

The conscientious objector to military service treads a hard road in the British Isles just now. The authorities don't compel him to shed blood, but they insist upon mobilizing him in battalions and putting him in a significant uniform for noncombatant labor. Six hundred of him were marched into the little English town of Lewes recently, where they were to be billeted on the inhabitants, for which the War Office pays a generous allowance. But the inhabitants struck. They said no war measure or defense-of-the-realm act required them to take any but bona fide soldiers of the King into their homes. They closed their doors with an inhospitable bang and told the authorities to do what they liked about it.

It was very embarrassing. More than half the conscience-stricken gentlemen had to experience a night in the very cold open, for all the world as though they had been in the trenches. And food was not forthcoming till long past the third mealtime. The authorities are suspected of taking a malicious satisfaction in the contretemps. It is meet and right, think they, that pacificism should have its sorrows no less than war.

WAR AND BUSINESS.

The dove of peace is the herald of the bear in the stock market. Last month the appeal of Germany for a peace conference caused a heavy decline in stocks and bonds in Wall street accompanied with enormous sales, yet there were no failures, for those who sold had realized very large profits during the last two years, and it is the opinion of experienced financiers and economists that when peace shall come it will bring upon our business world no calamitous conditions.

The war has turned a flood of a billion dollars in gold from the treasure vaults of Europe into the banks and safe deposit boxes of our own country, and two billion dollars' worth of American securities have been sent here from London and Paris and Berlin and purchased and paid for by our own citizens, who now draw interest upon them which beforetime went to European holders. For this three billions of money we have sent Europe arms and munitions and grain and meat and canned goods and cotton and manufactures of textiles, of metals and of leather. When war was declared we were in debt to Europe—now Europe is in debt to us.

No laws and no man and no body of men can be credited with having produced our marvelous prosperity through economic management or financial adjustment. It has come upon us as the floods come that fertilize the earth and produce abundant harvests.

The European war has in thirty months lifted this nation to a height of prosperity that might, under normal conditions, have taken as many years to reach. That when the war is over we may have to descend somewhat from those heights is not to be denied, but it does not follow that the descent will be very great or inflict disaster upon the nation or upon individuals.

It is on the whole a matter of congratulation that Great Britain is transferring from American to Canadian manufacturers her contracts for war supplies. Contracts amounting to $400,000,000 have already been so transferred. We shall supply the Canadian manufacturers with steel and copper and other raw material needed in the manufacturing processes which Canada cannot produce, but the prosperity resulting from this trade will not be blood-bespattered.

The war certainly prevented the ruin which the Underwood tariff would have brought upon our manufacturers of textile fabrics. Demands from Europe kept our spindles and looms so busy that there are now on the books of the manufacturers unfilled American orders for tens of millions' worth of woolen goods.

Even when the war shall cease it will take Europe a year or two to organize its industries before its competition can be felt in this country, and in the meantime the Democratic administration at Washington will be forced by a revenue deficit to restore the Republican tariff.

Europe after the war will be able, by the return of soldiers to the pursuits of peace, to greatly increase the production of food on her own soil. This will lessen her importations of food from the United States. That will lessen our exportations of food and lessen the prices of it here. Lessened prices will lessen the cost of living, and peace will not harm us or take from us the benefits that war has brought us.

Those who will lose most immediately by peace will be capitalists whose money is not invested in productive industries. When war ceases war expenditures cease; the drain upon capital is released, labor has lower wages, lower spending power and lower cost of living; not so much money is needed and interest on money recedes.

America has prospered immensely from the war. With wise tariff precautions she will not be hurt when the war shall cease; and it may be truthfully said of her people that, in the interests of civilization and of humanity, they will hail peace with joy and help Europe to make that peace permanent.

THE HELL OF BELGIUM AND VARIOUS OTHER HELLS.

There are several viewpoints with respect to Germany's deportation of Belgians, and the expressions of opinion from the American and from the European press are conflicting concerning both the facts and the conclusion to be drawn from the facts.

President Wilson inaugurated the controversy in an official note to Germany in which he said: "The government of the United States has learned, with the greatest concern and regret, of the policy of the German government to deport from Belgium a portion of the civilian population for the purpose of forcing them to labor in Germany, and is constrained to protest in a friendly spirit but most solemnly against this action, which is in contravention of all precedent and of those humane principles of international practice which have long been accepted and followed by civilized nations in their treatment of noncombatants in conquered territory."

There were many Americans who questioned the propriety of President Wilson making this unsolicited criticism of the action of the German government and who said: "What if Kaiser Wilhelm had protested solemnly against the action of Wilson in demanding the retirement of Huerta from the Presidency of Mexico as an act in contravention of precedent and of international law?"

The German government, instead of resenting the President's protest as an unwarranted interference in a matter which did not concern the United States, replied courteously, saying that England was to blame for deportation; that her embargo against the Belgian overseas trade had thrown large numbers of Belgian workmen into idleness, and that drunkenness, social depravity and disorder had resulted; that The Hague convention makes it obligatory on a power occupying territory of another power to maintain order, and that idleness forms no part of the German idea of order. So the idle men in Belgium were offered eight marks ($1.92) per day to labor in Germany or Northern France, and when they refused to go voluntarily they were taken by force.

As stated in Current Opinion for January: "The Belgian view is very different. It is charged that Germany has requisitioned for her own use raw materials and thus closed the Belgian factories; that she has been, in addition, stripping the country of machinery and even digging up single-track railways that transport farm produce to make use of them for military purposes. Idleness is thus deliberately inflicted on the nation. And not only the idle but, according to Cardinal Mercier, 'a great number of men who have never been out of work' are deported. The Holland section of the League of Neutral States speaks of the 'ghastly suffering,' the 'unutterable despair,' the 'agonizing scenes' that attend the deportations. According to Maurice Maeterlinck many of the men deported are compelled to dig trenches for the German army, 50,000 having been forced to such duty back of Soissons."

The New York Staats Zeitung compares the "humane and considerate methods of deportation" employed in Belgium with the barbarous methods employed, as alleged, by the British in deporting citizens of German colonies in Africa. The Fatherland asserts that "thousands of young Germans and Austrians are compelled to work under conditions resembling those of slavery in Canada."

The New York Tribune sees a strange fatality in Germany's course in Belgium. "The whole world," it says, "is weary of this war, but whenever there seems a chance that the weariness may lead to peace Germans do something in Belgium which produces an instant revulsion of feeling and a willingness to see the war go on." The Chicago Evening Post similarly remarks: "Germany will not let us forget her crime against Belgium. She will not give the anger of civilization an opportunity to cool." But the Cleveland Plain Dealer says there are two sides to the subject and it does not attribute to the Germans a cold-blooded desire to persecute and oppress.

The Times cannot but condemn the deportation of Belgians and their forced employment even at good wages in Germany. At the same time it is not oblivious of the fact that the Russian Cossacks and the French Zouaves and even the English regiments have been guilty of barbarous acts which have not been made public and commented upon as has the deportation of Belgians.

"War is hell" and it does not appear that any of the nations who for thirty months have been making widows and orphans and destroying property and piling up debts in Europe have so conducted hostilities as to entitle them to be exempted from the criticism with which Germany is visited by the American press.

BETTER CALL ELECTION OFF.

Councilman Topham was severe on himself and his colleagues when, in discussing the power bond election, he said: "We have gone before the public like a bunch of boneheads." No doubt the Council is guided by good intentions but it would seem to have committed itself in too much of a hurry.

The old saw, "more haste, less speed," inevitably comes to mind as one witnesses the repeated postponements of the charter amendment election. Some time ago it was decided to hold the election on February 2, then the date was changed to February 23, and now the Council has fixed on March 8.

It is apparent that the Public Service Commission, on which the Council leans in connection with this whole power business, has not properly digested the subject and is suffering pains and distress which becloud their brains and lead to blunder after blunder.

The whole city suffers through the errors of the commission and the county is inconvenienced. The county agreed to hold the flood control bond election on the same day as the city first decided to submit its power charter amendment. Now, after money has been spent advertising the city election, the Council comes to the conclusion that it will not mix its power problem with any other and so switches the date.

If the city authorities could be induced to take advice they would "go the whole hog"—in other words, postpone the power bond election indefinitely and thus save the people the trouble of voting down the proposition which fails to provide for what the city wants, a municipal monopoly of power.

THE SOCIAL POLITICIAN.

A fine and gracious woman announced herself as a "Social Politician," before the Friday Morning Club women and their guests. And she defined the social politician as one who stood for and worked for human welfare. She declared that woman's chief interest in life should be human welfare, be it developed in the home, in the civic community or in the State.

The speaker, Miss Mary E. McDowell, known to Chicago as the "garbage lady" is a fine example of this new order of politician—a far remove from the self-seeking, partisan or corrupt politician, who has brought this fine word, with its noble meaning, into disrepute in our country. Twenty years ago, when she took up her residence in a social settlement house in the stock yards district, she found that the city garbage was dumped in the vicinity and that the rate of infant mortality in this section was double that of other parts of the city. She began to talk of these facts to the women of the Lake Shore district, to women's clubs and to churches. She awakened people who had never given a thought to the disposal of their garbage after it left their own back door to the fact that garbage disposals was a vital matter, affecting the lives and welfare of many human beings. Through constant and persistent discussion, education of the public and of the city officials, Chicago has now a garbage commission made up of engineers and men of experience, and her garbage is being collected and disposed of in a sanitary way.

Miss McDowell told of some of the work accomplished by Chicago women since the ballot was put into their hands toward the cleaning up of the conditions for which that city is notorious. Among the reforms which they are now demanding is a series of new police stations to take the place of buildings that approach—if they do not rival—the pest pile known as the Los Angeles City Jail.

The social politican who actually puts the good of the public before position or preferment for himself has always existed in our political history; but he has been a rare soul, working too often alone and unrecognized. Today there are many men and women who may be counted under this heading. And to our comfort, the number of intelligent, disinterested, citizens who take an active and effective part in civic and public affairs is steadily increasing, especially among women. More and more the trained women of our colleges and clubs, the women of leisure and culture, are becoming social politicians, looking for and demanding the conditions that shall make for the life, liberty and happiness of all the people all the time.

It is figured out that there is only enough flour in the United States to last until July 1. But then the Eastern crop of wheat will be harvested and the supply will be replenished. So why worry? Besides, if the bread supply is cut off we can eat cake.

Physicians claim that worry is responsible for a lot of ills, and use the fox and the birds as good examples of not worrying. But how is man to attain that simplicity of existence and lack of the sense of responsibility that is the birthright of the fox and the birds?

Some Whispered Conversations."

(Behind the barn.)

There is no doubt that real and genuine negotiations for peace are in progress and have been in progress for some time past. And there is some indication that secret negotiations have been in progress as between the enemies separately. Germany and Russia have certainly spoken of peace between themselves; and the events attending Polish autonomy indicate that Germany and Englad have held a few whispered conversations. The recent Italian conference could stand no other interpretation than that Italy was preparing to make peace separately and had to be choked back into her seat by the Entente.—[Times editorial.

CHILE CON CARNAGE.

BEING THE PARTICULAR PEPPER IN SOME PERSONAL OPINIONS

Of Don yo de Chiltepin.

My old friend "Wild Hank," of New Mexico, was not extremely literate—though for some time a postmaster. But he had sayings which I cherish to this day. A tall, rawboned, ruddy Yankee transplanted to the Southwest in old days, and grown up with it; strong as a bull; true as his steel-blue eyes; honest as they make; peaceful unless you Poked him too hard; with a nose that would make Pompey look like a Hottentot—he had a ready tongue—and of the dryness of his adopted land.

Peace to his ashes! Whichever way he has gone, it will be a livelier place with him there!

"What a Dam Fool a fool is!" he used to say on occasion. I've often thanked thee, Hank, for teaching me that word!

But of course it's always a delicate question which Is It—the seller or the buyer of the Gold Brick. I guess it's the Buyer. Also Both. It's fool to be a Simp—but it's also fool to be a Bunco. The latter "gets away with the goods" at first. But in the last analysis?

I have had my fair smell of taxes in this hamlet for worse than thirty years. Villa feeds his army by "forced loans." Even so, the hold-up gentleman maintains his worthy brood—putting an automatic to your nose, and saying: "Please loan me your watch and your pocket cash. Sorry I can't use your checks for your bank account." So also do our Hi-rammian cohorts at Sacramento.

And we more or less "have to stand for it."

But Black my Eyes if they are going to saddle me with Twelve Millions more for Power Bonds—if the vote of the righteous availeth anything. I've had my share of Scattergood-for-nothing figgers—which beat a bellyful of dried apples plus a drink of water. I've had my share of Municipal Ownership, muddled every two years by a new set of the Mentally Unoccupied that we elect to misrepresent and tax us. A Business has to be run to make money for its stockholders. A municipality is run to make money for those who can help re-elect the officeholder. Our political system is not Business. I wouldn't call it Graft—but it sure is a Privilege! If Business is Bad, all they have to do is to Ask Us. A little more tax, and they save their faces. And we have to pay, or be sold out. And whose fault? Did these tax-eaters Grab their office—or did we vote for them? We Free Americans?

Here are a score of men administering the affairs of a million—and no recourse. Yet we pity the Despotisms of Europe!

I guess I believe in Representative Government. We are trying it out, anyhow. But I'd choose to have it really Representative!

Twelve Million is several dollars. I could spend it wisely. I would "salt down" a little of it; but I would buy one thousand automobubbles, each with a case-hardened chauffeur; and I would present one thousand of our politicians with a car apiece, and the chauffeurs with a politician apiece—and instructions to head East and never stop, nor lose the politician.

"Taps" for Buffalo Bill! And with him for pretty much the last of the Old Frontier and its Old Guard. He has died, but he never surrendered.

I think the present generation hardly understood him. It saw only the spectacular; and did not realize that Cody was something more than a showman for money—that he was a Historian with the "magic lantern." He had the dramatic instinct; he liked to make money—but he never faked. He was always "Buffalo Bill" since the lean, bronzed old Army of the Plains gave him that title of honor.

When I first met him, more than forty years ago, I know of no man in America, even yet, who could have afforded to stand up beside him on a platform. His thick hair of pure gold hung to his shoulder-blades. It was like Custer's—only less ringlety; and perhaps thicker. And under the deep bronze of the Plains was the ruddy glow that women envied. And if you were to see today a man that walked "that way"—all the street would be bumping one another as they turned to look at him.

When we last met, his hair was as the Montana snows. But it was the same Buffalo Bill—the same face, barbered the same; the same eagle eye and steady hand and genial heart.

It isn't everywhere known that Buffalo Bill was essentially religious—though all who know anything of him at all know that he was conscientious in a very high degree. He was no Puritan—but he was stanch as one to what he believed.

It has been given to relatively few men to awaken the imagination of American youth as Cody did. Undoubtedly some soft-boiled Tenderfoot boys took a notion to kill Indians and "tail" buffalo without earning the privilege as he did. But that was the fault of the heroic, romantic era of which he was the last great type; and not the fault of Cody.

With his passing, the day of the American Frontier is done. He outlived it, but kept it alive for us. It was a Heroic Age, and he was one of its real heroes. He was a great showman, later—but a greater Man all the time.

RASPUTIN, THE MONK.

[CONTRIBUTED TO THE TIMES.]

BY SVETOZAR TONJOROFF,
Author of "Russia's Struggle for an Outlet," "The War of the Nations," etc.

AN INCREDIBLE reign has just ended at Petrograd. It was the reign of a monk. A simple peasant was Grigori Rasputin when he first appeared in the Russian capital a half score years ago. He came from Eastern Russia—the Russia that merges into Asia and shares its mysticism. This monk trod a path of victory to power. How great this power was over the lives of 180,000,000 people will never be known.

It is known, however, that Grigori Rasputin—"Saint Grigori" they called him toward the last—sent explicit orders to ministers, and these orders were obeyed. It is known that his levees in the palace once occupied by Grand Duke Alexis were attended by the nobility of Russia—by high-born ladies of the palace, by generals in glittering uniforms, by all the high and the mighty of the empire. The poorest also came with prayers and petitions, which were granted with the initialed order of Rasputin to heads of government.

It is also said that this saint who came from Asia exercised a mysterious power over the conscience of the Czar; that the Czarina bowed her imperial head to his decrees; that rulers were elevated to the skies or humbled to the dust at his word.

And the strange story of this monk who brought the darkness of the Middle Ages with him is not based upon hearsay. Since 1912 the representatives of the Russian people have been struggling to free Russia from the grasp of this Richelieu who could barely read and write.

Again and again has the Duma denounced the "dark forces" which dominated the palace. Yet so powerful was this exalted peasant from Tomsk that he could defy the unanimous vote of the Duma demanding his elimination from the life of Russia. So strongly was he entrenched in the seat of the mighty that he could issue a decree commanding the Russian press to cease its clamor—and he could enforce his command.

There is no parallel to the twilight rule of this monk except in the Middle Ages or in the "Forbidden City" of Peking. In the Forbidden City, the walled stronghold of the Manchus, a concubine in our time rose to be empress dowager of 400,000,000 yellow persons. Her rule was absolute. The shadowy figure of the nominally-reigning emperor was blotted out by the empress dowager's actual power. Tzu-Hsi, with her enamelled face and her gorgeous finery, uttered the words that meant life or death to courtiers, governors and viceroys.

What went on behind the walls of the Forbidden City none knew. One or two European women were admitted to that domain of slaves and eunuchs. What they reported was exceedingly interesting. It afforded a glimpse into a world which the Europeans believed to have passed forever with the advent of gunpowder, and the railroad and the telegraph. But the machinery that moved that government by women and by slaves remained a mystery. The power that controlled the lives of 400,000,000 people remained a shadow.

The story of Rasputin is more amazing than the story of the dowager empress, Tzu-Hsi. The holy man from Tomsk dominated, not a scheduled oriental harem surrounded by high walls of brick and tradition, but one of the most brilliant courts of Europe—the Europe of today, the Europe that is dealing with tragic facts. The empire that Rasputin swayed with his strange pretensions to a divine mission and divine powers is one of the deciding factors of a decisive period in the history of civilization. The anachronism might well be regarded as incredible.

And yet this man undoubtedly played, or tried to play, a master's part in the affairs, not only of Russia, but of Europe. All Russia believes that eight years ago Rasputin, by his mysterious powers, prevented the outbreak of war between Russia and Austria-Hungary at the moment when the Bosnia-Herzegovina question stirred the fires of international hatred and suspicion to a fresh blaze.

In the present crisis, amid the solemn surroundings of the Russian Parliament, Rasputin has been accused of seeking to sell his country to the enemy by trying to bring about a separate peace on humiliating terms between Russia and the Central Powers. The crime that brought an end to his mystic overlordship of the imperial mind and conscience has been greeted in the Duma and by the Russian press as an act of national deliverance.

RIPPLING RHYMES.

PESSIMISM.

"You're buying trouble when you buy a car," the old man said, his gloomy face ajar. "I'd rather walk, as walked my patient sires, than stand in mud and fuss with busted tires. Whene'er you travel in your four-wheeled boat, all things conspire to bear away your goat. Your engine balks, your brakes refuse to hold, your cooling system will not keep things cold. You find new grief no matter where you roam; you must hire mules to haul your tumbril home." "Oh, sage," I said, "what is there on this earth that won't bring grief, however great its worth? You drive a horse, when you would journey hence, and now and then it kicks you through a fence. You have a wife, whom doubtless you adore, but now and then she makes your spirit sore. You like good grub, but when you eat too much, your crippled stomach clamors for a crutch. Why cut out honey, if we like it, friend, because the bee is loaded at one end? Go to, old man! Though all the dotards dote, he is a chump who does not own a boat."

POWER DATE IS CHANGED AGAIN

Charter Election's Now Set for March Eighth.

May Vote on the Bonds with the Same Ballots.

Monkey-wrench Thrown in the No-tax-levy Promise.

Another quick change was performed yesterday with regard to the power bonds when a new date, March, 8, was set for the election on the proposed charter amendment. It was suggested that the vote on the $12,000,000 bonds be taken the same day. The Council took no formal action on this point.

The Council decided there will be at least two special elections, one in February and one in March. The 21 per cent. alcohol initiative ordinance must be voted on before February 25 and the city expects to submit it, and the question of the annexation of Owensmouth at the same time that the county election on flood control bonds is held.

Former City Auditor W. C. Mushet disarranged the programme of the Public Service Commission when he asked the Council to consider carefully its legality and also whether the city will have the ability to carry it out.

The policy of the commission, indorsed by the Council in Committee of the Whole, was that there should be no tax levy to provide for the interest and sinking funds on all the power bonds. As the Council yesterday was about to pass a resolution approving of the Public Service Board's plan Mr. Mushet interposed his objections and the resolution was held up till tomorrow for an opinion from the City Attorney.

"Is the proposed action legal?" asked Mr. Mushet, "and has the city the ability to carry out the programme under competition, seeing that it only proposes to secure 65 per cent. of the electric business?"

With regard to the first point, he read article 11, section 1, of the constitution of the State of California, as follows:

"No county, city, town, township, board of education or school district shall incur any indebtedness or liability in any manner or for any purpose exceeding in any year the income and revenue provided for such year, without the assent of two-thirds of the qualified electors thereof, voting at an election to be held for that purpose, nor unless before or at the time of incurring such indebtedness provision shall have been made for the collection of an annual tax sufficient to pay the interest on such indebtedness as it falls due, and also provision to constitute a sinking fund for the payment of the principal thereof on or before maturity, which shall not exceed forty years from the date of contracting the same."

Mr. Mushet stated that the constitution was the supreme law of the State and that the provision in the charter was consequently ultra vires. He asked that as this matter was of such serious import it be referred to the City Attorney for a written opinion, which was done.

With regard to the second matter, Mr. Mushet asked that a committe be appointed to ascertain whether the city had the ability to carry out its programme under competition. He stated that he very seriously questioned the city's ability to do what it proposed, even if it was acting constitutionally.

Prof. W. F. Durand spoke at the City Club yesterday in favor of the proposed bond issue.

BIG EATERS GET KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts at First Sign of Bladder Irritation or Backache.

The American men and women must guard constantly against Kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and a general decline in health.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead; your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night; if you suffer with sick headache or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys; to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water beverage, and belongs in every home, because nobody can make a mistake by having a good kidney flushing any time.

MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT NOT SUCCESS IN SEATTL

If THE experience which Seattle has had with its electric lighting plant, may be considered a test of the value or efficiency of municipal ownership, then it can hardly be said to be true of city-owned utilities that their operation is attended with financial success.

After eleven years' operation of its own electricity plant, the city of Seattle only supplies about 48 per cent. of the consumer's business. Chief Engineer Ross, in charge of this work, is now contemplating condemnation proceedings against the other lighting companies, so their plants may be taken over and the municipality have an unobstructed field. Competition in Seattle has made more than half the individual consumers prefer the service of private corporations.

Since the city owned its lighting plant, the bonded indebtedness been increased almost $4,00 Every two or three years it been necessary to put in new tal to run the enterprise and six loans were voted by the at a total of $4,950,000, the cipality is still unable to equal terms with its compe

Secretary Little of the Lo geles Property Owners' Leag prepared a table of the statistics of the Washington gether with such available which show the net profits of operation, and in a state clares "no business man w sider his enterprise a succe books showed the figures the cipally-owned Seattle electric plant has on its books."

These claims, Mr. Little fute the assertion of Engineer in a letter to Los Angeles which declares "Seattle has 'huge success' handling its problems."

POWER COMPANY READY TO "SHOW" THE CITY.

Declares Other "Juice" Producers, Including Municipality, are in Same Position as Itself, Having "Projects" that Must be Developed.

The following statement was issued yesterday by the Sespe Light and Power Company:

We are pleased to note from this morning's Times that the Mayor has expressed a willingness to see the officials of our company, and to go thoroughly into the proposition we have to offer. As soon as his letter is received, we will promptly arrange for the meeting suggested. We will, if desired, present to the Mayor a comprehensive engineering report on our project, which goes fully into the technical points involved.

The Mayor is quoted as laying considerable emphasis upon the fact that we have only a "project." In that respect our company is in substantially the same position as the other power companies, and even the city itself, so far as the sale of any power not now actually in use is concerned.

The other companies are using all the power they are now producing in both their steam and hydro-electric plants, and any future purchases of power by the city must necessarily be from the pr of plants not yet constructed ownership of power sites as exists will not permit of the companies delivering to the any other consumer, an add quantity of power as great which can be developed plants of this company on th pe and in other localities which this company is Power from these latter be developed and delivered Angeles for materially less the power from any future ment under the control of er companies.

ALL STEAM RAILROAD LINES IN CALIFORNIA TO BE ELECTRIFIED.

New Era of Power Dawning in the West Means Tremendous Revolution in Transportation, Say Authorities.

Los Angeles to San Francisco First?

DISCUSSION of the proposed payment by the city of the sum of $1,145,000 as "severance" damages to the Pacific Light and Power Corporation and the Southern California Edison Company, in case the city should take over their distributing systems located within the municipal boundaries, has brought out some interesting facts regarding electrical development in Southern California, and, incidentally, the greater fact that undoubtedly the time is approaching when practically all of the railroads of California—and probably most of those west of the Rocky Mountains—will be electrified—that is, steam will be replaced by electricity as the motive power.

The question has frequently been asked as to where the two power concerns mentioned above would turn to dispose of their surplus power, were the city to take over their local distributing systems. This question was propounded yesterday to Assistant General Manager R. H. Ballard. His reply was enlightening.

"There won't be any surplus power," said Mr. Ballard. "We'll find almost immediate use for it in the further development of our systems in other places.

"We have held back the development of these systems, because of the demands for power right here, but if the city should take over the local distributing systems, we would go ahead with the outside development as rapidly as possible."

TO SAN FRANCISCO?

During the past few days, as a coincident matter, the subject of electrifying the railroads of California has been one of discussion among railroad men. The Pacific Electric and other electric railway systems of California have from time to time taken over portions of the Southern Pacific system where it was found to advantage to have them operated electrically instead of by steam motive power. There has been a persistent rumor during the past week that some big things are planned ahead on the electrizing of more railroad mileage, and one report has it that this project deals with the electrifying of at least one of the Southern Pacific's lines to San Francisco. Railroad officials here deny any definite knowledge of such an immediate plan, but the general plan of changing from steam to electrical motive power is discussed with interest by them.

"The change is bound to come," said one railroad man high in authority, but who does not care to have his name used. "It is only a matter of time when practically all of the railroads west of the Rocky Mountains will use electrical motive power.

MEANS BIG SAVING.

"A few years ago the railroads were enabled to contract for fuel oil at 45 cents the barrel. Now they have to pay $1.15, and no one knows where the price will reach. This is one big item for consideration.

"Then the many advantages accruing to electric service as compared with steam service make it especially attractive, particularly for mountainous country. At present, in addition to the enormous weight of the modern engine, it has to carry great weight in oil and water. The Southern Pacific runs engines right through from Los Angeles to San Francisco, with only one stop for oil, and that simply as a safeguard, and it runs engines from Indio to Tucson. The item of the weight of oil that must thus be carried is considerable. Elimination of this oil and water weight would give opportunity for carrying more freight tonnage or another passenger car—a haul where there would be direct profits.

"Then there is the time-saving factor. The electrified railroad trains would not have to lose time at water stations or oil supply points. The time schedules could be shortened, and the greater comfort of the passengers would be an item of consideration. Smoke and gas would be eliminated.

"There is ample opportunity to produce electrical energy in California alone to provide for not only the railroad mileage of this State, but for much outside territory. There are power sites scattered all over the territory west of the Rocky Mountains, and enough power runs to waste every day, aside from any that is now developed, to handle the entire railroad situation.

"The wonder to me is that capital on a large scale has not grasped this great opportunity. It is bound to come. Just as logically as was the change from the old wood-burning engines to the use of coal and then oil, will come the change to electrical motive power. The vast amount of fuel now used by the railroads for motive power will be devoted to other uses. This is an economic proposition that is sure to work out."

George C. Ward, vice-president of the Pacific Light and Power Corporation, in discussing the general subject yesterday said.

"Within fourteen months' time we could develop sufficient electrical power to operate all of the railroads in California. There is an abundance of power opportunity in this State, simply awaiting development."

In discussing the same subject, R. H. Ballard of the Edison company pointed out that the project of electrifying the north and south railroad lines extending through the State could be accomplished without any excessively long transmission lines. He showed how the power projects in Southern California centralize their transmission lines into Los Angeles, this logically being the base for railroad supply for this end of the State, then the power concerns of the San Joaquin Valley district centralize at Fresno; more northerly plants run their current to San Francisco, and the farthest northern central station would logically be in Redding or vicinity.

Probably the longest transmission line, said Mr. Ballard, would be that from Fresno over to the Coast Line of the Southern Pacific, where the stretch would be not more than 100 miles. As the power concerns are now operating transmission lines of more than 200 miles in length, this would be no obstacle.

Just what is "in the air" in the way of changes from steam to electrical motive power on California railroads has not been made apparent, but possibly the outcome will be the beginning of an extensive movement that will practically revolutionize the present general system. Certain it is that power men and railroad officials as well are evincing a deep interest in the rumors of the past few days and the incidental discussions as to the feasibility of the general use of electric power for railroads.

The Pacific Electric Railway has recently purchased a gas-electric locomotive from the Dan Patch lines in Minneapolis for use on lines where no trolley wire is installed.

The locomotive has been in the shops for the past three weeks undergoing repairs and being repainted, and will probably be ready for service in the next few days.

This locomotive is of all-steel construction, having a house-type cab extending over its entire length. Its weight is 120,000 pounds, and it is equipped with two four-wheel trucks, with two G. E. No. 205 110-horse-power motors mounted on each truck.

The current for the motors is furnished by two direct-current generators, one located in each end of the cab, and each generator is directly connected to a 175-horse-power, water-cooled gas engine. Each generated set is independent of the other, making it possible to operate only one set if desired.

Each engine at full speed develops 175 horse power at 550 r.p.m. The generators at full speed, 550 r.p.m., develop 600 volts and have a capacity of 133 amperes.

The locomotive is equipped with two special controllers, one located in each end of the cab, in addition to a controller handle for controlling the speed of the car motors. A throttle is also installed on controller for controlling the speed of engines.

RAILROAD INCREASES ELECTRICAL MILEAGE

NOW OPERATES THREE UNITS BY MEANS OF "JUICE."

Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul System Announces Establishment of this Modern Service on Another Hundred and Fifteen Miles of its Line.

Local offices of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway yesterday received notice that the third unit of this company's electrified railroad, in Montana and Idaho, has been placed under electric operation, with full modern equipment.

This makes 345 miles of such road operated by this system, and it has 440 miles in all that is equipped with this system of motive power. Operation of this entire mileage only awaits the arrival of the necessary rolling stock equipment, orders for which have been placed.

The notable work of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Company in changing nearly 500 miles of its mountain district lines from steam to electric service has been aptly termed "the dawn of the electrical era in railroading." This line is now electrified from Harlowton, Mont., to Avery, Idaho, the road having been equipped for the operation by "juice."

The first unit of 115 miles to be thus operated was from Three Forks to Deer Lodge. Operation of the second unit of 115 miles soon followed, and now comes the announcement of the putting into electrical service of the third unit, with more to follow as soon as the proper equipment can be had from the shops.

This is a main line route, running through the mighty Rockies and the forested Bitter Root Mountains. The change from steam motive power to electricity has been fully justified from the economic point of view, and in comfort and safety to the traveling public. The electric line furnishes a smokeless, gasless mode of travel, with higher speed and certainty. There is no more trouble with engines on the mountainous grades; the power is constant.

The entire work has required three years and the approximate cost is $12,000,000. This line crosses the continental divide at an altitude of 6322 feet, at Donald. In this construction a 2 per cent. grade had to be surmounted for a distance of more than twenty miles, and on the western slope of the Big Belt Mountains the line climbs 52.8 feet to the mile. With steam operation the negotiation of these grades was extremely difficult.

An official expression of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul in connection with this construction and operation declares: "Already results have been obtained that foreshadow large developments in steam road electrification throughout the world.

"The electric locomotive can be operated for a thousand miles or more with only casual inspection, whereas the steam locomotive on mountain work requires considerable attention at every division point. This has made it possible to operate the electric locomotive over several old steam divisions, and practically eliminate roundhouses and yards at intermediate points.

"The electrification of the 440 miles of main line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway over the great continental divide is a long stride forward in railroading, in electricity and in conservation of resources. To produce enormous power from mountain waterfalls instead of from coal, to transmit this power in the form of electricity over great distances with but small loss in transmission, and to apply it so as to promote more efficient and economical operation, is an achievement of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway which has created a new epoch in railroad transportation and has erected another milestone in the world's progress."

The trend of the times in this line is shown by the record of 1915-1916 in electrifying steam lines in the United States. The mileage exceeded that of the total of such changes from 1907 to the beginning of 1915. In 1915 steam lines were electrified to the extent of 448.2 miles, and in 1916 the mileage thus changed amounted to 388 miles.

WILL ASSEMBLE HERE.

Members of Travel Party Plan Big Reunion.

In the year 1910 a party composed of 755 persons, assembling from many parts of the United States, started out on what was known as Clark's Cleveland Cruise No. 2 Around the World. The voyage across the ocean was made in the steamer Cleveland. Every year since then there have been held reunions of the persons who made the trip around the world. Twice these reunions have been held in Los Angeles, and now the third one is scheduled for this city.

This reunion will take place at a banquet to be held at Christopher's, No. 741 South Broadway, at 6:30 o'clock on the evening of February 5. Reservations can be made through Mrs. W. T. Davies, No. 524 I. N. Van Nuys Building, Main 178, or Home 60566.

As an instance of the manner in which people from all over the United States are attracted to Los Angeles, it is stated that this city is now the place of residence of many of the around-the-world party, while many others are here as tourists or winter sojourners.

TO EASTERN MARKETS.

A. H. Voigt, president of the California Furniture Company, left, via the Santa Fe, last Wednesday, on his regular semi-annual trip to eastern markets. Mr. Voigt will visit Chicago, Grand Rapids, New York and all the important buying centers of the East. He will also attend the convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce at Washington on January 31, February 1 and 2 as one of the representatives of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

Hope Almost Abandoned When She Found Remedy

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin Relieves Chronic Case of Long Standing

After a long period of suffering with liver and bowel trouble that brought on piles, during which she had tried many remedies without obtaining relief, Mrs. Mary J. Jewell, of Berrien Springs, Mich., heard of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin and obtained a bottle from her druggist. This simple, inexpensive laxative compound brought almost immediate relief; and Mrs. Jewell wrote to Dr. Caldwell about her case.

In her letter Mrs. Jewell says, "I had tried so many things for piles without being helped at all, I had about given up hope of ever being any better. I knew it was the condition of my bowels that caused them, and after I had taken a bottle of your Syrup Pepsin I knew it was just the medicine I needed. I am grateful to you for sending me the little book—the advice and instructions it gives would teach anyone how to get well and how to keep well.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin, free from opiate or narcotic drugs, and is mild and gentle in its action, bringing relief in an easy, natural way, without griping, or other pain or discomfort.

Druggists everywhere sell Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin for fifty cents a bottle. To avoid imitations and ineffective substitutes be sure you get Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. See that a facsimile of Dr. Caldwell's signature and his portrait appear on the yellow carton in which the bottle is packed. A trial bottle, free of charge, can be obtained by writing to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 455 Washington St., Monticello, Illinois.

The Model and the Fountain.

Miss Mildred Raymond in flesh and stone.

Miss Raymond was the model for the fountain named for her and which was yesterday filled at the Hotel Raymond, Pasadena.

Touch of Nature.

RAYMOND BIRD FOUNTAIN SYMBOLIC OF CHILDHOOD.

Holding within its soft gray outline, the very spirit of childhood—elusive, yet wholly charming, "The Mildred Raymond Fountain for the Birds," was yesterday filled with water for the first time since placed in position last week in the grounds at the Hotel Raymond, Pasadena.

Modeled after the little girl for whom the fountain is named, the central figure, that of a child holding a flute with which she has evidently been calling the birds to their drinking place, is one of the best pieces of work of this kind which Miss Maude Daggett, the sculptor, has ever done.

The fountain stands in a small park between the hotel and the golf club and can be seen from the hotel veranda amid its attractive settings. The bare feet of the girl are set among nodding flowers which grow between the shallow pools that form the drinking and bathing places for the birds. Close to the feet of the child sits a small squirrel, a friend of the woodland miss, for he has drawn near to hear her music.

The little squirrel is one of the very clever conceptions of the sculptor, for his little pointed nose and bushy tail just touch the child's skirt as it blows back free from the childish limbs. This contact really forms the third support without which the heavy mass of the blowing draperies would spoil the balance of the figure.

It was this clever method of treating this problem of the third support which first attracted the attention of Dr. Robert Tait McKenzie, the well-known sculptor, to the fountain, which he afterwards praised in the most glowing terms.

The plaster cast from which the statute was molded, has a place of honor in Miss Daggett's studio, where last week it was the center of admiration at a tea given by the artist in honor of Miss Raymond. Among those present were Prof. and Mrs. George E. Hale, Mrs. F. L. Loring, Mrs. De Witt Lacey, Miss Adams, Mrs. C. D. Daggett, Miss Ruth Daggett, Miss Holland, Mrs. Walter Raymond, Mrs. Rufus Spaulding and others.

NEVER TELL SECRET TO POLICE CHIEF.

SHE SAYS CHICAGO OFFICIAL LACKS TACT.

Adventuress in Matrimony's Stormy Seas Writes About the Hubby Market and He Tells Her Wants to the Whole World. Now She's Mad.

Miss May Webb of No. 3216 Eagle street, who wrote to Chief of Police Schuettler of Chicago, asking him to assist her in finding a husband, is real mad at that official because he failed to treat her letter with confidence.

"If he couldn't give me any assistance why didn't he write and tell me so without publishing my secret to the world? I have written to other Chiefs of Police about matters of the same kind, but always they gave me advice in a nice personal letter. But not so the Chicago Chief of Police—he had to spill the beans.

"But, of course, I may not be sorry for it after all. You never can tell about these things. All this publicity, while unpleasant now, might bring about an ideal marriage. No, you can't tell what is in store for you from one hour to the next. I have been married twice and divorced twice. Both times I was married, I wished I were single. Now I'm single and wish I was married. You know I want a home of my own. It isn't the happiest life in the world to be living with one's children.

"But far be it from me to be without a chance to marry. I have had plenty of chances. But not just the ones I wanted. I was to have been married Thanksgiving to a rich rancher from up north. He came to me that day, but I backed out, although I have him still on the string. I haven't exactly turned him down and if no better chance comes this way, we may marry, for all I know, unless he hears about all this muss and gets mad. He lives on a ranch and I know what life on a ranch would mean. It don't sound alluring to me.

"I wrote to the chief of police, asking him if there was a matrimonial bureau in Chicago. I told him just how I was situated and that I'd like a husband and a home of my own. Of course, I never once dreamed that he'd give me away like he did and I know my sons are going to be mad as fury. I understand that a man who is seeking a wife through the matrimonial club in Chicago is already interested in me and I posed for a picture for the club today.

"I hope that The Times will send anyone who inquires about me, out to see me at my home, if they should happen to live in or about Los Angeles."

Miss Webb's first husband was R. J. Waterfield. She says he deserted her with several small children. Thirteen years later she married William W. Webb, who, she claims, represented himself to be wealthy. She soon discovered that he had nothing and after living with him six months divorced him.

PASSES TO REST.

Hotel Man Expires After Only Short Illness.

After an illness of only short duration, Robert R. Knowles passed away in this city on Friday. The interment will be in Rosedale Cemetery tomorrow. Funeral services will be held at 2:30 at the chapel of Peck & Chase, No. 1213 South Flower street. He is survived by the widow.

Mr. Knowles was widely known in hotel circles. He was a native of Ohio, being born March 14, 1855, in Xenia, and having had an interesting career there. He was a staunch Republican and was active in many arduous campaigns. For many years he was associated with the hotel business and for a long period was also steward of the Southern Ohio State Hospital.

Because of ill health he removed to Denver and later came to Los Angeles. While here he was connected with the Clark Hotel and was active up to within a short time of his death.

He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, holding his membership in various bodies at Dayton, O., except in the Order of the Mystic Shrine, he having transferred to Al Malaikah Temple of Los Angeles.

G.A.R. Organizer Comments on the Wilson Vote.

Says Democratic North Ought to be Cast Loose.

Blames Underwood Tariff for High Cost of Steaks.

Bristling with sarcasm directed at those who were responsible for the outcome of the recent Presidential election, Maj. Robert Mann Woods of Chicago, one of the organizers of the Grand Army of the Republic, is here with a party of wealthy easterners, to spend the winter in Southern California.

The party, which includes Charles E. Cox, father-in-law of Frank A. Vanderlip, president of the National City Bank of New York, Mrs. Waldo P. Adams, sister of Mrs. Vanderlip, and Mrs. Addie Wellington and Mrs. Young of New York, is at present occupying the Vanderlip cottage on the Palos Verdes ranch, eight miles out of Redondo Beach.

Maj. Woods was the first Adjutant-General of the Grand Army of the Republic. With Dr. Benjamin F. Stephenson, he founded that organization, traveling from State to State for several years and devoting his time to banding together the veterans of the Civil War.

He was an officer in the Sixty-fourth Illinois Infantry, part of the Army of the Tennessee, which was never defeated.

For forty years after the war he engaged in newspaper work in various parts of Illinois. He says he has long since reformed, however.

"One of the principal reasons for my coming to California this year," declared the major, "was to institute a campaign immediately to divide the State and its name."

"The south end, which has remained so solidly Republican, should be called Calif. Ornery should be the name of the northern or Democratic half.

"Another reason for my coming West again this year is because I want to see and talk with the people of California, who have enjoyed such great prosperity under Democratic low tariff on citrus fruits, meats, wool and other necessary commodities. I want to find out if that is the reason they gave Wilson the majority they did.

"California orange and lemon growers should urge their Democratic friends to ask for an entire removal of the tariff on citrus fruits. This would give the West Indies a chance to double their presents lucrative fruit business at the expense of the people of the United States, and increase at least 100 per cent. the number of ships that now cross the sea headed fo rthis country, heavily lade nwith fruits and produce, while like commodities from California rot on the trees and ground.

"Before the Underwood tariff bill was passed a 5-year-old steer could be bought at Buenos Aires for $25. Now you pay $60 for the same animal. Yet people wonder at the high cost of beefsteak."

"The Morning After"

(By Dr. L. W. Bower.)

One of the characteristic headaches due to uric acid in the system, which acts as a poison when it accumulates, is due to alcohol taken the night before. The kidneys do not succeed in throwing off this poisonous accumulation, the stomach is nauseated, or the blood congests in the head, causing throbbing pain, called headache—the heart is depressed, circulation of blood poor to the extremities, the muscles feel tired, or twinges of pain here and there are felt, and when this uric acid is deposited in the tissues or joints it causes rheumatism or gout. I always advise the drinking of hot water, a half pint in the morning, and a little Anuric. Sometimes the "blues," or a sort of rash, or a pimply face, gives warning of an "uric acid storm." At such times always take Anuric (double strength,) which can be obtained at almost any drug store, and which you will find dissolves the uric acid almost as hot water does sugar.

Avoid too much meat, tea and alcohol. Drink an abundance of water, both hot and cold. Take Anuric three times a day until the bad symptoms all subside. This is the best way to avoid rheumatism and many of the pains and aches due to a uric acid condition. If you drink any alcoholic beverage you should keep the kidneys and liver active with Anuric, so as to throw off the poisons which accumulate. If your tongue is coated—a dark brown taste, breath foul, followed sometimes by colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour acid stomach, you should take some vegetable laxative. Such a one is made in sugar-coated form from the May-apple, leaves of aloe, and root of jalap, and commonly sold by almost all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. They are standard and have been in ready-to-use form for nearly fifty years.

Doctor Tells How To Strengthen Eyesight 50 per cent In One Week's Time In Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home.

Philadelphia, Pa. Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weakness? If so you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. Many whose eyes were failing say they have had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful prescription. One man says, after trying it: "I was almost blind, could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the presciption: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow it to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two to four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflamation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

Note: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted, said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them. The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent. in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family."

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer.

After Thirty Years' Experience I Have Produced An Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure, showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable Godsend to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,

Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON.
80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.
Mr. C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.

Yours sincerely,
H. D. BANKS.

The above is C. E. Brooks, inventor of the Appliance, who cured himself and who is now giving others the benefit of his experience. If ruptured, write him today, at Marshall, Mich.

Others Failed But the Appliance Cured

Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—

Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you. Yours respectfully,

WM. PATTERSON,
No. 718 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Child Cured in Four Months

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.
Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.:

Dear Sir:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner, our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months.

Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

WOMEN'S WORK AND WOMEN'S CLUBS.

FOLLOWING hours of heated discussion, no particular action of importance, save the decision to have the annual banquet at $1.50 per plate, was taken at the president's council of Los Angeles district, C.F.W.C., which followed the morning session of the district board in Broadway Auditorium Thursday.

Seven votes were taken on the motion to eliminate Section 2 of Article IV of the constitution, which reads: "No one shall be eligible to the office of president who has not served as a member of either the State or district executive board." At the end of the seventh count Mrs. Lloyd Harmon, president, cast her vote against the proposed change. However, the matter is not settled. It is to come up again next month, and Mrs. Emma Reed will undoubtedly bring in a minority report before the district convention, which convenes the last week in March at Santa Monica with the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club hostess.

Action taken by the council is only considered advisory to the executive board and to individual clubs, but the committee on revision of the by-laws, composed of Mmes. Harry J. Slater, Reed and P. S. McNutt, was seeking the wishes of the federated women.

Many do not want to confine the limitations of good presidential timber just because they have not been on the board, and consider such impediment contrary to federation's democratic trend.

The election laws are going to cause the greatest trouble. It was proven last year that the present provisions were inadequate, when the ballots failed to elect a vice-president. Should the contest occur with president—and the contest seems to be over every office from president down, the coming election—there would be no board to concur, no officers, no——

According to the present standing of the article on election, the second choice vote is counted one-half and the third choice one-third, which, counted against your first choice leaves only one-sixth of a vote for the candidate you really want to elect. But your third choice receives one-third, which you can see at a glance is more than the first choice. Small wonder a correct majority could not be received. Those advocating the measure said that last year's failure to elect was because the clubwomen did not make use of the second and third choice votes, but this seems hardly possible against existing figures.

Another thing the clubwomen are working for, and justly, is to have necessary business attended to early in the session instead of leaving it at the last grand rush for railroading or neglectful consideration, each equally bad in system.

Mrs. Scherfee wanted the Programme Committee to allow ample time for Senator Brown's marketing bill and the Torrance land law.

In Role of Inventor.

Mrs. David T. Forbes, identified prominently in various women's clubs, and one of society's most gracious matrons, is receiving the congratulations from her Los Angeles friends upon the recognition that has come to her recently at the hands of scientific men in her new invention—an electric water controller.

It is a simple-looking instrument, yet it is said to be the only known device that heats the water and at the same time controls a predetermined temperature through an indicator arm that is set at the degree of heat desired. The water does not vary, but stays at any set temperature for any length of time. The electricity, when the water attains the degree of heat wanted, cuts itself out.

This is not the first invention of Mrs. Forbes, for, a few years ago, she perfected the telephone signal and recorder, assisted by F. J. McGowan and Karl Thalhammer.

Woman's City Club.

"Contracts and Women" will be the interest-whetting heading under which Claire Tappaan of the University of Southern California will address the Woman's City Club tomorrow. With the realms of business so largely populated by femininity these days, the subject offers much scope for information and reflection. Luncheon will be served at noon at Blanchard Hall and the programme will begin promptly at 1 p.m.

The Conservation Question.

The Federation of Women's Clubs has taken up the conservation of our national resources in forests, waters, bird life and wild flowers with renewed energy. They have just issued a very interesting pamphlet calling attention to the question, from the department under the chairmanship of Mrs. Foster Elliott, outlining the desirable course of action and the need of public cooperation for the benefit of posterity as well as our own generation.

Friday Morning Club.

The next meeting of the Friday Morning Club will be devoted to the production of a dainty little one-act opera for which Frank L. Patterson has written the music, and the libretto in collaboration with Tyndall Gray. The opera will be given with a full orchestra directed by Mr. Patterson. Many local musicians will be present. The caste will include Edith Norton, soprano; L. A. Stockman and Charles Henri de la Plate.

Congress of Mothers.

The executive board of the First District Californian Congress of Mothers will meet in the Board of Education room at the Hall of Records on Thursday next at 10 a.m. Reports will be heard from officers, presidents and chairman of departments. Mrs. W. A. Galentine, district president, also announces an all-day session in The Times Assembly Rooms for the 23d inst., when child hygiene, recreation and patriotism will be the subjects featured, with able speakers on each question.

Early in the session presidents of the P.-T.A. will discuss their problems, or such of them as they can introduce in a two-minute talk. Box lunches will be in order.

Cosmos Club.

Humorous character sketches from James Whitcomb Riley were given before the Cosmos Club on Wednesday by Frank Caffrey of Universal City, who exhibited a talent for provoking spontaneous laughter. He concluded his programme on a more serious note, with Richard Washburn Child's "The Man in the Shadow," awakening a responsive chord of sympathy.

Music completed the entertainment, to which Louisiana Spalding contributed her talents at the piano, calling forth a rising vote of thanks.

At the meeting on the 24th inst. Dr. A. W. Rider will give an illustrated lecture on Japan. Next Wednesday's meeting will be devoted to the Spanish and Shakespeare sections.

Mrs David T Forbes
Miss Edith Le Grand
Mrs M E Johnson

Some club women of note.

Mrs. M. E. Johnson, president of the Wednesday Morning Club, which was the first of the affiliated organizations to indorse Mrs. W. C. Mushet for president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Johnson is prominently mentioned for the State nominating committee, of which, it is presumed, Mrs. Robert J. Burdette will also be a member. Mrs. David T. Forbes is attracting wide attention as an inventor. In the picture she is shown holding her new electric water controller. Miss Edith LeGrand will read at the entertainment to be given Friday by Wade Hampton Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy.

At Redondo.

The Civic Outlook Club of Redondo met on Friday, when Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes discoursed upon the subject of the preservation of old landmarks.

The babies of the beach city are to come under the consideration of the club in the near future, when doctors from the Mother's Education Committee of Los Angeles will inspect the mighty atoms. This will take place during the last week in January, and the beach mothers are showing themselves very responsive in the movement.

Highland Park Ebell.

Miss Mertice McCrea Buck talked on "Handicraft" before the Highland Park Ebell on Tuesday last. Miss Buck is joint author with Dr. Herbert Hall of the useful book just published, "Handicraft for the Handicapped," which deals with a real problem in a clear, sympathetic manner and is full of valuable suggestions. Miss Buck's talk was in the nature of a report of the work being done along these lines in New York, where basketry and textile work is done by the blind, the lame and even the insane.

At Corona.

Lillian Burkhart Goldsmith gave one of her excellent interpretive programmes before the Corona Woman's Club last week, when her reading of Galsworthy's "The Mob" and Ruth Comfort Mitchell's "The Night Court" met with an enthusiastic reception. Mrs. Goldsmith spoke of the "new sympathy" which is permeating public life with such desirable results—that new sympathy more accurately described perhaps as the awakening of the social conscience.

Business Women.

"The High Cost of Living" exercised the attention of the Business Women's Civic Club at their last meeting, when the speakers were Neal T. Olsen of the Retail Grocers' Association, Mrs. Charles V. Lesis of the Housewives' League, and Charles H. V. Lewis and George Graydon of the United Improvement Federation.

The burden of Mr. Olsen's discourse was the necessity for greater economy and efficiency of the housewife, who should do her own marketing and cooking; the advantages of purchasing cheap for cash and the value of combination buying. He condemned the food speculator as a person who should be as summarily dealt with as highway bandits.

The municipal market was again advocated by the Housewives' League, likewise a municipal abattoir and storage plant, and the use of foodstuffs for fertilizing as recently done in this country was uncompromisingly condemned.

Miss Lloy Galpin will speak at the next meeting tomorrow evening at 7:30 in the lecture hall of the library. "The Historical Background of American Government" will be her theme. The meeting is open to the public.

Rosecrans Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Watts entertained the Rosecrans Club at their home on South Berendo street last Wednesday, the occasion being the monthly card party and social. Music formed part of the diversion, Miss Gladys Hunter giving some pleasing songs.

Next Wednesday the club will meet at the new Y.W.C.A. quarters for the regular meeting, when Mrs. J. A. Mathews will make an address, and Mrs. Eva Chilton will give a piano solo.

Owensmouth.

The Woman's Club of Owensmouth met at the home of Mrs. Helen Mitchell for its last regular meeting. Mrs. W. A. Galentine of Redondo was the guest of honor and her reading of Zona Gale's "Mothers of Men" proved interesting and impressive.

The music and drama section met with Mrs. W. E. Beckleheimer on Wednesday, she being chairman of that department. "Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works" was given by the members, and a highly interesting guest was Mr. Lockhart of the Canadian engineering corps, who has just returned from "Somewhere in France." Having been through the battle of Ypres he had much thrilling news and vivid description to give.

At the Jonathan Club.

Queen Alexandra Chapter of the I.O.F.B.E. has organized a brilliant ball for the benefit of the local Red Cross activities, to take place at the Jonathan Club on the 19th inst. The Reception Committee will be composed of Mrs. T. Becker, Mrs. E. R. Brainerd, Mrs. A. M. Chaffey, Mrs. St. Clair Creighton, Mrs. Christopher Gordon, Mrs. Richard Kitchhoffer, Mrs. John S. Vallely, Mrs. A. E. Webb, Mrs. Harcourt Wilson and Miss Jessie McNab.

In connection with this Red Cross work it is interesting to learn that the nurse equipped and sent from Los Angeles to the front, Miss M. Colquhoun McCan, has returned to San Francisco, where she is recuperating in the St. Luke's Hospital, after her strenuous and nerve-racking experience. Her letter to Mrs. Gordon, of the above chapter, is replete with intimate details of the war zone and the unimaginable horrors prevailing there. Coming out on the steamer, Miss McCan met with numerous naval and military officers who made a direct appeal to her on behalf of the Royal Naval Aerial Corps, who, they assured her, were the most neglected of heroic sufferers. Their needs are many and imperative, for which reason the local chapters will make a special effort on their behalf in response to Miss McCan's appeal.

Travel Club.

After a preliminary business meeting at the session on Friday, the Travel Club heard Dr. John R. Haynes on the "Charter Amendment," and his advocacy of municipal ownership generally. Miss Lois Candee whistled, responding to hearty encores. Mrs. L. J. Stabler gave a reminiscent talk on "The Missions of California." She enhanced the charm of the subject with her personality and poetic point of view.

University Book Club.

Miss Everett, chairman of the Music Committee of the Book Club, will entertain the members next Friday afternoon at her home, No. 694 South New Hampshire street. Numerous musical friends will assist Miss Everett in providing a delightful programme.

Audubon Society.

The Audubon Society will have an indoor meeting on Thursday in the auditorium of the State Building at Exposition Park. Mrs. Charles Wiley, chairman of the department of conservation of the federation, will give an illustrated lecture on "Forests."

Cherry Blossom Players.

Clarence B. McGehee spoke before the South Pasadena Shakespeare Club at their last meeting, telling of his unusual and interesting activities with his trained company of Japanese players, which he recently brought from Japan, that we might see Japanese dramatic art in its national manner. He told of the theaters and companies maintained by the nobility of Japan for the performance of sacred and classical dramas. So tragic are the majority of the Japanese dramas that a "tear-room" is provided for the relief of pent-up emotions of the patrons. That the technique of the Japanese stage is based upon the puppet idea, which accounts for the apparently rather automatic gesture they evince, and that plays often last ten and twelve hours, threw interesting enlightenment on the Japanese idea. Mr. McGehee's details of the custom of the Japanese theatrical profession, their odd presentation of Ibsen drama, for instance, in which a Japanese kimono, American shoes and a derby hat was the accepted appropriate costume of one actor, were entertaining to a degree. But that some Japanese actresses have the fire and genius of a Bernhardt in the presentation of tragic scenes, was also his opinion.

Glendale Club.

The Tuesday Afternoon Club of Glendale held their regular meeting at Masonic Hall last week, when Miss Ruth Millen of Long Beach, the harpist, gave a versatile performance in which she sang and played her picturesque instrument. Her talk during the programme of the history and romance of the harp was charming.

Riverside.

The art department of the Riverside Woman's Club presented an attractive programme last Tuesday, under the direction of Mrs. C. P. Hayt. Mrs. T. S. B. Rose told of the life and art of Sir Joshua Reynolds, J. L. Bishop following with an account of his most noted works. Mrs. John Meharg gave an illustrated talk on Gainsborough, which is a new departure in art programmes.

Caledonians.

The woman's auxiliary of the Caledonian Club held its last meeting at the Y.W.C.A. on Friday. The programme was a musical one, in which Mrs. R. Lea, Miss Edith Tait and Miss Margaret Tait participated. New officers have been elected for the current year as follows: President, Mrs. John Stewart; vice-president, Mrs. W. H. Neal; recording secretary, Mrs. L. V. McCrae; assistant secretary, Mrs. A. Smellie; financial secretary, Miss A. Anderson; treasurer, Mrs. James B. Petrie.

Relief Corps.

The Bartlett-Logan Women's Relief Corps will meet on Thursday at 1 p.m. in Patriotic Hall, Eighteen and Figueroa streets. The newly-installed officers will be guests of honor.

Hollywood.

The Hollywood Women's Club enjoyed another programme by Lillian Burkhardt Goldsmith on Wednesday, prior to her professional trip East, upon which she leaves tomorrow. Indian tales and myths of our own land formed the main subject for her theme, and these were followed by German folk-lore stories, dating as far back as the twelfth century. But it was her reading of Galsworthy's "The Mob" which stirred her audience to its greatest enthusiasm, with its virile protest against war.

Wednesday will be reciprocity day at the Hollywood Club, when visitors from many other clubs will be entertained. The Gade trio will give a musical programme, in which May Orcutt Brooke, pianiste, Frederick Grover, violinist, and Paul Witmer, 'cellolst, will take part.

The music section enjoyed a unique programme of Charles Wakefield Cadman's five Indian themes on Tuesday, when the programme included "Before the Sunrise," "Nuwana's Love Song," "The Night Song," "The Dance" and "The passing of Nuwana."

Clarence B. McGehee talked before the drama section on Thursday, telling his interesting tales of the Japanese drama.

Next Tuesday the civic section will hear Mrs. M. H. Pehr and Dr. Julia Youngman Johnson on the results of the recent survey.

South Side Ebell.

The South Side Ebell entertained the husbands with a banquet on the evening of the 9th inst. Mrs. L. P. McLaughlin was the hostess, assisted by a committee and numerous amiable daughters who officiated as maids de luxe.

Rev. W. F. Ireland, responding to a toast of "Forward, 1917," advocated self-confidence and its kindred virtues. Prof. Knowles of the U.S.C. talked on American patriotism and its unique qualities as compared with the nationalism of other countries, since all nationalities come to these shores. He enlivened his talk with many merry little stories. Col. R. W. Richardson spoke on the hazardous subject of the philosophy of woman, paying many discreet compliments. The husbands were duly toasted, and a musical programme added to the entertainment.

Having watched them grow from little sparsely-inhabited pueblos into thriving towns, he had much to tell that was fascinating and interesting, which no printed history will contain.

Gymnastics.

The Y.W.C.A. will hold its mid-winter gymnastic demonstration next Friday evening. It will include many interesting exhibitions of gymnastic, folk and asthetic work, and the athletic games taught.

The cast includes Beatrice Phillips, Martin Kinney, Mary McQuaid, Frank Haskell and Robert Rolson. Miss Florence Dunaway will give readings and Miss Araminta V. Schoch will give an exhibition of musical Indian club exercises. The evening will conclude with dancing.

Patriotic Societies.

Lee and Stonewall Jackson, the two generals whose anniversaries fall upon the 19th and 21st of this month, on Friday in the Broadway Auditorium, when their sister chapters and the Confederate veterans will be their guests. Rev. G. B. Russell will give an address and a varied programme will be given.

The El Camino Real chapter of the D.A.R. met last Thursday with Mrs. George Kuther of West Forty-fifth street, when the immigration question was discussed. Articles were read on "Flag Legislation." Miss Alice Fuller and Miss Annie Bartlett were chosen alternate delegates to the State convention, which meets in San Francisco in February. This chapter will entertain children of the D.A.R. next Saturday at the public library in Hollywood.

At Ebell.

Jay Plowe, with his organization of wind instruments, will give the programme at the Ebell Club tomorrow.

Aside from the Monday session, reported during the week at length, the music department held an interesting programme with Charles Wakefield Cadman playing delightfully from the "Thunder Bird Suite," illustrating his themes, on Wednesday. Tschaikowsy's Symphony No. 4 was also reviewed by the lecturer.

The department of art and travel met Thursday morning. Mrs. A. B. Cooke, curator, had planned a morning of "The Art and Artists of the Renaissance. Mrs. John Stearms Thayer gave a comprehensive review of Charles H. Caffin's "Art for Life's Sake." Mrs. Gertrude R. Nash, former president of the Iowa State Federation, told of the exhibit in Minneapolis of paintings in the First Methodist Church of that city, the only permanent exhibit of paintings in a Protestant church, and the Traveling Library in Iowa, which has many rare prints. Mrs. Mary Mendenhall Perkins showed views of the Pope's palaces and the masterpieces which they contributed to Italy through Michaelangelod an Raphael and others. The meeting then adjourned to the tearooms where luncheon was served. Hovstett Pushman, the Armenian artist, was the guest of honor.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, for it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

OBJECT TO WASTE.

United Improvement Federation is Dissatisfied with a Proposed Expenditure Declaring the County is Far in Excess of the Budget.

Declaring that the county for this year is more than $1,000,000 in excess of the budget, the United Improvement Federation by President Charles H. V. Lewis and Secretary George W. Gaydon, in a communication to the Board of Supervisors yesterday, demand that "this wasted expenditure be not authorized," referring to the proposed expenditure of $33,825 for a patent removable roof arrangement operated by forty-eight two and one-half horse power motors designed for the building of the tuberculosis ward at the County Hospital.

The communication states the Federation is in sympathy with the attempt of the Supervisors to relieve tuberculosis patients, but that it is far from satisfied with the additional part of the contract, bids for which will be opened by the board tomorrow, calling, besides the cost of the buildings, $155,692, for the additional expense of $39,825. It was suggested that a pulley arrangement could be used and $40,000 saved, as if spent it will be "wasted money." The Federation suggests that the construction advisory engineer, J. Strange Case.

FREE POISON SUSPECT.

Insufficient Evidence Causes the Authorities to Release Sawtelle G.A.R. Veteran who was Involved in Molasses Investigation.

A squad of thirty G.A.R. veterans besieged police headquarters yesterday, seeking information and gossip about the mysterious poison molasses investigation that resulted Friday night in the arrest of Charles D. Dewey. The case hinged about the delivery of a gallon of molasses to E. L. Bliss, another veteran, in which sixty grains of strychnine were found.

After a careful investigation yesterday Detectives Blue and Williams decided the evidence was insufficient to hold Mr. Dewey, and released him. Their theory is that someone placed the poison in the molasses for the purpose of killing rats, and then promptly forgot all about it. Mr. Bliss denied that he had placed the poison there himself for the purpose of getting Mr. Dewey into trouble. The two veterans lived together in Sawtelle, and frequently quarrelled.

APPROVE THE BOND ISSUE CAMPAIGN.

FLOOD CONTROL ASSOCIATION ANNOUNCES POLICY.

Report Adopted by the Board of Supervisors Coincides with Organization's Desires in Effort to Obtain Relief Provided for in the Meaure.

The Los Angeles Flood Control Association at a meeting of various county and city organizations formed to obtain the relief provided in the bond issue February 2, held in Judge York's courtroom yesterday morning, adopted a resolution offered by J. H. Baker of Glendale, approving the report adopted by the Board of Supervisors.

The proposed bond issue for $4,450,000, the resolution stated, provides harbor protection, conservation and flood control efficiently and at a reasonable cost; for a system of check dams in the mountains and reservoirs, storing and conserving flood waters for useful and beneficial purposes, preventing the devastation of low lands and filling the Los Angeles and Long Beach harbors with silt. It will add $25,000,000 to the assessed valuation of Los Angeles city and county property, reducing taxation; prevent the tying up of business in Los Angeles city by destruction of bridges, the estimated damage alone in February, 1914, being $2,500,000. Seventy-five per cent. of the bond money will be used in giving immediate employment to labor. It will promote citrus growth and agricultural development, prevent an average yearly damage by floods nearly equal to the proposed bond issue, and solve the problem of conservation and control of flood and storm water by distributing the cost over forty years at a low rate of interest.

Chairman John J. Hamilton announced, as there was no dissent, that the resolution will stand as the policy of the Los Angeles County Flood Control Association. The motion of A. W. Frye of Downey that the chair appoint a committee of 100 to campaign for the bond election was carried with one dissenting voice. This was M. G. Sutton of Van Nuys, who thought this committee might interfere with the campaign work in charge of Motley H. Flint. Others stated that they had received word from Mr. Flint that such a committee would be agreeable to him.

Cora Morgan of Long Beach stated that Long Beach is divided on the east and west channels. She said that she is in accord with the plans to control the flood waters, but intimated that trouble might ensue if the channel approved by the Board of Supervisors overflowed and flooded property at Long Beach. Two of the five commissioners, she stated, favor the east channel.

What Is Behind Tire Quality?

GOOD YEAR AKRON Service Station

"Sheffield" on steel—"Sterling" on silver—"Goodyear" on rubber—hall-marks of quality every one.

Value as definite and unchangeable as the coin you spend.

Service as certain as sunrise.

Character of this sort in a product is no accident. It finds its source in conscious purpose, its expression in conspicuous ability.

The quality of Goodyear Tires, the value they represent, the service you can depend on them to give, hark back directly to these two essentials—to Goodyear purpose, and to Goodyear ability.

Quality—value—service—aren't these the sum of your desire in a motor car tire?

You will find them, in profitable and satisfying measure, in every Goodyear Tire.

Whether you measure tire virtue in miles, months, or money.

Whether you buy Goodyear Fabric Tires, or Goodyear Cords.

FORM-FITTING FORMS ARE LATEST FOR MILADY.

Miss Mary Lambert,

Making certain her next suit will fit by having a plaster-of-paris model made of herself. Wayne T. Sachs is wielding the trowel.

No longer will Milady have to undergo the terrors of being fitted by dressmakers, for an invention by Wayne T. Sachs of this city has eliminated the necessity of the ordeal. Hereafter, if you are a member of the fairer sex, you will go to the dressmaker, deliver a dummy of yourself, made by Mr. Sachs, choose your cloth and pattern and walk out. No fitting will be necessary, for the dressmaker will have a dress form, which is a perfect reproduction of yourself, down to the minutest lines, on which to fit the dress or suit.

For three years Mr. Sachs has been making most of the papier-mache forms used by the local department stores. A year ago he began to consider the manner in which a form could be made for each woman, and so enable her to escape the strain of having dresses fitted. As a result he has produced a form which is an exact cast of the lines of the patron.

The form is made in less than one hour. A tight jersey is first fitted to the body of the patron, then a slight wash of plaster of Paris is painted on the form, after which a half-inch coat of plaster of Paris is put on. Before the plaster has dried the form is cut into two sections by means of a ribbon, which is placed on each side of the model from the shoulders to the bottom of the form. When the plaster has dried the two sections are fitted with a papier-mache cast, which conforms accurately to the body lines of the model.

OFFERS OF OIL COMPANIES MAY BE REJECTED.

Mayor Returns Them to Council Because no Definite Price is Given at Which Gasoline, Benzine and Engine Distillate will be Supplied.

Having received an opinion from City Attorney Stephens that the bids submitted by the Standard, Union and Western Oil companies to supply the city with gasoline, kerosene, benzine and engine distillate are invalid Mayor Woodman yesterday returned them to the City Council with the suggestion that new bids be called for.

The companies offered to supply the gasoline and other oil products at 1 cent less than the market price at the time and place of delivery. In the opinion of the City Attorney this virtually amounts to no bid and should be rejected.

FOR BITULITHIC. NEW SPECIFICATIONS.

New specifications for bitulithic pavement are to be presented to the Council this week by the Board of Public Works for adoption. This was announced yesterday when the board recommended that the Council adopt a resolution submitted by the City Engineer permitting the reduction in percentage of bitulithic cement in the Harbor-boulevard improvement from 7 per cent. to 6 per cent.

Members of the board explained that the higher specification has been used in colder climates, but it is a little bit too rich for this warm country, making the pavement apt to roll with heavy traffic. "We want to give them the best we can in the harbor district because there will be a great deal of traffic on that boulevard," said Commissioner O'Brien.

President Handley said the new specification has been worked out by the City Engineer and an engineer for the bitulithic company and that the change has behind it the guarantee of the company.

THE FIFTH ONE. ANOTHER INSPECTOR GOES.

J. H. Smith, an inspector in the construction department of the City Engineer's office, resigned yesterday, making the fifth man who has taken this action within the past ten days. It is expected that several other resignations will be forthcoming before the end of the month.

PLAINTIFF WINS IN AN OIL-LAND SUIT.

RETRIAL GOES AGAINST BIG SESPE COMPANY.

Original Hearing was Before Judge Cole of Imperial County, and on Appeal Supreme Court Sends it Back for Retrial—Judgment Amount not Yet Stated.

The retrial of the $59,850 damage suit of H. C. Hullinger against the Big Sespe Oil Company before Judge Taft yesterday resulted in the court's giving judgment in his favor, but reserving the amount until findings have been prepared. This action grew out of a charge of fraud in selling a lease of 160 acres of oil land, the lease calling for proven land in which the Big Sespe had a fee simple title and upon which there was a proven well with a capacity of fifty barrels of oil a day, the well being rigged and in first-class condition. The lease called for the payment of $15,000 and a one-eighth royalty.

Mr. Hullinger complained that the Big Sespe did not have a fee simple title; that, in fact, it did not have any title, and that it was government land; that there was no well upon the lease and no rig. The Big Sespe contended that it did not intend to say it had a fee simple title in the land; that Mr. Hullinger was not disturbed by anybody, and if he had developed the land as he proposed to do, he would eventually have a fee simple-title.

The case was originally tried by Judge Cole of Imperial Valley, who gave judgment in favor of Mr. Hullinger for $5200. On appeal it was sent back by the Supreme Court for a new trial.

SEEK REPAYMENT. STATE SOCIETIES' TROUBLES.

The forty-three members of the Federation of State Societies, who signed a $10,000 note, the proceeds of which were to be used in constructing a State building, and who were sued on the note and judgment given against them, filed suit yesterday to recover the proportion of the note they alleged they paid to satisfy the mortgage. During the first action it was set up by the defendants that originally the note was to be signed by 100 members. The plaintiffs include Newton J. Skinner, A. E. Kallmayer and forty-three others. The defendants are W. E. McVay, C. H. arsons, Frank H. True and forty others.

IN AND OUT ABOUT THE COURTHOUSE.

ANOTHER BARRETT SUIT. Acting on the presumption that Mrs. Irene L. Barrett is alive, although her husband, Benton L. Barrett is in the County Jail charged with her murder, a suit was filed in the County Clerk's office by Julia A. Norton yesterday to foreclose a mortgage for $1500 against property Mrs. Barrett owned in the Gardena district. The defendants named are Mrs. Barrett and various Does. Publication will be resorted to in order to serve notice on Mrs. Barret. If there is no response, judgment will probably be taken in default.

SUIT BY INCHES. A dispute over who owned two inches of frontage on Hill street, between Eighth and Ninth street, resulted in D. F. Hill's bringing a quiet title suit against Caroline Schumacher, which was tried and decided by Judge Taft yesterday. The evidence showed that in the '80s somebody built a line fence. Mrs. Schumacher claimed she bought sixty feet and Mr. Hill bought sixty feet, the fence being the boundary line, and that Mr. Hill's claim of two inches was an infringement. The court gave judgment for Mrs. Schumacher.

This Frees Your Skin From Hair or Fuzz

(Toilet Tips)

The method here suggested for the removal of superfluous hair is quick and certain and unless the growth is extremely stubborn, a single application does the work. Make a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water; apply this to the hairy surface and after about 2 minutes rub it off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. To avoid disappointment, be sure your druggist sells you delatone.

TOO MUCH WAR FOR TRAVELER.

Bullets and Gas Bomb Spoil His Pleasure.

California Home Looks Good to Hotel Man.

Relates Adventures in Egypt and Europe.

If you were a resident of Los Angeles and had decided to tour the world, and, as you made the tour, had become a victim of international warfare, had been shot twice in the right arm, and once above the right eye, and later had been the victim of a gas bomb, would you be glad to return home to enjoy the prospect of a future given over to long life and the average measure of happiness? If this were your condition, your circumstance would equal those of Garey Warshaw, former hotel man of this city, who has just returned from a five year's world tour.

In July, 1912, Mr. Warshaw, accompanied by Mrs. Warshaw, left Los Angeles on a tour of the world. The journey went nicely, until, in 1914 they arrived at Cairo, Egypt. Then things began to happen. Mr. Warshaw is a hotel man of experience. He secured a contract from the British government to furnish the necessary foodstuffs for the messes of the officers of the Third, Fourth and Fifth battalions of the Australian infantry forces, in camp in Egypt.

SHADES OF NAPOLEON.

The camp maintained at this time by the British forces was said to be upon the exact spot occupied by Napoleon during his expedition. During the first month, according to Mr. Warshaw, more than 900 Australians were returned from the camp near the Pyramids to their island home suffering from typhus, typhoid fever, and pneumonia. Many soldiers died.

Following the camp at the Pyramids, Mr. Warshaw accompanied the three battalions to the Dardanelles. There, as he was stepping out of the boat on to the beach, he was shot, the bullet striking just above his right eye. He was taken back to Egypt and treated, later returning to the camp made by the British forces on Turkish ground. After the landing during which Mr. Warshaw was wounded, the remaining men of the Fifth Brigade, Seventeenth Battalion, numbered but three sergeants and 260 men, owing to the devastating fire from the Turkish shore batteries.

SEES LORD KITCHENER.

While with the forces during the attempt of the Allies to win through to Constantinople, the Angeleno saw Lord Kitchener, when the latter visited the troops.

In October of that year Mr. Warshaw became the manager of the coffee houses of Tel-el-Kebir, for the Australian infantry forces. Some months later the coffee houses were burned to the ground. In this fire Mr. Warshaw lost all of his clothing, his papers, including passports, certificate of naturalization in the United States and much other personal property. Following this he decided that his bad luck had reached a limit for he had also been shot twice in the right arm, between the elbow and the wrist.

TO THE SOMME.

When his wounds were about healed Lord Kitchener's order to send the Australian forces, then in Egypt, to the Somme was received and Mr. Warshaw accompanied the three brigades. The units with which he was aligned were stationed some two miles to the west of Verdun. Trouble again looked upon Mr. Warshaw and he was promptly incapacitated because of the over-friendliness of a German gas bomb. He was taken to a London hospital, and when he recovered sufficiently he managed to have his contracts taken over by another party, and in September of 1916 he left for this country on board the S.S. Finland.

While in London, recovering from the poison gas, Mr. Warshaw saw the first Zeppelin to be brought down by the new defenses of the English capital.

Mr. Warshaw was formerly manager of the Haffen House, the Templeton apartments and the Lillie Hotel, prior to leaving here on his tour. He has opened a general agency in the Grant Building.

A Word to the Public
From the Management of the Mason Opera House

This is the most important theatrical announcement we have ever made during our long managerial career in this city.

We have just contracted with Messrs. Wm. Elliott, F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest to bring their magnificent production of "Experience," the most wonderful play in America, to Los Angeles for one week, commencing Monday night, January 29. There will be the usual matinee Saturday and a bargain matinee Wednesday afternoon.

"Experience" is without doubt the greatest success of this day and generation. It ran for nine months in New York, five months in Boston, seven months in Chicago, and five months in Philadelphia. In every community where "Experience" is presented it always receives the enthusiastic endorsement of the clergy of all creeds and denominations.

"Experience" is a modern morality comedy drama by Geo. V. Hobart, telling in ten vivid and powerful scenes the temptations confronting Youth—the average young man—going forth into the world to seek Fame and Fortune.

"Experience" is properly called "The Most Wonderful Play in America." We know of our own knowledge that this play has been a sensation elsewhere. We are sure it will arouse enormous interest here. It is the biggest show we have booked in ten years. We don't believe another one as big will come along in the next ten years. We are proud and happy to be able to bring "Experience" to the theatergoers of this city and are especially glad to announce that the famous New York-Boston "Experience" organization, with a cast of 82 notable players, comes here direct from nine months in New York and five months in Boston, and is considered by the critics the greatest "Experience" company ever assembled. We want to call your attention to the scale of prices for this success: The prices at night will be 50c to $2.00; at the Saturday matinee, 50c to $1.50, while for the bargain matinee Wednesday, best seats will be only $1.00.

Remember "Experience" is not a moving picture, but the emphatic success of the spoken drama of this generation.

(Signed) THE MANAGEMENT OF THE MASON OPERA HOUSE.

REELISM MUST BE REAL.

NEW PICTURE FEATURES STIR DUST OF CENTURIES.

By Grace Kingsley.

It took David Griffith to discover that "the ancients didn't behave like ancients," and now we have the Lasky Company presenting Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman."

"Give us this day our picture feature!" is beginning to be the prayer of the film fans. A fickle public is no longer satisfied with the jitney joys and sorrows of the Celluloid Sarah Bernhardts, the Film Fanny Davenports, the Nickelodeon, Nell Gwynns. They must have the great artists of the world reduced to terms of the flickering photographs, served up in some fascinating story confection. And they must have realism, spelled with a capital R.

Truly, as for realism, it's quite impossible to hide anything from these experts. They detect in a moment whether a lady of the Louis Quinze period is wearing the right sort of hats or not, and you can't fool them by coiffing your Roman ladies with the wrong sort of hairdos, while they know their Roman togas as well as their Arrow collars. Wherefore those diligent diggers in the twilight of antiquity, the art directors and librarians of the motion-picture studios, have their work cut out for them.

Did Cleopatra have a mole on her shell-like ear? It is correctly recorded in the deathless celluloid. What sort of hemlock was it Socrates ordered up as a last fatal potation? The tireless trekker of truth connected with the motion-picture studio will tell you.

All of which leads up quite naturally and gracefully you will agree to the Lasky production of "Joan the Woman" about which the Rialto is all agog in anticipation at this moment.

"Joan the Woman."

Cecil de Mille, one of a small group of men who are considered the world's greatest motion-picture directors, was the moving spirit behind this latest and biggest triumph of the Lasky Company. Mr. De Mille brought to its accomplishment the traditions and labor of a whole lifetime connection with the stage, as well as the genius inherited from his father, the late Henry C. de Mille, the noted dramatist and partner of David Belasco, and his mother, Beatrice C. de Mille, the well-known playwright and dramatic authority. So that not in a few months did Mr. De Mille make "Joan of Arc," but he may be said to have brought to it a life of preparation.

Cecil's first knowledge of the stage was acquired playing child's parts in his father's company. As he grew older he took a greater interest in the drama, and at the age of 18 he and his brother, William, wrote their first play under the direction of their mother. This was followed by several years more on the stage for Cecil, after which he wrote "The Royal Mounted" and a number of other successes including "The Return of Peter Grimm" for David Warfield. After this experience, he spent several years as producing manager.

When the motion picture business started, the De Milles, wrapped up in the traditions and atmosphere of the theater, at first but a glance at this new amusement, but later they looked again and became interested. A little over three years ago, in discussing motion pictures with friends Cecil de Mille remarked that the plays for the screen lacked construction and technique, and that he felt if they were written with the same care as were plays for the stage, they would be ever popular with the public. Fifteen minutes after he made this remark, the new famous Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company was in the process of organization.

Three years ago Christmas, Cecil B. de Mille came to California to start his first production, with practically no knowledge of photodramatic technique. The first picture was a success, however.

Mr. De Mille has worked quietly, unobtrusively, constantly, with no fan-fare to trumpets. And when his first picture, introducing Geraldine Farrar to the world as a genius of the screen as well as of the stage—"Carmen"—appeared, it was included by the best authorities among the five greatest films ever produced.

Mr. De Mille had discovered in Miss Farrar not only a great actress, but a woman of inexhaustible vitality, a marvelous scale of emotions, a rare intelligence. Her face, too, could sincerely express both thought and emotion. The war coming on and Mr. De Mille being of French descent, the thought of Joan of Arc naturally came to him and he visualized Geraldine Farrar as the woman best suited to play the marvelous role. In his work of preparing the scenario, he chose as his assistant, Miss Jeanie MacPherson, to whom he frequently refers as his "right hand."

The question of making a popular appeal with the historical character was the problem. A straight historical pageant was out of the question. One day Miss MacPherson, had an inspiration—why not show Joan of Arc as the woman, with all a woman's sensibilities, longings and aspirations? Then began the literary search for data dealing with the personal life of the French martyr. These were much scantier than most people imagine.

Finally, when Miss MacPherson was almost in despair, a friend with whom she had been talking in regard to the matter—a learned friend, who kept posted on archeological discoveries—sent her an article describing some illuminated manuscripts which had been discovered in a deserted French monastery.

Joy and light! Miss MacPherson could hardly wait for the necessary red tape to be gone through with in order to secure translations. However, these were finally received at the Lasky studio, and they proved to be exactly what Miss MacPherson had been searching for. It was found that Joan the Woman loved her own fireside, her own pet bird and dog, that she was capable of a tender and powerful love for a man—that, in short, she was a radiant human woman, with joys and sorrows like another woman's.

With this as a foundation, Miss MacPherson started preparation for the story. In the meantime Miss Farrar had been advised of the idea. Fortunately, while the noted opera star was in France preparing for her career, she had been an ardent student of the famous French heroine, and had traveled over and visited many of the places where Joan had been. This knowledge proved invaluable during the taking of the picture.

"Joan the Woman" has a chance to be filed among the great photodramas of the ages, for into it its producer has put all his knowledge, his thought, his genius.

Ince Feature.

The Thomas H. Ince Company at Culver City has for its central production at this time a huge historical spectacle involving that very fascinating personality, John Paul Jones. Raymond West is directing, and the picture promises to be one of the most unusual and beautiful from many standpoints the Ince company has ever produced. Arthur Maude and Bessie Barriscale are playing the leading roles in the feature.

Settings of much beauty and photography par excellence are features of the spectacle.

Has Learned the Business.

George Bronson Howard, who has finished his year's engagement with the Universal, during which period he has produced a number of pictures, has left that organization, and there are negotiations under way between himself and Thomas H. Ince, the outcome of which may be that he will produce pictures for that company. He will give up directing and confine his attention to writing scenarios and generally overseeing productions, according to plans now in view.

Miss Glaum With Ince.

Louise Glaum recently signed a two years' contract with the Ince company.

Little Enid Departs.

Enid Markey, former Ince star, has left that organization. She has a number of offers, but as yet has not identified herself with any company.

What's the Use?

The astuteness of these press agents is just superhuman, that's all. Take W. E. Keefe, for instance, D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" expert. A group of people at the Fine Arts studio were discussing the personality of Joan of Arc. Naturally Mary O'Connor, being a good Catholic, as her name implies, was of the impression that Joan was a fragile, ethereal little being with blue veins in her forehead and a general stained-glass effect in make-up.

"How could she wear that heavy armor?" inquired Chet Withey, who is from Missouri.

"Huh! That's easy!" exclaimed Keefe. "She just had a double come in and do those scenes where she had to ride a horse and wear armor!"

Back to the Cooper-Hewitts.

Edna Goodrich has abandoned her vaudeville engagement, and has signed up with the Mutual Film Corporation. She will appear in a number of big features in the near future.

Shrinking Violet Note.

Mary MacLaren is one of the fastest drivers among the automobile fiends of Universal City, and on more than one occasion she races to and from the studio. One of the most recent to accept a challenge for a race from the young star was Clarke Irvine, editor of the Screamer, the popular weekly publication devoted to the interests of the player folk. Miss MacLaren and the editorial gentlemen were leaving Universal City at the same time when "Daredevil Mary," as they are now calling her, said: "Bet I can beat you to Hollywood!"

"Mine's a fast car, too," replied Irvine. "I'm on!"

Miss MacLaren's car is built like a racer, and goes like one, and it was not long before the Screamer's chief gave up the ghost. As he wiped the per-sweat from his brow the noble youth was heard to murmur, being careful that the motion-

HUMOR'S MAJOR SPORT.

PLENTY LAUGHS TO BE HAD AT THEATERS THIS WEEK.

This is to be "go-to-laugh" week at the local theaters. In the first place, there is to be a brand-new play at the Mason called "Fair and Warmer," which is said to be as rich in comical situations as "Twin Beds." Appearing in the leading role will be Henry Stockbridge, formerly a Los Angeles stock actor, surrounded by a splendid cast.

The vaudeville houses offer a specially good line of mirthful numbers, interspersed with good songs, dances and some new stunts in piano work.

A serious note will be added by the continuation of "Everyman," which is to play this week at the Burbank. The success of the big Ordynski production has been phenomenal.

Mason.

Considered by Manager Wyatt to be the pick of his season's bookings, Selwyn and company's presentation of "Fair and Warmer," by Avery Hopwood, comes to the Mason Operahouse tomorrow night. This will be the first time that this delightfully ridiculous farce will have been presented in Los Angeles. The play ran two successive seasons in New York.

The author of "Fair and Warmer" also is responsible for "Seven Days," "Nobody's Widow" and "Sadie Love," the latter play having been given its premier production in this city.

"Fair and Warmer," which bids fair to rival "Twin Beds," seen at the Mason last year, deals with a lively woman who is married to a meek and altogether too humble husband. The story also has to do with another married woman whose spouse is quite too gay for her "clinging-vine" nature. How the mismated couples are reconciled is the lively business of the plot to unfold.

Henry Stockbridge, formerly a Los Angeles stock favorite, is to be seen in the leading role, supported by Miss Lotus Robb, Betty Ross Clarke, Raymond Walburn, Betty Blye, Arthur Larson, Ezra Walck and Joseph Bingham.

Burbank.

The surpassing success which greeted the presentation of the morality play, "Everyman," in the modern Von Hofmannstahl-Sterling version, last week at Trinity, has induced the management to continue the performances of the play this week at the Burbank Theater. The change of location is due to other bookings at the auditorium.

The "Everyman" production, staged under the direction of Richard Ordynski, ably seconded by Aline Barnsdall of the Little Theater, is ranked as one of the most beautiful in local theatrical history. Persons who do not make the theater their regular pastime have been drawn to "Everyman" by the reports of the quality of the performances.

The new version of the play is exceedingly colorful, and there is a fine blending of effort in the work of the interpreting cast that has brought out all the strong appeal of the moving drama.

Orpheum.

Seven new acts at the Orpheum next week, beginning with the Monday matinee. 'Nough said. The only hold-over is to be the Bankoff-Girlie-Harrison dancing act, which is well worth seeing twice. Competing for the position of headliner are Eddie Leonard and company and Homer B. Mason and Marguerite Kellar. The former will be supported by his own organization of singers in a delightful rendition of old-time songs, while the latter clever players will appear in a lively comedy entitled "Married."

Another featured name on the bill is that of Anna Chandler, who, in "The Debutante," offers a series of comic songs and a display of exquisite gowns. Mabel Russel, as Eddie Leonard's wife is called, appears in an act of her own, "Call it What You Like," and is supported by Marty Ward and other clever people. Fink's Trained Mules also will be among those present to contradict the popular assumption that all mules are stubborn and dull of comprehension.

Rena Parker is a singing comedienne with a wardrobe of saucy gowns and saucier songs, while Marlo and Duffy are gymnasts of skill who clothe their superb work in a dress of fun and frolic.

The engagements of Ray Samuels, "The Blue Streak;" the Water Lilies and the Misses Lightner close with tonight's show.

Pantages.

"The London Singing Bell Ringers," a group of young men whose melody on the silver-toned bells may be classed as real music, is the novelty headliner for the coming week

Our Talent.

HOMER GRUNN, COMPOSER.

Another Los Angeles Musician who has Achieved Distinction, and His Latest Plans—A Dreamer of Aboriginal Dreams.

BY JEANNE REDMAN.

WHEN Paderewski went to see Rubinstein, with a little packet of his own compositions under his arm, Rubinstein said to him: "You will have great success as a composer, but you never will learn to play the piano."

Predictions, even by the great, are worth nothing. Whether Paderewski grimly determined to show Rubinstein that in spite of the master's dictum he could learn to play, and because of this spirit of defiance became one of the world"s greatest pianists, is uncertain, but it is undoubtedly true that it was his piano playing that made it possible for him to become known as a composer.

When Homer Grunn came to Los Angeles in 1910 he was almost entirely unknown to us, but he had an opportunity to play in public soon after his arrival, and that one appearance settled it; for it was not long before he was giving forty lessons a week. That one concert placed him as a pianist of the first rank and a teacher worthy of emulation. Through his capacity as virtuoso it has become possible for him to launch out as composer. Had he been dependent upon his compositions for his livelihood, and had to wait for their acceptance before he should become known, posterity alone would have benefited by them, for they are not of the sort that obtain instant recognition by the crowd.

Homer Grunn,

The Los Angeles composer, who has come to the front.

Homer Grunn was born in Wisconsin, of New England stock on his mother's side, and on his father's, Norwegian and German. His father was a native of Norway, and although he was a merchant in the Middle West for many years, he always retained a love for music which developed when he was a boy, and he counted as the proudest of his life that hour when he carried Ole Bull's violin to the concert hall in Norway. Homer Grunn was brought up in a small village in Minnesota, and when he was 16 he went to Chicago for four years' study of piano with Emil Liebling, and there, too, he began his studies of theory with Adolf Brune. He wrote, there, his first song, "My Hope," which was published at once, but a serious career of composing was not what the young man intended; he was to be a traveling virtuoso, and he devoted six hours a day to the piano alone. He made his debut in Kimball Hall, Chicago, in 1900, and there followed concert tours in the Middle West which were proud interruptions to the round of teaching that continued for two years, until it had brought in sufficiently substantial results to take the young pianist to Berlin.

Berlin naturally looks askance at American pianists; but Homer Grunn played in Beethoven Hall with great success, and it was Liszt, too—The Ballade founded upon Byron's "Prisoner of Chillon." I believe. Grunn felt the leaning toward Liszt which all the young feel, the desire to display technique in a perfectly legitimate manner, and Mr. Grunn's technique is of the first quality.

When Grunn returned to Chicago it was to teach in the Chicago Musical College, which he did for four years, giving concerts in the meantime; but he felt that he was caught in the maelstrom of academy life, and the loss to the individual is considerable, although he was associated with Rudolf Ganz, Hugo Hermann, Von Fielitz, and other who lent him the encouragement of sympathy and competition. In 1907 Grunn came west to Arizona, where he took charge of the piano department in the Arizona School of Music, in Phoenix. He spent three years in Arizona and it was there that his first serious desire to compose came to him.

There is, in the coloring of the West, and the vastness of it, inspiration for artists which exists nowhere else unless it is the shore of the Mediterranean, and that is the region which gave Greece and Rome their artists. There is something of the same vivid blue in our sky, the same vigor of form in our mountains and the spirit of space in the sea—and some day all this will tell in our art. There is, in Arizona, an arid strength in the hills, and a force which comes from the broad, brown plains, that must have given the Indian some of his spirit of peace and patience.

Out in the open, away from the hurry and stress of cities, Homer Grunn composed his Indian Suite, which has been published in exquisite form with appropriate verses and reproductions of those paintings of Warren Rollins which, Mr. Grunn tells me, were partly responsible for the music. There, too, the "Song of the Mesa" was written; the Indian Dance and the lovely Indian Love Song. Mr. Grunn is a poet of the piano, and his music has the quality of tenderness which is his most salient characteristic as a virtuoso.

A man has two sides, "one to show the world, and one to show a woman, when he loves her." But a musician has another side which shows only in his music. I do not mean that Mr. Grunn has a fine sentiment only in his art, but that as a man he is scarcely the dreamer of beautiful dreams that he appears to be at the piano. He is a man's man, and the healthy sort of a personality, well-balanced and just—and that is not, as a rule, characteristic of an artist. There is nothing of the long-hair about him, nor of the poseur, although he has a love and a respect for his art and his profession which many a man of more fads and fetich has not. In fact, Mr. Grunn has so great a belief in the importance of art that he cannot bring himself to make capital of its trappings. He does put his talents to a very practical use; he teaches, and he composes some drawing-room and concert pieces which are done for a purpose, and a legitimate one: that of obtaining a hearing in a wider circle than the one his subtler things would bring him.

I have said that Grunn is a poet; but he is a virile writer, and his strength is the hardy strength of the North. It is strange that he should take delight in the French school, unless it is that its opportunities for a brilliant show of technique appeal to him, as in the old days Liszt appealed. But he feels a kinship with Grieg, and the others of the Scandinavian school, and he plays them with a singular realism and a feeling for their truth.

Homer Grunn lives in an atmosphere of success; the most inspiring atmosphere on earth. There are many platitudes about success, and, like all platitudes, they should be borne in mind. There is nothing like it, and where it does not exist, it should be simulated and assumed; it is so contagious that one catches it almost from the proximity of pretending and believing in it. If Grunn has not got it, his counterfeit is almost as good as the original, and as helpful and life-giving to his associates. What a wonder-world it would be if everybody were either successful, or pretending to be!

There is no need for pretense here, however. Homer Grunn, besides his numerous duties as teacher and his composing, is, and has been for five seasons, pianist of the Brahms Quintette, an organization of sincere and scholarly musicians, who yearly add to the musical status of Los Angeles.

Mr. Grunn's most recent composition is the outcome of a visit to the Zuni settlement in New Mexico. He has taken for a theme the legend from Zuni mythology about "Payatami," the god of music. The title is "In Flute Garden," and the music is impressionistic, presenting an image to the mind of the fountain-garden from whence comes the sound of the flute. The garden is guarded by a rainbow, and when we follow the sound of the flute we discover a fountain with Payatumi playing, and maidens sitting about grinding medicine.

As Mr. Grunn played it to me, with the Indian melody idealized (as he idealizes all the themes of the Indian Suites,) it was a satisfying picture in pastels, with the rhythmic episode in the left hand, holding the imagination with just that touch of earth, of clay, which the Indian melodies require. This is one of a new suite of five numbers, which are yet in manuscript.

Maine is the only State in the Union which can boast of having three native-born sons knighted by English kings. They are Sir William Phipps of Woolwich, once royal Governor of Massachusetts, who was knighted in 1694; Sir William Pepperell of Kittery, who captured Louisburg for the British, and Sir Hiram Maxim.

at Pantages. Then come the Six Betting Bettys with more melody, in a sparkling little musical comedy with the thread of a plot running through their pearl chain of song, enlivened by the fun provided by Percy Chapman and Johnny Morris, who are said to be masters of eccentric dancing. Olive Briscoe, a singing comedienne, is far from a minor attraction, and Smith and Kaufman promise to wring a smile from the grouchiest of the grouchy. Last, but not least, come Sigsbee's dogs, said to be one of the most wonderfully trained troupes of canines in modern vaudeville.

Chapter eleven of Helen Holmes's film serial, "The Lass of the Lumberlands," will complete the excellent bill.

Hippodrome.

On the programme which opens at the Hippodrome tomorrow are two big headliners which promise to be a whole show in themselves. The first is the great Bonomar Arab Troupe, offering a sensational acrobatic and gun-spinning feature as only the sons of the desert can do, and the second big act is Olga and Her Leopards, who will appear together in a big steel arena. Olga is a Los Angeles girl, popularly known as "The Lady of the Leopards" in the "Kathlyn" pictures.

Other good numbers on the programme include Little Jerry, a singing and dancing comedian; the Hughes Sisters and Leyden, who dispense melody with harp, voice and violin; the clever entertainers, Bennington and Scott, and Ziska and company in a baffling mystery stunt.

Another excellent number is "An Evening at the Club," presented by the Three Chums, whose jokes, songs and instrumental work are brimful of laughable foolishness.

Morosco.

Some astonishingly funny situations are promised in "A Widow by Proxy," a farce comedy by Katherine Chisholm Cushing, which is to open at the Morosco Theater this afternoon. It is expected to duplicate the success made by "Potash and Perlmutter," which closed a three-weeks' run last night at the popular local show shop.

"A Widow by Proxy" was one of the greatest successes of May Irwin, who played in it several seasons in the East.

The story of the play tells of two music teachers who are unable to pay their bills. Gloria is a bachelor maid and Dolores' husband was reported to have met with death in Alaska a year before the play starts. The two teachers are on the border of bankruptcy when a letter from the attorney announces that there is a settlement to be made of the late husband's estate. They find it necessary to visit the Puritanical maiden aunt of the husband and Dolores refuses to go until Gloria conceives the idea of posing as the widow herself, while Dolores accompanies her as the girl friend. The action of the play from this point proceeds rapidly, with a number of surprising incidents.

The production will be an excellent one in every detail under the personal direction of Fred J. Butler. It is of particular interest to know that Ruth Robinson, leading woman at the Morosco, who will play the role of Gloria Gray, made one of her greatest successes in the East in this production. Lola May will appear as Dolores. In the cast will be Richard Dix, Douglas MacLean, Joseph Eggenton, James Corrigan, Lillian Elliott nd mny others.

STAGE NOT SERIOUS ENOUGH.

So Avery Hopwood Starts Writing Novel for Change.

Avery Hopwood, author of "Fair and Warmer," which will be the attraction at the Mason this week, is writing a serious novel. Hopwood said in interview lately:

"I have two reasons for writing a serious novel. The first and possibly the only considerable one is that the stage is no place for serious literature, and every man has to be serious at least once in a lifetime. Secondly, of course, is the fact that if one must write a novel he has his best chance in that form to be taken—seriously.

"The theater is ideal for emotions, inadequate for thought. Problems are not soluble in emotions. Of course, you have your fanfare of trumpets, you swing your curtain down on what looks like a remade world. It doesn't stay put. Three weeks from next Tuesday the weighty discussions of the theater are vanished, and only the problems are left. If, however, you have written a comedy, you have at least accomplished what you started out for—you have entertained your public.

"Novels can be read in Henry Arthur Jones's cool hours. They can engender thought and direct it. Out of that comes solutions."

HIGH DIVE NOT IN IT.

Daredevil Larkin Does Thrilling Aerial Stunt.

How would you like to take George Larkin's place for just one week?

Larkin is the daredevil who is doing all those thrilling leaps for life in Kalem's series of newspaper adventures, "Grant, Police Reporter." Last week, Larkin's director, Robert Ellis, told him to prepare his will as they were going out to take the greatest thrill of them all. They got it, too.

Larkin climbed hand over hand out of a third-story window until he could grasp the cross-arm of a wireless outfit. Cutting himself loose, he described a gigantic half circle downward through the air, finally landing among the branches of a tree 300 feet away, on a level with the window from which he had started.

This stunt will be shown in the episode entitled "The Trail of Graft."

Potatoes or Such.

WANTS MEAL TICKET.

Appeal Made to Theda Bara First Asks for Million Dollars but Requests Finally Simmer Down to Only Vegetables.

The mail bag of a prominent screen actress is generally full of laughs, surprises and pathos. Theda Bara, the eminent William Fox screen star, who appears in the latest photodrama, "The Darling of Paris," is no exception to the general rule. Her daily mail brings forth requests that, if she would comply with one-half of them, would mean the spending of her entire salary, and perhaps put her in debt for the rest of her life.

From the hundreds of letters she receives, the following will give an idea of what Miss Bara is expected to do for some of her screen admirers. This man is regularly sending Miss Bara letters, asking for money. The first letter she received from him requested the small sum of $1,000,000. Getting no answer, he sent numerous other letters cutting down the amount, until in this final letter, he asks for potatoes and eggs, which, in his estimation now are as good as money. Following is the communication:

"BELPRE, O.

"Dear Madam: Once more I will appeal to you for help. This time I ask you to use the power of your magic idol to get me valuable original literature, such as songs, stories, novels, plays and photoplays, which I can readily sell for big money. Won't you please do this for me? Surely you will help me out. If you cannot get me these things, then get me diamonds, or other precious stones, or else clothing of all kinds for a young man, or foodstuffs, such as beans and potatoes and eggs and all kinds of groceries and produce. Surely you can do something for me. Get me something which I can readily convert into money. Please help me at once. Yours truly,

[Signed] "OWEN TURNER."

TAMES WILD BIRDS.

Two Weeks' Coaxing and Pigeons Eat from Actress's Hand.

In the filming of a big Universal feature, Mignon Anderson, who plays one of the leads with Ben Wilson, was required by the scenario to put her hand through a broken pane of glass and feed pigeons.

Wild pigeons were obtained, and at first they would have nothing whatsoever to do with the dainty little actress. Eventually a plaster-of-Paris arm was used, the hand of which held the grain of corn for the birds. Finally this was laid aside and Miss Anderson used her own hand. After two weeks of coaxing the birds decided to eat from her hand and thus the picture was obtained.

Furnish the Living Room for Comfort
THE furnishing of the living room for maximum comfort and enjoyment calls for more than the selection of furniture that is merely comfortable and attractive. It calls for the creation of an environment that is subtle in its influence, for the world is coming to recognize more and more every day, that comfort and enjoyment are dependent upon mental attitude as well as upon physical condition.
It is particularly essential, therefore, that in the furnishing of the living room, the counsel and co-operation of qualified artists be sought, and even if your requirements be just some individual piece of furniture, it is all-important that you select that one piece with an eye to its appropriateness and fitness for the room in which it is to be used.
The California Furniture Company shows undoubtedly the most important selections in living room furniture in Los Angeles—the finest productions this country affords in the rich antique mahogany and in the popular old English oak. There is not a living-room furniture requirement, from modest bungalow to palatial residence, that cannot be satisfactorily and economically supplied here.
Here you have at your service the assistance and co-operation of men of wide and specialized experience in home furnishings. The dominating thought in every transaction of the "California" is to contribute to the ultimate and supreme satisfaction of the purchaser.
We want you to feel free to avail yourself of the many suggestions for the correct furnishing of the living room which our stocks constantly afford.

OF ART AND ARTISTS.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

Pompeii.

The silence there was what most haunted me.
Long, speechless streets whose stepping-stones invite Feet which shall never come; to left and right
Gay colonnades and courts—beyond the glee,
Heartless, of that forgetful pagan sea;
On roofless homes and waiting streets, the light
Lies with a pathos sorrowfuller than night.
Fancy forbids this doom of Life with Death
Wedded, and with her wand restores the Life.
The jostling throngs swarm, animate, beneath
The open shops, and all the tropic strife
Of voices, Roman, Greek, Barbarian, mix. The wreath
Indolent hangs on fair Vesuvius's crest;
And over all the town and sea, sweet rest.
—[Thomas Gold Appleton.

From Canyon to Arroyo.

It has been my lot—fortunate or unfortunate, to write every week for the past dozen years on amtters of art, and especially on art in Southern California. My task has not always been an easy one, for I have striven hard to be just, but it has been lightened by the belief that the optimistic point of view was wiser than the pessimistic, and that this faith in ultimate good was always being strengthened by events.

No one may look into the future, but he may cherish high hopes for it by intimate knowledge of the past and by close observation of the present. One of my correspondents, a well-known painter, recently wrote me that he had been looking over the old files of Art and Artists, and that he was much impressed with the "vision" shown in my "postulates." This is all very well, and I thank him—but I maintain that my artistic opinions were based on proofs.

We offered ample proof, in every exhibition of pictures held in Los Angeles, that a number of our painters can really paint, and since they paint well today, in all probability they will paint better tomorrow—if they are energetic and ambitious. Energy and ambition may fail, and often do, but not in the young. Art is still delightfully adolescent in Southern California, with its maturity far enough away to leave us unafraid. If we lean too lazily in the direction of the conventional and academic, we may count upon some new and "modern" art society to spring up to pull us back to a safe and healthy balance.

Which brings my preamble to a close, and straight to the subject of this brief article—Louis Hovey Sharp and his recent landscapes and shore marines, a score of which are now being exhibited in the Kanst gallery, to remain there to the end of January. Sharp has a studio in Pasadena, a studio somewhat too small for ease in figure-painting. Driven out of doors, he has taken to the painting of landscape. I am glad of it, for he lives within stone's throw of one of the loveliest spots in Southern California, the Arroyo Seco. Moreover, he paints landscape better than he paints the figure, and he is improving at it to a remarkable degree.

He does not, of course, plant his white umbrella every day in the Arroyo Seco. Sometimes he makes sketching trips to the Grand Canyon, sometimes to Laguna Beach. The pictures in the present exhibition are from all three places, to the tune of an almost equal division. Of his three general subjects, I think I prefer the seascapes, though Sharp did not paint marines at all till very recently. But evidently the sea has "got him," as it gets so many men and women who never knew its grandeurs until, "like stout Cortez," they "stared at the Pacific."

I like the marines because they are broad, simple, felt and executed in a big way. It takes the sea to clarify a man's vision. The sea has also helped Sharp toward a tremendous forward stride in technique. It washed the wool from his brush, so to speak, and it told him not to tickle his canvas. There is even less nonsense about the sea than there is about a hill or a tree. Every sailor, every swimmer, knows that, and every painter who has gone down to the sea has learned it.

Among the five subjects from Laguna's shore, "The Quiet Sea" is the broadest and simplest in handling, and being equal to the others in closeness of observation, is therefore the strongest picture. Its delicate effect of light gives subtle tonal quality, and a frequent mood of the Pacific is faithfully rendered. In "Rock Bound," a long stretch of saffron foam beats in among brown rocks that have both weight and volume. The sky shows clouds that are almost as formless as banks of mist. In "The Coast Guard" we have a pile of jutting rocks, ochre in sunlight, blue in shadow, standing ruggedly staunch against the hurling impact of waves, beyond them the bluest of blue seas.

Sharp has visited the Grand Canyon three times, bringing back careful studies on each occasion. He has felt the solemn impressiveness and overpowering beauty of that mightiest of earth's deep gorges, and has rendered on canvas as much as may be. Not all—for no man, be he poet or painter, can do that. He may only approach, on bended knees, and afterwards stammer something of what he saw.

"Afternoon Shadows" is one of the finest of these studies, or rather impressions. The foreground walls of rock, tree-covered, are in deep shadow. Bars of gold, flame-colored, alternate with bars of pallid green on the distant buttes, whose bases are swathed in purple and gold. "Between Rocky Walls," painted near the Colorado River, has a pale-gold foreground, the high cliffs to the right being dun-colored, those to the left, in shadow, the color of cold steel. Far off are pink buttes and blue. "The Crimson Glow" gives us the canyon dreaming in the blue haze of twilight. The crimson glow itself is like an illumined stairway leading to heavenly heights.

The artist exhibits one important desert picture, the largest of his canvases, "On the Hopi Reservation." It is in the shape of a long panel, and shows us Walpi on the far-off mesa that is made almost unreal in beauty by the blinding glory of sunset. The general tone of the picture is gray and light gold. In the foreground, emerging from the hill shadows, is an Indian horseman. The spirit of the desert broods over the picture.

"Autumn Gleams" brings us to the Arroyo Seco, in its November mantle of greens and yellows and pinkish reds, the suitings of sycamores and underbrush. A foreground pool reflects all this glory of color. Another charming arroyo canvas is "The Golden Day," shining meadows reaching toward pale-green hills. "The Grove of Eucalypti" gives us trees that frame, beyond a foreground checkered with sun and shade, a halcyon bit of landscape. Genuine sunlight gilds "The Road to the Hills," whose brush work is admirably simple and loose, and lush, cool shadows are found in "The Hill Farm," made more interesting by the hay wagon that stands above a dark blue stream of rippled water.

Some Miniatures.

A miniature is a small picture in size only. In every other sense it may be as "big" as any picture ever painted. This, at any rate, is the contention of the miniature painters themselves, and a careful scrutiny of the best modern miniatures will show that they are right.

In them we find accuracy of construction, breadth in the treatment of planes, rhythm in the composition, individuality of expression, with good color and refinement of tone. A miniature is no longer considered fine because it is pretty—it must have the character that we look for in the life-size portrait. The flattery, if the artist permits it at all, must not be in the manner of the bon-bon box—and generally he sternly refuses every belittling compromise with truth. The modern miniature is therefore actually a portrait.

Fifty-four miniatures by a score of the best miniature painters of America are now being shown in the gallery at Exposition Park. They comprise one of the traveling exhibitions inaugurated by the American Federation of Arts at Washington, and will remain at Exposition Park to January 31. On the list of names appear Laura Coombs Hills, Alice Beckington, Lucia Fairchild Fuller, Sally Cross and William K. Whittemore. Harry L. Johnson shows tiny landscapes and garden scenes, though, charming as they are, they are less effective than the portraits.

Exquisite gray tones are found in Alice Beckington's "Study of a Head in Shadow," the face seen in profile, delightful directness in her "Study in Blue and Green," the portrait of a lovely girl. There is good handling of blues in William J. Baer's "Doris," a nude woman lying on a flowery bank and playing with a squirrel, and rich color with good drawing in "The Apple," a smiling red-haired nude woman and child in a forest.

From Sally Cross come three stunning studies, "The Green Hat," fine in character, the portrait of Mr. George Gibson Moore, excellent in its flesh color, and the portrait of Miss Mackay, a lady with a dog. We find beautiful drawing in Lucia Fairchild Fuller's "Girl Drying Her Feet," a scheme of color and decorative line that comes from Puvis de Chavannes, and an equally attractive, though stronger effect, in "Lady in Chinese Coat," the green coat being seen against a flowered wallpaper.

Excellent "straight" portraits are Margaret Foote Hawley's "Dr. Seabury Allen" and "Mrs. Allen." Poetic in feeling, tender in color, refined in arrangement, are the four pictures by Laura Coombs Hills, "Little Agnes," "Girl With Violets," "The Blue Bandeau" and "Miss Ruth Graves," the yellows and blacks in the last being strikingly beautiful and effective.

The note of beauty and refinement is also seen in Elsie Dodge Pattee's "Doris," a blonde-haired girl in profile, and in "The Chinese Beads," a lady in a blue gown posed against a pale-green wall with a flowered paper. A striking combination of blues characterizes "Isabel" by William Sherman Potts. We note good color and a sympathetic feeling for character in Lucy M. Stanton's study of an old negress, "Aunt Liza," with the same artistic qualities in "The Old Dutch Woman."

The sophisticated art methods of today—the so-called modern manner—are found in Maria Judson Strean's lovely blonde "Child at Play," and fine freedom of handling in William K. Whittemore's "Gladys" and that charming nude, "In the Nursery." Heloise Redfield's portraits of Mrs. Prescott Bigelow and Madame Berthier, while rather dull-toned, are very attractive.

Voila! Are these pictures small? Assuredly they are not. Even the Brobdingnagians may find much to admire in them.

Fashion Posters.

Ethel Rose, who, with her husband, Guy Rose, lived for thirteen years in Paris, where she designed the fashion drawings and posters for Harper's Bazar and several Paris journals, is now holding an exhibition of such posters and drawings in the Daniell gallery, No. 640 South Hill street. The exhibition opens on Monday, closing at the end of the week.

Twenty-five drawings in black and white are shown, with almost a dozen posters. Mrs. Rose has a very sensitive feeling for line, and her color in the posters has much decorative refinement. In arrangement, too, these are effective.

Note the beauty of color, the grace of arrangement in the study of a lady in green and red and white, who sits sewing before a green cage holding a linnet. See how marvelously exact are the brown figures in the Japanese wall paper behind her. A stronger effect is the lady in gray in a black phaeton with red wheels, who is riding in the park. The girl posed before a curtained window in front of a basket of fruit is also very charming in color and treatment, the chintz hanging being stenciled with beautiful precision.

Other attractive posters are those of a woman in a purple kimono trimmed with red, who is speaking to a brilliant red and green and purple paroquet swinging in a ring above her; an oriental maid, apparently just stepped out of Arabian Nights, seated and juggling with bubble balls; the whole seen against a background of purple and green; a slim girl in a green and pale purple cloak, whose folds are buffeted by the wind as she stands on a hill, a poster of much grace of lines.

News and Notes.

The exhibition of pictures held by C. P. Townsley in the Friday Morning Club to the end of this month will be reviewed next week in Art and Artists. The most of Townsley's pictures have been seen before, but there are several new ones.

Landscapes and figure studies by Jean Mannheim to the number of fifteen will be shown in the gallery at Exposition Park from January 15 to 31. Almost all the pictures are new, the selected result of Mannheim's work for the past year. The exhibition promises to be an unusually interesting one.

The California Art Club has decided to hold two exhibitions every year instead of one. The spring exhibition will be held at Exposition Park through the month of April. At the recent annual election of the club the following officers were President, William Wendt; vice-presidents, Jack Wilkinson Smith Hanson Puthuff; corresponding secretary, A. B. Titus; recording secretary, J. Duncan Gleason; treasurer, Aaron Kilpatrick.

Through error it was reported in this column that Guy Rose's exhibition at the Battey gallery in Pasadena would close January 17. It remains open to January 27. It is one of the most interesting exhibitions ever given by Rose, and no lover of art can afford to miss it.

BITS OF VERSE.

The Shepherd Who Stayed.

There are in Paradise
Souls neither great nor wise,
Yet souls who wear no less
The crown of faithfulness.

My master bade me watch the flock by night,
My duty was to stay. I do not know
What thing my comrades saw in that great light,
I did not heed the words that bade them go.
I know not were they maddened or afraid;
I only know I stayed.

The hillside seemed on fire; I felt the sweep
Of wings above my head; I ran to see
If any danger threatened these my sheep.
What though I found them folded quietly,
What though my brother wept and plucked my sleeve,
These were not mine to leave.

Thieves in the wood and wolves upon the hill,
My duty was to stay. Strange though it be,
I had no thought to hold my mind no will
To bid them wait and keep watch with me,
I had not heard that summons they obeyed;
I only know I stayed.

Perchance they will return upon the dawn
With word of Bethlehem and why they went,
I only know that, watching here alone,
I know a strange content.
I have not failed that trust upon me laid,
I ask no more—I stayed.

The Stars Shine On.

I have scanned the sky for a
To the fury of hate
Which rends the Old World and the New;
But, alas, of late
Heaven is dumb, a vault of
The stars shine on, serene as they shone.

I have turned to the sun for
But a thickening smoke
Smothers his gold, which bright,
With a lurid cloak.
Must the gloom continue? ing atone?
The stars shine on, serene as they shone.

I have plead with the ray,—
Soft sphere of dreams
But her lovely face, now gray,
No longer beams;
Her silver is tarnished; flown.
The stars shine on, serene as they shone.

So I call to the stars: "O
Of constant flame,
Fling us a sop for the scars
Our earth with shame!"
"Fate." Not fate, but folly
The stars shine on, serene as they shone.

"Meat of your marrow the
And as old as time,
But a bane that festers your law
Is love sublime.
Begrudging greed, the bone!"
The stars shine on, serene as they shone.

World of Song.

There's a lot of song in this world for those who listen:
Birds and bees, rivers and
And winds that play on
A myriad lingering
While the eyes of the glisten—
Enough to banish the drear
If one stops to hear.

With the morning mist of song springs with tain;
All the day, radiant, gay,
Her feet are dimpling ened way
In a jubilant, simple
And with eve's murmurous
She dances upon a stage of
And laughs o'er the

From the season's throats floats of woven
Beasts and men singing
The lash of pain has
And you'd think they sing, but then
Where is the power can Song from the heart of
When it wants to sing?

O'er the clash of swords and words, and moan of spirit,
Wide and free swells a
Fondling the world all
As a mother fondled
If one only stops to hear
A song of hearts at play
In spite of its strife.

The Secret of Contentment.

Learn the joy of
Learn to see God's hand in
Welcome each rebuff
Welcome sorrow's
Know thou these thee;
Know thou these strength.
Keep thy soul too big
Walk through life calm;
Keep thy heart
Keep thy faith in
When the way rugged
And the light grows
Know thou God thee,
Holds thy hand. Him.

SUNDAY MORNING.

The Bright Side

SOCIETY.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER

The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—A Hundred or More Happy Affairs.

SOCIETY.

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER

LOS ANGELES, January 12.

Gertrude dear:

You certainly know how to give a [illegible] party. Not every hostess [illegible] sandwich a scene from Ibsen's "Ghosts" portrayed by a distinguished Russian celebrity, between a vampire recitation composed and given by an Episcopalian [illegible], and the reading of original [illegible] by a celebrated poet in person, with a piquant condiment of Douglas Gerard's blase stories, and dancing as a digestive finale! And [illegible] every hostess could safely entertain English, two kinds of Irish, German, Bavarian, Hungarian, Russian, Polish, French, New York and Californians in the same party in war times and let them discuss the international situation! Voila, it just shows what social tact in a lovely imported American Beauty velvet gown can accomplish.

Isidore Dockweiler earnestly trying to convert a British suffragette to the Teutonic viewpoint was a [illegible] in itself, especially as he nearly succeeded. She was bemoaning the fact that King George was not Kaiser Wilhelm before the evening was over! And aren't the two Dockweiler girls charming? They are so charmingly unaffected, no wonder the charming mamma of eleven babies, who has achieved the secret of eternal youth, gazed at them so proudly. And aren't they rich in having no less than eight brothers [illegible] a lack of escorts in that family! Mrs. Dockweiler is a living example of what a society mamma can accomplish, consistently with her duty to the nation. She looked attractive in her turquoise blue [illegible].

And Charlie Seyler has settled down into a most commendable benedict, hasn't he? A highly becoming transformation.

Have you been ice skating yet? There is no more entertaining side show in town just now than the ice-skating rink. It is the [illegible], cherie, par excellence, and those young instructors with [illegible] figures are daily dripping the sweat of honest toil piloting some of our plumptical society [illegible] round the ice. Every one is so jolly in their skating rigs. Mrs. A. L. Cheney is rapidly becoming quite expert, and so is Mrs. Frank Griffith. Mrs. MacGowan and Mrs. E. T. Earl are both among the earnest strivers, and Eleanor MacGowan and Eleanor Banning are both quite expert. And Carolina and Margerita Winston are rapidly acquiring that glideful assurance that permits of a slight relaxation of the fiercely-stern skating countenance which is so prevalent during the days of early anguish.

Certainly the younger set are not going to have it all their own way on the ice. While there is a large sprinkling of them, matrons and papas and aunties abound. Right merrily do they submit to the indignities, the frantic struggle for decorous equilibrium, the [illegible] of a precipitate loss thereof. It's awfully important to be [illegible]'s frillies, I can tell you, in the early stages of the season—venture one can never be sure which way up they will be five minutes together. The tact and resource of the handsome instructors on such occasions is the epitome of [illegible]. They are always looking the other way for the right number of torturous seconds, and can restore a social leader to dignity again with glittering dexterity. They earn their shekels, do these heroic heroes!

It's about time that society was kept on ice for a spell, wasn't it? They were becoming dangerously combustible. Certainly, [illegible] in the art is worth acquiring when the old maid's figure manages to swing in graceful [illegible] on skates, in one of the full-[illegible] coats.

The Amateur Players had another performance on Monday evening and of course the film play was the piece de resistance. Mrs. [illegible] Barrow, as the Italian heroine, gave a really clever performance. Mrs. Ralph Williams, as her [illegible], is not quite so good an [illegible]. But, oh, Douglas Gerard as the superlative villain! Tom [illegible] as the California orange-[illegible] Italian lover who goes back to fight for Italy is a darling. The [illegible] taken at the Hooker gardens, with many well known women [illegible] was such fun. It is odd to [illegible] on the screen, and in the [illegible], too.

In the little Irish play Billy Dodd gave a really masterly portrayal of a wicked wife-beating old Irishman who is such an angel with the [illegible]. Mrs. W. A. Brackenridge took the part of the wife—quite a [illegible] experience for her to pose as a brow-beaten wife.

And in the other little play, "The [illegible] of Dreams," Florence Brown blossomed as one of our prettiest and cleverest amateur actresses in the role of Pierrette.

Mrs. Vernon Castle is in for a [illegible] time. She is the sort of [illegible] people dote on lionizing. In the studio she can be the [illegible] of unaffected informality, [illegible] transforms into a social [illegible] when occasion demands. But I confess she is a good deal more Mrs Vernon Castle than some of her imitators in our midst. Little Janet Prendegast is my ideal of what Mrs. Vernon Castle should look like, for instance.

[illegible] observe Fred Hickox dutifully escorting his wife to ten dances just now, blame it on the [illegible] football team. Mrs. [illegible] is Oregonian, you know, and had a wager on the match at [illegible]—she to make hot biscuits [illegible] if Oregon lost, and he to be a suitable and unresisting escort to ten dances if Pennsylvania lost. [illegible] to cover a year's sacrifice [illegible] of humility. So Mrs. [illegible] has been investing in dozens of party dresses and hubby has supplied himself with [illegible] suit and concomitants and is trying not to look more [illegible] being led to the slaughter than he can help. And never a [illegible] hot biscuit to reward distress. The cook's biscuits don't compare with the other variety.

[illegible] the Red Cross relief [illegible] at the Jonathan Club on [illegible] is to be a stylish affair. [illegible] seems to be going, and [illegible] dinner parties will take [illegible] the club itself beforehand. [illegible] can be very satisfying. [illegible] Country Club's golf [illegible] attracted the nice men. [illegible] and Leigh Guyer, who [illegible] the entirely lovable Molly [illegible] five minutes ago, was [illegible] quite paternal, directing affairs, [illegible] would think he was the [illegible] family at least.

But then he has so much to be superior about—with such a charming mamma and wife to adore him.

They are going to hold a women's invitation tournament out there soon, and, as the last one was so jolly, it is sure to be a dazzling success.

Well, so long, cherie, hurry up and give some more distinguished parties, they are obviously your forte.

Yours admiringly, BETTY.

Preparing for Lent.

Just twenty-eight days until Ash Wednesday, which, ushering in Lent, promises to cast its accustomed forbidding aspect on all formal gayeties until Easter in its loveliest colorings and robe of tenderest anticipation on the Bachelors' falls on April 8.

Realizing it must make the most of the hours until February 21, society is filling in every possible date on a bulging calendar of engagements, meanwhile focusing its keenest anticipation on the Bachelors Ball which for eleven years has held supremacy—until the originators of their band resourcefully organized the Benedicts. But the rivalry was somewhat circumvented when the Bachelors went fearlessly into the ranks of the "marrieds" and asked the most gracious wives to act as their hostesses, last year, for the brilliant Mardi Gras ball. It was a clever move—and successful.

Last night the bachelors did some more plotting.. For at a dinner held at Mt. Washington, they elected a board of governors and decided to have their next ball the evening of Monday, February 19. The Alexandria has already been engaged. In modern vernacular, this board will "pull the party"—everything having been left to their discretion. Of course, it will be a costume affair; that is part of the institution.

Those present at last night's dinner, gathered to give momentum to the always-scintillating function, were Messrs. J. B. Banning, Jr., Thomas Bruen Brown, W. Norris Bucklin, Jr., L. Mac Blankenhorn, David O. Brant, Warren Bovard, Bert Campbell, Henry F. Daly, Garretson Dulin, Gabriel Duque, George H. Ennis, John M. Elliott, Jr., Richard Garvey, Francis Graves, Charles A. Henderson, Harrell J. Harrell, Llewellyn B. Jones, Gregg Kollock, Bradner W. Lee, Jr., John Llewellyn Reese Llewellyn, L. Joseph Marsh, Allan G. Morphy, John C. MacFarland, Bruce MacNeil, William R. Millar, Maynard McFie, Gurney E. Newlin, Henry C. Nutt, Donald O'Melveny, John Rankin, Frank G. Schumacker, Mark Slosson, Charles A. Sheedy, and Clare Woolwine.

The personnel also numbers Capt. William Banning, Winthrop Blackstone, Carleton F. Burke, Power Conway, Robert W. Craig, Richard J. Dillon, Brant Elliott, Charles H. Hastings, Norwood W. Howard, Paul B. Hammond, Robert L. Harrington, Webster Holmes, Clinton K. Judy, Elmer R. Jones, J. Walter Kays, Karl C. Klokke, Alexander MacDonald, Roy Naftzger, Adolph Schwarz, James Slauson, Charles Stimson, James W. Wilkinson, Dwight Whiting and Alfred Wilcox—all of whom will be on hand for the big affair.

Twice the Bachelors have lost their president through marriage, when James Rathwell Page married Kate Van Nuys, and again the last year when William Kay Crawford fell under Cupid's spell and led pretty Else MacMillan of Salt Lake to the altar. There has been a depletion in their ranks, of course—but for a president to fall——.

In prospect are no end of interesting society affairs, beginning with the Cinema Costume Frolic. Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Connell are giving at their South Figueroa street residence for Miss Eleanor MacGowan, tomorrow night. Mr. and Mrs. James Rathwell Page are entertaining dinner guests earlier, all joining the revelers at ten p.m.

On Wednesday night, the smart set will congregate at the Los Angeles Country Club for the twice-a-month dinner-dance. The duties of hostess will, this time fall gracefully upon Mrs. Dudley Fulton, Mrs. Herman Janss and Mrs. Thomas R. McNab, and there are to be no end of parties. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Ridgway are having twenty-two of the younger set for some of the debutantes, and Miss Virginia Garner will also entertain a dozen guests. Miss Rosemary Sartori, than whom there is no more popular girl, is also having guests Wednesday night, and Mr. and Mrs. John Black have invited friends. The hostesses are all planning to have friends, as is customary, and there will be the usual no-host board.

On Friday is the U. D. C. ball at the Ebell Club, and Mrs. Gloria Windsor has a musicale-dance for Saturday night.

Saturday, the 27,th Mrs. Dean Macon compliments the beautiful Kerckhoff twins with a dansant, and that too, is the night of the annual fancy dress costume ball at the Midwick Country Club, with Mrs. Frederick H. Stevens, Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner, Mrs. Joseph M. Hixon, Mr. Richard Jewett Schweppe and Mr. E. Avery McCarthy forming the Executive Committee. Donald McGilvray and Mrs. John S. Cravens are on the Dinner Committee, William May Garland and Miss Phila Miller, dancing and music; Mrs. Hixson, Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor and assistants in charge of decorating; Mrs. William S. Hook, Jr., and Samuel Cupples Pierce, with assistants, managing the grille; Don O'Melveny and Alexander MacDonald, door service and butlers; "The Wagon," (spiritos y tabacos,) Robert A. Rowan, Norwood W. Howard, Bruce MacNeil and assistants (several); Mrs. Samuel Cupples Pierce, Mrs. John G. Mott and others have charge of the no-host tables; Mrs. P. H. Guthrie, Mrs. Ralph Williams and Mrs. Nutting Wigton, favors; Mrs. Henry S. Van Dyke, Miss Mildred Landreth, Miss Helen Sherk and Mrs. E. M. Fowler, Oriental room. All of which goes to prove that Midwick is to celebrate with elaborate finesse.

Mesdames James H. Adams, Howard Huntington, Hancock Banning, Harry Dana Lombard, E. Avery McCarthy, Dean Mason, Willoughby Rodman, Horace B. Wing, Burton E. Green, Jefferson Paul Chandler, Cronelius Cole, Albert Crutches, James Tabor Fitzgerald, Samuel Wesley Garretson, Robert P. McJohnston, William Mead, Willis H. Booth, Charles Howard Lippincott, R. B. Lane, Herbert Johnstone Whitley, Edward Rankin Brainerd, Ralph Mallette Burdick, Edward F. Bogardus, Mary E. Barnes, Clyde Eastman, and Vernon C. Herron are on the list of patronesses for the reception and ball of January 30, to be given by Mr. and Mrs. John Elmer Ransford at Garden Court, for which several hundred invitations are issued.

In addition to the Bachelors Ball, February holds many alluring gayeties, beginning with the very first day when Louis F. Vedder compliments Miss Eleanor MacGowan with a dinner-dance at the California Club, the younger set to be for the most part among the invited guests.

On February 6, Mrs. James M. Cockins will give a luncheon for the Misses Gertrude and Marion Kerckhoff, cards to shortly be issued. The Valentine ball of February 14, to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Richard Jewett Schweppe at the California Club, also honoring the popular Kerckhoff debutantes. The McCarthys are having a dinner prior to the dance.

February 3, Dr. and Mrs. Ernest A. Bryant are taking a party out to the Crags County Club for the week-end—a courtesy to Miss MacGowan, and February 7, comes the ball and buffet dansant at the Alexandria by Mrs. Russell McDonald Taylor, Mrs. Daniel Murphy and Mrs. William Andrews Clark, Jr.—one of the important future happenings.

Romantic.

Miss Gertrude Louise Machin, equally popular in Los Angeles and Pasadena society and a beautiful young woman, yesterday gave her most intimate friends a genuine surprise when news of her engagement to Clifton E. Brooks, a prominent young attorney of Oakland and newly appointed secretary of the California State Senate, was told at a luncheon party given by Mrs. Elvon Musick at the latter's home on South Madison avenue, Pasadena.

Furthering the exquisite motif, the secret was wafted by little pink satin hearts containing miniatures of Miss Machin and her fiance, that were at each cover and connected to the central mound of pink flowers with pink tulle.

The luncheon was followed by a buffet supper at night, attended by an equal number of men, when dancing was enjoyed.

Miss Machin is the daughter of Mr. Frederick W. Machin, long prominent in Pasadena and Southern California, and the groom-to-be, who is the son of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Brooks of Oakland, is a graduate of the University of California and a member of the Delta Chi Fraternity.

Miss Machin did not know Mr. Brooks until two months ago—it was love at first sight, she says. The handsome six-footer came down to Los Angeles on business and met her and now they are to be married in March. Until yesterday no one save Mrs. Musick and members of Miss Machin's family knew of the attachment and the news has caused the greatest stir of the season.

Aside from the dining-room and luncheon board, which carried out the delicate pink tones with artistry, Mrs. Musick utilized yellow for her decorations. In addition to Miss Machin, covers were laid for the Misses Anna and Marie Machin, Mrs. Harold Herlihy, Mrs. Charles Fletcher, Miss Clara Baker, Mrs. Elliot Gibbs, Mrs. Luther Lee, Mrs. Emil Howard, Mrs. Leroy Fields, Mrs. Floyd Bates of Portland, Or., and the hostess.

San Franciscan Honored.

Mrs. Charles Martin O'Leary, one of the popular hostesses of the city, entertained dinner guests at her home, No. 3590 Wilshire boulevard, on Friday evening, in compliment to Mr. Richard E. Mulcahy of San Francisco. The table was in pink and white, with Madame Chatenay rosebuds and lilies combined for a centerpiece and pink-shaded candelabra and favors accentuating the dainty motif, and covers were laid for Mr. Mulcahy, Mr. and Mrs. R. P. MacAlpine of New York City, B. E. Burns, Miss Hazel Balls, Mr. and Mrs. William E. Gratton of Pasadena and the hosts.

Supper-dance.

With their home at No. 160 Van Ness avenue attractively embellished with flowers and greens, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Turner entertained with souper-dance on Friday night, honoring Capt. and Mrs. Jack Ryus of San Francisco, who are their house guests. Bidden were Mr. and Mrs. Roland Paul, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Woods, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sumner Kent, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Maurer, Mr. and Mrs. J. Bond Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. L. Gottschalk, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Pauly, Mr. and Mrs. E. Clem Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Howard Lippincott, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wyatt, Mr. and Mrs. Jotham Bixby, Jr., of Long Beach, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dreyfus, Mrs. Frank Sherwood Wise, Miss Tracy, who is a house guest of the Wyatts; Dr. S. M. Alter, Dr. G. W. Browne and Messrs. Robinson and Luther Nellis.

Back to School.

Thatcher Kemp, Olin Wellborn and George Betts returned to the University of California on Friday, following a merry holiday respite with home friends.

Miss Sylvia Moore, one of the popular young society girls, surprised her friends by deciding at the last moment to enroll at Stanford, and left on Monday for the north. All but the Berkeley students have now departed, and most of these will leave within a day or so.

For Visitor.

To meet Mrs. J. R. Toole, wife of the former Governor of Montana, and Mrs. Claude Wilson of Helena, Mrs. Joseph K. Clark entertained yesterday at a smart luncheon in the private banquet-room of the California Club, covers being laid for the honorees and Mrs. H. A. d'Acheul, Miss Rumley, Mrs. William DeWitt, Mrs. J. Ross Clark, Mrs. Henry Carleton Lee, Miss Chesman of Helena, Mrs. Mary Miller, Judge and Mrs. Stephen C. Hubbell.

Enjoyed.

Mrs. Agnes Boss, of the literary coterie of Hollywood, entertained with a buffet supper on Friday night, with covers for Mr. and Mrs. L. Frank Baum, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph M. Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Ruhland, the Rev. and Mrs. Ray Carter and Mr. and Mrs. William Hope Henderson.

Natal Celebration.

A belated birthday celebration in honor of their daughter Gladys was enjoyed Tuesday last at the S. J. Paul home, No. 1735 North Normandie avenue, Hollywood. Half of the guests being professional musicians and entertainers, the evening passed rapidly in various enjoyable features. In attendance were Misses Leona Marmon, Edith Morgan, Myrth Bartlett of Pasadena, Edith Brubaker of San Francisco, Gladys Paul, Messrs. Henry Mahr, Austin Antonieski, Lee W. Phillippi, J. W. Bartlett, Earle S. Paul, and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Paul.

Into Winter Joys.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Jenkins returned Wednesday from their pretty home in Lytle Creek, in the San Bernardino Mountains, over the week-end, where they enjoyed the unique experience of building a six-foot snow man and other winter sports, not common in Southern California. The Jenkins have one of the most attractive homes there, but going at any other time than in the height of the summer season was an innovation.

Mrs. Garretson Hostess.

At her home, No. 1728 McCadden place, Hollywood, Mrs. Samuel W. Garretson gave two bridge luncheons the past week, inviting guests for both Wednesday and Thursday afternoons, in groups of twenty. The rooms were in scarlet and white flowers, with the dominant note furthered in the menu, and for prizes were given great baskets of red flowers bowed in fluffy red tulle. Mrs. H. K. Williamson, who has just returned from New York where she went for a part of the opera season, was an honored guest.

Welcomed.

Answering an irresistible call for outdoor life the year round, flowers and almost constant sunshine, Mr. and Mrs. William Bradford Joyce and their interesting family of two sons, William, Jr., and Morton Dean Joyce, are to arrive from New York early next week to take possession of their handsome new Beverly Hills home. With them will come Mrs. Joyce's sister, Mrs. Ethelbert Barnes of Louisville, Ky., who intends staying for the winter. Mr. Joyce is president of the National Surety Company of New York and has with his family spent many seasons in the proximity of Los Angeles. Their arrival will signal innumerable social attentions, for they are exceedingly popular here, and will do much entertaining in the former Costello residence, which they decided to purchase upon a former visit.

Will Marry Tomorrow.

Tomorrow, W. A. Bonynge, Sr., and Mrs. Margaret Douthit will quietly wed at the home of the latter and leave immediately for an extended automobile honeymoon trip which will include Del Monte, Santa Barbara, and other points of interest as far north as San Francisco. Mr. Bonynge is president of the Commercial National Bank. About a year ago, his wife, an invalid of twenty years died. Mrs. Douthit, a close friend of Mr. and Mrs. Bonynge and herself a widow, became the particular counsellor and friend of the bereaved husband. The friendship turned to love and last week the engagement of the two was announced.

This came at a dinner party at the Maryland Hotel, given the principals by Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Luton. There were twenty-two persons at the beautifully-decorated table, which had as centerpiece, a bubbling fountain, throwing forth its perfumed waters, and banked in pink roses and maidenhair ferns. In addition to the guests of honor and the host and hostess, there were present at the table, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Deardoff; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Bonynge, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Luton; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bonynge; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schornborn; Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Eaton; Mrs. H. J. Whitley; Mrs. Owen Smith; Mrs. Robert Kenny and Mr. J. L. Dabbs.

Mrs. Dobinson Hostess.

An old-fashioned celebration around the Christmas tree for friends and relatives was provided by Mrs. George Dobinson at her residence studios last evening. The rooms, brilliantly decorated for some weeks past in shades of red, made a fine setting for the gay tree. Masks, caps and bells were donned by the company when the tree was lighted and the gifts were found to be hidden in an immense bag and you had but to close your eyes and reach deep in the bag to become the owner of something more ridiculous than your neighbor. A beautiful Japanese garden of water flowers were planted and bloomed while the guests looked on.

Mrs. Dobinson, quaintly costumed in a Godey's Lady Book gown of white, brightened by Italian corals, gave great pleasure by reading from the writings of Thomas Nelson Page and Ruth Comfort Mitchell. Exquisite music was given throughout the evening.

Among those present were: Mrs. Amanda Matthews Chase, Mrs. Elsa Lightfoot, Mrs. Clara Cheshire, Miss Julia Matthews, Miss Bessie Wolflin, Miss Boller, Miss Marguerite Jepkins, Miss Flora McDougall, Miss Mildred Kemp, Miss Susan Jane Reichert, of Racine, Wis., Miss Madeline Young, Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Hayhurst, Miss Irene Finley, Mr. and Mrs. Llewellyn Price, Miss Tupman, Mrs. N. Carey and baby Celia Carey.

Fink-Boyer.

With Miss Tempest and Miss Katharine Fink as bridesmaids and Winford Fink standing with the groom, a pretty wedding on January 2 gave to Earl Montgomery Boyer of Oakland a popular young bride in the person of Miss Grace Aloya Fink, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Fink of this city. The bride wore a white crepe gown and carried a shower of bride's roses and maidenhair, the pair plighting their vows in the presence of seventy-five relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Boyer left Thursday for Oakland, where they are to be at home.

On the Governor's Staff.

Col. Robert S. Oberfelder of the staff of the Governor of Nebraska, and his niece, Miss Hazel Oberfelder, arrived yesterday and are guests at the Alexandria for a few days.

To Fill Engagements.

Mr. Sydney Sprague and his wife, a Persian woman of royal birth, and who are great favorites in this city, left their home in Wilton place, on Friday for Del Coronado, where they participated in the great Arabian Knights ball last night. They are going north to give their programmes on Persian music and drama before their return.

Silver Wedding.

At a dinner party given by Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Smith at the Sierra Madre Club on Tuesday night in celebration of their silver wedding anniversary, the engagement was announced of their son, H. W. Smith, and Mrs. Edna C. Cooley.

Appropriate decorations were used, and the event enjoyed by a large number of friends.

The hosts have lived in Los Angeles for twelve years, having come from Battleboro, Ver., where they were married.

For Mrs. Boylan.

Honoring Mrs. Grace Duffle Boylan, Mr. and Mrs. John Quiner Roscoe ushered in the week's festivities with a delightful party on Monday night, when a number of guests were entertained. Dancing was enjoyed in the ballroom, augmented by a superior programme of music and readings, in which Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Keller, Mrs. Arthur Perry,

In the calcium glow of first season activities.

Miss Eleanor MacGowan is one of the most charming of the bevy of winter society buds now reveling in a wonderful first season. Mrs. Michael J. Connell will entertain tomorrow night at a dancing party in Miss MacGowan's honor. Mrs. Richard J. Schweppe, popular society matron, will honor the Misses Gertrude and Marion Kerckhoff with a St. Valentine's ball at the California Club the evening of February 14. The Kerckhoffs will give a second large function of the winter on the 23d in the form of a ball at the Alexandria, this mostly for the younger set.

SOCIETY.

Mr. Newell, Miss Zeller and Mrs. Hodges participated, and Mrs. Boylan graciously responded to the requests of the guests and gave several short readings from her own poems and stories. Later an elaborate supper was served in the apartment of the hosts. This prominently-known writer came from New York several months ago to be with her daughter, Mrs. Roscoe, and son, Malcolm Stuart Boylan, for a visit of generous length. So fond has she become of California and California of her she hopes to stay on permanently, though she will go shortly East on business.

Guests of the Roscoes numbered: Dr. and Mrs. Dwight Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Keller, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Law, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Perry, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Jones, Mmes. Dorothy Johnston, Lillian Stair Schreiner, MacNeice, Misses Esther Tullock, Harriet Green, M. Louise Blakely, Zeller, Agnes Considine, Messrs. John Breckenridge Hodges, O. E. Farish, Frank Nelson Rust, Wayland Smith, Willard Newell, Malcolm Stuart Boylan, Don Lawrence and Gerald Schreiner.

On Tuesday night Mr. Rust dispensed hospitality, honoring her at his home, Casa de Caza, on the arroyo, in Highland Park, a large assemblage of guests collecting for a Bohemian evening. At the latter affair Mrs. Gloria Mayne-Windsor, with Miss Winifred Hooke at the piano, sang, as did Mrs. Gloria Bretherton.

Prominent Woman Returns.

Mrs. James Hyde Forbes has returned to her home in this city following an absence of nearly a year, spent in various parts of the East, South and Canada, where she was the recipient of many social honors.

For the past two months she has been with her daughter, Mrs. Lanford King Taylor of Alton, Ill., whom it will be recalled was a bride of June, two years ago. This former Angeleno entertained for her mother several times before Mrs. Forbes left.

Anticipated.

Mrs. Gloria Mayne-Windsor is entertaining at a musicale and dance at her home, No. 900 Westlake avenue, next Saturday night, and will be assisted in receiving by her sister, Mrs. Philip Shanahan.

Dinner Party.

In compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Denhart of San Jose, Mr. and Mrs. William Frost dispensed hospitality in the form of a dinner at their home, No. 1797 North Serrano avenue, on Wednesday night. The table was effectively decked in sweet peas and smilax, covers being laid for fourteen. Mr. and Mrs. Frost were assisted in entertaining by their son and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Frost. Cards furnished a merry diversion for the evening.

Honeymooning.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland H. Driver, who were married on January 10, are at present on their honeymoon in the northern part of the State. The latter was formerly Miss Ethel Calvert and known for her beauty.

Welcomed.

Her friends are extending to Mrs. H. K. Williamson of No. 601 Park View avenue a welcome upon her return from New York.

Campus Sociability.

The Entre Nous Sorority of the University of Southern California entertained with an alumnae "active" party yesterday afternoon, their sorority-house at No. 745 West Twenty-eighth street being decked with flowers for the gaiety, which partook of a kensington.

Next Saturday evening the Entre Nous pledges will entertain the members with an informal dancing party at the sorority-house.

Branender-White.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Mrs. Arthur S. White, an accomplished Los Angeles musician, and Eugene Allen Branender of No. 508 South Gramercy place, formerly of Winnipeg, Can., on Tuesday, January 2, in San Francisco.

Athletic Club Affairs.

Heading the list of affairs this month at the Los Angeles Athletic Club will be the formal dinner and dance on Wednesday, January 24, in which there is centered a lively interest. This will be given under the auspices of the club's energetic board of entertainment commissioners, whose handling of the recent New Year's Eve celebration won them high praise. Dr. George H. Kress was chosen as the board's chairman for January. Dancing at the club is at its height just now, and from this it is expected the attendance of clubmen and guests will be large.

A luncheon, attended by a group of active women, was given by Mrs. George H. Kress on Thursday in honor of Mrs. George Goldsmith, whose departure this week for New York is regretted by her many Los Angeles friends. Eighteen guests gathered with Mrs. Kress in the blueroom, including, besides the guests of honor, Mrs. Charles Sumner Kent, Mrs. N. E. Rice, Mrs. R. J. Waters, Mrs. W. J. Hole, Mrs. William Corwin, Mrs. George Ross, Mrs. F. H Fish, Mrs. Dorothy Johnston, Mrs. J. J. Jenkins, Mrs. Joe Le Roy, Mrs. Morris Kahn, Mrs. M. Elsasser, Mrs. Oscar Morgan, Mrs. J. B. Stearns, Miss Conn and Miss Beulah Wright.

F. O. Stevens entertained with a supper and dance on Thursday evening in compliment to his daughter, Miss Helen Stevens, thirty-six guests being invited. The supper was served at 11 o'clock in the ladies' annex. Others entertaining the same evening were Dr. Sandford Whiting, Jesse Whitehead and Dr. W. W. Richardson. On Wednesday evening C. Van Valkenberg entertained with a dinner in the blueroom for twenty-five guests, and H. R. Tibbetts was host at a dinner in the English-room in compliment to fifteen. P. D. Mason, J. B. Stearns and Alvin H. Green gave enjoyable dinners on Friday evening.

In Dr. Day's Honor.

Mrs. Willitts J. Hole, president of the board of managers of the Young Women's Christian Association, will give a committee tea on Tuesday afternoon, January 16, in honor of Dr. and Mrs. William Horace Day, who have been staunch friends of the association throughout their residence here.

Preceding a farewell talk by Dr. Day, some of the newer developments of the work will be presented. Miss Cora L. Tatham will tell of the newer work at the administration building; Miss Julia Tolman Lee of the work among motion-picture women at the Hollywood Studio —The charm of rarity in the cleverly fashioned Sports Togs is positively captivating.

—Our Floor of Fashion is aglow with them—novelties which the deft witchery of designers has created.

You will never see a more bewitching place than Hamburger's French Room and great Millinery Section where these are now on display.

Chic Sports Suits—

—Of "Khaki-Kool" silk are noticeably original in effect—perhaps because of the oddity of the geometrical designs of the fabric. Hamburger's shows them all—real out-o'-door togs, and glorious afternoon dresses in sports colors and designs.

Blouses, too, Are in Sports Style—

—Those of wool—and do you know there are at least half-a-dozen kinds of wool?—are just about the jauntiest yet designed. There's a new block-check shown in silk and fiber-silk sweaters that is uncommonly attractive—very sportslike.

—Wool, $8.95 to $16.50—Silk, $19.50 to $39.50—Silk Fiber, $7.95 to $19.50.

Wee Son and Heir.

Their friends are congratulating Attorney and Mrs. John Jerome Wilson of No. 1743 Garfield place, Hollywood, upon the birth of their son, who came December 21, to abide with the popular young couple, and has already taken complete control. Mrs. Wilson was Mildred Hobbs, a beautiful society girl of San Francisco, and came here a bride. Mr. Wilson was a member of the Pascal Henry Burke-Margaret Mahan wedding party and the families are great friends, having more than ever a common interest in their two babes since the joyful event. The Burkes are, by the way, living in Hollywood, having taken a house at No. 1303 Gower street.

His elaborate repasts, with their unique settings last year, were received with great favor.

Interesting Lesson Ahead.

The first dinner-dance of 1917 will be held at the Sierra Madre Club on the coming Saturday evening. This will be a formal, full dress affair, with special orchestra and a unique repast served before the general dancing starts, although there will be interpolated one-steps and waltzes between each course. The Entertainment Committee has planned an active programme of festivities for 1917, and early reservations indicate a large number of society's smartest folks will be on hand to participate.

Why Feagans & Co. Enjoy Diamond Leadership

THROUGHOUT the entire career of this store the pre-established policy of restricting all diamond selections to absolutely perfect stones of finest color and quality has been adhered to without deviation.

When European conditions sent prices for rough diamonds up, and up, and up, we, through our 30 years' important connections with leading diamond importers—protected our patrons against immediate price advances by successfully negotiating extensive diamond purchases at prices which had prevailed before the advances referred to.

Thus the diamond leadership of Feagans and Co. has become more and more firmly established—until today, one would scarcely think of making an important diamond purchase elsewhere.

SOCIETY.

OUT-OF-TOWN SOCIETY.

Pasadena.

WITH a little Japanese tea garden as a quaint motif for the table decoration, Mrs. Walter Raymond entertained with a luncheon Friday at the Raymond Hotel in honor of Mrs. J. S. Torrance, who is leaving next week for an extended tour of the Orient. Covers were laid for twelve in one wing of the big dining-room. The spirit of the land which Mrs. Torrance is soon to explore was carried out in a gaily decorated Japanese table. The miniature bridge over a crystal stream between banks of real moss, the storks and quaint Japanese tea house made a very interesting centerpiece for the table, which was gay with Japanese iris and freesias. Odd Japanese screens were the place cards and the lunch proved to be very enjoyable. After luncheon a delightful hour was spent in the grounds and a visit to the new bird fountain, which was modeled after Mrs. Raymond's daughter Mildred, was an enjoyable feature. The guests included besides Mrs. Torrance and her sister, Mrs. Ruddik, the following: Mrs. C. C. Clark, Mrs. J. H. Warnor, Mrs. E. P. Clapp, Mrs. M. Grant Edmands, Mrs. Hazard Halstead, Mrs. Henry Meier, Mrs. John E. Marble, Mrs. Robert Frick, Mrs. Emil Kayser.

Miss Cecilia Harrington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harrington of No. 1849 Locust street, and Nicolas Papas, a young business man of this city, were married last Monday morning at St. Andrew's Catholic Church, with the Rev. Father Quinlan officiating. The bridesmaid, Miss Lauretta McCrea, wore a mustard colored broadcloth with a hat of the same color. Leo T. Dobbins of Pasadena was best man. Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's parents. There white carnations, maidenhair fern and lilies of the valley were used in the adornment of the table. Shaded candles were used in illuminating the dining-room. The following joined in the toast and partook of the wedding cake, which had a place of honor on the attractive table: Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hruesdel of Los Angeles, Miss Christin Linds of Monrovia, Miss Kathryn Moder of Beaumont, Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Harrington, Dr. Lillian Beauregard, Mr. and Mrs. F. Olsen and son, Edward Olsen, Mrs. A. M. Dewey, J. P. Hampton, Mr. and Mrs. James McCrea, Miss McCrea, Mr. Dobbins.

A tea-dance given Tuesday afternoon at the Maryland, under the auspices of the Pasadena Welfare Bureau, was one of the most interesting social events of the season. The affair was sufficiently successful financially to encourage those in charge to believe that a series of tea-dances will make it possible to carry out an admirable plan for the establishment of a permanent bureau to find employment for needy women, thus giving aid rather than alms. The next tea-dance of the series will be given at the Green early in February and already several table reservations have been made by those enjoying the affair of last Tuesday.

The handsome palm room was especially adorned for the occasion. Each table was decked with blossoms and lighted candles. Numerous parties were made up for the occasion, the reservations in many cases being made at the door. Mrs. Joseph Hixon took advantage of the afternoon to entertain a number of her young friends and the little people added a bright note to the ballroom emsemble. Mrs. Hixon's guests were Louise and Lillian Drummond, Elizabeth and Barbara Pierce, Betty Hixon, Evelyn Smith, Ringden Drummond, Harry Camman, Cecil Wolf, and Joseph and George Hixon.

Mrs. Edward Fowler had as her guests Mrs. Bernique, Mrs. Petit and Mrs. Jesse Hoyt Smith. Mrs. W. H. Plummer entertained Mrs. H. H. Sinclair, Mrs. Eva Kelly and Mrs. Henry Cammans. Mrs. John S. Cravens had with her Miss Wynn, Miss Ludovici, Mrs. A. A. Libby and Mrs. Charles Callery. Mrs. Samuel C. Pierce had at her table Miss Hebner, Capt. Pervinance, Mr. and Mrs. John Leggett and Mrs. Elmer Williams.

At two adjoining tables were Mrs. Ellen Wesson, J. B. Williams, Miss Fannie Elliott, Miss Catherine Farley, Miss Gladys Jones, Miss Mary Farley and Mrs. Anna Luckey. Miss Georgiana Drummond, Miss Katherine Emery, Charles Emery and Miss Mildred Landreth were at another table. Mrs. King Steward entertained Miss Margaret Bickel, Miss Esther Bartlett, Miss Reis, Lorenzo Snow and Mr. Reis. Mrs. Frederick Stevens had a party of eight and Mrs. Ringen Drummond a party of the same number. Mrs. Charles Green entertained Dr. Elizabeth Jordan, Miss Gertrude Luckey, Mr. Russell and Frank Waldron. Mrs. Frank Gilchrest had a party of half a dozen or more, including her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Averq, and Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Smith were hosts for a small group.

Society affairs in the Oneonta district have been largely abandoned during the past week because of the serious sickness of Dorothy Sebree, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Sebree, prominent and popular members.

Last Friday evening the jolly coterie of fifty couples styling themselves the Oneonta Dancing Club held their usual monthly dinner-dance at the Woman's Clubhouse. Montebello.

ONE of the most charming functions of recent date was that at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hungerford, on Cedar avenue, when their daughter, Miss Dorothy, entertained with an elegantly appointed and most delightful luncheon. Yellow and red were the colors used in the table decorations, which were exceptionally lovely. Sunburst roses and ferns set amid great bows of yellow and red gauze ribbon, formed the centerpiece, and, with the large bows that adorned the chandelier and the mellow light over all, produced a wondrously beautiful effect. Radiating from the lights were streamers of yellow gauze ribbon, which led to the favors—small gilt baskets containing tiny growing red Baby Doll roses. The place cards were in verse by the young hostess herself. Those for whom places were laid were: Miss Margaret Olds, Miss Elva Hichborn, Miss Charlotte Parker, Miss Margaret Townsend and Miss Dorothy Hungerford.

A decidedly pleasant affair was the dancing party given one evening recently at the high school gymnasium by two of the high school students, Messrs. Noel Parker and Fernando Caneer, to about thirty of their friends. Victrola music served excellently for the glad occasion and the good time lasted from 8 o'clock till after 11. The party was chaperoned by Miss S. C. Hichborn, Mrs. S. W. Burrows and Miss Ella Martine.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bowen, of Trenton, Mo., who returned to Montebello last Sunday morning after an absence of several years, are enjoying a visit here with Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Allen, Mrs. Bowen's brother-in-law and sister, and also renewing old Montebello friendships. They have decided that there is no place like the Southland and have come to make their home in Southern California.

Mr. and Mrs. L. Beckwith and children, of South Dakota, motored out from Los Angeles Tuesday for a visit at the home of Mr. William Duncan, of South Montebello. The Beckwiths are escaping the rigors of a northern winter by a sojourn of several months in the Angel City and their friendship with the Duncan family dates back to a time when those seasoned Californians were also residents of South Dakota.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie J. Cooper had as dinner guests Friday, at their home on Spruce street, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Morse and children, of Pasadena.

An elaborate collation refreshed the guests after the card play.

Music, dancing and visiting sped the time gaily for the group of friends to whom Miss Jessie Barnhill and brother, Will, were hostess and host, on Friday evening, at the country home of their parents, the James Barnhills. Present were the Misses Phoebe Armstrong of Glendale, Mildred Bonnell, Grace Champion, Marion Lantz, and Messrs. H. L. Watt, E. E. Wellemeyer, Denair Butler, Ira Erichsen, Harry Kaiser.

Locke read an interesting paper upon the life of Harriet Beecher Stowe, and Mrs. N. Mulvey gave a resume of one of Mrs. Stowe's books, "Pearl of Orr Island." Mrs. J. Reese read extracts from "The Minister's Wooing." Ralph Waldo Emerson was discussed by Mrs. T. Salisbury. Following the meeting light refreshments were served, and a social hour enjoyed.

A charming five-course dinner was given recently by Mrs. M. J. Duclo of Palm avenue, in celebration of her birthday. The table was made beautiful by the profuse use of red roses and ferns. Tropico.

OF THE many pleasurable midwinter affairs that have graced the social calendar this week, one of the most charming was the three-course violet luncheon given by Mrs. Edwin Virden at her home at No. 235 Mira Loma avenue in honor of Mrs. J. R. Haugh of Santa Paula. The centerpiece of the table was a crystal bowl filled with a quantity of fragrant violets, and candelabras held slender candles of the same color. A tiny bouquet of the same flowers adorned the place of each guest. Covers were laid for Mrs. J. R. Haugh, Mrs. J. W. Off, Mrs. C. H. McKevett, Mrs. J. H. McCutcheon, Miss M. Stowell, Mrs. Harry M. Bowman, Mrs. Ed Hardison, Mrs. Ben Haugh, Miss Kittie Smith, Miss Florence Tilt and Mrs. Edwin Virden.

The rooms were very attractive in their decorations of asparagus fern and pink roses, this color scheme being carried out in the lighting, refreshments and programmes. As the last dance was played, ribbon confetti was thrown, following which dainty refreshments were served, not the least of which was a birthday cake surmounted by eighteen candles, in honor of the birthday of Miss Jewell.

Coronado.

NOTHING has ever been so gorgeous in the history of the Hotel del Coronado, the scene of many famously elaborate balls, as the wonderful ball of the Arabian Nights, which was held on Saturday night in the big hotel. All society attended, easterners, the smart polo set, debutantes, society leaders of Los Angeles, San Francisco and other northern cities, and the dashing aviators and army and navy officers of Coronado, all disguised in their gorgeous oriental costumes as shieks, desert queens and princess, dervishes and other inhabitants of the desert.

The spascious circular ballroom had been transformed into a true desert scene, where was enacted with dance and pageants the tales of the Arabian Nights. Ali Baba and the forty thieves, Aladdin and his wonderful lamp, the Sphinx, all were there.

The ballroom represented an oasis on the desert at night that might have been the Garden of Allah itself, with the beautiful palms and plants so realistically arranged. From the blue sky of the desert night hundreds of tiny stars twinkled while numerous tents with curtains draped back to disclose the elaborate oriental interior had been pitched on the oasis around the sides of the ballroom. Great palms drooped over the tents and here and there in a great burner arose the smoke of incense. Above each tent was a hug star. Beautiful cloud effects were thrown over the sky with colored lights. In the center of the floor were three great pyramids reaching to the top of the balcony, and on the stage sat two silent Sphinxes.

A typical simoon of the desert swept over the place, electrical effects simulating the sandstorm in wonderful manner, and a number of young women gave a charming dance, the Dance of the Simoon. The girls were Martha Wadham, Mary Chatterson, Louise Leovy, Lotta Snow, May Snyder, Evelyn Adamson, Helen Debow, Helen Post, Miss Walsh, Miss Williams, Dorothy Wadham.

Then came the beautiful Ishmaelitish queen, gorgeously gowned and borne in a palanquin by her slaves, and fan bearers, and then the prince and more slaves. Mrs. Luther Kennett was the Queen of the splendid pageant who apened the ball. Muri Borden as Aladdin with the wonderful wishing lamp came next, and then folllowed a dance of the genii. Slowly but surely the two Sphinxes on the stage came to life and gave a charming oriental dance. Misses Mildred Needham and Marion Banks played the part of the Sphinxes.

In the treasure cave of Ali Baba, deep in one of the pyramids, were shown fairylike pictures of beautiful dancers. Miss Florence Gustave danced the Dance of the Jewels; Jack Holland gave a wild dance of the dervish, and then ina pretty electrical illusion appeared a great crystal which gradually was transformed into a jewel, and then magically became a young woman. This astral visitant was represented by Miss Marguerite De la Motte, who gave an intricate dance.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Luster at Once.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of diseases.

Typewriter Speed Secrets

Mistress of the Keys

Three Times World's Champion Typist

PUT ASIDE THE PRIMERS WE USED IN THE LAST SESSION AND LET US DEVOTE SOME ATTENTION TO THE CLASS IN THE FIRST READER. THESE STUDENTS ARE A STEP OR SO BEYOND NOVICES, SO WE WILL START RIGHT OUT TO MAKE COMBINATIONS OF WORDS AND SENTENCES, SKIPPING FROM ONE ROW OF KEYS TO ANOTHER.

OF COURSE you have long been acquainted with the familiar sentences, "The quick brown fox jumps over the lazy dog" and "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party." Even though the lazy dog is tired of jumping and all the men who could vote evidently came to the aid of their party last November, these time-worn sentences are good practice for us, and you may use them in your daily drills. This same rule applies to hundreds of sentences you can construct for yourself. Taking the three rows of keys, find for yourself sentences by which you gain alternation from one row of keys to another, and from one side of the machine to the other.

Here is one I use, although I claim no originality for it:

A quick movement of the enemy would jeopardize six gunboats.

Do not look at your keyboard. No good touch operator would be guilty of such a transgression.

THOSE IMPORTANT FIGURES.

As you have followed these articles you have noticed that thus far I have paid no attention to the figures. This is intentional and for the purpose of emphasizing their importance in a special paragraph. In many of the text-book exercises too little attention is paid to the figures. They are every bit as important as the letters, and if they are not practiced so that you know their location you will be greatly handicapped in your work. If there is hesitation in finding these characters you will notice that lack of perfect rhythm which I so emphatically insist upon.

Perhaps it is necessary to repeat the proper fingering for this row of keys:

Left hand:
Fourth: "
Third: #
Second: $
First: %
5 and 6
Right hand: Fourth)
Third (

Here is the finger exercise which I mentioned, but did not give you in my last article:

FINDING A "PACEMAKER."

Let me explain that real speed work is vastly different from the ordinary routine of office typing, although aiming to be a speed champion, even though you do not succeed in reaching the ladder's top, will certainly improve your writing 100 per cent. The best way to attain great speed, or at least the best method after you have gained adeptness in the fingering I have outlined, is through competition. By this I mean that your side partner in the office can join you in the work and together you can [illegible] toward greater proficiency. It seems strange, but it is a fact, that a [illegible] will spur you on, and the encouragement you get from the sound of the other machine will tend to make you hasten in your own writing. Try it and see.

"FLASH" OF PRINTED WORD.

I have been asked what the first requisite is in typewriting. The answer is, perfect co-ordination between the keys, brain and fingers. Any expert speed operator will tell you this, for experience has taught them all that after a certain time the operation of the typewriter is more or less mechanical. You [illegible] the words in the copy and [illegible] imprint them on the paper without thought of the machine or the [illegible] ing, so that what I may term the flash—the lightning conception of the printed word—is the only [illegible] you have of writing.

CAUGHT in a whirlwind of events, the thoughts of society maids and matrons have been busy, turning rapidly from holiday festivities to the many affairs scheduled for the pre-Lenton season. Among the complimentary parties of the week was the bridge luncheon arranged at the home of Mrs. G. A. Cadwallader, No. 630 Irving, Thursday afternoon, in courtesy to members of the Decoration Committee of the Wednesday Afternoon Club. At cards, Mrs. Clyde Forsythe and Mrs. C. H. Goodson won the highest scores. The guests were Mmes. George Wallace, E. E. Bean, F. A. Turner, E. L. McCormack, H. C. Richardson, Charles Lee Lewis, F. M. Fowler, C. E. Games, E. E. Crandall, Riley Thompson, T. R. Owen, Harold Gay, Clyde Forsythe, E. E. Bailey, Sterns Hutchins, George Ebert, Isaac Boyd, Clarence Van Graham, R. B. Clapp, J. N. Gillies, H. H. Hammond, O. H. A specially pleasant affair of the week was a dinner given by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Van Graham in compliment to their son, William, a student at Berkeley, who is spending the midyear vacation at his home in this city. The decorations were in blue and gold, the university's colors. A low mound of violets and marigolds centered the handsomely-appointed table and cards in the same colors marked places for Mr. William Graham, Mr. Merton Albee, Redondo Beach; Mr. John Baldwin, Mr. George Betts, Mr. George Martin, Los Angeles; Mr. Lyman Waite, San Fernando; Mr. Frank McCulloch, Mt. THE marriage of Miss Olga Rodaway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Rodaway, and Mr. Henry Grimm was solemnized in Santa Clara Church at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning, with the Rev. Mr. Martin officiating. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Grimm of Hugo, Or. The ceremony, which was effectively simple in all its appointments, was attended only by relatives of the two parties, and a few intimate friends. The wedding march was played by Miss Louise Gisler, the bride's cousin. Among the most elaborate of the holiday season's card parties was the bridge luncheon given Thursday by Mrs. H. H. Peters to twenty-four guests. The house was gay with holiday berries and blossoms, and soft red lights furnished the illumination. Prizes were won by Mrs. R. G. Boyden and Mrs. H. H. Bovee at auction bridge, the game of the afternoon.

Have You Backache, Gout, Rheumatism?

(By M. C. Lucas, M. D.)

American men and women should guard constantly against kidney trouble, because we eat too much and all our food is rich. Our blood is filled with uric acid which the kidneys strive to filter out, they weaken from overwork, become sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and the result is kidney trouble, bladder weakness and often the poison reaches the tissues, causing rheumatism and gout.

When your kidneys feel like lumps of lead, when your back hurts or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night, when you suffer with sick headache, or dizzy, nervous spells, acid stomach, or you have rheumatism when the weather is bad, ask your druggist for Anuric (double strength.) I have found in practice that Anuric is more potent than lithia and in most cases it will dissolve the uric acid as hot water does sugar.

Most people do neglect themselves. Their tongue has a dark brown color, skin sallow, breath bad, yet they fail to see that their machinery needs attention. Everybody should take a mild laxative at least once a week. A pleasant way to clear the tongue and the highly colored water noticed in the morning is to take a laxative which will cure the inactive liver and biliousness.

A pleasant vegetable pill is made up of May-apple, leaves of aloe, and jalap, made into a tiny pellet and coated with sugar. First put up by Dr. Pierce nearly 50 years ago. Druggists sell these vegetable pellets in vials, simply ask for Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

Mr. Reinius reading the wedding service. The bride was gowned in white messaline, lace and pearl trimmed, and her wedding veil was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms while white hyacinths and maidenhair ferns comprised the bridal bouquet. Forty guests were present at the ceremony and after an inspection of the costly and beautiful presents refreshments were served with the bride cutting the wedding cake. Mr. Schulthess was born in 1868 at Villnachern, near the Baths of Schniznach in the canton of Aargau, but was raised in the near-by town of Brugg. He received his education in the excellent schools of his native canton, and, after studying law at Strassburg, Munich, Leipzig and Berne, he settled down in that profession at Brugg. He started his political career at the age of 25 and rapidly advanced until he was elected into the Federal Council on July 17, 1912.

Dr. Edmund Gosse, C.B., who has been studying the effect of the war upon the literature of the times, is a well-known figure in English literary life. Nor is his reputation as a critic and writer confined to his own country, for France, Denmark, Norway and Sweden have all recognized his services to current literature by conferring orders upon him. Both prose and verse have claimed his attention, and, among his published prose works, his biographies of Gray and Congreve, and his history of eighteenth-century literature, are well known. His other works include a history of modern English literature and a work on Henrik Ibsen. Dr. Gosse was librarian to the House of Lords for ten years, and was Clark lecturer in English literature at Trinity College, Cambridge, for six years.

Lord Headley has been very active since the beginning of the war as an amateur detective in hunting down German spies and dangerous aliens, spending night after night disguised as a laboring man in the worst districts of London and Liverpool. One night, after 2 o'clock in the morning, he came upon a small baker's shop in the East End of London, which was burning merrily. He took a leading role in the extinction of the flames, and in the rescue of the property, receiving the most profuse thanks of the baker, who claimed to be an Alsatian. Three weeks later Lord Hundley found the same shops in flames, and then it occurred to him that on both nights there had been a Zeppelin attack upon the British metropolis, and that on the second visitation the Zeppelin had dropped a bomb at less than a couple of hundred yards' distance of the great East London waterworks, the baker's shop being situated almost under the very walls of the latter. Investigation led to the discovery that the baker was a German, and that if he had set his shop on fire it was in order to signal to the Zeppelin the location of the East London waterworks. The result was that the baker was lodged in jail, and since then nothing more has been heard of him.

Alonzo A. Stagg, director of athletics at the University of Chicago, who is calling for a "rigid and comprehensive investigation of college athletics" by either the Carnegie Foundation, the Sage Foundation or the General Education Board, and who has induced the National Collegiate Athletic Association to take favorable action on the proposition, was at one time a "star" athlete at Yale. Back in the '80s his was a name to conjure with at New Haven. Leaving college, he came under the influence of Mr. Moody and other religious leaders and for several years was identified with the athletic activities of the student conferences held at Northfield, Mass., and at Lake Geneva, Wis. In 1892 he joined the staff of the then young University of Chicago as a director of the division of physical culture and athletics with the title of associate professor. Since 1900 he has been a professor.

MUSE SMILES ON US.

BRILLIANT WEEK FORECAST FOR LOCAL ARTIST.

This is local artists' week. Several prominent local composers are to have an excellent chance to spread the wings of their art before the public gaze, and leading interpreting musicians will lend their assistance. It is seldom that the events have been so frequent or so notable as the present programme promises.

The premieres of two large works by composers now residing in Los Angeles will take place this week. One of these is the opera, "A Little Girl at Play," by Frank Patterson, the other the "Thunderbird" suite by Charles Wakefield Cadman. In the near future it is announced there will also be given the opera "One Night in Venice," by Manfredi Chiaffarelli, conductor of the band at Venice, Cal. The Matinee Musical Club is to hold its creative evening Thursday.

Presenting also the creative and interpretative work of local musicians, the Schubert Club municipal concert will be given this afternoon at Trinity Auditorium. Selections by the Woman's orchestra, under Mr. Schoenefeld's baton will be the main feature, and prominent soloists have been engaged.

No visiting artists will be featured during the week. The next Philharmonic event will be the recital of Julia Culp the 23rd inst.

Opera Project Progressing.

Among the important local projects now also well along is the establishment of the Los Angeles English Opera Company. The first public rehearsal of the organization will be quite a feature, to take place in the near future. Local soloists are to assist in the rendition of a series of numbers from "Faust" and "Cavalleria Rusticana."

S. M. Pasquali, artistic director of the company, has big plans for the season of opera which he proposes to present in the next few months. Mr. Pasquali, whose wife, Bernice de Pasquali, has been a favorite for many seasons in the operatic world, himself has been prominent in operatic organizations in Italy and in Chicago. His acquaintance with prominent artists will enable him to secure their services advantageously.

A chorus of 250 voices is being trained under the direction of Eduard Lebegott, who for several seasons was assistant conductor in the Lambardi troupe, and has been prominently identified with musical activities here in the past several years. There is a ballet of seventy-five members, also rehearsing the dances to be introduced in the operas.

Mr. Pasquali is looking forward to the permanent establishment of this company in his work, and plans to enlarge the repertoire from season to season. He hopes to present about six different works this year.

Mme. Schumann-Heink has accepted an invitation to be present at the public rehearsal of the opera company, as she herself is very much interested in the establishment of a similar organization.

Notable Cadman Work.

Nothing of recent date in the musical world promises to excite so much local interest as the coming premieres of Cadman's "Thunder bird" suite and Frank Patterson's opera "The Little Girl at Play."

The Cadman suite is to be given its first presentation Friday afternoon at the public rehearsal of the Symphony Orchestra, and will be repeated at the concert, Saturday evening. It is said to mark a far advance in the methods of this ever interesting composer, who has made Los Angeles his place of residence.

It is an odd name Charles Wakefield Cadman has attached to his suite. Such a title as "The Thunderbird" requires some explanation. Mr. Cadman recently completed incidental music in twelve numbers, for a drama on Indian themes, by Norman Geddes. The subject of this is from a legend of the Blackfoot Indian tribe and the Thunderbird is one of their mystic beliefs. From these twelve numbers, the composer selected five, which he presents as a suite, the titles being, "Before the Sunrise," "Nuwana's Love Song," "Night Song," "The Dance" and "The Passing of Nuwana."

In the stage version, Mr. Cadman uses the unusual expedient of presenting his themes vocally, unaccompanied, from the stage and later dressing them up in modern garb with full orchestral treatment. This latter, which is heard in the suite, is what might be called a civilized idealization of simple barbaric tunes.

He has been successful in maintaining something of the Indian atmosphere, yet not enough to turn music into discord, it is said. It must be remembered that the music is modern, and is intended to be nothing else, but the basic themes are from the tribal melodies.

Part of the music may be regarded as descriptive of the title—"The Dance," for instance, where the ankle bells, the shouts of the warriors and the screams of women and children are heard in the general camp uproar, but all pervaded by the "war" song from the tribe.

Other sections are more atmospheric, are less realistic, and have less of the programme idea. Mr. Cadman has not felt bound by the rules of conventional orchestration, nor, on the other hand, has he gone to wild extravagance of coloring in order to get effect.

Besides the Cadman number the Symphony programme will also include the overture to Byron's "Manfred," by Schumannu; (Symphony No. 1, in E flat ("Rustic Wedding") by Goldmark.

Tragedy of Slums.

Frank Patterson's opera, "The Little Girl at Play," is to receive its first production Friday morning before the Friday Morning Club. It is described as a tragedy of the slums, and has a powerful and vivid plot. The music is not of the ultra modern school, and the score is rich in its medolic interest, some excellent opportunities for solo work being afforded the three characters.

The idea for the opera was suggested to Mr. Patterson by a picture he saw in a Paris salon, wherein a little girl watches a fight between several cripples, apparently with her as the prize of conquest.

The story of the opera deals with the longings of a cripple for love. He is mistreated by his brother, for whom he begs. This brother challenges the cripple to find anybody to love him. At this moment a girl comes on the scene, and the young beggar attempts to attract her fancy but she scoffs at him. Later the brother returns, and she makes a play at love with the cripple. The brother then carries her away with him, despite the cripple's protestations. The cripple prays for strength to overcome his brother, and upon the latter's return manaes to crawl over him while he is asleep and gag him. The girl returns and acknowledge her love for the hale brother, whereupon the cripple stabs her. After his brother, who has freed himself throws him on the ground, he clasps the head of the dead girl to his heart.

Julia Culp, Liedersinger
Lucien Muratore, Lyric tenor
Nell Lockwood, Contralto
Charles Wakefield Cadman, Composer

In the world of lyric art.

Julia Culp, noted liedersinger, will be heard in two programmes the evening of the 23rd and matinee the 27th, at Trinity Auditorium; Lucien Muratore, operatic tenor, who has won fame with the Chicago Opera Company this season, will appear here in joint recital with Cavalieri soon; Charles Wakefield Cadman is composer of the "Thunderbird" suite to be given its premiere this week by the Symphony Orchestra, and Nell Lockwood, contralto, will be soloist with the Ellis Club Tuesday evening.

Musically the work promises to be intensely interesting in its method of bringing out the dramatic incidents of the plot. The principal roles will be assumed as follows: Peter, a cripple, baritone, Charles Henri de la Plate; Nick, his brother, tenor, J. A. Stockman; Peg, a young girl, soprano, Edith Norton.

Accompaniment for the work will be furnished by piano and string quartette, Mr. Patterson conducting. Julius Bierlich will be concert master, and Mrs. May MacDonald-Hope will be at the piano. Stage direction is in charge of Miss Josephine Dillon, and the scenery has been painted by Mrs. Randall Hutchinson.

The libretto for the opera was written by Mr. Patterson in collaboration with Tyndall Gray.

Mr. Pateerson is local representative of the Musical Courier of New York. He has been prominently identified with local musical enterprises, and his talks at the symphony luncheons this season have been a feature. He has been a member of symphony orchestras in a number of large cities, and was formerly a first violinist in the local organization. He has taught musical theory and composition, and has an exceedingly broad knowledge of musical work, both in this country and abroad, from his connection with the Musical Courier in the East and in Europe.

Ellis Club.

The second Ellis Club concert for the present season will be given on Tuesday evening at Trinity Auditorium. Soloist for the event will be Nell Lockwood, contralto, who has just returned from a very successful recital tour in the Hawaiian Islands. Miss Lockwood has sung here before the Friday Morning Club and Lyric Club to delighted audiences. The Musical Courier has said regarding her work that she has the divine spark that makes the true artist, the real dramatic fire and sense of values, without which, no matter how lovely the voice, success is impossible.

The club selections are well and interestingly varied, following being the programme: "The Flying Dutchman's Review" (Spross;) "On the Water" (Mendelssohn,) and "O that We Two Were Maying" (Nevin,) Ellis Club; "Gypsy Compensation" (Kaull,) "Tune Thy Strings, O Gypsy," and "Freedom" (Dvorak,) Nell Lockwood; "Men of the Trail" (Ruffner,) and "O Holy Night" (Adam,) Ellis Club; "The Dawn" (Hammond,) "Serenade" (Hayden,) "Rolling Down to Rio" (German,) and "El Canto del Presidiario" (Alvarez,) Nell Lockwood; "Autumn Sunset" (Goring,) and "Spirit of Beauty" (Parker,) Ellis Club.

Muratore Coming, Too.

Lucien Muratore, the tenor who has won so much fame with the Chicago Opera Company this season, in his portrayal of the role of Pagliacci and others, is to be heard in joint recital with his wife, Lina Cavalieri, the noted beauty and opera star, in February. The event will take place at Shrine Auditorium, as an unusually large attendance is anticipated.

Liedersinger Next Week.

Julia Culp is to furnish delight to music lovers in two recitals the evening of the 23rd and the afternoon of the 27th. Her programme will contain selections from the composers of various lands, among the novelties being Russian and Dutch numbers. Julia Culp was heard here two seasons ago and achieved a notable success at that time. Her accompanist will be Coenraad V. Bos.

Minneapolis Symphony.

The engagement of the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra in this city is arranged for the dates of February 4, 5 and 6 at Trinity Auditorium. This will be the first time the famous Oberhoffer orchestra has ever played in this city, although their fame throughout the East is widespread. The programmes will include, among other numbers, the Tschafkowsky Symphony in F minor, Ballet Suite, by Max Reger; "Under the Linden Trees," by Massenet, and "Carneval," by Dvorak.

Municipal Concert.

The series of municipal concerts to be started this afternoon under the auspices of the Schubert Club at Trinity Auditorium, with programmes to follow at intervals of two weeks, will undoubtedly prove of exceeding value in bringing to the front the work of local musicians. The first programme is to feature the Woman's Orchestra, under the direction of Henry Schoenefeld. One of this musician's own compositions, "Lullaby," for string orchestra, beside several pieces by other local composers, is to be included.. Soloists for the occasion will be Constance Balfour, soprano, and Gage Christopher, basso. Will Garroway will assist at the piano. Bessie Fuhrer is concert mistress of the orchestra.

Mr. Schoenefeld for the past several years has been conductor of the Woman's Orchestra, which has made marked progress under his baton. He has also achieved some very brilliant results in composition. He won a notable prize with his piano and violin sonata, and his violin concerto recently published has received surpassing praise by critics.

Following is the programme announced:

Overture, "Preciosa" (Weber,) Woman's Orchestra; "Vision Fugitive," "Herodiade" (Massenet,) Mr. Christopher; "Lullaby" (Schoenefeld) and "Conzonetta" (Heimendahl,) string orchestra; Jewel Song from "Faust" (Gounod,) Constance Balfour; march, "Leonore" (Raff;) "Marguerita," a California serenade (Josephine C. Johnston,) "Dream Lullaby" (Julius Kranz) and "Love is the Wind" (MacFadyen,) Constance Balfour; "The Pilgrims' Song" (Tschaikowsky,) Mr. Christopher; "Ballet Russe" (Luigini.)

Gamut Club.

The subject matter of the next meeting of the Gamut Club at their smoker Wednesday evening will be dry—that is, the desert is the topic. The dry movement, however, does not extend to the refreshment provided for the guests. Despite its dryness, the programme promises to be among the most interesting given this year. There will be an excellent illustrated lecture on "The Lure of the Desert," by Lou Westcott Beck, traveler, prospector and explorer, and musical selections will include several local composers' successes. Following is the programme:

Arab chant from symphonic ode, "The Desert" (Felicien David,) sung by Mr. Dupuy; Redman's Death Chant (Bliss,) Gamut Club Tri-quartette; Desert Suite (Grunn,) composer at piano; "The Desert" (Gertrude Ross,) sung by Lawrence Tibbett; Plainsman's Song (Bliss,) tri-quartette; selected readings, Robert Garnier Coole, the poet of the desert.

Opera Premiere.

First performances of "One Night in Venice," composed by Manfredi Chiaffarelli, with libretto by Miss Grace Adele Pierce, are to take place the 22nd and 23rd inst. at Venice Auditorium. The cast has just been announced.

Constantino is to sing the leading role at both performances. On the 22nd inst. he is to be supported by Emilia Vergeri, soprano; Paola Bartoluzzi, contralto, and Italo Picchi, basso. On the 23rd inst. the supporting cast will be Constance Balfour, soprano; Miriam White, contralto, and Italo Picchi. The cast supporting Constantino is an especially capable one, all the artists being stars of repute, insuring to the opera an interpretation in accord with the highest artistic standards.

The leading role is admirably suited to Constantino's magnificent voice. The lyric strains of the operatic motive and the beauty and appeal of the love romance give to this great artist the background that has always throughout his career furnished him with inspiration for the creation of a superior role.

The orchestra will consist of forty specially selected musicians. There will be a chorus of forty-five voices. A ballet of twelve beautiful girls selected from Venice society and instructed by Mlle. Guaironi, late of the Imperial opera, Wiesbaden, will form a prominent feature. CAVIAR FOR KING.

HIGH-CLASS FEATURES ON PICTURE ROW.

The magicians of the film world week will offer a variety of each of which will appeal in its own special manner, to devotees of the screen. The big feature of the cinema art is the Woman," featuring Geraldine Farrar as the savior of France. The story was written by MacPherson and is said to be from start to finish. Another picture to claim attention photoplay lovers is "God's Crucible," taken in the Grand Canyon and said to be a poem in photographic art. This play Myrtle Gonzales and George with Frankie Lee in for good measure. Mary is to appear in a new play, "The Pride of the Clan," while "The of the World" is boked for another week here.

to appear in the film sky the coming week include Mrs. Castle, L. W. Steers, Daisy Milton Brown, William Emmy Wehlen, Douglas Fairbanks, Blanche Sweet and of others.

The stars are well supported by L. W. Steers, Daisy Robinson, William Hutchason and Milton Brown.

Added attractions include a snappy comedy, the current Pathe news and another episode of "Pearl of the Army."

Symphony.

The folly of a girl in allowing her imagination to run riot on the subject of beautiful clothes is strikingly shown in "Vanity," the attraction at the Symphony this week. The sensational story, by Aaron Hoffman, deals with a girl who is employed as a model at Martel's, where her duty is to try on lovely gowns to display to fashionable customers. She is filled with a desire for beautiful clothes and goes to gambling.

The chief detective has her discharged and forces her to assist in securing a confession from a young man who is suspected of murder. Although he is not guilty, the girl wrings from him a damaging confession and he is arrested. It is then that the girl discovers she loves the suspected man and she moves heaven and earth to establish his innocence.

In this play Emmy Wehlen, recognized as one of the best-dressed women in the world, wears gowns and wraps that display the latest styles.

Tally's Broadway.

If Tally's Broadway Theater had the seating capacity of Clune's Auditorium there might have been no necessity for running "The Foolish Virgin" for another week, but the attendance at the popular Broadway house has been so great during the past week that it has been decided to run the big picture another seven days in order to accommodate those who have not been able to obtain seats.

"The Foolish Virgin," featuring the renowned Clara Kimball Young, is taken from Thomas Dixon's story and deals with the disillusionment of a young girl who believes that the world is all honey and smiles and who suddenly awakens to find herself in the midst of environments that stagger her faith in the goodness of life. Miss Young is supported by the clever Conway Terle and an all-star cast.

"The Land of Silence," another big feature of the programme, will also enter its second week tomorrow.

Clune's Auditorium.

The early booking of grand opera at Clune's Auditorium will necessarily shorten the present stay of "The Eyes of the World," which is entering its third week. That theater patrons love above everything else is a red-blooded story has once more been proven by the reception accorded Harold Bell Wright's remarkable story of the sensuous Southland. Through the whole ten reels there is hardly an incident without swift and fascinating action. The photography, too, has caused widespread comment while the characterizations by a splendidly balanced cast are claimed by many to be the best ever seen in a picture of this length.

The management of the Auditorium asserts that the crowds that have flocked to this new sensation of the cinema world have broken several splendid records for attendance.

Alhambra.

William Farnum, proclaimed the greatest actor on the screen, will be seen at the Alhambra for a week beginning today, in "The Price of Silence," which created so much discussion among the patrons of Miller's Theater during the week just closed. Mr. Farnum is seen as a senator who has given years of his life to fighting for the rights of children. The film shows him giving up this splendid work, the girl he loves and his very honor for the sake of a friend. It is a story that causes a deal of argument as to whether the hero was right in his decision, but the drama is so engrossing and the acting so intensely realistic that, regardless of differing opinions concerning the senator's ethics, the play itself remains highly entertaining.

Other stars besides Mr. Farnum who appear in this production are Vivian Rich, Charles Clary, Brooklyn Keller, Gordon Griffith and Frank Clark. The added attraction is a two-reel burlesque comedy entitled "When Damon Fell for Pythias."

Garrick.

Douglas Fairbanks, equal in his own line to Charlie Chaplin, as a comedian de luxe, will be the attraction at the Garrick this week. His fun vehicle will be "His Picture in the Papers," which, according to advance reports is just one hearty laugh after another. The situations give the comedian extraordinary opportunities to display his talents as the "smile-a-minute" grouch eradicator.

With his jovial grin and winning smile Fairbanks is fast becoming the idol of the fun film fans of America. He has scores of admirers who met him personally when he was staging a series of pictures at the local Fine Arts studios, as well as thousands of enthusiasts who know him only from the spirit of his work on the screen.

NEW RAILROAD SERIAL.

Helen Holmes Company Ready to Start Thirty-Reeler.

The members of the Helen Holmes Company tomorrow, under the direction of J. P. McGowan, will begin production of a thirty-reel railroad serial. The stories for this serial are being prepared by P. G. Estee, well-known newspaper and magazine contributor of the East. As fast as the stories are received, they will be put into working form by producer McGowan. The tentative title for the serial is "Webs of Steel," though it is probable that this will be changed before the date of release.

Will Chapman, a well-known stock leading man, has been secured to play the masculine lead in the serial, opposite Miss Holmes.

VICTOR HUGO STORY SCREENED BY FOX.

The first super de luxe William Fox production, featuring Theda Bara, is to be shown at Miller's Theater the week of the 21st. These superpictures de luxe are to be plays of highest quality, gorgeously staged, without sparing any legitimate expense, and enacted by the most talented players available. "The Darling of Paris" is the first of these productions, and is based on Victor Hugo's famous tragedy "The Hunchback of Notre Dame." Miss Bara will impersonate the gypsy girl Esmeralda.

NIPPONESE ART CREATION.

Cherry Blossom Players to Give Performances Soon.

Cherry Blossom Players, comprising a number of Japanese actors of known ability, presenting interpretative dances, native music and one-act plays and pantomimes, under the artistic direction of Clarence B. McGehee and the business management of L. E. Behymer, will open their first season at the Hotel Alexandria within a week or two. An unique and totally different kind of attraction and entertainment, in every sense of the word, is promised.

Sword and fan dances of a most spectacular nature, rarely seen anywhere except in the land of the Rising Sun, festival and folk dances, symbolic and religious dances done for hundreds of years in Nippon, and humorous and character dances are one part of the programme. Native music on koto, samisen and shakuhachi will be given, as well as the famous "Ten Thousand Cherry Trees," one of the oldest and most popular plays.

An English lecturer, as well as the customary Japanese "Joruri," which means story teller, will add to the dramatic and humorous factors of the performance.

Special stage settings have been designed and executed by Frank Lloyd Wright, and the costumes are exceedingly picturesque and brilliant. Yukio Aoyama, leading man of the company, has an established reputation in Tokio, and other artists are of first rank.

This is the first production of the kind to be undertaken in this country, and widespread interest is being shown. The producer, Clarence McGehee, dwelt for several years in Japan, and is an authority on the life, manners, customs and drama of the Nipponese.

CHARACTER FROM LIFE.

Remarkable Resemblance to Two Noted Literary Men is Observed in Creation of Salisbury in "The Eyes of the World."

Is Monroe Salisbury, who plays the role of Conrad Legrange in "The Eyes of the World," the motion-picture sensation at Clune's Auditorium Theater, the reincarnation of Allen Kelly or Arthur McEwen?

The remarkable characterization of the cynical, but kindly, novelist in the Clune production is so lifelike that it does not seem to be acted. More than any other part in the filmed story of Harold Bell Wright's famous book, that played by Salisbury is the theme of comment among the thousands who have admired this great photodrama. Among the oldtimers in the audience there seems to be about an equal division of opinion as to whether Salisbury patterned his creation of the part after the one or the other of the above-named celebrities.

McEwen was one of the most celebrated journalists that California has produced. Twenty-five years ago he had a fame that extended from ocean to ocean, and it was characteristic of him that he was as impatient of shams as either Wright or his character Legrange, which is played by Salisbury.

Allen Kelly died recently in this city. He was formerly editor and part owner of the Imperial Valley Press, and had been a regular contributor to many papers in the Imperial Valley, and his active pen had written for Los Angeles publications. He was also a historian and had written much on Southern California topics of the past.

One Imperial Valley resident who saw Salisbury's characterization wrote: "His (Kelly's) habits, clothing and every item were closely reproduced in Salisbury's characterization, and he seems to have been brought back to life by this actor's remarkable make-up."

Allen Kelly was long a close friend and literary comrade of Harold Bell Wright, and it is believed that the character of Legrange in "The Eyes of the World" is a portrait of him, because of the fact that Kelly was in temperament much like the man drawn in the Wright romance.

McEwen, whom another writer declares has been brought back "to the flesh," was noted for his contempt for a public that wanted his most flashy output in preference to his best.

The strangest part of the whole matter is that Salisbury never saw McEwen or Kelly and never even knew of them. The conception of the part of Legrange is entirely his own, and the coincidence here noted is pure accident.

CLEAN FILMS TO BE HIS SLOGAN.

PEOPLE SICK OF BEING FED FILTH SAYS PRODUCER.

Begins Construction of Classy Motion-picture Plant on Beautiful Location Within City Limits. Purchases First Scenario from Local Writer for High Figure.

On one of the most beautiful elevations in Boyle Heights, adjoining the site on which stands the biggest Catholic orphans' home in the West, Isadore Bernstein, founder of Universal City, has begun the construction of a de luxe moving picture studio, which, when completed, will be the equal of any plant of the kind in Southern California. The erection of the studio is the first step toward the realization of Mr. Bernstein's dream of the production of "clean play for clean-minded people."

The first stage under construction is to be 152x80 feet in dimensions, with a height of twenty-four feet from diffusers to the floor, the entire structure resting upon 756 concrete piles, making the big stage immune to vibrations.

The studio, which will stand immediately to the north of Mr. Bernstein's residence, a castle of Germanic architecture, built nearly half a century ago, is situated in the heart of one of the most ideal locations in the Southwest. The entire eight acres of grass-green earth is covered with the flora and fauna of every land upon the face of the globe.

"The one big policy in the production of pictures at this studio," declared Mr. Bernstein, "is to give vigorous, beautiful, clean plays to that major element of the theater-going public who is tired of being treated like hogs and fed upon slop.

"Nine-tenths of the people who patronize the moving-picture houses are the clean-minded fathers and mothers and their children, for whose entertainment and education they rightly feel responsible. When theatrical managers and picture producers claim that people enjoy wallowing in filth and having smut rubbed in their eyes they are mistaken. Give people half a chance to patronize a clean play and you will see whether or not the verdict coincides with the opinions of those managers.

It is "The Old Homestead" and "In Old Kentucky" that live and are forever popular. It is such plays as "Common Clay" and "The Easiest Way" that die a quick and merited death, and are buried in the oblivion of their own slime.

"One of the first photodramas which I shall produce will be a problem play by Henry Christeen Warnack, author of 'The Honor System.' For this script I am paying Mr. Warnack the highest price ever paid for a scenario, and the reason I am doing so is because I consider it the best scenario from every standpoint, that I have ever had submitted to me.

"Fascinating in its theme, strong in plot and abounding in rich situations, there is a thrill in every scene of it, yet the secret of the strength and beauty of the play lies in the fact that it is a romance of love, not of lust. It is not based upon the morbid and sick psychology, but upon the elemental passions and ideals of men and women which are as beautiful and as worthy today as they were when the first perfect man and woman walked hand in hand beneath the blooming bowers of Eden."

Mr. Bernstein has taken an option on other of Mr. Warnack's plays, and he also has contracts for all the works of James and Ethel Dorance and of Ray Lewis, the Canadian poetess.

The continuity for Mr. Warnack's plays will be written by William Henry Lippert, author of "The Nigger." Mr. Lippert has also taken over the fiction rights on three of Mr. Warnack's ten-reel photodramas.

picture people gathered around should not hear. "I wouldn't mind going to jail for speeding, nor maiming a fellow-being by running over him, but the Screamer must be got out. There's a really interesting story by Bennie Ziedman, a new joke by Roscoe Arbuckle, and I myself——" but the crowd had vanished.

No Flitting for Charles.

Charles Ray, the Ince star, despite many other tempting offers, has decided to cast in his lot during several years to come with the Culver City people.

There were many rumors afloat that Ray would leave the New York Motion Picture Corporation when his contract expired early this month, as it was known he had received two big offers from New York producers. However, he decided that Mr. Ince had given him his chance, and that, all things considered, he was better off in the Ince employ than elsewhere.

Announcement Extraordinary.

William N. Selig has made an announcement of forthcoming Selig spectacular specials that is most interesting. Among the number will be picturizations of Booth Tarkington's "Monsieur Beaucaire," Albert Bigelow Paine's "The Bread Line," James Whitcomb Riley's "Little Orphan Annie," Edward Baird's "The City of Purple Dreams," Francis Powers's "The First Born," Randall Parish's "Bob Hampton of Placer" and Opie Read's "A Kentucky Colonel." Negotiations for E. Phillips Oppenheim's "The Illustrious Prince" also are under way.

Contamination Note.

Bessie Eyton is so used to doing little stunts such as falling in the ocean and being dog bitten and ship wrecked that now she just can't make her adventurous spirit behave. She started to motor from San Diego to Los Angeles the other day, but got lost in a fog and wandered about all night before finding the right road.

Life Membership Stuff.

After working at Universal City a long period Kingsley Benedict has been given a long-time contract to play leading roles with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company.

Benedict made a distinct impression upon Vice-President H. O. Davis by his performance in Rupert Julian's "The Bugiar of Algiers."

Dances American Anyway.

We've all heard the Nat Goodwin alibi about giving a Chinaman a music lesson, but it remained for Herbert Rawlinson, of the Universal, to teach Frank (Frank being a free translation of Ijitsu or something,) Tokanaga, a young Japanese actor, how to disport his limbs in the nimble fox trot. The young son of Nippon encountered his first difficulty recently when in a production in which Herbert Rawlinson plays the lead, he found he would have to dance to syncopated music. Frank went to "Rawly" with tears in his eyes, begging for instruction. Mr. Rawlinson good-naturedly complied, and the Nipponese actor gave a good imitation of an American in a recent dance scene. Also Rawlinson is in receipt of a grateful communication in which the Japanese youth thanks the actor for "instruction in the honorable but restless dance."

Fortune-telling Note.

After all you never can tell with a scenario any more than you can with a play, how it will screen, or how be received by the public. Take Rex Ingram's "Black Orchids," which has made a big success all over the country. Mr. Ingram wrote the story two years ago while directing Clara Kimball Young, submitted it to William Brady, who pronounced it splendid, but not practicable for screen purposes. Then it was taken to Pathe, then to the Metro, then to Famous Players and everywhere turned down.

"Finally out here at Universal City, I was up against it for a story. I took out 'Black Orchids,'" said Mr. Ingram, "dusted it off, patched it up where the manuscript was worn out from much handling, and showed it to Mr. H. O. Davis. He was enthusiastic, and told me to go ahead, and produce it, sparing no pains nor expense. It is to his advice and generosity that I owe the success of the photoplay."

Emigration Maybe?

The Misses Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Fine Arts stars, have purchased six lots in Sylvan Dell, a rural district in Pennsylvania, and are reported about to build a summer home there.

Anna a Missionary.

Anna Luther just can't make her kindness of heart behave. During the filming of the hold-up scene for the new George Walsh picture, which Otis Turner is making for William Fox, Anna Luther was missed. The company was spending the night in the open near Inglewood, where they had hired an entire train and were filming glimpses of bandit doings.

Frantic search was instituted for Miss Luther, as the photographing could not go on without her. She was finally found. She was in a cabin near the scene of the mimic hold-up, telling fairy tales to a bedful of six poor children who seemed to think that Miss Luther must be one of the good fairies she was telling them about.

Preparedness Note.

Brooklyn Keller, Fox comedian, has now moved his home to a flat above a drug store. He has played in several dramatic subjects for William Fox, but has recently completed his first comedy role under one of the Fox film directors. Actual count, when the film was finished showed that Mr. Keller had done eighty-nine ear and eyebrow falls.

Understudies the Bee.

Richard Stanton began this week the filming of a new photoplay in which Gladys Brockwell will star. This will be Miss Brockwell's second production under Mr. Stanton's direction. The first, recently completed, will be released to Fox exhibitors toward the end of this month.

Truth Note.

"According to their press agents," some one said to Anna Luther, Fox star, "movie actresses design all the clothes they wear."

"Some of them look it," replied Anna, sententiously, and without any effort to steal Stuart Holmes's business.

Gallagher a Film.

A dramatization of "Gallagher," the famous newspaper story that first brought the late Richard Harding Davis to the attention of the literary world, has just been completed at the Bronx studios of Thomas A. Edison, Inc., and it will be released at an early date under the brand of Conquest Pictures.

But Think of the Trousseau!

Sounds like a paradox—but Marguerite Clayton, Essanay star, gets married ten times in the Essanay series, "Is Marriage Sacred?"

Nobody is Safe.

Richard Walton Tully, author of "The Bird of Paradise," and responsible for the ukulele disorder, had better not show up around the Pollard stuios in San Diego for a while. Margarita Fisher, star of Pollard pictures, received a ukulele for a Christmas present. J. Gordon Russell also found a ukulele in his stocking on the Yuletide morning. Santa Claus likewise remembered Munroe Salisbury with a ukulele.

What should greet Joseph Harris on his arrival at the breakfast table on Christmas morning but a ukulele! A ukulele came all the way from tropical Hawaii as a gift to Jack Mower. Even Baby Marie Frances Kiernan received her Christmas uke. Alas, work will come hard at the Pollard studios for the next few months.

Back to Nature.

Such a busy little person is that Helen Holmes. This week she purchased a $1500 gasoline tractor for use on her ranch in Utah, and she's going to learn how to "chauf" it too. She plans to visit the ranch with her husband, J. P. McGowan, following the completion of the Signal serial, "Lass of the Lumberlands."

Miss Sais is Exclusive.

And now it's Marin Sais, Kalem star, who is attacked with the studio de luxe disorder! Miss Sais is to head her own company, under the Kalem management, from now on. It is understod that "The Girl from Frisco" series will go on indefinitely as it has proven a big box office attraction.

Perils of Pauline and Tom.

The big snow storm which struck New York last week found poor Pauline Frederick playing a maiden from the south of sunny Spain, and attired accordingly, but her shiverings were as naught compared to those of the much more unfortunate Tom Meighan, who is appearing opposite her. Meighan was transferred from the Lasky Studio in Hollywood to the Famous Players' Studio in New York a few weeks ago. It is now the popular pastime at the studio to say, "Good morning, Tom," and hear him roar like a wounded lion. Those who are versed in the lion language say the burden of Meighan's growls is, "I want to go back, back, back to Hollywood."

Ought to Know.

Mrs. William Farnum, wife of the Fox star, was engaging a nurse for her child one day last week.

"Have you had any experience with children?" she asked one of the applicants.

"Sure, ma'am, I used to be a child myself," was the reply.

Was Right There.

Conversation between Douglas Gerrard and William Worthington at Universal Studio one day last week:

W: That's a bad cold you have, Doug. Are you taking anything for it?

G: Thanks, Bill, I don't care if I do.

Princess of Patches.

"The Princess of Patches," a film version of Mark Swan's famous story, will shortly be released by the Selig company. In it appear Vivian Reed, Charles LeMoyne, Frank Wood and others.

Marjorie Comes Home.

Marjorie Daw, the 16-year-old protege of Geraldine Farrar, has rejoined the Lasky company after playing the title role in the Great West Film Company's five-reel picture, "The Sunset Princess."

Actions Speak Louder.

Nicholas Dunaew, the well-known Russian actor, is being starred by the Universal in a five-reel feature, entitled "Flowers of Doom," under the direction of Rex Ingram. The picture is nearly finished.

Alma Whitaker is engaged in writing a photoplay for Dunaew.

Dog Days in Films.

After all, maybe the film business is going to the dogs. The business files in Mack Sennett's office contain contracts with Raymond Hitchcock, Eddie Foy, Sam Bernard and other celebrities, but not until last week was a contract ever made with a dog. Teddy, the Great Dane dog, who is featured in "Nick of Time Baby," has been advanced from an extra to a regular actor with a contract. Teddy is all but human.

Ditto.

A scientific fact is this week contributed by the Keystone p. a.

The way to lead six dogs is not on the same string. This sounds simple, but the concrete application of the rule is what counts.

One day last week out at the studio they were working on a new Harry Gribbon comedy in which a flock of dogs appear. In the intervals the animals were kept tethered in various parts of the plant.

There being not much to do, the German police dog made a remark in a loud tone about the English setter, which was overheard by the latter animal and deeply resented. In fact the resenting was loud and long.

When the light began to fade along came a young man to chaperon the dogs back to the kennels. He decided not to bother to make six trips to deliver each dog separately, but to take them all on the same string.

!!! ???? xxxxxxxx ....

After he had picked himself up and brushed off the dirt, bystanders overheard a remark from the young man, quietly, but feelingly, uttered: "I bet that wasn't the best way to take them there dogs home!"

Pathe Scores.

Pathe announces for release at an early date a five-part feature, "Kick In," adapted from Willard Mack's famous stage success. William Courtenay is starred, supported by Mollie King and Susanne Willa.

Might Have Needed Double.

Kathleen Kirkham, Pollard Pictures star, had a narrow escape from death last Wednesday night. Miss Kirkham had retired, and her mother had been sitting by the floor heater and, in preparing to retire, thought she had turned off the gas. A few hours later Miss Kirkham awoke almost stifled by the escaping fumes, but managed to alarm her mother in the adjoining room before falling back on the bed unconscious. It was almost an hour before she was fully resuscitated, and had it not been for a window partially opened Miss Kirkham undoubtedly would not have been able to play the part of Marion Dane in "The Devil's Assistant" next day.

Brow Note.

The next western Vitagraph feature co-starring Edith Storey and Antonio Moreno is to be a filmization of Hamlin Garland's famous Indian story, "The Captain of the Gray Horse Troop." For some weeks Director William Wolbert has been spending many hours a day in preparing this feature, it being the intention to portray the Indian as a human being with the same love and passions, spirit of revenge and gratitude as the white man. In the work of preparation, Director Wolbert has the co-operation of both the United States Research Bureau and the Association of American Indians.

Where Seeds with a Pedigree are Bred

OUTSIDE the bustling, hustling automobile city of Detroit—out in the quiet countryside where Father T seems to linger and lose some of the mad urge from his stride—is the beautiful farm of Oakview.

Here, where the air is clean and sweet and the mellow sunshine is like unalloyed gold, where the bees the wholesome smell of new turned earth fills the nostrils, is a wonderful organization of men engrossed in a of far-spreading influence.

Oakview Farm, to the eye of the visitor, is a mammoth and luxuriant garden of 684 acres. Here, each season, in the glory of their greatest perfection, are thousands on thousands of rows of the finest garden and flowers in wonderful variety and profusion.

Why Ferry's Seeds Are Preferred

Oakview is more than a farm and more than a garden. It is the breeding place and trial ground where the millions of flower and garden seeds, grown all over the world for D. M. Ferry & Co., are tested for vigor, trueness to type, productiveness and quality.

Ferry's Seeds own a wonderful reputation among professional and amateur gardeners all over this country. They are preferred, year after year, because they grow, because they produce generously and luxuriantly and because their flowers or fruit are of exceptionally fine quality.

This name has been won for Ferry's Seeds by the great care and patience and study practiced in seed selection and testing at Oakview Farm.

Almost every country of this earth, almost every belt of climate is peculiarly adapted to produce some certain plant, some vegetable, some flower in its highest degree of perfection.

England is famous, among other things, for her garden peas and turnips. In the ancient kingdom of Anjou on the River Loire in France is a fertile valley where wonderful radishes, beets, celery and carrots grow and flowers of various kinds reach the pinnacle of perfection.

Where Some Ferry Seeds Originate

Denmark's cool climate is especially favorable to many kinds of vegetable seeds, while in Holland near the Zuyder Zee are grown flowers of rare beauty and quality.

Idaho and Montana grow some of the finest peas. The Middle West is the home of the most delicious sweet corn. Michigan produces some extra fine types of tomatoes, melons and cucumbers. Sun-kissed California brings forth peerless types of crisp lettuce, glorious sweet peas and the humble onion. Asters grow magnificently on the shores of the Great Lakes. Colorado and Kansas contribute those wonderful melons, the Emerald Gem Musk Melon and the Admiral Togo.

It is in these special places that the crops of Ferry's Seeds are grown. Scattered around the world, there are 33,496 acres of seed farms growing vegetable and flower seeds of special quality strains for D. M. Ferry & Co., under Ferry direction, to meet the requirements of the Ferry ideal.

It is to preserve this ideal, to perpetuate pure-bred seeds, to reduce the loss sustained by gardeners from planting mongrel seeds, that Oakview Farm is maintained.

To Oakview come the choice seeds grown for Ferry in the world's other garden spots. Here they are first tested for germination—the power to live.

In little boxes of earth are planted as many "tests" as are thought necessary to indicate the germination of any given lot of seeds. A hundred seeds are planted. When the sprouts appear, they are counted and the average of all the tests is taken. The percentage credited to that entire lot of seed. More than 60,000 are made at Oakview annually.

But the seeds of a weed will grow. Seed of poor reproduce. Quality of production, trueness to a perfect type, supreme test. So, after the germination tests in the Oakview more seeds of the same lot are planted in the Oakview trial

Proving Ferry Quality

These gardens are plotted and each planting is staked, and dated. Each individual plant, when it appears, is A fixed standard of quality is established at Oakview for of vegetable and flower, and when the first fruits or bloom planting are mature, the men in charge go into the cards and standard and note every quality and vigor and product.

Oakview Farm is a commercial institution. It is make Ferry's Seeds a commercial advantage to the thousands and gardeners who depend on Ferry quality to bring reward for their investment of money, time and labor.

DO YOUR TREES MAKE GOOD?

[illegible] Test Brought Dairy Standards—Same can be Done for Citrus Trees—A. D. Shamel Sums up Work of Several Years in Applying Tree-records in Orchards—Eliminates the Tree that Rides Along on the Good Talents of Others.

[illegible] a fortunate happening for the citrus growers of this State, to use the language of one of the [illegible] at the recent citrus institute, that A. D. Shamel fell sick at [illegible] and was obliged to come to California.

Shamel, although a young man, has been for years connected with the work of the United States Department of Agriculture. His name and work are well-known to all [illegible] growers now.

Shamel first wins the attention of [illegible] by his unbounded enthusiasm, a characteristic spoken of by Dean H. J. Webber in referring to him. But it is not the enthusiasm of one who has found a new toy. The keynote of our investigation in [illegible] in the United States is [illegible] based on the necessity for attention, as is the [illegible] case in much of the [illegible] college work. Shamel has [illegible] following one line of work for [illegible] and verifying it by an investigation of varied crops, and in varied [illegible]. He is a believer in the [illegible] of the small unit, that [illegible] for well-founded success in the aggregate.

[illegible] man on the payroll of a [illegible] who does not earn his way, [illegible] spends the money of the firm, [illegible] profits in jeopardy. All business men weed out such employees. When Shamel came to California, he began an investigation of the [illegible] on the same fundamental [illegible] as had been his investigation [illegible] the department in the tobacco and corn-growing districts. Just [illegible] criminal departments use the [illegible] system and fingerprint [illegible] on individuals whose reputations are in doubt, Shamel has applied to the citrus tree the performance record, which makes each tree tell its own story of what it has done, and just what paths it has [illegible] in straying from an ideal condition of crop-producing.

WHAT A TREE IS DOING.

In speaking before the recent [illegible] institute, Mr. Shamel said [illegible] the importance of the amount and quality of the production in an orchard, to profitable citrus culture, is frequently overlooked. We are [illegible] to blame the market conditions for all of our losses, and for unprofitable conditions in some of our groves. In public and private [illegible], he said, we frequently [illegible] the marketing side of the business [illegible] all the credit, or the blame, for the money returns to the growers. We have heard some unsuccessful citrus growers severely criticise market conditions, who do not produce an average of one [illegible] box of fruit to each full-bearing tree, and who give their [illegible] little if any of their personal care and attention.

On the other hand, he said, our observations show that where reasonable production is obtained, the business of growing citrus fruits has usually been profitable. We [illegible] to point out in this discussion [illegible], some of the faults that [illegible] in low and inferior production.

[illegible] is one important factor in the industry which is just beginning to receive some attention. [illegible] believe it to be a factor more fundamentally important than any other. It is the characteristics and [illegible] bearing of the individual trees in the orchard.

[illegible] growers are peculiarly fortunate in having a few varieties [illegible] have been proven by experience to be adapted to our conditions. We have found one superior [illegible] and one summer variety of [illegible]. We have two varieties of [illegible] and one of grapefruit. This has been largely instrumental, [illegible] in building a reputation [illegible] citrus fruits through [illegible] by standard varieties [illegible] crops of fruit, the [illegible] said.

[illegible] means that the consumers [illegible] to recognize a California [illegible] and summer orange, a California lemon and a California [illegible]. The advantages to the [illegible] can hardly be over-estimated.

[illegible] they have solved the problem of varieties suited to their conditions, it has been found that, [illegible] bud variation, many strains [illegible] varieties have come to be [illegible] in our groves. Most of [illegible] strains are inferior from the [illegible] standpoint, both as regards amount and quality. The production of these inferior strains also [illegible] very greatly. There is an [illegible] of 25 per cent. of trees in [illegible] California citrus orchards of [illegible] inferior, and in many cases [illegible] drone strains.

[illegible] loss due to the presence of [illegible] inferior strains in orchards, [illegible] statistics are available for [illegible] is about $100 per acre annually. We feel sure that in some [illegible] the loss is higher than this. [illegible] In a few cases where definite [illegible] is available, it is shown [illegible]. We feel safe in saying [illegible] average loss is about $100.

[illegible] growers will perhaps doubt [illegible]. We do not ask you to take [illegible] word for it. Indeed, we hope [illegible] will not do so, for we want you [illegible] and determine for [illegible]. We know that sooner or [illegible] the matter of individual tree [illegible] will become an essential [illegible] in improving the production [illegible] groves. Most of our leading [illegible] growers are now keeping tree [illegible] in all or part of their orchards. [illegible] of the growers of small [illegible] are not doing so. It is to [illegible] that we wish to appeal. The [illegible] of large acreages, with their [illegible] picking crews and systematic [illegible], have found practical [illegible] methods of keeping [illegible]. Every large orchard [illegible] record of employs men [illegible] it is to look after the [illegible] trees in an attempt to [illegible] of the trees produce a [illegible] crop. The growers of [illegible] cannot afford, as a [illegible], to hire such tree specialists. [illegible], however, that through [illegible] effort, the growers of [illegible] can achieve the [illegible], said Mr. Shamel.

ASSOCIATION RECORDS.

[illegible] the picking of [illegible] is being done by [illegible] picking crews, managed by [illegible] of growers. It has [illegible] demonstrated fully that this [illegible] of picking is superior to [illegible] every grower picks his [illegible]. The marketing of a [illegible] of the California crop [illegible] done co-operatively, and, [illegible] more successfully than [illegible] when the grower attempted to market alone. Why not also use co-operative methods to increase production?

One of the practical methods for improving the crop is the elimination of trees of inferior strains. Growers have adopted standard varieties, and there remains one further step, the standardizing of the strains within the varieties.

There are two primary objects to be attained by individual tree records. First, the location of the trees which should receive careful, individual attention, such as top-working, pruning, treatment of diseases or pests; removal altogether, or similar care. Second, the location of trees where reliable buds can be secured for top-working, or for propagation in other ways. While it is true that some of the most undesirable trees can be located through systematic inspection, we believe that the only safe plan is to find such trees through individual tree records of actual production. Our experience has been that when growers use actual tree records for the selection of trees they refuse to use any other means for this purpose.

It is also possible that some growers can pick out, off-hand, particularly good trees from which reliable buds can be secured. We have failed as yet, to find anyone whose work along this line was not open to criticism. In live stock breeding such improvement in breeding has been accomplished by "natural breeders," but we feel sure that the greatest improvement in established breeds has been brought about by the registry system. In dairy cattle, most, if not all, of the great breeds were established before the Babcock test was invented. The maintenance and improvement of these breeds, however, has been accomplished largely through the assistance of the Babcock test. In many ways the Babcock test corresponds almost exactly with the tree tests. Cow-testing associations are coming to be almost universal. We sincerely hope that tree-testing associations, or tree tests by associations of growers, will become equally universal.

TREE-RECORD ESSENTIALS.

The essentials of tree-record keeping are, first—all of the trees must be given individual numbers. Second, a record must be kept of the fruit from each tree. It will cost, with ordinary labor, about 1 cent to number each tree. The number should consist of three parts—the number of the block, the number of the row, and the number of the tree in the row, counting always from some fixed point, preferably the irrigation head. The numbers can be painted on the tree trunks in most cases, with ordinary white-lead paint. They can be painted or printed on a tag or a piece of shook and hung in the tree. They should all face to one side, in order to make it easy to find them.

The cost of tree-record keeping is little or no greater than the cost of ordinary picking would be without the addition of the record-keeping, providing this work is systematized along the lines here suggested.

In the case of members of associations, where regular picking crews are already established, the machinery for tree-record keeping is at hand. In some cases it might be necessary to add a man to the crew, providing him with blank forms. He would be known as the "secretary" of the picking crew. Orchard notebooks, or blank forms, should be provided for the individual tree data.

The picking boxes must be distributed to the individual trees instead of the box rows. The pickers must be organized so that each picker picks a tree instead of several pickers working in the same tree. The fruit must be placed in the boxes at each tree. The "secretary," following the pickers, records the amount of fruit in the boxes at each tree. Some growers record the number of full and partially-full boxes. Others weigh the boxes and fruit, taking the tare of the boxes from the weight of the fruit. Both methods have advantages. For navel, Valencia and Marsh grape-fruit trees we believe the number of boxes of fruit is probably the best method.

Each day's tree records should be turned into the office of the association, where they can be organized for intelligent use. If more than one pick is made in a season, the total number of pickings can be assembled at the end of the season. It frequently is the case that the "secretary" or the foreman of the crew will make notes along with the data of production, to be used for particular tree attention. The notes should be studied in the association office, and called to the attention of the grower. If it is found necessary to weigh the boxes of fruit, as is usually the case with lemons, several convenient orchard scales are available for this purpose. Some of these have been shown and described in our agricultural press of the past year. We will give further information to anyone at any time. Blanks for recording tree data are available from several commercial printing houses in California.

There is absolutely nothing mysterious, complicated or impracticable about any phase of tree-record keeping. It can be applied to every citrus orchard in California.

HOW LONG A PERIOD?

How long will it be necessary to keep tree records? In order to locate drone trees, or unproductive, unprofitable trees, the record should be kept for at least two normal seasons. For the purpose of locating good trees for sources of reliable buds, four or more years are advisable. However, I would rather have the record of two years than none at all. The exact length of keeping tree records can await the grower's judgment after he has begun the work. I have confidence in the good sense and judgment of citrus growers. Every man who tries tree-record keeping will soon develop his own definite ideas as to the length of time. It will vary with conditions. An even number of season records is preferred.

At what age of trees should tree-records be started? At any age after the trees begin to bear fruit. At an early age recording keeping is a very simple matter. At this time a majority of the undesirable strains of trees can be located and top-worked, so there will be little future loss. In order to get a true measure of the value of different strains of any variety, it is extremely desirable to compare the production of full-bearing trees under fairly comparable conditions. This is likely to be the case where an effort is being made to locate sources of bud-wood. Tree-records are valuable at any age after production begins.

Are good trees, worthy for use as bud wood to be found in every orchard? No.

While we have studied some orchards in which we have been unable to find any tree from which we would be willing to cut buds, such orchards are few and far between. In the majority of orchards we have found some trees that would be desirable so far as we could ascertain. What is important is that we have failed to find a locality in which good trees, worthy of propagation, have not been found in some orchard. We feel that these sources should be developed and made known in every locality.

How can a grower secure the assistance of the association to which he belongs in undertaking individual tree records? Through conferences with the manager of his association. They are elected for the purpose of carrying out the wishes of the growers. All managers are anxious to keep the members of the associations in the associations. If a grower wishes to keep tree records we feel sure that all managers will be only too glad to arrange the picking of any orchard so as to provide for tree records. The associations will not probably introduce the tree-record keeping if it is not asked for by growers. It is not necessary, we think, for all the members of an association to agree to keep tree records before any kind of this work is undertaken. In some cases we have found only one member of an association securing tree records. Records will be most economically secured when every member arranges for this work. Every man who secures tree records, locates reliable sources for bud wood, adds to the definite knowledge of the citrus industry, is a public benefactor, and is recognized as such.

INDUSTRY JUST STARTING.

The California industry is an infant industry, when compared with the citrus industry of Spain, Italy and other countries, the speaker said. We can learn much of value in a cultural way from these older districts. California citrus growers are, comparatively, newcomers to the business of raising citrus fruits. We have much to learn from experience. Such knowledge is always costly. It has taken centuries for the older countries to advance in knowledge in the growth of citrus fruits. In the old countries in many instances the growers are the descendants of growers—they have been citrus growers for many generations. Under these conditions there has accumulated much valuable knowledge.

We do not have this accumulation of knowledge. We must develop it, and the art of citrus culture, and tree care, in our own way. One of the ways for developing this knowledge is to secure definite knowledge of individual tree behavior. We, in this way, lay the foundation for a permanent and profitable business. We believe that a few years of keeping tree records will develop more definite knowledge of individual tree behavior than has been accumulated in older countries through generations of other methods. Nearly every citrus orchard has experiments under way in matters of fertilization, pruning, irrigation and other kindred subjects. The individual tree-record will add value to all those by discovering the drone and the desirable trees.

Lord d'Abernon, who recently moved the second reading of a bill giving the trustees of the British National Gallery enlarged powers, in order that they might secure some of the masterpieces which were at present leaving the country, has an exceedingly interesting career. He was educated at Eton, and entered the Coldstream Guards in 1877. Five years later he resigned, and in 1880 was appointed private secretary to Lord Fitzmaurice, the Commissioner for Eastern Rumania. In the following year he was assistant to Her Majesty's commissioner of evacuation of territory ceded by Greece to Turkey. After completing his duties in this connection, he represented the British, Dutch and Belgian governments on the council of Ottoman public debt at Constantinople, and was appointed president of the council in 1883. Six years as financial adviser to the Egyptian government followed, and then he returned to Constantinople as governor of the Imperial Ottoman Bank. It was not until 1899 that he entered Parliament.

THE KEY TO BILLY SUNDAY.

If we want to understand the secret of Billy Sunday's power, says Joseph Edgar Chamberlin in the Boston Transcript, apropos of the great revival that the evangelist has been carrying forward in Boston, we must look outside of the man. "The key to Billy Sunday," Mr. Chamberlin tells us, "is to be found in his audience." We may study the man himself in his movements. We may get thus a very clear impression of a very unusual personality. But "all that we see on the platform, in the man who flies like a sprite from end to end of it, and pounds the desk or the pulpit, or mounts by the aid of a chair to the top of a pulpit to shout out some high utterance, will not explain his influence or the spell which he puts on many people." Mr. Chamberlin continues:

"To know this audience which hangs upon Sunday's words, you must face it, and as nearly as possible focus its eyes upon yours. After you have done that for half an hour, and the action of the preacher and his torrent of studied words has worked the composite twenty-thousand-times-multiplied face up into its tensest expression, the thing begins to become clear.

"This great audience gazes, listens, laughs, applauds, as one person. First it is amused. Then it is deeply astonished. Then it becomes spellbound. Watching that audience's composite open mouth, its wondering, simple eyes, one says with Lear, 'We are sophisticated; this is the thing itself.' We are told that philosophy and religion begin and end with wonder; this multiple apparition before us supplies us not only with the beginning and the end, but the middle, which is wonder, too. The first wonder of the student of the matter is not at Sunday (who at that stage seems to be acting and nothing else) but is this: 'Where did all these people come from?' One seems never to have seen them before. But there they are, in solid ranks, in their thousands, all gazing, all rapt. No doubt whatever of their interest and their concentration. The thing suggests—mind, I do not say that it proves—hypnosis. The hypnotist generally chooses his subjects. Mr. Sunday, at least in his initial audiences, has chosen his. So far the motion is sustained. But it is not hypnotism. It is the plain influence of a tremendous astonishment, followed by the clever, the impassioned appeal to the master emotions of love, parenthood, filial affection, traditional religion."

Of course, it takes the right kind of an audience to respond with the right kind of astonishment to the appeal that Sunday makes. Any ordinary, accidental audience would not do it. Sunday, Mr. Chamberlin remarks, has become expert in getting the right kind of audience. His agents, for weeks before his arrival, have been collecting the right kind of audience.

"These are no doubt the 'average people' whom he seeks. They do not convince us that (as a certain genial humorist maintains) this well-known 'average man' is above the average. There are very strange faces in these rows—whole rows of strange faces. Here is a middle-aged woman who has never closed her mouth since Sunday began to speak. Now it is opened round, now with a slant to the right, now to the left. Her lips move constantly—she is saying Sunday's words over after him as long as she can keep up with him; often he talks so fast that she cannot do that; then her chin drops and keeps still for a little while, only to resume the movement presently.

"Near her an old man is perched, on a cushion that he has brought, up above the rest. His face is like one who is looking at a vision. His features work as you have seen the faces of unconscious, unseeing blind people work when they are listening to music. A woman close by seems to be on the verge of hysteria, though there is nothing in the preacher's language to induce a high degree of emotion.

"All laugh immoderately at the speaker's frequent jokes, at his startling slang; most of the audience laughs at even the little tricks of his oratory, as when he ducks his head and body in repeating many adjectives — 'lantern-jawed, slab-sided, blaspheming, whisky-soaked politicians'—a deep duck downward with every word—and such of the audience as are not themselves ducking with the orator are laughing consumedly. Nine out of ten have the air of never having heard anything so good before in their lives."

Sincerity is an important part of the power of Billy Sunday. His joy in his own effects is great and certainly genuine. Now and then he resorts to pathos, as when he tells the story of the little boy who was dying and did not want to be buried way over in the lonesome cemetery, where his father seldom came, but under the elm tree in the pasture, where his father went for the cows every night. The audience weeps, but Sunday never permits the impression of pathos to last long; he is back at broad farce in a moment, and the audience is laughing again. Manifestly, ridicule and scorn rather than pathos are his weapons. "His making the audience laugh," Mr. Chamberlin tells us, "is a part of his assertion of power. Whatever the audience does, it must do at his bidding; it must be always under his control." The analysis proceeds:

"By and by, when the trail-hitting has begun, he will have his way with these crowds to the uttermost. It does not matter what criticisms of him are uttered. It does not matter how often he is convicted of rank vulgarity, of coarseness or even blasphemy. The thing is to keep his power over these people and makes them do just what he wants them to do. We shall see them do it.

"Billy Sunday is absolutely nothing if not a surprising person. It seems astonishing that any man could go from city to city with such a sickening array of verbal atrocities as he deals in, and yet command the support of clergymen of almost all denominations, of bishops, college presidents and so forth. It is an astonishing fact that scores of newspaper reporters who are habitually contemptuous of 'guff' should fall easy marks to his evangelism, and should hit the trail with the rest. It is an astonishing thing that a man who really has no power of oratory and pretends to none, who does not speak by inspiration, but carefully prepares everything, delivering set speeches from notes, and acting out the same situation each time with the same pantomime, should achieve so great a power over an audience. Such a man must rely deliberately on shocking, on dazing his hearers, and, when he has put them into this condition, upon making use of their amazement to work in the moral which he undertakes to teach. But as we have seen, it seems to be necessary for him to prepare in advance a sort of audience that is susceptible of this treatment."

Howard Crosby Butler, a professor in Princeton University, who is in charge of excavations in Sardis, Asia Minor, announces that this interesting piece of archaeological investigation will be continued, notwithstanding general troubled conditions in Asia Minor. Prof. Butler has gone far enough with his digging to know that all the claims of scholarship and historical research respecting his capital city need the further illumination which he and his party can give by bringing to light spoil as valuable as that already unearthed; and he is further encouraged to proceed by the hope that he may come upon the wealth of Croesus, King of Lydia, who dwelt in Sardis. Prof. Butler is a Princeton A. B. and a Columbia graduate school of architecture specialist. Turning to ancient art and archaeology, he studied in Rome and in Athens, in the American schools of classical studies; and then he joined the Princeton faculty.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

Why England Succeeds.

Herbert Adams Gibbons, author of "The New Map of Africa," says that the reason the British are successful colonizers in Africa, while other countries are not, is that the British alone send out the type of official who is disciplined against the demoralizing effects of the tropical climate and the hopeless degradation and brutality of the black population. Only men of the strongest character and moral fibre, men who have been born and brought up in an atmosphere of culture, who have gone through the severe discipline of cultural education, who have inherited the habit of exercising authority, and who, when they return from their post, go by right of nature into cultivated circles and to responsible positions, are fit to be entrusted with administrative posts in Central Africa. For this type of man alone is able to resist the demoralizing influences of solitude, degrading surroundings, and unlimited power of the Central Africa official. The British send this type of man to Africa; other nations do not. Hence, says Mr. Gibbons, the joy of natives under the British flag, and the misery of natives under other flags.

Roosevelt Likes It.

Gustavus Ohlinger's "Their True Faith and Allegiance" has been pronounced by Theodore Roosevelt the best work he has read on the subject of Americanism. "Every man," he maintains, "who cannot submit to the principles and ideals laid down in this book would do better to go back to Germany, Ireland, England, Russia, France or anywhere."

Carolyn Wells.

Every now and then the question comes up—"Is Carolyn Wells, author of those amusing extravaganzas, 'The Jingle Book,' 'Mother Goose's Menagerie,' 'In the Reign of Queen Dick,' etc., the same person as Carolyn Wells, author of 'The Bride of a Moment' mystery story?"

The answer is "Yes. It;s the same talented lady!"

Carolyn Wells, apparently, can write with both hands.

A "Winning" Poet.

Berton Braley, the poet-author of "Things As They Are" (just published by the George H. Doran Company) and "Songs of the Workaday World," is another example of the successful writer who has "had his troubles" with magazine editors.

Braley confessed recently in a small gathering of literary people that he was a devotee of the cult of "persistency" in the siege of editorial sanctums. He backed up his admission by displaying a poem which has been quoted the country over, but which was turned down sixty-four times, eventually being accepted by an editor in whose office the poem had reposed on several occasions and on each occasion been refused.

Like most of the verse writers of today, Braley confessed he had been reduced to maintaining a card index, making it a practice to keep his manuscripts "on the road." The success of his new volume, "Things As They Are," would seem to argue for the wisdom of his "keeping at it" policy.

Popularity Measured by the Yard.

Mark Twain's popularity may be reckoned by the yard-stick. During the post year his publishers have used, in binding sets of the Author's National Edition, 45,000 yards of cloth. If this cloth were spread out on the ground, Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn, Colonel Sellars, Joan of Arc, the Connecticut Yankee, Adam and Eve, Captain Stormfield, Mr. Harris, and Pudd'nhead Wilson could march in procession over this carpet for twenty-five miles.

"Jesus" and New York Laws.

Some admirers of "Jesus: A Passion Play," Max Ehrmann's last book, have expressed a hope of seeing the play produced. A theatrical manager recently figured out how much money it would cost. He concluded that it would take a quarter of a million dollars; and that the audience would have to be in their seats by 4 o'clock in the morning and remain there until 12 the next night. In addition to this every one connected with the play would be arrested before lunch time, for in New York, at least, it is against the law to enact the character of Jesus on the stage.

Short Stories.

"The Best Short Stories of 1916 and the Yearbook of the American Short Story," being the second of the annuals under this title to be edited by Mr. Edward J. O'Brien, is now in course of preparation. It will be published by Small, Maynard & Company, who are the patrons of this new institution in the short-story world. "The Best Short Stories of 1915 and the Yearbook of the American Short Story," published in April, 1916, has demonstrated the value of a work of this character. Authors, editors, librarians, teachers of English, teachers of short-story writing and others have adopted the book as a regular feature of their courses in English and short-story writing. Aside from these considerations, "The Best Short Stories" furnish reading for the layman. Three editions of "The Best Short Stories of 1915 and the Yearbook of the American Short Story" have already been required to meet this demand; and a fourth is now on the press. "The Best Short Stories of 1916 and the Yearbook of the American Short Story" will be ready in February.

The Story of Eleusis.

Louis V. Ledoux's recently published book, "The Story of Eleusis," is not only being read and enjoyed by students of poetry and the drama—it is also being adopted for study by clubs in different educational institutions. For example, according to report the Faculty Advisers of the Hellenic Club of Wadleigh High School have recommended that this work be studied by its members, while the Classical Club of Barnard College has arranged for a public reading of the play. No doubt those who have charge of matters of this sort have selected Mr. Ledoux's play because it affords a means of interesting young students in the Greek legends. The Persephone legend is one of the most famous of all and Mr. Ledoux's drama is practically the only one extant on the subject. Modern poets have for the most part treated it only lyrically and the details of the original play as given at Eleusis have never before been disclosed.

Praise for Kerfoot.

"Words are only push buttons calling up a whole set of associations and contexts which vary in each individual," says Mr. J. B. Kerfoot, the literary editor of Life, in his book, "How to Read," which has been published recently by Houghton Mifflin Company. We wonder what associations the following picturesque words, written to Mr. Kerfoot about his book, called up. They are so undeniably part and parcel of the moving-picture world, that it is not surprising to learn that they were penned by one of the foremost producers of the silent drama in this country. He says, in part:

"Bless your heart, you've gone and done it! You have written the first book on books and reading with a new idea in it, since old Richard De Bury started at scratch with 'Philobiblon.' Much have I browsed among volumes that aimed to tell you the how and why of gazing upon black marks upon white paper but one and all they have been a dreary repetition of what every one with enough brains to carry bones to a bear knows already.

"Your book is emphatically THERE. It is of this day, hour, and minute, and peeks around the corner into the day-after-tomorrow. Land sakes alive! How I relished it and then reread it! I have read myself into blind staggers for yahrs and yahrs but s'elp me, I learned a lot of reading from 'im—J. B. Kerfoot as is, who bats nigh on to .300 and who shuns professorial dullness as Mat Arnold warns us to sidestep Carlylese.

"Thank you for 'How to Read'—saturated with the literature of the subject I want to put myself on record as saying that your book is wonderful. It is the first new thing said in centuries. I wish every student in the land would read it and thereby make books familiar companions and friends whose magical words would open life's treasures as did the 'Sesame' of Ali Baba. I think Macaulay himself would have read more wisely and with more fascination had he had the Kerfoot idea. Perhaps he did have it, for he loved books passionately and they made him happy all his days. Thank you, Mr. Kerfoot."

THE RELIGIOUS RAMBLER.

New Versions of Bible Create Confusion in "Learning by Heart"—Modern Translations Multiply Apace, to Make Popular Original Meanings—Plays Havoc with Memorizing—When all Protestants Studied King James Version, Quotation was Popular—Grave Religious Problem.

UNDER the surface of the day's religious activities run many real and important problems of far-reaching influence. One of the most serious of these, which has never hitherto been touched upon in print, so far as I am aware, is the fundamental problem of Bible-study created by the new vogue of modern translations of the scriptures.

A verbal knowledge of the Bible, such as has been the comfort and guidance of Christians for centuries past, is threatened by this new popularity of versions in the speech of the day. The new generation is not "learning by heart" Bible texts. Memorizing of scripture, even among ministers, is going out of fashion. And the basic reason is that there is no uniformity in the text used by Christians.

When the authorized or King James version of the English Bible, issued in 1611, was used by all the Protestant churches (the Catholic church authorizes the Douay version,) it was a simple matter to quote scripture in concert. Public speakers did not hesitate to use passages from the Bible. The old book was then called a "well of English undefiled." From whatever corner of the earth they came, English-speaking people could unite in the use of scriptural quotations. The rich and resounding phrases of the King James version were deemed the race's richest literary inheritance.

THE BIBLE DOWN TO DATE.

Language is not a dead thing, but a constant growth. The speech of today is unlike the speech of a century ago. Thus it came about that many of the passages in the King James version, which were perfectly clear in 1611, grew to be archaic, and difficult for the noncritical person to understand. The use of "let" for "hinder," of "prevent" for "precede," and of "mansions" for "abiding places," are illustrations that drop naturally from the pen's point.

With the increased knowledge of the original Hebrew and Greek languages, in which the Bible was originally written, there arose a strong demand among scholars for a revision of the King James translation. British Biblical scholars took the initiative in establishing the Revision Committee, which began its labors in 1881 and published the result of its labors in 1885.

Many revisions proposed by the American members of the committee were not accepted, and were published, by agreement, in an appendix. One of the most significant of these was the use of the proper name, "Jehovah," for the title, "The Lord," which the British revisers printed in small caps, to show that it meant Jehovah. After fifteen years the American members of the committee, who had continued their organization, published the American revised version, which [illegible] acceptance among [illegible] clergymen and Bible [illegible] erally.

This idea of [illegible] into the vernacular [illegible] of many persons. Other [illegible] gan to appear, [illegible] Haupt's freak "polychrome [illegible]" the colloquial "Twentieth C[illegible] New Testament." Probably the [illegible] in point of scholarship and [illegible] ness, of these many new [illegible] are the "New Testament in [illegible] Speech," by Weymouth; and "A [illegible] Translation of the New T[illegible]" by Moffatt. Billy Sunday [illegible] made his own version of [illegible] Bible stories.

NEW DILEMMA FOR [illegible]

Nobody seems to have [illegible] one immediate result of the [illegible] tiplicity of versions. Confused [illegible] the many translations, preachers [illegible] afraid to trust themselves to [illegible] literally. No longer may one be [illegible] pected to be accurate in his [illegible] tural quotations, for the [illegible] arises, "Is he quoting from the [illegible] James version, the English [illegible] the English edition of the [illegible] version, the American standard [illegible] tion, the Twentieth Century [illegible] Testament, the Weymouth [illegible] the Moffatt translation, or [illegible] er one of several recensions of [illegible] text?"

Children are not being taught [illegible] of old, to "learn by heart" [illegible] from the Bible, for the [illegible] which has unconsciously [illegible] dominate the minds of many [illegible] folks, is that it is the general [illegible] of the Bible's teaching that [illegible] and not the literal words.

Entirely unsuspected by [illegible] and church officers, there [illegible] crept into the popular mind [illegible] tirely new conception of [illegible] The profound and far-reaching [illegible] portance of this is apparent. [illegible] matters tremendously whether [illegible] Bible is inspired in its general [illegible] and ideas, or whether it is [illegible] in its very words. Moreover, [illegible] far does the theory of [illegible] extend to translations? [illegible] tians hold that it is the original that is inspired.

MUDDLING THE [illegible]

As a practical matter, [illegible] ceive more consideration [illegible] ture than it has had heretofore [illegible] problem is how to restore a [illegible] edge of the very words of [illegible] to the memory of Christians. [illegible] word have I hid in my heart [illegible] clared the Psalmist. [illegible] the Sunday-schools when [illegible] vised version is coming into [illegible] increasing use, the perplexity [illegible] real one.

Church councils can [illegible] store the use of the 1611 version [illegible] can they, without opposition [illegible] upon any one modern [illegible] Yet if the new generation of [illegible] people are not to learn the [illegible] words of scripture the race [illegible] poorer in mind and character [illegible] all literature will lose one [illegible] greatest sources of enrichment.

THE HELPING HAND.

"How far that little candle throws his beams!
So shines a good deed in a naughty world."

What a fine charity Miss Martha Hentschel established in opening a sanatorium for tuberculosis patients at Kingston, N. Y., and what a kindly sympathetic motive inspired it! Miss Hentschel, herself a consumptive, has given her home and estate of three and a half acres near Kingston, N. Y., valued at about $50,000, for the purpose of helping those similarly afflicted. In order that the charity might reach directly a specific class, Miss Hentschel has given her home to the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, which will shortly open a sanatorium for tuberculosis for its afflicted members. The union has appropriated money for remodeling and equipping the building, and the work will be begun next February. It was about a year ago when Miss Hentschel became a victim of tuberculosis. She had studied nursing abroad. When she returned she ministered, while managing the business of her father, who is 80 years old, to Kingston's poor sufferers. Mr. Hentschel, like his daughter, agreed that something substantial ought to be done for the tuberculosis poor. As they have no relatives who needed their money, father and daughter decided to give their estate to sufferers of tuberculosis. When they first talked of establishing the charity, Miss Hentschel wrote to a friend, asking advice. This she received from Miss Lillian D. Wald, of the Henry-street Settlement, of New York, and who had consulted with Dr. G. M. Price, director of the Joint Board of Sanitary Control, which has supervision over the welfare of New York's garment workers. Dr. Price knew from his observations that more than 2 per cent. of the garment workers were suffering from tuberculosis and that a sanatorium was a pressing need. Of course, he suggested that Miss Hentschel's home be turned into such an institution. No sooner said than done. The property was immediately transferred to three trustees and offered to the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Literature and Art — New Books Book News

THE PRESS

CONDUCTED BY GORDON RAY YOUNG.

BRILLIANT REBEL EDITOR PROCLAIMS GRIEVANCES.

Max Eastman Takes the Attitude of a Fuzzy Conservative in Lambasting Popular Art and Fiction—Says Chambers and Gibson are Nothing but Manufacturers Whose Names Guarantee the Product—Roasts the Poetic Clan That Uses Advertising Methods and Calls the Result "Vers Libre."

MAX EASTMAN is a tambourine rattler in that assiduously rebellious cult that enjoys smashing plates for the joy of hearing [illegible], and which also gleefully pictures Utopias for the impish satisfaction of making people grumble at this workaday world. In other words, he is an intellectual socialist with a dash of cayenne in his [illegible]. He is one, and a prominent one, among an extremely clever, sardonic group of radicals associated with The Masses—a magazine of [illegible] protest. Mr. Eastman is its editor. He was formerly a professor of esthetics at Columbia, but fortunately for his soul a reaction set in and precipitated him into the lesser evil. He is yet a young man, with no idea of a Messiahship and with some idea of a fun that is to be had out of rebellion. Not that he is a poseur—no, he is simply [illegible] so that he loves a quarrel with those in authority, whether they are authorities of art, literature, politics, theology or birth control.

But in "Journalism Versus Art" (Alfred A. Knopf) his native sanity gets the best of solicitously cherished radicalism. Even considering the wallops that he makes at popular magazines, their fiction and illustrations, he may be taken for a fuzzy [illegible] conservative, a veritable reactionary.

Think of this chieftain of the [illegible] clan carrying war into the camp of the very earnest tribe of [illegible] rebels! Mr. Eastman calls vers libre "lazy verse;" and explains the folly thus: "It is a business of 'breaking up the type.' It makes the prose easy to read. And the necessity of that is a direct outgrowth of the fatness of the Sunday newspaper. We live under the burden of so much printed material, the daily absorption of which we [illegible] impossible, that every effort must be made to tickle us and kick and jog us along so that we will get through anything to the conclusion. So far from being a return to primitive, naive or simple [illegible] of writing, this breaking up [illegible] in lines neither dictated by mechanics nor suggested by music, is [illegible] of effort at [illegible] stimulation of a jaded attention."

[illegible] impassioned vers librist has remarked in print that he [illegible] to catch Mr. Eastman and [illegible] down to a copy of Saintsbury's "History of Prosody;" whereas [illegible] that if Mr. James Oppenheim were more familiar with Saintsbury's preserved erudition he would not be so cocky about [illegible] to demolish the "con[illegible]" of Mr. Eastman, who [illegible] to know his Saintsbury much better than certain young poets who try obstreperously to make a living at their trade.

Another phase of Mr. Eastman's conservatism—as well as an echo of his training in Columbian esthetics—is manifest in his protest against the simplification of spelling that would demolish the charm of such words of wonder as "ghost" and "wraith," "scythe" and "solemn" and other language signs of picturesque significance that must inevitably be dull, drab things if spelled in the sloppy manner of Artemus Ward or the more "scientific" manner of Frank H. Viztelly, Litt.D., L.L.D.

The body of Mr. Eastman's slender but muscular little volume is dedicated joyously to lambasting popular magazines. But he is no radical there. His is merely the attitude of old-fashioned folk who long for the glorious Georgian days when Sir Walter Scott, alone of all the men of genius that gilded the temple of English literature, wrote for money.

He points out that popular magazines are commercially constrained to please as many readers as they can—and this can be done only by giving offense to as few as possible; therefore, originality is trimmed at the corners, all bristling individuality—the quality that has always made art and literature great, and probably always will make it great unless William Lyon Phelps multiplies and covers the earth—is boiled down to the substance of soothing syrup. He thinks literature should carry an intellectual impact—should let the reader know that he has been hit, and the same with pictures. He says that such men as Robert W. Chambers and Charles Dana Gibson—to mention the most prominent in their lines—are manufacturers; their names stand for a certain definite quality that is guaranteed to be like the original product; all the same as Pear's soap and Ford machines. When you buy a magazine that boasts of a Chambers story or a Gibson picture, you are sure of buying something flavored with "The Common Law" extract, and modeled after the notorious Gibson female.

And popular magazines constrain other writers and other illustrators to become similar manufacturers if they wish to be successful. That is Mr. Eastman's grievance. His own magazine, we understand, is subsidized; so he needs not please the great god Demos — though The Masses is consecrated to his altar—but it needs only to please the stockholders; which is much easier and certainly gives elbow room to both the artists and authors that have made that grotesque, brilliant, smashing and oftimes repellant publication, a really distinguished magazine.

ELLEN LA MOTTE'S STORIES GRIPPING, GREWSOME, GREAT.

If we were to compile an anthology of the ten best war stories [illegible] eight of them would be [illegible] the name of Ellen N. La Motte and credited to "The Backwash of War" (G. P. Putnam's Sons). [illegible] stories that curdle the blood and set the teeth on edge. This woman [illegible] the war—not merely [illegible]. Miss La Motte is grewsome, shocking, hideous—aye, but [illegible] written with the vision of [illegible]. She tells of war as it is behind the battle lines where the [illegible] and debris are cast; where men come back to die; the backwash, she calls it.

She has seen "heroes" die after the hot blood of the charge was [illegible] by wounds; and heard them curse their country—France, at that—in their agony. "Undoubtedly," she says, "up and down the long kilometers of 'Front' there [illegible] action, and 'moments of [illegible] fright' have produced glorious deeds of valor, courage, devotion and nobility. But when there is little or no action, there is a stagnation, and in a stagnant place [illegible] such ugliness."

The stagnant places of war are the [illegible] where doctors and nurses and attendants are sickened by the [illegible] stench of fetid wounds and by the interminable, groaning [illegible] of men on stretchers—[illegible] cursing, mutilated men [illegible] resilience of courage broken [illegible].

Miss La Motte has written with no [illegible] toward France. She was [illegible] French hospital; what she tells [illegible] of war as it is the world [illegible] among orientals. [illegible] stoicism suppresses [illegible] spirit of the individual. [illegible] are stories of horror; [illegible] relieved by a glimmer [illegible] glory correspondents [illegible] above their warlike [illegible] "Women and Wives" is bitter [illegible] woman's cynicism; "A [illegible]" relates what no historian [illegible] ever write; "La Patrie [illegible]" shows a patriot's death with the ironical cry [illegible] Kaiser!"

[illegible] a dozen of these stories, [illegible] of them etch vividly some [illegible] or surpressed phase [illegible]. Nothing like them has [illegible]; it is the first realistic [illegible] behind the battle lines that [illegible] offered to a neutral public, [illegible] without understanding [illegible] appreciate that Miss La Motte [illegible] described war—not merely war in France—but war itself, the maiming and patching of men, the frothing of personality when detached from stimulating tenseness of danger and cast up on a cot to writhe and die.

The neutral public is bored by the war. It rejects magazines with war articles in them. It evades the stalls in the market places where the war books are sold. They are stale. Publishers and dealers know the public is tired of war. But "The Backwash of War" is something to prick the jaded taste. It will rouse the ennuied. The curious seeking a sensation will get it from these stories, all of which is remarked by way of hope that the curious and ennuied and bored will be lured to poke their noses into a book that will probably make them wish to the Lord they hadn't read it. It is just that poignant.

"SUPLEMENTO ILUSTRADO."

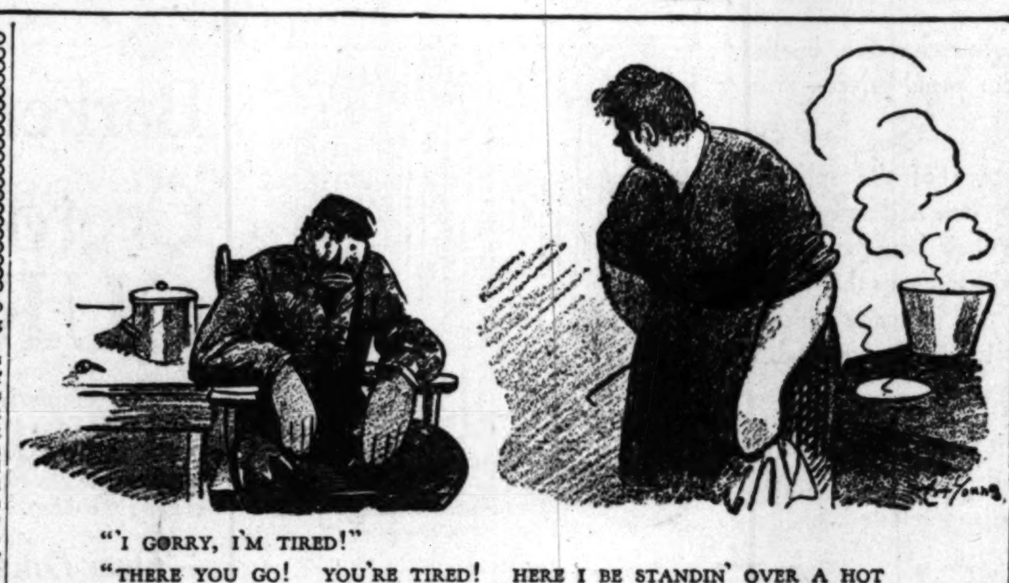
The Suplemento Ilustrado of this city, which is the only export publication west of New York, and has the bulk of its circulation among the Spanish speaking people of South America, begins in the January number a series of stories founded on police records. The current number, as usual, is well illustrated and has many pictures taken in the war zone. The purpose of the magazine is to develop friendship among the Americas, and the lessons in English, designed to assist Latin Americans and so facilitate commercial relations, will be continued through 1917.

Senator Taggart's Dog.

Ever since Senator Tom Taggart established the precedent of taking a dog into the Democratic cloak room, the familiar "Mary had a little lamb" has been parodied in "Taggart had a little dog, etc." Dog lovers in the Capitol and elsewhere will be interested in "The Dog's Book of Verse" by J. Earl Clauson, which has just been published. It is said to be one of the best anthologies on the subject, and contains everything from Oliver Goldsmith's "Elegy on the Death of a Mad Dog" to Swift's advice to a dog painter. The volume is divided into four sections covering "Puppyhood," "The Human Relationship," "The Dog in Action" and 'The Dog's Hereafter." It is interesting to note that Mr. Clauson dedicates the book to his Airedale, "Jack." "The Dog's Book of Verse" comes from the press of Small, Maynard & Company.

REAL ART—PERHAPS.

Mr. Eastman, in "Journalism Versus Art" (reviewed on this page,) presents these two pictures among others as examples of the kind of art that can never appear in "popular" magazines. He believes that they are of far more esthetic value than the conventionalized "beautiful maidens" and young - men - in - perfectly-creased trousers that adorn the covers and pages of the best-known publications. Both pictures are taken from The Masses, of which Mr. Eastman is the editor, and illuustrate the theory that a picture should be of such a character as to drive home a distinct, individual message.



"'I GORRY, I'M TIRED!"

"THERE YOU GO! YOU'RE TIRED! HERE I BE STANDIN' OVER A HOT STOVE ALL DAY, AN' YOU WORKIN' IN A NICE COOL SEWER!"

ALARMIST HOLDS UP THE JAP WAR MASK.

Smashing Author Wastes Words Warning America that Pacifistic Prayers will not Protect us from Wily Orientals.

THE JAPANESE CONQUEST OF AMERICAN OPINION. By Montaville Flowers. George H. Doran Company, New York.

Mr. Montaville Flowers is in for the castigation of his young life. He will be drawn and quartered, sizzled, crucified and boiled in oil. The ubiquitous voices of pacificism will cry havoc on his book; and most of the people that read it will be those wishing to denounce it.

A plague upon these fellows that set alarmist clocks to the sleepy heads of American citizens, and who thrust the grotesque mask of the Japanese scare through the bedroom window. Away with them, nuisances!

Who wants to know that Japan controls and subsidizes two gigantic publicity bureaus in the United States and methodically denounces each alarmist, and adroitly injects morphic articles into the columns of every press?

Who cares that the pacifists of the East have in flat print called California liars and said—actually—that the climate was inducive to the kind of hoodlumism that materialized in anti-Japanese legislation? Who gives a plugged penny for the fact the Japanese publicists in an indiscreet moment broke into print with the Prussian slogan that "Japan must have her place in the sun"—and California is the sunniest State in the Union? Nobody except a few cranks here on the Pacific Coast.

But it is interesting to read what Mr. Flowers has to say. Of course he is merely an alarmist and one should read him as one reads fictioneers; only he is not so dull as most of the novelists.

But believe him? Why should anybody get himself all agitated by believing: "The Japanese who are in America are organized with the system and precision of a great industrial plant or an army. Laborers grouped in camps have their bosses. The boss can tell you in a moment how many men he can command tomorrow and where he can secure more. The men obey him absolutely, coming, going, as he orders. Never forget that Japanese are community workers—their idea is the clan, not the individual. A Year Book is published by and for Japanese which gives the residence, occupation and holding of the Japanese, the value and productions of each land owner and lessee. Every Japanese community has its local association, these have their State association, and all act together. Every member contributes monthly toward a common fund to promote their interests, local and otherwise. The head of this Japanese association in America is K. K. Kawakami."—a learned and clever and charming gentleman who assiduously explains how rapidly the Japanese are becoming denationalized and reformed into Americans.

Why believe all that truck simply because it is so; when it is so much more comfortable to deny it and hope for the best?

Mr. Flowers shows why he thinks the land controversy in California is largely a mere pretext on the part of the Japanese government for having a perpetual finger in American affairs; and that Japan has steadily refused to consider land questions in treaties with this country; that Americans cannot own land in Japan, and that though our government "has offered to try in Federal courts any cases, and reimburse Japanese subjects for any losses resulting from any law in any State," Japan has declined and refused to consider that equitable consideration.

"We have offered to purchase at full market value every acre owned by the Japanese in our country. This offer Japan has refused."

But the two great Japanese press bureaus pour out daily effusions of best wishes and endeavors for amity and peace and equitable settlement—and the Japanese government refuses all proposals for amity, and goes steadily ahead increasing the army and navy—as Prince Okuma in his introduction to the Year Book of Japan for 1915—"to be prepared against a possible emergency with the U.S.A."

Oh, yes, Japan wishes peaceful relations and all that—and she remonstrates with an air of outraged innocence at every naval and army bill introduced into the American Congress; but increases rapidly her own army and navy for a "possible emergency with the U.S.A."

But that is no reason for stout matrons to decide that they raised their boys to be soldiers, or for pudgy sons to care a damn about soldiering. None at all. As William J. Bryan so eloquently says, "God will take care of America." So, of course, the forces that have made history in the past, and are making it in the present, will give a special dispensation to America so that by imagining it has no troubles, no dangers, no enemies, all will be sweet and cheerful and happy as a Christian Scientist with the toothache.

WAR BREAD.

WAR BREAD: A Personal Narrative of the War and Relief in Belgium. By Edward Eyre Hunt. Henry Holt & Co., New York.

Edward Eyre Hunt popped in and out and around the war zone, wandering around Germany and listening to officials and prominent Socialists explain things, before he became active in the Belgian relief work and was placed in charge of the Province of Antwerp. He doesn't relate how he came to have unusual opportunities, but tells of what those opportunities availed him.

In his interview with the great German Socialist, Dr. Liebknecht said the Socialists were helpless to prevent war, that the German papers were flooded with stories of atrocities committed on German soldiers and "the people were told that the Russians were barbarians, the French fools, the Belgians superstitious weaklings and the English cowardly sneaks." Of the injustice to him, he says, "My wife is Russian and the war was barely started when my house was searched, my private papers were seized and carted off and the sanctity of my whole establishment was violated on the pretext that my wife might be a spy. And in spite of the fact that I am a member of the Reichstag, not one word of this affair ever got into a Berlin newspaper." He further points out that possibly one reason the Socialists did not rebel was owing to their wealth. "You know, property makes men cautious. Perhaps our possessions have made us conservative. Perhaps the German Socialists do not dare risk all."

Mr. Hunt has many graphic passages descriptive of war conditions, particularly of the refugees. He says, "some proud poet should write the Ode to the Baby Carriage—that democratic chariot of the children of men. It had been everywhere in the tragic processions from Antwerp. It had trundled over roads, it had ridden high on carts, it had traveled strapped to the handlebars of bicycles, and always it had held the most precious possession of its owners. Sometimes the possessions were family pictures, or silver, or fine linen; but usually more precious than all these, it held the Belgian babies. Reverently I bow my head to the Baby Carriage; it is the vehicle of civilization."

The most valuable chapters are easily those which have given the book its striking title—"War Bread"—and tell of the distribution of food among the starving people. But particularly did the Belgians seem grateful to America for the Christmas ship which brought thousands upon thousands of presents from across the sea to homeless children, and these children in quaint but fervid ways tried to express their gratitude.

"We had planned," Mr. Hunt writes, "to distribute the presents on Christmas Day, but difficulties arose. The German authorities decreed that every package should be opened in Rotterdam and every scrap of writing taken out before the presents were sent into Belgium. It was a tremendous task to search the gifts. Notes written by the American children to the Belgians were tucked away in all sorts of places: in the bottoms of bags of candy, in the backs of fairy books, in dolls, in pairs of shoes, in babies' dresses—in every likely and unlikely spot which a child's imagination could think of as a convenient receptacle for writing. And all the charming, naive, little notes, painfully copied by childish hands, had to be removed before the presents could go forward."

In turn the Belgians embroidered flour sacks with designs in the finest needlework, and lettered, "Homage to America," "Thanks to America," "Out of Gratitude to America," "Grateful Belgium to Kind America," "To the Saviour of Belgium." One of them showed Lady Columbia with a Beligum baby in her lap and is inscribed, "The Protecting Mother of Belgium."

Mr. Hunt tells of the splendid work of many men, of Brand Whitlock and Herbert C. Hoover, and of the courageous and irrepressible Cardinal Mercier whom neither threats nor violence could suppress and who caused his pastoral letter to be read from the pulpits of Belgium, even while German officers sat in the congregation and the letter proclaimed that Belgians should not forget their King and country nor hail their conquerors as the rightful rulers.

SCIENTIST'S DEAD SON MEETS CHRIST.

Sir Oliver J. Lodge Records in Detail Communications Received from Spirit Land, All of Which He Believes.

RAYMOND: OR LIFE AND DEATH. By Sir Oliver J. Lodge. George H. Doran Company, New York.

The name of Sir Oliver J. Lodge upon the title page of "Raymond: Or Life and Death" (George H. Doran) is the only thing that keeps this book from hasty and contemptuous dimissal. The distinguished scientist wrote it in the shadow of a cypress grove through which the sun was shining—at least he thinks it was the sun. He was burdened with the sorrow of a male child dead at war—and sustained by mediumistic evidence that the boy still lives and laughs and loves in that bourne from which travelers sometimes return to speak with spiritualists.

Sir Oliver has long been a warrior against skeptics. Materialists are, however, prone to repudiate his testimony and deprecate his authority because he is a devout Christian. He believes that Christ lives. His son, from across the grave, testifies to having seen Christ: "I thrilled from head to foot. He didn't come near me and I didn't feel that I wanted to go near him. Didn't feel I ought. The voice was like a bell. I can't tell you what he was dressed or robed in. All seemed a mixture of shining colors. . . . I've asked if Christ will go and be seen by everybody; but was told 'Not quite in the same sense as you saw Him.' I was told that Christ was always in spirit on earth—a sort of projection, something like those rays, something of him in everyone."

Sir Oliver relates with what is well-nigh pathetic completeness the stenographic records of innumerable sittings and seances with a variety of mediums, piling up what he offers as the cumulative evidence that he has actually been in touch, not only with his son, but with friends and friendly ones who are dead. It is singularly dull and distressingly unimpressive. So much faith in stuff which, had he had no better as a physicist, would never have won him honor he has among his fellows. So much hope in the rambling, discursive, vapid pointless communications that must be pieced together with explanations and made plausible by deductions. "Messages" that may well ease the heart of a father, or assure those who already believe, but which are weightless as bubbles upon those who may yearn to believe, yet hesitate for lack of evidence that is somewhat convincing.

Sir Oliver has divided his book into three parts. The first tells of his son's experiences as a soldier; the second gives the evidence gathered from mediums; the last is Sir Oliver's arguments against skepticism.

How very little it takes to convince those who already believe! Sir Oliver has been a spiritualist for years. But we are inclined to believe that he would have been incredulous, and wisely so, if anyone had brought to him a batch of utterances such as are reverently recorded from across the grave and credited them to any of his living friends. The messages are that paltry and undistinguished.

The son describes life on the other side, which, as might be expected, differs much from the other descriptions furnished by ghosts through William Stead and Elsa Barker and numerous others privileged to hear whisperings from about the throne of God. And it is significant that Sir Oliver has headed such information as "unverifiable matter." The verifiable matter is concerned with the vague prophecy from a spiritualist telling of an "impending blow" which was followed by the son's death; and with a photograph of which spirits spoke before the Lodge family knew of its existence; and with inquiries made about members of the family, friends and dogs—anyone may obtain similar "verifiable matter" from almost any spiritualist for $1.

SUBSIDIZING THE POET.

We seem to be as much at sea in this matter as they were about 120 A.D., when the critic cursed the town for keeping alive so many poets and cursed it again for starving so many of them; wanted to know how a man could behold the horses of the chariot of the sun if he had to grub for a living, and wanted to drive most poets back to grubbing for a living as soon as he observed their manner of beholding the horses of the chariot of the sun; said you ought to fatten poets to make them sing, and became violently angry the moment a fat poet began singing; blamed a rich man for feeding a pet lion instead of subsidizing some author at much less expense, and was all for feeding the author to the lion on reading what he wrote. He wanted authors protected, but the literary choices made by the protector almost drove him mad.

Theodore Roosevelt's Opinion
OF
"The War and Humanity"
A Notable Sequel to "The Evidence in the Case"
By James M. Beck

"I most earnestly hope that there will be a wide circulation of Mr. Beck's 'War and Humanity.' It is the kind of a book which every self-respecting American, who loves his country, should read. I believe that its circulation throughout the whole land would have a very real effect in educating public opinion as to the duty of America in this great world crisis. Surely, we cannot permanently rest content, unless we prepare ourselves both in soul and in body to do our duty as a nation in the world. There must be thorough military and industrial preparedness in this country; there must be an aroused and quickened patriotism, and a stern determination to see that the rights of our country, and its citizens, are everywhere respected; and, there must be a keen sense of international duty, and of the shamefulness of neglecting this duty. Such is the spirit Americans ought to possess, and this book of Mr. Beck's is a potent aid in the creation of such a spirit."—Theodore Roosevelt.

THE SEVEN ARTS

25c a Copy — $2.50 a Year

This letter, from a little Pennsylvania town:

"I am one of the thousands of unknown people who make up the American spirit of which you speak. We have little or nothing to say for ourselves, but how gladly we hear others express us! Hemmed in, in life, I cannot tell you how such expressions of living as you have so far published, spur one on.

"Most of the country is as blindly bound as any corner of Europe, and those who refuse the blindfold, suffer. But it is they who make, or will make, the American spirit. It is they, the many unknown, who are hidden and pinned down in sordid corners of America, as I am, who will welcome The Seven Arts. It is they who realize the truth and beauty of D. H. Lawrence, Beresford, Romain Rolland, Sherwood Anderson and the rest, because it is their own lives that are reproduced in the work of these people that you publish."

"An Automobile Feat"

"We drove our motor-car into our house and hitched it there," said she to her companion.

The puzzled look which her companion wore, she at last relieved, continuing:

"You did not know we had a car? But, you knew we wanted one and even decided upon the make we'd buy. Then, we asked ourselves if the money could be better placed. As a result—what do you think we did?"

"We concluded that we would take the money we had intended using to buy a motor-car and expend it in creating a REAL HOME in our house.

"The furniture which we have purchased uses no gasoline, needs no expensive appliances and does not get out of order. We enjoy our house as we never did before and the children have ceased to importune me to allow them to spend their time elsewhere.

"Thanks to that motor-car—which we did not buy—we now have a HOME of which we are VERY PROUD. That is why I say 'We drove our motor-car into our house and hitched it there'—hitched it permanently—to the furniture which has made ours a GENUINE HOME instead of a place to stay away from!"

SERVICE REWARDED.

W. C. Heffelfinger, after Twenty-one Years in Employ of Hamburger's, is Made Manager of Buying Force—Offices Opened in Foreign Cities.

Will C. Heffelfinger, after twenty-one years in the employ of Hamburger's, reached the highest place, save one, within the gift of that establishment, when a few days ago he was given charge of all buying and all buyers for this great house.

For several years Mr. Heffelfinger has been in charge of the sales, has supervised all advertising, it being the policy of many of the large retail dry goods and department houses to unite these bureaus under one management.

The promotion to still further responsibility is a well merited recognition of loyalty and ability, and Mr. Heffelfinger is already immersed in enthusiastic plans for augmenting and furthering the interests of his new position.

"We have just opened offices," said Mr. Heffelfinger, "in Yokohama and Shanghai, and have also established direct purchasing offices in London, Paris and Florence.

"This does not mean," said he, "that we shall no longer send our own buyers to those places to purchase the yearly quota of goods; but it means we shall be constantly in close communication with those foreign markets and also that we shall be able to eliminate many middlemen, thus securing to ourselves, and, of course, to our customers, the benefits of a lower cost as well as of a wider selection of such importations."

Speaking of the Oriental trade Mr. Heffelfinger called attention to the fact that many of the accessories of dress, such as metal snaps, and other articles of necessity, are now manufactured in Japan and China and nearly the entire supply of foreign silks comes to us directly from the Orient.

"The establishment of closer relations with the countries west of the Pacific means more to this coast than can possibly be estimated at present," said he, "and the manner in which we handle such trade means everything for the future of our own western States as well as for the entire United States.

"The saving in cost of direct purchase, over the old method of allowing our Oriental importations to go first to the East, in bond, and from there be returned to us, plus the freight each way, cannot but appeal instantly to every thinking mind and it is with a view to such savings that the Oriental offices have been established by Hamburger's."

Mr. Heffelfinger read several letters of interest from the headquarters of the firm in the Far East—letters showing that many questions such as tariff, foreign exchange values, etc., enter into the establishment of such business connections.

UNSPOILED BY MOVIES.

Silent Drama Hasn't Affected Our Applause, Says the Gay Little Tomboy of Orpheum Show. How She Came to Go on the Stage.

Too much "pep" for the schoolroom finding its outlet in cavorting before delighted Orpheum audiences is exemplified in a scampering young hoyden with a bushel of personality and two eccentric curls—Winnie Lightner. While rehearsing their act about a year ago friend sister, Thea, and Ed Alexander, the fortunate male member of the trio, hit upon the idea that the little sister's tomboy joy of life would do much toward keeping awake the tired business man.

So this week for the first time in Los Angeles there appeared a frolicksome young girl just out of the New York schools. One season's experience on the Keith and Proctor circuit back East has given the youngster that needful asset, confidence, and the watchful critics of the Rialto predict in her a "comer."

"Gee, I wish we could stay in Los Angeles," enthusiastically declared Miss Winnie yesterday.

"The audiences here are so responsive and they make you feel all the hospitality that is so lacking in some audiences. Back East I had heard that Los Angeles was a movie town and that the folks here had forgotten how to applaud, but the audiences this week at the Orpheum disprove such a silly rumor."

As happens to most of the "personality" entertainers that play Los Angeles, Miss Winnie received an offer from a well-known comedy company to dodge pies and such before the camera. And she refused for her one ambition right now is to do a "single" before Orpheum audiences in a couple of seasons.

Although her powers of mimicry are excellent the showing of one's own personality a la Ray Samuels, Sophie Tucker or Nora Bayes is much more appealing.

The large number of acts billed for the Coast on the Orpheum circuit prohibits the second week's appearance of the Lightner Sisters and Alexander—this next week's bill retaining only one act.

STAYING WITH "LEGIT."

Fay Bainter Has Many Picture Offers Following Success.

Fay Bainter, the Los Angeles girl who has made such a sensational success in New York this season in "Arms and the Girl," is being beset by motion-picture companies, who desire her services.

Miss Bainter came to Broadway unknown and unheralded. She made an instantaneous hit, and ever since has been besieged with offers. The young woman is under an eight-year contract with William Harris, however, and this contract expressly forbids her appearance in motion pictures.

One picture company has offered Mr. Harris $100,000 for his contract with Miss Bainter.

FILMLAND DIRECTORY.

An extremely convenient and well-arranged directory, in calendar form, of the motion-picture studios, theaters and exchanges has been put out by Clarke Irvine, editor and publisher of the Screamer, official organ of the Scream Club, composed of the publicity men of the various studios. A novel and convenient feature of the directory is its monthly revision, so that it will be kept up to date with each issue of the month's calendar. The calendar will be found extremely useful by newspapers and motion-picture studios.

Big Benefits.

RELIEF FOR CONGESTION; AID FOR DEVELOPMENT.

Such is Opinion Expressed from Various Sources Regarding Proposed Subway from City's Center to Vineyard Station—Hearty Indorsement from Many Districts Urge Widespread Advantages of this Great Project.

many sources representing widespread business interests and an extensive territory, indorsements of the project constructing a subway from the of Los Angeles to Vineyard This would mean the cutting down of transportation time a great area of territory now settled. It would mean the further development of these new territories, and the consequent general advancement of the and its environs.

Below are given a few of the expressions of opinion that have been during the past few days:

Hollywood Business Men's Club: that the Hollywood Business Men's Club—at a meeting at 200 members were present—the enormous benefit to be not only by Hollywood individually, but by the entire city of Los Angeles and outlying districts the construction of the take this opportunity of their unqualified indorsement and of pledging their hearty in every manner possible about the commencement speedy completion of such

Every avenue of quick communication between the valley and the city of Los Angeles is a valuable asset to The construction of the proposed subway from the center of to Vineyard would solve to extent the transportation and assist wonderfully in this highly-favored section of Southern California.

Business Men's Association: The proposed new routing of San Fernando Valley car Highland avenue and country to Vineyard station with the Pacific Electric thereby cutting down the time to all valley points fifteen minutes, is so plainly interest that we gladly give our heartiest indorsement for its early completion.

In recently published statement of the Pacific Electric Railway a loss in operating revenue would seem that they would consider the additional required for the construction of the subway so long considered, as without doubt it a return not only upon but also upon the right of way, secured, stands as a dead investment. First National Bank of Van Nuys: We heartily indorse the opening of Highland avenue in connection with the proposed subway of the Pacific Electric Railroad Company, and firmly believe that rapid transportation will greatly assist in the settling and developing of the San Fernando Valley.

SPECIAL EDITIONS OF NEWSPAPERS.

[Owensboro (Ky.) Inquirer:] If special editions of newspapers served no other purpose, they would be worth the expense and effort responsible for their publication because they attract attention, as no other feature of modern journalism does, to the fact that the American newspaper is being developed and its influence broadened faster, unquestionably, than any other agency of education and enlightenment. That the best type of American newspaper may be considered such an agency, is a fact impossible of denial after reflecting upon the extent to which all other such agencies depend upon the newspaper for the development of their fields of influence. Commerce has found in the newspaper the power and means to broaden, deepen and lengthen the channeels of trade; the church has recognized in the newspaper the medium through which the gospel of right living may be preached in printed words to those who are outside of the personal influence of church workers, the school has claimed the newspaper as the servant which carries the lessons of the classroom and laboratory far beyond school walls and teaches them in terms which all men can understand; and science, politics and social reform depend largely upon the newspaper for the extent to which they may work upon public opinion. Therefore, it is necessary that every once in a while the American newspaper submit proof of the fact that it is alive to its responsibility and is building up its own strength.

The Inquirer has received three special editions which, taken together, might be read as a brief upon which the American newspaper rests its case. They are sent by the New York Post, the Evansville Courier and the Los Angeles Times. One represents the conservative power of the East, richer in experience because older in relation to the biggest things of American life. Another represents the magnificent strength of the Middle West, which has builded out and out till it has reached its natural boundary and now builds in and up, with an intensity typical of the age. Another represents the indomitable spirit of the West, the exuberance of the younger America and the courage which finds its glory in the strength of a man and the red-blooded spirit of a boy. It is impossible to say which is the best of these examples of modern journalism. Each has succeeded in achieving a triumph in the field of newspaper publication. The wealth of information contained, the range of subjects, the typographical perfection and the superb illustrations are the detailed proofs which the peeople may consider in judging whether or not the American newspaper has kept its place among the great industries and the great agents of good in America.

Y.M.C.A.

RE-ELECT A. B. CASS TO LEADERSHIP.

CHOOSE SEVEN NEW MEMBERS FOR THE BOARD.

Ratify Several Changes in the Constitution, Reducing Age Limit for Boys—Start Instruction in Spanish and also Public Speaking this Week.

Re-election of A. B. Cass, president of the Home Telephone Company, as president of the Los Angeles Young Men's Christian Association took place Friday night at the annual meeting of the board of directors.

Other officers re-elected at the meeting were: J. G. Warren, first vice-president; A. J. Wallace, second vice-president; A. P. Fleming, recording secretary; W. E. McVay, treasurer. Seven new members, elected to the board for three-year terms Tuesday night at the annual members' dinner, were installed. The annual report of General Secretary D. E. Luther, showing advance and growth in many departments of the work as well as city-wide influence, was read before the directors.

Several changes in the constitution of the Y.M.C.A. were ratified, following their acceptance Tuesday night. One important change in the document reduces the age of boys in the membership from sixteen to nine years, making it possible hereafter for the boys' department secretaries to reach and affect many boys o fthe city whom they could not touch under the old regime. The constitution of the association was simplified in other respects and made more flexible.

Next Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock a new division for practical instruction in Spanish will be opened under the direction of Luis Bobadilla. Meetings will be held thereafter on oMnday and Thursday evenings. A new division in public speaking, conducted by A. William Olmstead, Manual Arts debating coach, will, beginning next week, meet every Friday evening in the Y.M.C.A. educational rooms.

PROPERTY OWNERS VOICE APPROVAL.

WILL AID SECOND-STREET TUNNEL PROJECT.

Hearing of Protests is Set for Latter Part of January and the Association is Receiving Much Encouragement in the Proposed Assessment District.

Hearing of protests against the Second-street tunnel ordinance is set for January 24. Meanwhile the Second-street Tunnel Association is working hard to insure that the great project will be carried through. It is receiving much encouragement from big and little property owners in the proposed assessment district, many of whom have written to express their approval. Horace Frost, executor of the estate of Charles H. Frost, which owns the northwest corner of Second street and Broadway, writes:

"We are heartily in favor of the work you are doing to further the cause of the Second-street tunnel improvement and we are ready and willing to lend a hand if it should be needed."

J. H. Bryson, speaking for the Bryson estate, which owns the Bryson Building at Second and Spring streets, writes: "I am very glad to know of the work you are doing for the Second-street tunnel cause and I wish to assure you that I will be only too glad to assist in any way possible."

Albert Cohn says: I own property in the assessment district for the Second-street tunnel and I want to say I am heartily in favor of the work you people are doing to get this improvement for us. Surely anybody who has any interests in the north end of Los Angeles ought to be in favor of this improvement heart and soul.

Charles C. Chapman expresses the opinion that the proposed tunnel is the most vital thing for the north end, and he trusts that every one in the district who has any property, whether business or otherwise, will do all possible to help bring about this much-needed improvement.

J. B. Van Nuys, who has large property interests both in the northern and southern ends of the business district, writes as follows: "It is necessary for the stability of Los Angeles that this work be accomplished as soon as possible, and we want you to feel assured that we are with you in this cause to the utmost."

A. G. Gardner, a prominent dealer in pianos and musical instruments, was converted by the association and drawn from the ranks of the opposition. Mr. Gardner writes: "Having protested against the opening of the Second-street tunnel, I have reconsidered the matter and now recommend the work go on for the good of our progressive city."

John F. Poole, an attorney in the California Building, addresses the association in these words: "I write to inform you that I am heartily in favor of the Second-street tunnel and believe that the same is an absolute necessity for the property owners west of Bunker Hill to anchor values of real estate and prevent a decided slump in north-end property."

A. D. Caval, Sr., owner of the Frontenac Hotel and a resident of Los Angeles for the past forty-eight years, tells the association that he has investigated all the data in regard to the Second-street tunnel and is ready to assist in every way possible to put the project through.

M. H. Newmark writes as follows: "To say that we are heartily in favor of the proposed Second-street tunnel is putting it mildly and we want to assure you that if we can render you any assistance in your work for it, we will be only too glad to do so."

CYANIDE GONE, FUMIGATION ENDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Jan. 13.—The fumigation season closed here today because there was no more cyanide to use in treating citrus trees for scale. The Growers' Fumigation and Supply Company used up its last pound of cyanide on a ten-acre grove last night. It is under contract to fumigate about 125 acres which have not been treated this week, but it will be unable to do the work because it cannot get supplies.

Manager Wyman estimates that his six gangs have treated 4600 acres of trees since September. That is a much larger acreage than was handled in any former campaign. Fumigation contractors here did about 2500 acres in addition to what was done by the co-operative growers, so about 7000 out of the 10,000 acres of oranges and lemons in the Pomona Valley have been freed from scale this season. The work was done quicker and more effectively than usual.

Classified Liners.

AGATE TYPE ONLY.

Accepted subject to the following rates and rules:

Rates: The rate for inserting Want Ads in the Daily Times is 1c per word each insertion; in the Sunday issue, 1½c per word each insertion; and to each non-consecutive insertion, 25c; except under the following classifications, the rate for which is 2c per word daily, 2½c per word Sunday, minimum charge, applicable to a single insertion, and to each non-consecutive insertion, 30c daily, 35c Sunday: "Society Meetings," "Personals," "Special Notices," "Church Notices," "Miscellaneous," "Stocks and Bonds," "Money to Loan," "Salary and Chattels," "Physicians," "Medical," "Detectives," "Sanatoriums," and "Baths and Massage."

An extra charge of 25 per cent. is made for the use of capital letters.

Minimum space for classified advertisements ordered for more than one insertion, 14 words.

White spaces and dashes are charged for on the basis of seven words to a line.

Ads set solid are counted strictly by the word. For paragraphed or lined-up matter set in caps, estimate five (5) average words to a line. Not set in caps, estimate five (5) average words to the first line, and eight (8) average words to each line following. In this kind of advertising the actual number of words set solid is counted, and eight (8) words added for each unfilled line. The Times reserves the right to classify all advertisements under appropriate headings.

The Times cannot guarantee accuracy or assume responsibility for errors of any kind occuring in telephoned advertisements.

The Times will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion of any advertisement entered for more than one time.

Errors not the fault of the advertiser, which clearly lessen the value of an advertisement, will be rectified only by republication, without extra charge, on presentation of receipt within five days after insertion. No allowance will be made where the error does not materially affect the sense or purpose of the advertisement.

No adjustment will be made for advertising items not affected by an error or errors which may occur in other items in the same advertisement.

Advertisers should retain receipts given by The Times for payment of "liners," as no mistake can be rectified without them.

The Times will not accept phone or verbal orders to discontinue or charge "till forbid" advertisements.

Telephone orders to discontinue advertising in The Times are numbered in the order of their receipts, and in each instance the number of the order is given to the advertiser, who should make a record thereof. In case of dispute no charge for advertising will be rebated unless the "stop order" number is presented to The Times by the advertiser.

The Sunday circulation of The Times exceeds 100,000 copies, and more "liners" are regularly printed in its columns than in the five other Los Angeles newspapers combined.

Telephone your want advertisements. Ring up "The Times," Main 8200; Home 10391, any time of day or night, and secure prompt and careful attention.

The Times does not knowingly accept objectionable advertisements of any kind or character—medical, whisky, turf, lottery, "get-rich-quick," etc.—and it uses every reasonable precaution to keep its advertising columns clean and wholesome. This is a guaranty of protection to its readers, as well as to its legitimate advertising patrons.

INSTANT SERVICE FOR TIMES PATRONS.

MRS. MASSON,
the noted palmist, of London, England, may be consulted at 322 SOUTH SPRING STREET, by those desiring CAREFUL, CONSCIENTIOUS AND SCIENTIFIC HAND READINGS, FROM ONE OF THE FOREMOST PALMISTS OF THE DAY.

The earnest student and thinker will soon learn in his investigations along psychological lines that that which pertains to occult phenomena proper can readily be distinguished from crude and oft-exposed SLEIGHT-OF-HAND TRICKS, the most common of which is the telling of the subject's name, age, etc., AFTER HE HIMSELF HAS WRITTEN THAT information.

PALMISTRY HONESTLY PRACTICED WILL NOT tell your name, but it WILL give you information of considerably greater value in everyday life.

Your vocation, your present line of work, matters of health and domestic life, financial conditions and ways and means of climbing out of a rut of ill luck into wide paths of success and prosperity, can all be told you through scientific palmistry, WITHOUT A SINGLE QUESTION, WRITTEN OR VERBAL.

MRS. MASSON DOES NOT APPEAL TO IGNORANT SUPERSTITION, BUT TO THE FINEST INTELLIGENCE.
HIGH CLASS PATRONAGE SOLICITED.

Highway Model.

We have at present one of these cars for sale at $1275, which is just about $300 below the average cost of this type of car second-hand. And as to the looks and condition of this machine, to put it into few words, it is beautiful in looks and the condition is very fine in every way. The above statement is broad, but we only want the chance to prove that this is one of America's greatest cars; will rank with anything on the road, no matter how much higher in price. Seeing is believing. Take a look at this car on our floor and be convinced that all we say is correct.

ANTHONY USED CARS ARE [illegible] PRICED

The Anthony Used Car Department [illegible] used cars [illegible] the [illegible] enough that our prices are right, [illegible] the secret of why they are right.

When a new car buyer has a car to turn in, the manager of the used car department is the only member of the Anthony organization that has anything to do with the [illegible] the car. On him is the responsibility of [illegible] the price on the used car when it is taken in and the responsibility of selling it again at that figure. So you can see why Anthony used cars are not over-priced.

In many agencies the man who sells the new car sets the price on the car taken in. The new car salesman is interested only in the new car sale. He does not worry about the used car, because he does not have to sell it. He allows too much for the used car to help the new car sale.

In the Anthony organization it is different. THE MAN WHO APPRAISES THE USED CAR HAS TO SELL IT, and he is expected to sell it promptly. That is one of the [illegible] reasons for the wonderful [illegible] of the Anthony Used Car Department. Here are [illegible] others:

We see that the car is in good [illegible] condition.

We refinish the used cars and make them attractive in appearance.

We back them with the famous Anthony [illegible] service.

Come in and see our splendid stock of [illegible] cars.

IT IS BETTER
TO BUY A HIGH-GRADE USED CAR
THAN A CHEAP NEW ONE.

For Sale—1916 model touring cars below their actual market value. I have four of them of different popular models and were I a speculator in used cars I would be asking from a hundred to a hundred and fifty dollars more for each one of them. But as they were taken in trade on the new Chandler and as we have made our profit in the new car sale and as I want to move these cars at once so as to make room for future trades on new cars, I am selling them at prices that are right and adding a guarantee and service to convince you that I know them to be in good condition and can, therefore, afford to guarantee them.

FOR SALE—CHANDLER SIX TOURING CARS 1915 and 1916 models, ranging in price from $650 to $950, on reasonable terms. We are the sales agents for new Chandlers and these used cars are taken in trade on new ones from owners who wanted the latest style in motor cars and were willing to pay for it. Every used CHANDLER offered for sale by this company is thoroughly rebuilt and guaranteed the same as though it were a new car. In fact, it is as good as a new car in every respect except that they have not the late body lines; however they do not look out of date, and their lines are a great deal more refined than those of the latest modeled, cheaper priced new cars. There has never been any radical mechanical changes in the CHANDLER; therefore mechanically these cars are practically the same as the 1917 model CHANDLER. When you see these cars you will certainly agree that it is better to purchase a high-grade used car than a cheap new one. Open Sundays 11 to 4 p.m. Phones Main 3459—Home 60895. Address 1136 S. OLIVE STREET.

FOR SALE—LIGHT SIX-CYLINDER SEVEN-PASSENGER late 1916 model Mitchell touring car at $850. Also a light six-cylinder, five-passenger 1915 model Mitchell touring at $650. Both of these cars were taken in trade on new cars from owners who wanted an inclosed car and both of them show that their owners were men who believed in giving their cars real care for they are as good as new and we are so certain as to their mechanical condition that we will not hesitate to give an absolute guarantee with either car. Used Car Department of the Chandler Six. Terms. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m. Phones: 60895 or Main 3459. Address 1136 S. OLIVE.

FOR SALE—PATHFINDER ROADSTER, LATE 1915 model, in perfect condition in every respect and fully equipped for $900. This is at least $200 below market value, but as we are not speculators in used cars and as this car was taken in trade from a person who had to have a larger car at once and therefore was willing to sacrifice, you cannot afford to miss this opportunity. We are so positive as to its excellent mechanical condition that we are willing to guarantee it just as though you purchased a new car from us. Open Sundays, 11 to 4, or any evening by phone appointment. Phones 60895 or Main 3459. Address 1136 S. OLIVE.

FOR SALE—OVERLAND LIGHT FIVE-PASSENGER, late 1914 touring car in perfect condition in every respect and far above the average at $375 on terms. We will fully guarantee it in every respect. FOR SALE—LATE 1915 TWENTY-FIVE HORSE power light five-passenger fully equipped Studebaker at $475 cash. This is about what you would pay for a car of a year earlier date and considering its excellent condition, it ought to be the biggest bargain in today's paper. This is my personal car and as I am an automobile man I received excellent value when I purchased it. But the company which now employs me demands that I drive the car they sell therefore I have no use for it. Phone evenings, South 19022, or during the day, 60895, or Main 3459. Ask for Mr. Gildner.

FOR SALE—1917 CHANDLER TOURING CAR that is absolutely as good as a new car and one that has over $100 in extra equipment at a discount of $250; extra tire, open curtains, Victoria plate curtains, etc. Price $1300. FOR SALE—CADILLAC, 1913 MODEL, 5-PASSENGER, touring car, at $450. Has been thoroughly overhauled, repainted and is in excellent mechanical condition; could not possibly be better, and the price is below actual market value of a car that has not been overhauled; fully equipped in every respect, including electric starter, electric lights, demountable rims, five tires, etc. We will fully guarantee it. Terms. Open Sundays, 11 to 4 p.m. Phones, 60895, or Main 3459. Address 1136 SOUTH OLIVE ST.

FIFTH OF THE SERIES OF JACK LONDON STORIES.

IN A FAR COUNTRY.

BY JACK LONDON.

WHEN a man journeys into a far country he must be prepared to forget many of the things he has learned, and to acquire such customs as are inherent with existence in the new land; he must abandon the old ideals and the old gods, and oftentimes he must reverse the very codes by which his conduct has hitherto been shaped. To those who have the protean faculty of adaptability, the novelty of such change may even be a source of pleasure; but to those who happen to be hardened to the ruts in which they were created, the pressure of the altered environment is unbearable, and they chafe in body and in spirit under the new restrictions which they do not understand. This chafing is bound to act and react, producing divers evils and leading to various misfortunes. It were better for the man who cannot fit himself to the new groove to return to his own country; if he delay too long, he will surely die.

The man who turns his back upon the comforts of an elder civilization, to face the savage youth, the primordial simplicity of the North may estimate success at an inverse ratio to the quantity and quality of his hopelessly fixed habits. He will soon discover, if he be a fit candidate, that the material habits are the less important. The exchange of such things as a dainty menu for rough fare, of the stiff leather shoe for the soft, shapeless moccasin, of the feather bed for a couch in the snow, is after all a very easy matter. But his pinch will come in learning properly to shape his mind's attitude toward all things, and especially toward his fellow-man. For the courtesies of ordinary life, he must substitute unselfishness, forbearance, and tolerance. Thus, and thus only, can he gain that pearl of great price—true comradeship. He must not say, "Thank you;" he must mean it without opening his mouth, and prove it by responding in kind. In short, he must substitute the deed for the word, the spirit for the letter.

When the world rang with the tale of Arctic gold, and the lure of the North gripped the heartstrings of men, Carter Weatherbee threw up his snug clerkship, turned the half of his savings over to his wife, and with the remainder bought an outfit. There was no romance in his nature—the bondage of commerce had crushed all that; he was simply tired of the ceaseless grind, and wished to risk great hazards in view of corresponding returns. Like many another fool, disdaining the old trails used by the Northland pioneers for a score of years, he hurried to Edmonton in the spring of the year; and there, unluckily for his soul's welfare, he allied himself with a party of men.

There was nothing unusual about this party, except its plans. Even its goal, like that of all other parties, was the Klondike. But the route it had mapped out to attain that goal took away the breath of the hardiest native born and bred to the vicissitudes of the Northwest. Even Jacques Baptiste, born of a Chippewa woman and a renegade voyageur (having raised his first whimpers in a deerskin lodge north of the sixty-fifth parallel, and had the same hushed by blissful sucks of raw tallow) was surprised. Though he sold his services to them and agreed to travel even to the never-opening ice, he shook his head ominously whenever his advice was asked.

Percy Cuthfert's evil star must have been in the ascendant, for he, too, joined this company of argonauts. He was an ordinary man, with a bank account as deep as his culture, which is saying a good deal. He had no reason to embark on such a venture—no reason in the world, save that he suffered from an abnormal development of sentimentality. He mistook this for the true spirit of romance and adventure. Many another man has done the like, and made as fatal a mistake.

The first break-up of spring found the party following the ice-run of Elk River. It was an imposing fleet, for the outfit was large, and they were accompanied by a disreputable contingent of half-breed voyagers with their women and children. Day in and day out, they labored with the bateaux and canoes, fought mosquitoes and other kindred pests, or sweated and swore at the portages. Severe toil like this lays a man naked to the very roots of his soul, and ere Lake Athabasca was lost in the south, each member of the party had hoisted his true colors.

The two shirks and chronic grumblers were Carter Weatherbee and Percy Cuthfert. The whole party complained less of its aches and pains than did either of them. Not once did they volunteer for the thousand and one petty duties of the camp. A bucket of water to be brought, an extra armful of wood to be chopped, the dishes to be washed and wiped, a search to be made through the outfit for some suddenly indispensable article—and these two effete scions of civilization discovered sprains or blisters requiring instant attention. They were the first to turn in at night, with a score of tasks yet undone; the last to turn out in the morning, when the start should be in readiness before the breakfast was begun. They were the first to fall to at mealtime, the last to have a hand in the cooking; the first to dive for a slim delicacy, the last to discover they had added to their own another man's share. If they toiled at the oars, they slyly cut the water at each stroke and allowed the boat's momentum to float up the blade. They thought nobody noticed; but their comrades swore under their breaths and grew to hate them, while Jacques Baptiste sneered openly and damned them from morning till night. But Jacques Baptiste was no gentleman.

At the Great Slave, Hudson Bay dogs were purchased, and the fleet sank to the guards with its added burden of dried fish and pemmican. Then canoe and bateau answered to the swift current of the Mackenzie, and they plunged into the Great Barren ground. Every likely-looking "feeder" was prospected, but the elusive "pay dirt" danced ever to the north. At the Great Bear, overcome by the common dread of the Unknown Lands, their voyageurs began to desert, and Fort of Good Hope saw the last and bravest bending to the tow-lines as they bucked the current down which they had so treacherously glided. Jacques Baptiste alone remained. Had he not sworn to travel even to the never-opening ice?

The lying charts, compiled in main from hearsay, were now constantly consulted. And they felt the need of hurry, for the sun had already passed its northern solstice and was leading the winter south again. Skirting the shores of the bay, where the Mackenzie disembogues into the Arctic Ocean, they entered the mouth of the Little Peel River. Then began the arduous up-stream toil, and the two Incapables fared worse than ever. Tow line and pole, paddle and tump-line, rapids and portages—such tortures served to give the one a deep disgust for great hazards, and printed for the other a fiery text on the true romance of adventure. One day they waxed mutinous, and being vilely cursed by Jacques Baptiste, turned, as worms sometimes will. But the halfbreed thrashed the twain, and sent them, bruised and bleeding, about their work. It was the first time either had been man-handled.

Abandoning their river craft at the headwaters of the Little Peel, they consumed the rest of the summer in the great portage over the Mackenzie watershed to the West Rat. This little stream fed the Porcupine, which in turn joined the Yukon where that mighty highway of the North countermarches on the Arctic Circle. But they had lost in the race with winter, and one day they tied their rafts to the thick eddy ice and hurried their goods ashore. That night the river jammed and broke several times; the following morning it had fallen asleep for good.

"We can't be more than 400 miles from the Yukon," concluded Sloper, multiplying his thumb nails by the scale of the map. The council, in which the two Incapables had whined to excellent disadvantage, was drawing to a close.

"Hudson Bay post, l ng time ago. No use um now." Jacques Baptiste's father had made the trip for the Fur Company in the ol . days, incidentally marking the trail with a couple of frozen toes.

"Sufferin' cracky!" cried another of the party. "No whites?"

"Nary white," Sloper sententiously affirmed, "but it's only 500 more up the Yukon to Dawson. Call it a rough thousand from here."

Weatherbee and Cuthfert groaned in chorus.

"How long'll that take, Baptiste?"

The halfbreed figured for a moment. "Workum like hell, no man play out, ten—twenty—forty—fifty days. Um babies come" (designating the Incapables) "no can tell. Mebbe when hell freeze over; mebbe not then."

The manufacture of snowshoes and moccasins ceased. Somebody called the name of an absent member, who came out of an ancient cabin at the edge of the campfire and joined them. The cabin was one of the many mysteries which lurk in the vast recesses of the North. Built when and by whom, no man could tell. Two graves in the open, piled high with stones, perhaps contained the secret of those early wanderers. But whose hand had piled the stones?

The moment had come. Jacques Baptiste paused in the fitting of a harness and pinned the struggling dog in the snow. The cook made mute protest for delay, threw a handful of bacon into a noisy pot of beans, then came to attention. Sloper rose to his feet. His body was a ludicrous contrast to the healthy physiques of the Incapables. Yellow and weak, fleeing from a South American fever-hole, he had not broken his flight across the zones, and was still able to toil with men. His weight was probably ninety pounds, with the heavy hunting knife thrown in, and his grizzled hair told of a prime which had ceased to be. The fresh young muscles of either Weatherbee or Cuthfert were equal to ten times the endeavor of his; yet he could walk them into the earth in a day's journey. And all this day he had whipped his stronger comrades into venturing a thousand miles of the stiffest hardship man can conceive. He was the incarnation of the unrest of his race, and the old Teutonic stubbornness, dashed with the quick grasp and action of the Yankee, held the flesh in the bondage of the spirit.

"All those in favor of going on with the dogs as soon as the ice sets, say ay."

"Ay!" rang out eight voices—voices destined to string a trail of oaths along many a hundred miles of pain.

"Contrary minded?"

"No!" For the first time the Incapables were united without some compromise of personal interests.

"And what are you going to do about it?" Weatherbee added belligerently.

"Majority rule! Majority rule!" clamored the rest of the party.

"I know the expedition is liable to fall through if you don't come," Sloper replied sweetly; "but I guess, if we try real hard, we can manage to do without you. What do you say, boys?"

The sentiment was cheered to the echo.

"But I say, you know," Cuthfert ventured apprehensively, "what's a chap like me to do?"

"Ain't you coming with us?"

"No-o."

"Then do as you damn well please. We won't have nothing to say."

"Kind o' calkilate yuh might settle it with that canoodlin' pardner of yourn," suggested a heavy-going Westerner from the Dakotas, at the same time pointing out Weatherbee. "He'll be shore to ask yuh what yur a-goin' to do when it comes to cookin' an' gatherin' the wood."

"Then we'll consider it all arranged," concluded Sloper. "We'll pull out tomorrow, if we camp within five miles—just to get everything in running order and remember if we've forgotten anything."

The sleds groaned by on their steel-shod runners and the dogs strained low in the harnesses in which they were born to die. Jacques Baptiste paused by the side of Sloper to get a last glimpse of the cabin. The smoke curled up pathetically from the Yukon stovepipe. The two incapables were watching them from the doorway.

Sloper laid his hand on the other's shoulder. "Jacques Baptiste, did you ever head of the Kilkenny cats?"

The half-breed shook his head.

"Well, my friend and good comrade, the Kilkenny cats fought till neither hide, nor hair, now yowl, was left. You understand—till nothing was left. Very good. Now, these two men don't like work. They won't work. We know that. They'll be all alone in that cabin all winter—a might long, dark winter. Kilkenny cats—well?"

The Frenchman in Baptiste shrugged his shoulders, but the Indian in him was silent. Nevertheless, it was an eloquent shrug, pregnant with prophecy.

Things prospered in the little cabin at first. The rough badinage of their comrades had made Weatherbee and Cuthfert conscious of the mutual responsibility which had devolved upon them; besides, there was not so much work, after all, for two healthy men. And the removal of the cruel whip hand, or in other words, the bulldozing half-breed, had brought with it a joyous reaction. At first, each strove to outdo the other, and they performed petty tasks with an unction which would have opened the eyes of their comrades who were now wearing out bodies and souls on the Long Trail.

All care was banished. The forest, which shouldered in upon them from three sides, was an inexhaustible woodyard. A few yards from their door slept the Porcupine, and a hole through its winter robe formed a bubbling spring of water, crystal clear and painfully cold. But they soon grew to find fault with even that. The hole would persist in freezing up, and thus gave them many a miserable hour of ice chopping. The unknown builders of the cabin had extended the side logs so as to support a cache at the rear. In this was stored the bulk of the party's provisions. Food there was, without stint, for three times the men who were fated to live upon it. But the most of it was of the kind which built up brawn and sinew, but did not tickle the palate. True, there was sugar in plenty for two ordinary men; but these two were little else than children. They early discovered the virtues of hot water judiciously saturated with sugar, and they prodigally swam their flapjacks and soaked their crusts in the rich, white syrup. Then coffee and tea, and especially the dried fruits, made disastrous inroads upon it. The first words they had were over the sugar question. And it is a really serious thing when two men, wholly dependent upon each other for company, begin to quarrel.

Weatherbee loved to discourse blatantly on politics, while Cuthfert, who had been prone to clip his coupons and let the commonwealth jog on as best it might, either ignored the subject or delivered himself of startling epigrams. But the clerk was too obtuse to appreciate the clever shaping of thought and this waste of ammunition irritated Cuthfert. He had been used to blinding people by his brilliancy and it worked him quite a hardship, this loss of an audience. He felt personally aggrieved and unconsciously held his muttonhead companion responsible for it.

Save existence, they had nothing in common—came in touch on no single point. Weatherbee was a clerk who had known naught but clerking all his life; Cuthfert was a master of arts, a dabbler in oils, and had written not a little. The one was a lower-class man who considered himself a gentleman, and the other was a gentleman who knew himself to be such. From this it may be remarked that a man can be a gentleman without possessing the first instinct of true comradeship. The clerk was as sensuous as the other was esthetic, and his love adventures, told at great length and chiefly coined from his imagination, affected the supersensitive master of arts in the same way as so many whiffs of sewer gas. He deemed the clerk a filthy, uncultured brute, whose place was in the muck with the swine, and told him so; and he was reciprocally informed that he was a milk-and-water sissy and a cad. Weatherbee could not have defined "cad" for his life; but it satisfied its purpose, which, after all, seems the main point in life.

Weatherbee flatted every third note and sang such songs as "The Boston Burglar" and "The Handsome Cabin Boy" for hours at a time, while Cuthfert wept with rage, till he could stand it no longer and fled into the outer cold. But there was no escape. The intense frost could not be endured for long at a time and the little cabin crowded them—beds, stove, table, and all—in a space of ten by twelve. The very presence of either became a personal affront to the other, and they lapsed into sullen silences, which increased in length and strength as the days went by. Occasionally, the flash of an eye or the curl of a lip got the better of them, though they strove to wholly ignore each other during these mute periods. And a great wonder sprang up in the breast of each as to how God had ever come to create the other.

With little to do, time became an intolerable burden to them. This naturally made them still lazier. They sank into a physical lethargy which there was no escaping, and which made them rebel at the performance of the smallest chore. One morning when it was his turn to cook the common breakfast, Weatherbee rolled out of his blankets, and to the snoring of his companion, lighted first the slush-lamp and then the fire. The kettles were frozen hard, and there was no water in the cabin with which to wash. But he did not mind that. Waiting for it to thaw, he sliced the bacon and plunged into the hateful task of bread-making. Cuthfert had been slyly watching through his half-closed lids. Consequently there was a scene, in which they fervently blessed each other, and agreed, thenceforth, that each do his own cooking. A week later, Cuthfert neglected his morning ablutions, but none the less complacently ate the meal which he had cooked. Weatherbee grinned. After that the foolish custom of washing passed out of their lives.

As the sugar-pile and other little luxuries dwindled, they began to be afraid they were not getting their proper shares, and in order that they might not be robbed, they fell to gorging themselves. The luxuries suffered in this gluttonous contest, as did also the men. In the absence of fresh vegetables and exercise, their blood became impoverished, and a loathsome, purplish rash crept over their bodies. Yet they refused to heed the warning. Next, their muscles and joints began to swell, the flesh turning black, while their mouths, gums, and lips took on the color of rich cream. Instead of being drawn together by their misery, each gloated over the other's symptoms as the scurvy took its course.

They lost all regard for personal appearance, and for that matter, common decency. The cabin became a pigpen, and never once were the beds made or fresh pine boughs laid underneath. Yet they could not keep to their blankets as they would have wished, for the frost was inexorable, and the fire box consumed much fuel. The hair of their heads and faces grew long and shaggy, while their garments would have disguested a ragpicker. But they did not care. They were sick, and there was no one to see; besides, it was very painful to move about.

To all this was added a new trouble—the Fear of the North. This Fear was the joint child of the Great Cold and the Great Silence, and was born in the darkness of December, when the sun dipped below the southern horizon for good. It affected them according to their natures. Weatherbee fell prey to the grosser superstitions, and did his best to resurrect the spirits which slept in the forgotten graves. It was a fascinating thing, and in his dreams they came to him from out of the cold, and snuggled into his blankets, and told him of their toils and troubles ere they died. He shrank away from the clammy contact as they drew closer and twined their frozen limbs about him, and when they whispered in his ear of things to come, the cabin rang with his frightened shrieks. Cuthfert did not understand—for they no longer spoke—and when thus awakened he invariably grabbed for his revolver. Then he would sit up in bed, shivering nervously, with the weapon trained on the unconscious dreamer. Cuthfert deemed the man going mad, and so came to fear for his life.

His own malady assumed a less concrete form. The mysterious artisan, who had laid the cabin, log by log, had pegged a windvane to the ridge-pole. Cuthfert noticed it always pointed south, and one day, irritated by its steadfastness of purpose, he turned it toward the east. He watched eagerly, but never a breath came by to disturb it. Then he turned the vane to the north, swearing never again to touch it until the wind did blow. But the air frightened him with its unearthly calm, and he often rose in the middle of the night to see if the vane had veered—ten degrees would have satisfied him. But no, it poised above him as unchangeable as fate. His imagination ran riot, until it became to him a fetich. Sometimes he followed the path it pointed across the dismal dominions, and allowed his soul to become saturated with the Fear. He dwelt upon the unseen and the unknown until the burden of eternity appeared to be crushing him. Everything in the Northland had that crushing effect—the absence of life and motion; the darkness, the infinite peace of the brooding land; the ghastly silence, which made the echo of each heart-beat a sacrilege; the solemn forest which seemed to guard an awful, inexpressible something, which neither word nor thought could compass.

The world he had so recently left, with its busy nations and great enterprises, seemed very far away. Recollections occasionally obtruded—recollections of marts and galleries and crowded thoroughfares, of evening dress and social functions, of good men and dear women he had known—but they were dim memories of a life he had lived long centuries agone, on some other planet. This phantasm was the Reality. Standing beneath the wind-vane, his eyes fixed on the polar skies, he could not bring himself to realize that the Southland really existed, that at that very moment it was a-roar with life and action. There was no Southland, no men being born of women, no giving and taking in marriage. Beyond his bleak sky-line there stretched vast solitudes, and beyond these still vaster solitudes. There were no lands of sunshine, heavy with the perfume of flowers. Such things were only old dreams of paradise. The sunlands of the West and the spicelands of the East, the smiling Arcadias and blissful Islands of the Blest—ha! ha! His laughter split the void and shocked him with its unwonted sound. There was no sun. This was the Universe, dead and cold and dark, and he its only citizen. Weatherbee? At such moments Weatherbee did not count. He was a Caliban, a monstrous phantom, fettered to him for untold ages, the penalty of some forgotten crime.

He lived with Death among the dead, emasculated by the sense of his own insignificance, crushed by the passive mastery of the slumbering ages. The magnitude of all things appalled him. Everything partook of the superlative save himself—the perfect cessation of wind and motion, the immensity of the snow-covered wilderness, the height of the sky and the depth of the silence. That wind-vane—if it would only move. If a thunderbolt would fall, or the forest flare up in flame. The rolling up of the heavens as a scroll, the crash of Doom—anything, anything! But no, nothing moved; the Silence crowded in, and the Fear of the North laid icy fingers on his heart.

Once, like another Crusoe, by the edge of the river he came upon a track—the faint tracery of a snowshoe rabbit on the delicate snow-crust. It was a revelation. There was life in the northland. He would follow it, look upon it, gloat over it. He forgot his swollen muscles, plunging through the deep snow in an ecstacy of anticipation. The forest swallowed him up, and the brief mid-day twilight vanished; but he pursued his quest until exhausted nature asserted itself and laid him helpless in the snow. There he groaned and cursed his folly, and knew the track to be the fancy of his brain; and late that night he dragged himself into the cabin on hands and knees, his cheeks frozen and a strange numbness about his feet. Weatherbee grinned malevolently, but made no offer to help him. He thrust needles into his toes and thawed them out by the stove. A week later mortification set in.

But the clerk had his own troubles. The dead men came out of their graves more frequently now, and rarely left him, waking or sleeping. He grew to wait and dread their coming, never passing the twin cairns without a shudder. One night they came to him in his sleep and led him forth to an appointed task. Frightened into inarticulate horror, he awoke between the heaps of stones and fled wildly to the cabin. But he had lain there for some time, for his feet and cheeks were also frozen.

Sometimes he became frantic at their insistent presence, and danced about the cabin, cutting the empty air with an ax, and smashing everything within reach. During these ghostly encounters Cuthfert huddled into his blankets and followed the madman about with a cocked revolver, ready to shoot him if he came too near. But, recovering from one of these spells, the clerk noticed the weapon trained upon him. His suspicions were aroused, and thenceforth he, too, lived in fear of his life. They watched each other closely after that, and faced about in startled fright whenever either passed behind the other's back. This apprehensiveness became a mania which controlled them even in their sleep. Through mutual fear they tacitly let the slush-lamp burn all night, and saw to a plentiful supply of bacon grease before retiring. The slightest movement on the part of one was sufficient to arouse the other, and many a still watch their gazes countered as they shook beneath their blankets with fingers on the trigger guards.

What with the fear of the North, the mental strain and the ravages of the disease, they lost all semblance of humanity, taking on the appearance of wild beasts hunted and desperate. Their cheeks and noses, as an aftermath of the freezing, had turned black. Their frozen toes had begun to drop away at the first and second joints. Every movement brought pain, but the fire box was insatiable, wringing a ransom of torture from their miserable bodies. Day in, day out, it demanded its food—a veritable pound of flesh—and they dragged themselves into the forest to chop wood on their knees. Once, crawling thus in search of dry sticks, unknown to each other, they entered a thicket from opposite sides. Suddenly, without warning, two peering death's heads confronted each other. Suffering had so transformed them that recognition was impossible. They sprang to their feet, shrieking with terror, and dashed away on their mangled stumps, and, falling at the cabin door, they clawed and scratched like demons until they discovered their mistake.

Occasionally they lapsed normal, and during one of these sane intervals, the chief bone of contention, the sugar, had been divided equally between them. They guarded their separate sacks, stored up in the cache, with jealous eyes; for there were but a few cupfuls left, and they were totally devoid of faith in each other. But one day Cuthfert made a mistake. Hardly able to move, sick with pain, with his head swimming and eyes blinded, he crept into the cache, sugar canister in hand, and mistook Weatherbee's sack for his own.

January had been born but a few days when this occurred. The sun had some time since passed its lowest southern declination, and at meridian now threw flaunting streaks of yellow light upon the northern sky. On the day following his mistake with the sugar bag Cuthfert found himself feeling better, both in body and in spirit. As noontime drew near and the day brightened he dragged himself outside to feast on the evanescent glow, which was to him an earnest of the sun's future intentions. Weatherbee was also feeling somewhat better, and crawled out beside him. They propped themselves in the snow beneath the moveless wind-vane, and waited.

The stillness of death was about them. In other climes, when nature falls into such moods there is a subdued air of expectancy, a waiting for some small voice to take up the broken strain. Not so in the North. The two men had lived seeming aeons in this ghostly peace. They could remember no song of the past; they could conjure no song of the future. This unearthly calm had always been—the tranquil silence of eternity.

Their eyes were fixed upon the north. Unseen, behind their backs, behind the towering mountains to the south, the sun swept toward the zenith of another sky than theirs. Sole spectators of the mighty canvas, they watched the false dawn slowly grow. A faint flame began to glow and smoulder. It deepened in intensity, ringing the changes of reddish-yellow, purple and saffron. So bright did it become that Cuthfert thought the sun must surely be behind it—a miracle, the sun rising in the north! Suddenly, without warning and without fading, the canvas was swept clean. There was no color in the sky. The light had gone out of the day. They caught their breaths in half-sobs. But lo! the air was a-glint with particles of scintillating frost, and there, to the north, the wind-vane lay in vague outline on the snow. A shadow! A shadow! It was exactly mid-day. They jerked their heads hurriedly to the south. A golden rim peeped over the mountain's snowy shoulder, smiled upon them an instant, then dipped from sight again.

There were tears in their eyes as they sought each other. A strange softening came over them. They felt irresistibly drawn toward each other. The sun was coming back again. It would be with them tomorrow, and the next day, and the next. And it would stay longer every visit, and a time would come when it would ride their heaven day and night, never once dropping below the sky line. There would be no night. The ice-locked winter would be broken; the winds would blow and the forests answer; the land would bathe in the blessed sunshine, and life renew. Hand in hand, they would quit this horrid dream and journey back to the Southland. They lurched blindly forward, and their hands met—their poor maimed hands, swollen and distorted beneath their mittens.

But the promise was destined to remain unfulfilled. The Northland is the Northland, and men work out their souls by strange rules, which other men, who have not journeyed into far countries, cannot come to understand.

An hour later, Cuthfert put a pan of bread into the oven, and fell to speculating on what the surgeons could do with his feet when he got back. Home did not seem so very far away now. Weatherbee was rummaging in the cache. Of a sudden he raised a whirlwind of blasphemy, which, in turn, ceased with startling abruptness. The other man had robbed his sugar-sack. Still, things might have happened differently had not the two dead men come out from under the stones and hushed the hot words in his throat. They led him quite gently from the cache, which he forgot to close. That consummation was reached; that something they had whispered to him in his dreams was about to happen. They guided him gently, very gently, to the woodpile, where they put the axe in his hands. Then they helped him shove open the cabin door, and he felt sure they shut it after him—at least he heard it slam and the latch fall sharply into place. And he knew they were waiting just without, waiting for him to do his task.

"Carter! I say, Carter!"

Percy Cuthfert was frightened at the look on the clerk's face, and he made haste to put the table between them.

Carter Weatherbee followed, without haste and without enthusiasm. There was neither pity nor passion in his face, but rather the patient, stolid look of one who has certain work to do and goes about it methodically.

"I say, what's the matter?"

The clerk dodged back, cutting off his retreat to the door, but never opening his mouth.

"I say, Carter, I say; let's talk. There's a good chap."

The master of arts was thinking rapidly, now, shaping a skilful flank movement on the bed where his Smith & Wesson lay. Keeping his eyes on the madman, he rolled backward on the bunk, at the same time clutching the pistol.

"Carter!"

The powder flashed full in Weatherbee's face, but he swung his weapon and leaped forward. The axe bit deeply at the base of the spine, and Percy Cuthfert felt all consciousness of his lower limbs leave him. Then the clerk fell heavily upon him, clutching him by the throat with feeble fingers. The sharp bite of the ax had caused Cuthfert to drop the pistol, and, as his lungs panted for release, he fumbled aimlessly for it among the blankets. Then he remembered. He slid a hand up the clerk's belt to the sheath knife, and they drew very close to each other in that last clinch.

Percy Cuthfert felt his strength leave him. The lower portion of his body was useless. The inert weight of Weatherbee crushed him—crushed him and pinned him there like a bear under a trap. The cabin became filled with a familiar odor, and he knew the bread to be burning. Yet what did it matter? He would never need it. And there were all of six cupfuls of sugar in the cache—if he had foreseen that he would not have been so saving the last several days. Would the wind-vane ever move? Why not? Might it not even be veering now? Why not? Had he not seen the sun to-day? He would go and see. No; it was impossible to move. He had not thought the clerk so heavy a man.

How quickly the cabin cooled! The fire must be out. The cold was forcing in. It must be below zero already, and the ice creeping up the inside of the door. He could not see it, but his past experience enabled him to gauge its progress by the cabin's temperature. The lower hinge must be white ere now. Would the tale of this ever reach the world? How would his friends take it? They would read it over their coffee, most likely, and talk it over at the clubs. He could see them very clearly. "Poor old Cuthfert," they murmured; "not such a bad sort of a chap after all." He smiled at their eulogies, and passed on in search of a Turkish bath. It was the same old crowd upon the streets. Strange, they did not notice his moosehide moccasins and tattered German socks! He would take a cab. And after the bath a shave would not be bad. No; he would eat first. Steak, and potatoes, and green things—how fresh it all was! And what was that? Squares of honey, streaming liquid amber! But why did they bring so much? Ha! ha! he could never eat it all. Shine! Why, certainly. He put his foot on the box. The bootblack looked curiously up at him, and he remembered his moosehide moccasins and went away hastily.

Hark! The wind-vane must be surely spinning. No; a mere singing in his ears. That was all—a mere singing. The ice must have passed the latch by now. More likely the upper hinge was covered. Between the moss-chinked roof-poles, little points of frost began to appear. How slowly they grew! No; not so slowly. There was a new one, and there another. Two—three—four; they were coming too fast to count. There were two growing together. And there, a third had joined them. Why, there were no more spots. They had run together and formed a sheet.

Well, he would have company. If Gabriel ever broke the silence of the North, they would stand together, hand in hand, before the great White Throne. And God would judge them, God would judge them!

Then Percy Cuthfert closed his eyes and dropped off to sleep.

SURVEY OF THE BROAD FIELD

XXXVIth YEAR

FACT AND COMMENT.

With $2,000,000 in new building operations already chalked up to its credit and nearly $2,000,000 more in sight, January, 1917, promises to break all records for construction valuation in a single month in the history of Los Angeles.

Only once, in April, 1913, has Los Angeles run up a building total of over $5,000,000, although several other months during the same busy period of the city's growth this figure was approximated.

The biggest single building permit ever issued in this city was taken out last week by the Wholesale Terminal Company for its gigantic terminal and market at Seventh and Central. The permit calls for the construction of two six-story fireproof buildings, each 1800 feet long and 100 feet wide, and two two-story buildings of like ground dimensions, the group to cost in excess of $2,000,000. The site for the terminal has been partially cleared and excavations for foundation work are now under way. Other buildings of the huge proportions as those now being started will be erected by the company as soon as the present unit is completed.

Permits issued thus far in the month for routine building work amount to $1,000,000. At least one more permit for a large and costly structure will be granted during January, the plans for the $600,000 theater and studio building of the Stability Building Company at Third and Broadway having progressed to the point where a license to build has been asked for. Excavations for this splendid pile have been completed. Permits for various harbor projects, both public and private, will add around $400,000 more to the January total, and the permits yet to be issued for general construction work should easily bring the aggregate for the month to $5,000,000 or more.

The next few months will see numerous great projects started, those now definitely assured running into many millions of dollars. Still others are in a formative state. Permits will be issued for at least three large buildings on West Seventh street before the year is much older, and other important downtown projects are rapidly shaping. Big structural operations are contemplated in all parts of the city. The Second-street tunnel, one of the greatest development projects in the history of Los Angeles and calculated in itself to stimulate building over a large area of the city, is practically assured and may be started in less than four months. If the bore goes ahead, a tunnel to be cut at First street will probably be started before the end of the year. Proceedings are now under way for a tunnel at Fifth street.

Several other great improvement projects are now taking shape, including the long-discussed West First-street and Beverly extension, the new boulevard to be built by linking Lake Shore avenue in this city with Brand boulevard in Glendale and a boulevard linking Angeles Mesa with the West Adams district. The long-delayed construction of the Pacific Electric line to Vineyard may also become a reality of the present year. The legal questions now said to have been settled officially are disposed of at the forthcoming hearing on the Silver Lake parkway project during the present month, that other public improvements will also be started in 1917.

[illegible] significance of the big con[illegible] and development enterprises that are coming to a head at the very beginning of the new year must be apparent. Never before has a year started out in this city with anything near so many really big public and private undertakings in sight. There is going to be more doing in and around Los Angeles in the way of first magnitude building and development projects in 1917 than in any other year in the annals of the city. This is bound to be reflected in a marked improvement in general conditions within a short time.

The projects now shaping are of sufficient magnitude and number to insure steady work for thousands of men, and they mean the putting into general circulation of millions upon millions of dollars. These are the things that Los Angeles needs most at the present time. The starting of all this activity will undoubtedly inspire the overly-cautious investor who has been waiting for times to "pick up" to bring his roll out of hiding, and anything that will awaken the investing public from its long trance will unquestionably put Los Angeles back on its old-time prosperity basis.

It is a thoroughly demonstrated fact that the average man with money to invest rarely ventures to buy anything or undertake anything in dull times when prices are at bedrock and money talks. He almost invariably chooses to hibernate until conditions have been so improved by some outside impetus that the bargains and opportunities that were within his grasp have soared beyond him. After things have started off with a rush he is ready to ride with the wave and to be carried along with the general tide of enthusiasm.

The lull in investment activity has lasted so long and with so little real excuse in Los Angeles that there are those who predict that when things really get to going again in this community a veritable flood of money will be loosed for investment. Some observers even go so far as to declare that Los Angeles will witness the greatest activity and prosperity it has ever known before 1917 is ended. Capital from the East and Middle West, they prophesy, will be poured into Los Angeles and Southern California as never before in the twelve months to come. This much is certain: Far better times than Los Angeles has known in several years are just ahead.

Applicable Here.

The Washington Post recently contained an editorial on "Wealth in Real Estate," that is so applicable to local conditions that it is well worth reproducing. The Post's comments anent the prosperity that has come to so many persons in the East and the certainty that countless numbers of them will seek an outlet for investment in real estate is of particular interest to Southern Californians, as this section has been literally made by those who have come here from other parts of the country to make their permanent homes. Here is the editorial:

That labor, skilled and unskilled, is today far better paid than ever before in the history of the country goes without saying; that every branch of manufacturing is very prosperous is apparent to all observers; that the products of mills and mines are in most urgent demand at prices never before attained, every one is aware of; that activities in financial, industrial and commercial lines are extraordinary is nation-wide knowledge.

Every one of these factors in the business of today points directly to the fact that real estate in villages, towns and cities cannot fail to advance in value. Real estate is always the last thing to advance in eras of good times, and today in the majority of the urban communities of the United States the prices of real estate are far below the actual value of the property.

NEW BORE EXPECTED TO TRANSFORM NORTHWEST.

Proponents of Second-street Tunnel Declare Hill Outlet will Stimulate Building and Development Activity from Figueroa Street to City Limits—Other Tunnels and Boulevards Expected to Follow.

PUBLIC interest in the Second-street tunnel is growing apace as the date set for the hearing by the City Council of the legal protest of those opposed to the project draws near. The opponents have ten days more in which to secure the "51 per cent. frontage petition" necessary to hold up the bore. If they fail in that time to produce a signed and certified protest representative of more than half the frontage in the proposed assessment district the tunnel that has been the Suburban.

FAMOUS TRACT TO BE OPENED.

Flintridge will Go Way of Other Land Domains.

Sightly Holding to be Made into Home Area.

Miles of Scenic Boulevards Built by Owner.

Flintridge, the well-known property of former United States Senator Frank P. Flint in La Canada Valley, is to go the way of other great suburban land holdings in the vicinity of Los Angeles. Announcement is made that the entire 1500 acres comprised within the tract will at once be placed upon the market.

Mr. Flint acquired 700 acres of the sightly estate in 1905, this part of the property having formerly been a stock ranch. The rest was purchased in parcels of varying size. The owner began taking steps looking to the subdivision of the acreage about six years ago. Since that time close to $200,000 has been expended in general improvements.

Five miles of scenic boulevards, with curbs and gutters, have been constructed in the tract, and these have been lined with trees. The land is largely covered with oaks, sycamores, eucalyptus and pines, and the surveys have been carried out so as to avoid any marring of the natural beauties of the holding. Each roadway opens its own picturesque and beautiful vista, one of the finest bits of road being a winding drive leading high into the hills on the south side of the valley back of Mr. Flint's own country home.

The tract lies along the La Canada road of the county highway system and is only a short distance from the city limits of Pasadena, having motor bus service to the center of that city. It is near the dam now being built by the county at Devil's Gate, and readily accessible to the Annandale Golf Club. City utilities and conveniences are being installed.

The owner has cut the property into plots of from one to forty acres in size. The sites thus laid out are of varying topography, some being on knolls and hillsides and others comparatively level. The landscapers in charge of the development have so laid out boundary lines as to give each different building site its quota of trees, with an outlook over the valley and toward the Sierra Madre Mountains.

Sales offices have been opened in Pasadena in charge of Leslie H. Magor. Harry E. White will have charge of an office on the tract itself.

The announcement of the final opening of Flintridge is important not only on account of the magnitude and scope of the project, but as an indication of the great improvement in business and financial conditions. The enterprise is one of the largest in the history of suburban real estate around Los Angeles, the tract being probably the biggest high-class residential subdivision ever put on the market in this vicinity. The owner has been waiting for years for a propitious time in which to carry out his plans.

Mr. Flint's own home occupies one of the charming hillside sites of Flintridge, its grounds comprising about fifteen acres. Other fine places have recently been completed in the tract by H. S. McKay and J. M. Howard. Mrs. E. R. Brainerd has just started a $20,000 residence in the subdivision. Others who have purchased sites in the past year or two are now planning to build. The owners in question have holdings immediately surrounding the home of the former Senator, this being the only part of the big tract that has ever been put on sale.

FOR SALE—

SIMPLY—CROWN HILL.

Half a mile from Broadway.
420 feet above the sea.
Best residing district in Los Angeles.

The Times real estate editor had an exceedingly interesting article, almost two columns long, in last Sunday's issue, showing that there are ELEVEN great public improvements either under way or proposed west of Bunker Hill, and he well says that, if they are consummated this year, "1917 will stand out as an epochal period in the city's history." And he further says, referring to the district west of Bunker Hill, which has been dormant for a long time: "Values in this area just over the hill will double, treble and quadruple" with the completion of the improvements enumerated.

There you have the candid opinion of a real estate authority, with nothing to sell and no object, except to state facts as he finds them and draw reasonable conclusions therefrom. Now I wish to call attention to the striking fact that EVERY ONE of those ELEVEN epochal improvements either originates in, begins or ends in, or has to do with the district bounded by Figueroa, Wilmer, First and Fifth streets.

Outside of the aqueduct and power projects, there has never been a series of public improvements in this city planned on so magnificent a scale as this group in and about the CROWN HILL district. Why is this monumental plan being proposed, and why will it CERTAINLY be carried out? Because Los Angeles has at length grown to the proportions of a metropolitan city, and it must provide facilities for the people to travel easily and comfortably in the DIRECTION in which they WANT TO TRAVEL AND TO LIVE. The most popular and fastest growing section of this city, for residence purposes, is NORTHWEST. Look for the proof at the building, rental realty and population statistics of the last ten years. And this has happened in spite of almost overwhelming traffic difficulties, now happily to be remedied.

Why this tremendous popularity for the NORTHWEST, almost shut off from communication with the downtown district? Because it is the section of HIGHEST ALTITUDE, and hence most desirable as a place of abode. Put your business district out at Pico, or back to the Plaza, and the popularity of the NORTHWEST will not be affected ONE PARTICLE.

Talk about your "stabilizing" and "anchoring"! Nature has stabilized and anchored the CHOICEST residence, apartment and hotel section of Los Angeles for all time to come, and that section is between Figueroa, Sixth, Wilshire boulevard, and thence NORTHWEST to the foothills of Hollywood, and no shifting of the business center will ever change it one jot or tittle, even if we keep said business district on rollers, with steam up, as we've done for the past ten years.

And remember, the first and ONLY practicable approach to this beautiful NORTHWEST tableland is through the CROWN HILL district—you've got to go to Seventh or Sunset boulevard to miss it. So no matter where the business district rolls to—or doesn't roll to—the CROWN HILL district must forever remain the GATEWAY, the FIRST and NEAREST link connecting that charmed NORTHWEST circle to the business district. And when this most magnificent, picturesque and EASILY APPROACHED hill is within HALF A MILE of Broadway, isn't it reasonable to suppose that, with ELEVEN great public improvements progressing in or around it, CROWN HILL district realty prices will soon be up somewhere near what this grade of property is INTRINSICALLY worth? Think that over.

Then note these:

60x165, on Figueroa, the hub and center of these ELEVEN epochal improvements, between Fifth and Sixth streets—when Fifth is cut through it will be NEXT to a CORNER—and the price is NOT $600 or more a foot, like everything else in the block, but just $400—$24,000, only $10,000 cash, and if you can't see where you DOUBLE your cash investment the day Fifth is opened, I say—don't buy it.

170x220, NORTHWEST corner THIRD and LUCAS. Without any doubt the FINEST APARTMENT or HOTEL SITE in Los Angeles. I make NO exceptions ANYWHERE. It's the place for a quarter or a half million investment. It would pay wonderful interest on the money involved, and if you are interested a little trip up to the top of that hill might repay you.

NO PAYMENT DOWN.
10 YEARS' TIME.
6 PER CENT. INTEREST.
This week we are placing on the market 500 acres in 20, 40 and 80-acre tracts, located within one mile of a prosperous town (railroad division,) in the San Joaquin Valley, all fine land, no alkali, irrigation water now on the land costs $2.50 per acre per year. We want practical farmers and men who are home-seekers only. We do not want any payment down for two years, or longer if necessary. Will give ten years time to pay for your ranch, charging only 6 per cent. interest. If you have a few hundred dollars to start on the ranch, are willing to work and put the land in alfalfa, milo maize and kaffir corn, you will make a good living, and the ranch will pay for itself in a few years. If you only have half enough money to start with, we will advance you sufficient money to complete your improvements, buy dairy, cows, hogs, etc.
A great many California farm land failures are due to the fact that the purchaser pays one-fourth or one-fifth cash down, and signs a contract to pay one-fourth or one-fifth at the end of a year or even two years, with seven or eight per cent. interest added. They spend all their money to start; the payments are too heavy to meet; they immediately commence to worry; lose all enthusiasm with their farm work; the result is always a failure.
With our proposition you do not have to worry about payments or spend all your money to start. If you want to be independent in life, this is an exceptional opportunity for you to make good.
We sold 400 acres in the past few weeks in a different part of the valley on these same terms.

A BUSINESS PROPOSITION.
AN INCOME FOR LIFE.
Beginning with the sixth year, an income of $1000 annually, increasing to $2500 at tenth year, to $5000 in fifteen years, and continuing for 100 years.
How obtained? If able to pay $2500, in installments spread over a period of five years, you can own ten acres planted to Smyrna figs, which, based on actual returns in Fresno county, can produce the income mentioned. The orchard to be cared for four years free of cost, and delivered when in bearing. Price $500 per acre, half of which you pay, as stated above, the other half to be paid from crops.
Only two districts in the world produce perfect dried Smyrna figs. One is Smyrna, Turkey, and the other is a limited area in San Joaquin Valley, of which Fresno is the center. No one need be told that the safest and most profitable business is one where there is no competition. Full information on application. FRANK THORNBURG, 501 Union Oil Bldg.

FARMING PAYS AT CHOWCHILLA.
Where the soil is deep, virgin, never-before farmed, water conditions are unexcelled for cheap irrigation, transportation facilities to the best market unsurpassed, good schools and all conveniences. Chowchilla farmers have taken small fortunes from their lands in potato and bean crops this season. They are building big bank accounts. They are doing no more than you can do on good land. FOR PURE FOOD SHOW.

Select Old Robinson Building to Display Annual Exhibits.

The old Robinson building at Nos. 234-242 South Hill street, was selected yesterday afternoon as the site for the fourth annual Pure Food Show to be given by the Southern California Retail Grocers' Association. The location is practically the same as that of last year's show.

The date of the show has been postponed to March 10 to 24, inclusive, to prevent conflicting with the San Bernardino orange show and to give more time to get the exhibits ready.

Manager Neal P. Olsen is arranging to especially boost home products because the great demand for foodstuffs gives Southern California a big opportunity to build up new industries and enlarge those already in operation.

ECHO OF BIG LAND SWINDLE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA ANA, Jan. 13.—An echo of a big land swindle perpetrated in 1910 by Henry J. Martens, who came to this State from Kansas, was heard here today when notice of the decision of the Court of Appeal in the case of C. E. Gault against J. D. Wiens was received. Gault persuaded several Anaheim ranchers to trade their orchards for land in Kern county to which it developed that Martens had no title. Martens took land, notes or cash, preferably cash. Of the notes received he put up $32,000 in notes as collateral for a loan of $16,000 from the Bank of Topeka, Topeka, Kan. After Martens became a fugitive these notes were sold to Gault for $100. He attempted collection upon them. Wiens was sued for $1500. The Court of Appeal holds that Martens could never have collected on the fraud

LARGE DEVELOPMENT.

Local Firm to Install Irrigation System on Fresno County Lands.

One of the largest development projects now going ahead in California was recently launched by the N. and J. E. Allen Company of Chicago in Fresno county. The company owns and is putting under irrigation 15,000 acres of hitherto unfarmed land at Henrietta Station on the Southern Pacific Railway, half way between Hanford and Coalinga. Its plans also contemplate the establishment of a townsite on the tract.

Bent Brothers of this city have been awarded the contract for installing an irrigation pipe line system on the lands. Representatives of the local engineering and contracting firm stated yesterday that 125 miles of concrete pipe, mostly sixteen-inch, will be laid in the tract. A half-mile of pipe is to be laid daily. The developers have sunk fifteen wells to date and plan others as they are needed. The land is to be farmed for a year before being subdivided and placed upon the market. Several crops are to be tried out and a large area is to be planted to alfalfa.

COLTON TO REOPEN ITS BIG HOTEL.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

COLTON, Jan. 13.—Following months of bickering between the owner, William Anderson of Salt Lake City, and Thomas Cullom, sub-lessee of the hotel bar, during which time the city's one hostelry has remained in darkness, Hotel Anderson will once more be opened to the public. The trouble having been adjusted with the purchase by Roy Buster, who is to be manager, of the interests of Mr. Cullom, who is critically ill and not expected to live, the City Council last night granted the transfer of the bar license to the hotel management. The hotel people stated the place could not be made a paying proposition without the bar and Mr. Cullom, when the trustees refused to permit another saloon to be opened, was not inclined to vacate.

ESTABLISH BRANCH OF AUTOMOBILE CLUB.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Jan. 13.—That the San Luis Obispo county branch of the Automobile Club of Southern California will be open and ready for business by February 1, is the prediction of R. W. Coane, manager of the Santa Barbara branch, who returned here last night to continue the work of organization, interrupted by the holidays and pressing business in the south.

"The directors of the Auto Club of Southern California have already appropriated funds sufficient to launch the branch office," declared Mr. Croane today. "This appropriation was conditional upon whether or not another fifty members could be secured in this county. We have practically 100 signed up now, and must only bring the total up to 150."

Mr. Croane plans to spend most of his time here during January, making trips to all the principal towns of the county on his membership campaign.

New Bore.

object of almost ceaseless agitation for a decade will be definitely assured.

The proponents of the project assert that the thing is a "go" and that the opposition will never get enough frontage signed up to protest it out. The project in its present form, they declare, overcomes all reasonable objections. The plan of allowing owners twenty years in which to pay their assessment and of so bounding the assessment district that it will not overlap districts that may be laid out for future Bunker Hill outlets, they claim, has made ardent boosters out of many of those formerly opposed to the project.

The opponents, on the other hand, declare that they will be able to legally protest the tunnel out. Some of them are against the bore because they think some other plan of opening the hill would be better; some are of the type who protest against every improvement, whatever its cost, purpose or character, and others dread assessments, while admitting the value of the plan. It was for the last-named class of owners that the long-term bond plan for financing the enterprise was devised.

The City Engineer will begin checking and verifying the protest petition on January 24. The work will probably consume several days. If the protest falls short, as the men and women who have labored so hard for the hill outlet say it will, a period of ninety days will be required under the proceedings for the legal posting of notices and other preliminary details. It will be possible, if all goes well, to start the bore in May.

The proponents of the tunnel are laying special emphasis on the fact that they intend to work as an organization for a bore or open cut at First street and a tunnel at Fifth street as soon as their own project is started. They declare that the Second-street outlet is the opening wedge needed to insure the carrying out of a general hill opening programme that will completely transform the districts on both sides of Bunker Hill. The owner who pays an assessment for the Second-street tunnel, they assert, will also be making possible, or at least hurrying along, other projects from which he will derive much benefit, but toward the cost of which he will contribute nothing.

FACTS ABOUT BORE.

The Second-street tunnel plans call for one of the most modern improvements of the kind ever built. The bore will be fifty feet in diameter and will be lined with white enamel tile and effectively lighted. It will be large enough to provide for a double-track street railway line and still leave room for automobile driveways. The tunnel will have its east portal at Clay street and its west opening at Flower. One of the most important provisions of the plan is that for reducing the present steep grade on Second street between Hill and Broadway by lowering the corner of Second and Hill streets four feet.

The tunnel will afford the traffic of west and northwest Los Angeles direct access into Broadway, Hill, Spring and Main, and will give a tremendous impetus to the upbuilding of a huge section that has always been held back on account of its comparative isolation from the rest of the city. It will be used by the residents of the far-flung area between West Sixth street and Sunset boulevard, who are now forced to go to Sixth and Seventh streets to get around Bunker Hill into the business section. By taking so much of the traffic from these two overcrowded streets, it will do much to solve the troublesome question of congestion in the downtown district.

CONNECTING STREETS.

The West First-street boulevard, to be formed by the widening, regrading and paving of First street from Lakeshore avenue to Commonwealth avenue, will pour its traffic into Second street at Lakeshore, from which point there will be a straight shoot through the Second-street tunnel into the business district. Temple street from Vermont avenue west is to be widened and paved as a fine highway to the city limits, from which point on it is proposed to extend it westward through Beverly Hills, Brentwood and Westgate to Santa Monica. This magnificent travel artery, to be known as Beverly boulevard, will be connected with the West First-street boulevard by a viaduct running across Silver Lake Parkway. Proceedings for all the improvements named are now under way.

Every north and south street that crosses First street east of Vermont and Temple street west of Vermont will give its quota of traffic to the great east and west artery emptying into the shopping center through the Second-street tunnel. Residents of east and west streets on both sides of Temple street west of Vermont from as far south as Third or Fourth and north to the foothills, will find a new short route into the business center, by way of Vermont or Western avenue into the West First-street boulevard and on through the tunnel. The bore will thus be of great value to Hollywood and Colegrove, and the San Fernando Valley.

The Second-street tunnel will also form an outlet into the business center for the enormous traffic that is bound to flow down the new air line boulevard to the Glendale-Tropico-Burbank district, to be created by linking Lakeshore avenue in this city with Brand boulevard in Glendale. The City Council has already authorized the construction of a bridge across the Los Angeles River at Ivanhoe Station, connecting these two highways. The projected new short-cut boulevard to Pasadena, to be formed by extending Figueroa street northward across the river to meet the county highways in Eagle Rock Valley, will also send its traffic through the tunnel.

The Second-street tunnel, in conjunction with the various traffic arteries mentioned will, in the opinion of those who have made a careful study of the situation, almost immediately make the area west of Bunker Hill, including not only the territory within the tunnel assessment district, but everything around and to the west of it, highly desirable and valuable property. Second and Figueroa, it is predicted, will become one of the most important corners in the city on account of being the point of convergence of so many main traffic thoroughfares. An important business district, it is believed, will spring up just west of the hill and the provision of direct and easy access through the hill into the main retail center downtown is expected to lead to the building of large numbers of apartment-houses and flats within the close-in zone thus opened. Several projects of considerable magnitude are now hanging fire waiting the final outcome of the tunnel proceedings.

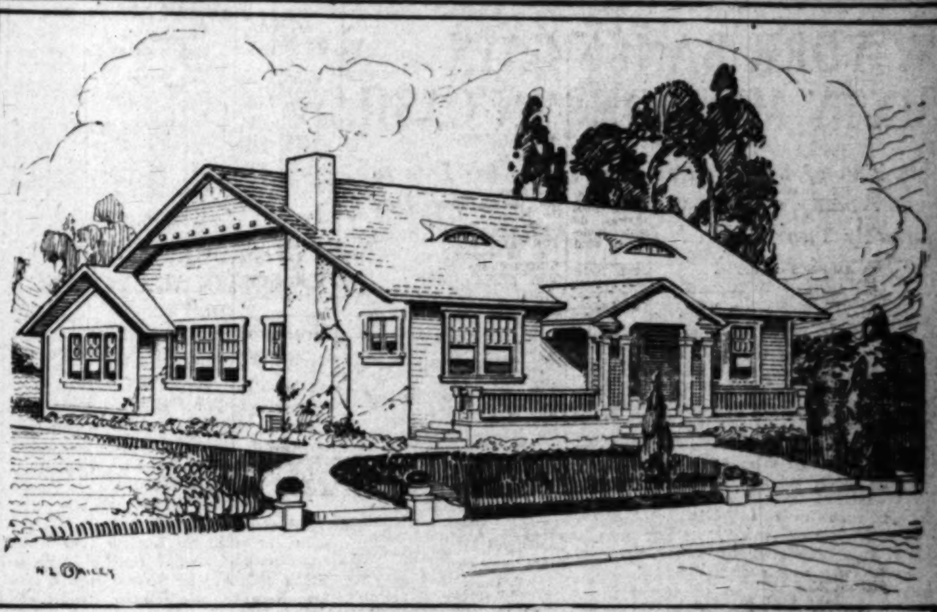
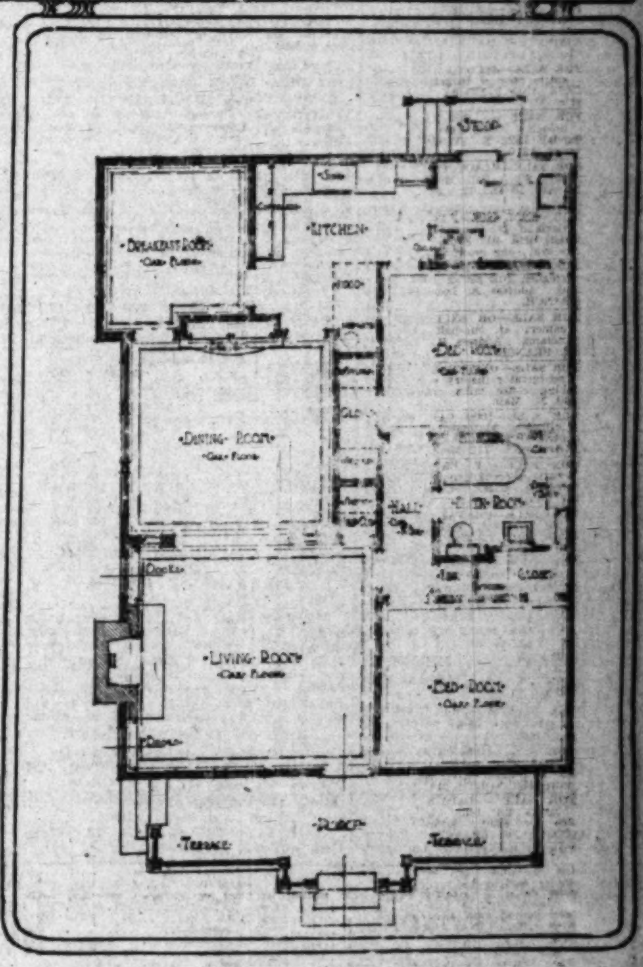
Attractive Homes of Moderate Cost. No. 10.





An inexpensive bungalow.

The Los Angeles Investment Company is building several houses of the type shown in its southwest subdivisions at the present time.

INEXPENSIVE HOMES.

New Bungalows of Investment Company Good Examples.

The bungalow illustrated today in the "moderate cost home" series is one of a number planned by Frank A. Brown, a local architect, for the Los Angeles Investment Company. Several houses of the type shown are now being erected by the company in its southwest Los Angeles tracts, and others are projected for early construction. The dwellings are inexpensive, but at the same time well-arranged and attractive. An idea of their cost may be gathered from the fact that the company is selling them at from $3300 to $3500, depending upon the size and location of the lot.

The house pictured has a suggestion of the colonial types in its entrance and porch. The sides are of smooth redwood painted white, and the roof being shingled. An interesting feature is the open terrace on either side of the doorway.

The floor plan is economical in arrangement, no space being wasted. This is helped out by the built-in features, which are well worked out, especially in the kitchen and bathroom. The grouping of the rooms is interesting, the hall being so placed that it is possible to pass through the house without having to go through the main rooms. The breakfast-room is designed to serve as a bedroom when occasion demands.

George Taylor has had plans drawn for a nine-room house to be built at No. 232 South Oxford avenue. E. B. Rust has completed plans for a nine-room colonial house to be built by R. E. Dennler on Harold way near Normandie avenue, Hollywood. John Parkinson has drawn plans for an eight-room brick house which he will build on Wilshire place. The Ramey Investment Company will start work this week on two residences for the McCarthy Company in Wilton Heights, one at No. 5007 and one at No. 5011 Elmwood avenue.

Mrs. A. E. Storm is about to start a six-room bungalow on Edgecliffe drive near Sunset boulevard. Ira A. Marshall will build a six-room bungalow at No. 4832 Elmwood avenue. Helen Colf has had plans drawn for a six-room bungalow at No. 4266 Dalton avenue. E. I. Richmond will build a six-room bungalow at No. 3555 Cimarron street. Fact and Comment.

advance in prices of realty during the past twelve months, the fact remains that while every kind and class of commodities and many classes of other forms of investment have shown surprising advances in prices, real estate has scarcely begun to feel the uplift of prices. Real estate carries with it greater certainty of large profits than almost any other form of investment.

Millions of Americans now given an opportunity in industry and commerce, to acquire surplus money want homes, and they are now showing their desire to purchase and build. Thousands of our people who have gained money by advances in prices of securities and commodities will place their newly-found fortunes in that safest and surest of all forms of investment—real estate—in the ever-growing and prosperous cities and towns of the United States.

Realty is coming into its own once more, and the real estate owners and the real estate brokers are feeling the first impulse of a mighty movement, which will carry property values in business and residential sections beyond those of any time in the past, and which will extend and expand towns and cities far into the adjoining agricultural districts.

FOUNDRY PROJECTED.

Plans Completed for Important Plant in New Industrial Suburb. Five Buildings to Rise on Site—Equipment Is Up-to-Date.

The new industrial tract known as Steelton, now being opened by the Laguna Land and Water Company, near Huntington Park, will soon acquire an important plant in the shape of a foundry to be built by the Warman Steel Casting Company of Redondo Beach. Plans for the project have just been completed by Peoples & Cheney of this city.

The steel company started as a small crucible plant at the beach community in 19[illegible]. It has been operating an electric furnace since November, 191[illegible]. Its business has spread through California, Arizona and Nevada. The new and larger plant is to be built to care for this expansion.

The Steelton site of the company comprises five acres, with a spur from the Pacific Electric and Salt Lake railways. Five buildings are to be erected, a main foundry 113x240 feet in size, a storage building 40x60 feet, an office building 30x30 feet, a small chemical laboratory and a garage. The equipment will include two cranes and a gigantic shears for cutting rails and scrap iron.

EW YORK BANKS GAIN SIXTY MILLIONS IN CASH.

Publication of Weekly Statement Comes too Late to Affect Trading on Exchange, Where Sales for Day are Barely Two Hundred Thousand Shares—Bonds Firm, Deliveries Small.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

EW YORK, Jan. 13.—The most interesting event of the day in the financial district, publica- of the weekly bank statement, ving an actual cash gain by local s of more than $60,000,000, did develop until after the close of xceedingly dull and meaningless on of the stock market. Sales ly approximated 200,000 shares, smallest turn over in many ths, even for a week-end.

he cash gain disclosed by the statement was partly offset by an expansion of more than $41,- 00, due in all probability to some ortant financing. This was fully ralized, however, by an increase eserves of virtually $41,000,000, total of about $90,000,000 in the three weeks, bringing the total al excess reserves up to the idable figure of $131,438,620, h slightly exceeds any weekly ving of the past year.

the market itself, it need only aid that trading was confined to elatively small faction of the onal element. Efforts to de- e prices during the first hour were ted by the heaviness of a few ialties, notably Bethlehem Steel United States Rubber, at de- s of 15 and 6¼ points, respect- y.

eakness of rubber was attributed he new financing announced yes- ay, which imposes restraints the companies' future dividend ry. Other industrials, as well as ialties of varied descriptions, e 1 to 3 points lower and United es Steel also yielded a full point, short covering caused general in some cases material recover- at the close.

EEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW.

ncertainty was the outstanding ure of the dull and wholly unin- sting week in the stock market. course of peace negotiations, as ected in the official statements of belligerents and the response of Entente powers to this govern- t was the most potent factor in tailing speculation and invest- t demand.

he result of the week's operations gests, however, that price move- ts are more responsible to bearish pressure than to news of a favorable character. Every rumor or report indicating a continuance of the international strain gave rise to further depression, while encouraging trade advices, such as the new high record of unfilled orders reported by the United States Steel Corporation, went by unnoticed.

Hesitation shown by investors is generally ascribed to a disposition to await definite announcement of the new British loan to be floated in this market. Details of the internal loan by that government suggest a more attractive offering by our bankers.

The domestic monetary situation offers every hope of further ease for mercantile as well as strictly financial purposes. The first fortnight of the year finds local banks with the largest reserves in more than a year and a material reduction in loans. A similar showing is made by other important centers of finance.

OIL STOCKS ACTIVE ON LOCAL EXCHANGE

MONOPOLIZE NINETY PER CENT. OF THE TRADING.

Amalgamated and Associated Bring Higher Quotations—Increased Demand for General Petroleum—Union a Feature, Traders Advances.

Oil stocks monopolized ninety per cent. of the trading at yesterday morning's session of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange. There were a few transfers in the mining group and 2800 shares of Los Angeles Investment sold at 79 cents, but outside of this meager activity the sole attention of the public and professional element was centered on the petroleum securities. Heavy buying orders for Amalgamated, Associated and Union sent the quotations for those securities to considerably higher levels and there was a renewed call for the cheaper oils. Opening sales in Amalgamated were recorded at $80.50 but before the end of the meeting buyers were willing to pay $81.00 for the stock. Rumors continue persistent that this company will soon be on a dividend basis again and no doubt this has lent support to the market for Amalgamated. Associated sold at $71.50 at one period of the proceedings, but final dealings were registered at the slightly lower price of $71.12½. General Petroleum showed improvement when the stock brought $60.000 to $60.25 and this issue promises to become a popular one with the local investing public. Traders Oil was up 3 points at $63.00 and there was the usual amount of activity in Mascot, Rice Ranch and United.

Union was easily the feature of the day with total sales of 620 shares at universally higher values. The demand for this stock has been remarkable during the past month and yesterday's interest in the spectacular oil issue was nothing unusual. The general range of prices was from $125.00 to $125.62½, with closing sales at $125.25. Brokers state that they are receiving many inquiries for Union from eastern correspondents and this demand, coupled with the local call for the stock, is likely to push up Union to $150.00 or better.

VISIBLE SUPPLY IS WHEAT PIT FACTOR.

PRICES UPHELD ON EVIDENCE OF LARGE DECREASE.

Nervousness Over Evident Pause in Export Demand Forms Chief Offset to Prospect that Total Tomorrow will Show Material Shrinkage.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 13.—Expectation of a good-sized decrease in the United States visible supply tended to uphold the wheat market today. The close, although unsettled, was the same as yesterday's finish to ⅜ off, with May at 1.84⅜ to 1.84½ and July 1.49⅜ to 1.50. Corn gained ⅛ to ⅜ @⅜, oats were unchanged at ⅛@⅜ down, and provisions varied from 2½ decline to a rise of 30 cents.

Nervousness over an evident pause in export demand formed the chief offset to the prospect that the visible supply total Monday would show a material shrinkage in the available domestic stock of wheat.

Forecasts of enlarged world shipments were counterbalanced by complaints from the West and the Southwest that crop damage might result from prevailing cold weather and the lack of snow covering.

Corn had a firm tone throughout nearly the entire day. Oats followed corn. Trade was local. Provisions averaged higher owing to an advance in the hog market to the topmost level ever attained in January.

All the money from the sale of this stock goes into the co-treasury except the required expenses. The money is for a 20-ton concentrating plant. When our mill is installed, which we are going to rush as rapidly as possible, the stock will be beyond reach. Picked samples run $1000 to $1200 per ton. General samples from $75 to over $500 per ton; but we are basing our calculation on $60 ore. On that we can pay 10c per share per month. We have a crew of men working preparatory to the installation of the mill.

Does this tell you anything? It means these shares will lead the high-priced stocks. It means we have confidence the mine will pay us, and pay us well. It means we are not depending upon making our profits out of stocks (note our capitalization again). It means you can, by coming in with us on the first outlay, share our profits with us. It means this stock is cheap at $1.00.

The time draws nearer when we will be financed and will draw all company's stock off the market—as we have purchased a 20-ton concentrator and rolls; and as we are gradually and surely getting in shape to start the erection of the mill—and as the reports from the mine continue to show satisfaction, the price is gradually seeking a normal level.

IT IS NOW 32C PER SHARE

1000 shares should bring in $100 per month. This opportunity will be lost before long. We are rapidly getting financed for the construction of our mill, then we will take all stock off the market. Send for information.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET.

There is a general tendency for all food commodities to advance at the present moment, and it looks as if the cost of living will be considerably higher within the next thirty days. Scant supplies and an ever increasing demand is bound to be reflected in higher prices all along the line. Fresh fruits and vegetables are firm, but such articles as potatoes, onions, dry beans, dried fruits and flour are all rising in value. Yesterday pink beans were advanced to $8.00 and $8.25 a hundred pounds and both large and small whites are due to be boosted any day. Potatoes of all kinds are continuing to climb and the quotation for local spuds has jumped to $2.60 and $2.85 a hundred. Loose chile and chile strings have moved up a cent a pound and boiling onions are now bringing $2.15 a lug. There is such a meager amount of white and brown onions on hand in this city at the present time that the dealers are fighting with each other to obtain enough onions to take care of their more important customers. The corner on onions this season was the most successful ever pulled off in these parts, and the manipulators are said to have reaped a golden harvest out of their stocks.

Cheese values are very irregular and the market on eastern and northern makes has been fluctuating up and down for the past ten days. California fresh cheese is selling for from 20 to 21 cents a pound. Martin twins and daisies have been reduced to 23½ cents per pound and cream brick is down 2 cents a pound at 30. Imported sorts are, on the other hand, soaring and there is very little cheese of that kind in Los Angeles.

Eggs advanced on the Produce Exchange yesterday morning when the quotation for fresh extras rose to 41 cents a dozen and pullets to 38 cents. This is expected to be but the beginning of a steady upward movement in the local egg market which will carry values to considerably higher levels. The receipts totaled 153 cases of eggs, 33,760 pounds of butter, 1590 pounds of cheese, 5651 sacks of potatoes, 18 sacks of onions, 316 sacks of beans, 32 sacks of sweet potatoes and 337 boxes of apples.

PRICES IN COLLAPSE TOWARD THE CLOSE.

FIFTY-TWO-POINT NET LOSS IN FINAL QUOTATIONS.

Action of Market Comes as Surprise in View of Fact that Weakness was not Indicated in Early Trading — Stop-loss Order are Numerous.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW YORK BUREAU OF THE TIMES, Jan. 13.—The feature of today's short session of the cotton market was the sudden collapse in prices toward the close, the final quotations representing a net loss of from 25 to 52 points. This action of the market came as a surprise in view of the fact that in the early trading there was no indication of weakness, the opening having been steady at an advance of 3 to 10 points compared with Friday's closing prices.

There was every appearance of dullness until a few minutes before the sounding of the bell when selling orders of no great volume disclosed an almost entire absence of buying power, together with a large number of stop loss orders close to the market. This precipitated a sharp decline which later developed into a break carrying May contracts as low as 17.90 and July contracts to 17.92, which were the closing figures. Traders were unable to ascribe the drop in prices to any particular item of news and it was pointed out that early reports were more bullish than otherwise. There was only a scattered buying on the decline and it chiefly represented covering by those who sold when the decline started.

FATHER FARM ADVICE AT REDLANDS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

RERLANDS, Jan. 13.—Thomas Hunt, dean of the college of agriculture of the University of California, will probably address the farmers and growers of this section on "The Farm Adviser Movement" on January 25 as R. O. Bonnell, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, is now making arrangements for such a meeting.

The local Chamber of Commerce has fathered the farm adviser movement in this county and organizations are being completed in all the cities of the county. The local organization will have a membership of about 300. It is planned to complete the membership campaign in all cities as soon as possible and ask the Supervisors to appoint a farm adviser.

Dean Hunt is to help in this work by delivering a lecture at San Bernardino during the orange show on the movement and in this city the same evening.

Who Gets The Credit?

Some years ago prominent mining engineers turned down the United Eastern and Big Jim ground at Oatman as being worthless. Yet, other engineers found this ground good and two great mines have been developed there.

Some engineers said Chili Copper could never be made a success. Yet, Chili Copper is a great mine.

It is an actual fact that the United Verde turned down the Little Daisy claim and refused to do the assessment work on it, which is now the United Verde Extension—(the wonder copper mine of the world.)

There are hundreds of instances where "big" engineers have "turned down" properties which later proved to be bonanza mines. THE CREDIT GOES TO the engineers and operators who saw the genuine attractiveness of such properties and proved their theories to be correct.

Someone might say to you that ARIZONA RAY ground was discarded by a great copper company as worthless.

Just to raise a hypothetical question—WHAT IF IT WAS?

Other engineers, such as Frederick E. Young and J. K. Turner, examined ARIZONA RAY ground and found it GOOD.

On the basis of their reports, the company is steadily developing and proving up this ground, which these engineers say has already been practically proved up on three sides by the operations of other companies. When these operations bring a real mine into being,

ARIZONA RAY
GETS THE CREDIT

Engineers who have achieved reputations as mine makers have reported favorably on ARIZONA RAY ground. We believe this ground will eventually be mined as profitably as the property of the Ray Consolidated and Ray Hercules. The company is actually mining. Now then,

WE WANT YOU TO HELP
WE WANT YOU TO GET SOME OF THE CREDIT
WE WANT YOU TO GET SOME OF THE PROFIT.

We believe ARIZONA RAY is the most promising of all the young Arizona Coppers; that when property and price of stock are considered it offers the greatest opportunities for profit of any of the young Arizona Coppers.

Write us or call at our office for complete data, maps, etc., which will help you to understand why we believe in ARIZONA RAY.

We believe that you will also believe in Arizona Ray after you have received complete, first-hand information concerning it. Don't forget that the success of ARIZONA RAY is such that it makes some other people jealous. But—we can't help that.

The PLATINO has high grade ore assays that show 36.07 copper.

The management of the PLATINO MINES CORPORATION have one object in view: To develop the PLATINO property in the most practical and conservative manner and make it a big producer in the shortest possible time.

Development work has started on the PLATINO mine, under the supervision of Mr. Springer, formerly of the Boss Mine. Among mining men, Mr. Springer is known as the most capable man in this district when it comes to developing ore and producing results.

I offer a small allotment of the stock of the PLATINO MINES CORPORATION at 10 cents per share, and advise its purchase immediately. Remember, the famous BOSS stock sold at 10 cents once and is now selling around $1.50. Take advantage of this opportunity to make THE LONG PROFIT.

TOO LATE TO CLASSIFY

The hour for closing many of the columns in The Times "Liner" section Saturday night is 8 o'clock. Subsequent to this hour, developments often occur in commercial and domestic affairs which make it necessary to seek quick and effective publicity. Therefore, this "Too Late to Classify" column often offers greater bargains and more money-making opportunities than any other section of the Times

Total Number of Classifications and Subheadings, 305

FIGURES THAT TELL THEIR OWN STORY.

Average number of separate advertisements printed on week days, 1158.

Average number of separate advertisements printed on Sundays, 7540, totaling 30 pages, or 240 columns—more or less.

These announcements represent so wide a range of present activities and human interest, and so large a proportion of the population of the city and adjacent territory, that they make the classified columns of The Times truly "THE CLEARINGHOUSE OF THE SOUTHWEST," where all classes of people may meet on a common level to do business—nearly every known kind of business. Many a hard-pressed business man or other resident has been saved from heavy financial loss on the one hand, or, on the other hand, has made for himself a clever stroke through the simple agency of a Times "Liner" costing less than $1.00.

Bear in mind that it's the complete and accurate CLASSIFICATION of these "Liner" advertisements—not the size of the type used—that makes them far-reaching and effective.

THE LOS ANGELES TIMES, through the medium of its "Liner" sections, printed 4,628,330 agate lines, divided into 762,141 individual advertisements and filling 15,919 columns, or approximately 2000 pages of space, in 1916. The following is the score by lines and as to the number of individual advertisements carried by other city papers:

	Agate lines.	Number of individual Advs.
THE TIMES	4,628,330	762,141
Second morning newspaper	2,174,906	514,634
Third morning newspaper	1,407,630	190,227
First evening newspaper	788,369	141,299
Second evening newspaper	829,696	121,276
Third evening newspaper	193,276	34,263

The Los Angeles Times "Liner" columns regularly contain practically all the ads printed in other local newspapers and thousands of exclusive ones not printed in any other newspaper. The Los Angeles Times regularly prints more classified and display advertising than any other newspaper in the world; and more real estate and personal property is bought, sold and exchanged, and more houses, apartments, storerooms and other property are rented through its columns than through any other known agency.

A MARKET PLACE.

That the principle of barter still prevails to a large extent in practical affairs is well exemplified by many Liners in The Times. It is not necessary to pay money for all commodities; many valuable and desirable articles may be obtained by the method of "swapping"—otherwise the direct exchange of commodity for commodity. This is an economically sound method, for by its use articles that no longer cater to the wants of the owner may be procured by some one who needs and desires them. For instance, there is stowed away in the attic of many a home a baby carriage, a washing machine, a typewriter, an extra chair or two, a trunk that is never used, a mandolin capable of pleasing twanging, a desert outfit, a gun, a steamer rug, a bicycle or a churn that may, by means of a Liner advertisement in The Times, be exchanged for a hammock, an automobile tire, a wheelbarrow, a set of books, a stepladder, or "what have you?"

It is not always necessary to pay the dentist or the doctor in coin of the realm; there are reputable members of this profession willing to give their services in exchange for commodities they may desire. Tailors, too, and dressmakers, carpenters, plumbers, teachers, gardeners and many other persons having services to offer are ready to exchange these for articles of value.

HUGE SUM TOTAL.

The total value of goods profitably exchanged in Los Angeles each year through the medium of The Times runs into large figures, and the consequent economic gain is a factor of importance. That Americans allow many useful and valuable articles that have lost their attraction or value to the owner to fall into disuse, and eventually to be carted away as rubbish, is a recognized fact. It is only the enterprising and thrifty man or woman who will take the trouble to find some one who needs the discarded articles and give something of value for them. Yet the trouble is slight and the returns well worth while when The Times is made the medium of exchange.

OLD CLOTHES!

Discarded clothing is an item of no small moment in the careful man or woman's fiscal policy. A suit that has become shiny or even slightly shabby will not do for the professional or business man of large affairs; yet such a suit, well tailored and of excellent fabrics, will serve many a clerk or workingman better than a cheap one of inferior material and workmanship. Some workers are too fastidious to buy clothing that has been worn, even if it is not at all shabby, but the man who prefers to boost his savings account in the bank rather than expend more money than necessary for clothing is the one who will eventually be able to patronize the best tailor in the city. Evening gowns and wraps, tailor-made suits that milady has grown tired of, furs that have been replaced by newer ones, dresses or suits that do not quite fit the expanding or diminishing figure, are all profitably purchased by thrifty women who are good judges of value.

DIAMONDS AND FINERY.

Then, too, there are numerous cases where misfortune or financial disaster has come to a woman who possesses a handsome and expensive wardrobe. She finds that one method of securing the ready money she needs is by disposing of some of her fine raiment by means of a Times Liner. Rare pieces of lace, quaint hand-made ornaments and jewelry, artistic bits of bric-a-brac, and other works of art are likewise often sold by unfortunates that no longer feel able to indulge in the possession of luxuries.

Diamonds are considered one of the best assets a person can have, for it is always possible to turn them into money. Diamond brokers of high standing use The Times Liners in order to extend their business; private parties wishing to dispose of or to buy diamonds also find that they can achieve the desired result by using this medium. The loaning of money on diamonds is also a well-recognized business represented in the Liner columns.

RENTING PROBLEM SOLVED.

When moving time comes to the Los Angeles resident, or when a visitor to the city desires to rent a room, an apartment, a bungalow or a more pretentious dwelling, it is not necessary to spend time and money and energy in that most tiresome of all activities, known as "house hunting." Owners of rental property have learned by experience that it pays to tell the public just what they have for rent, as by this means a desirable tenant can be quickly found. The Times thus furnishes a complete list of all classes of dwellings, as well as of stores and business property, that may be rented. The prospective tenant gleans from the ads a list that seems suited to his wants and finds just the place he is seeking with little trouble. In a city the size of Los Angeles such an easy and ready rental method is as convenient as it is necessary.

"PERSONALS" INTEREST.

Probably no column of The Times is more widely read than those devoted to "Personals." For this reason many business and professional people are inserting advertisements under this popular classification, with most satisfactory results. There is a fascination about the personals that compels one to read them, for there is always the possibility that the idle reader will come across an advertisement intended for his perusal. Besides, it is always of interest to note whose address is being advertised for, and to wonder whether that person has fallen heir to a fortune, or is merely being sought for sentimental reasons.

FOR THE CHURCH.

In this day of progressive ideas the churches that are making the greatest effort to add to their usefulness are making use of The Times columns to extend invitations to the public to meet with them. Such expressions of good will and fraternal spirit undoubtedly encourage the stranger or the weary pilgrim who has no church affiliation to attend church and derive inspiration and hope from the services.

UNUSUAL OFFERINGS.

Some idea as to the variety of unusual articles offered for sale or exchange or wanted by advertisers may be gathered from the following: Sole leather trunk, pipe dies, field glasses, Airedale pups, lung expander, blacksmith tools, traveling bag, old violin, rotary oil burner, rugs of all descriptions, oriental, antiques, domestic, rag, fiber and grass; typewriters, tabulating machines, grafonolas, victrolas, pianos, pianolas, and every type, kind, class and description of music box. All sorts and kinds of dogs, cats, fancy mice and pet rats, parrots, birds of paradise, coyotes, canaries, and all the catalogued song birds and birds of rare plumage, are among Liner ad offerings. Household furnishings of all sorts for other useful articles are daily offered in the want ad columns of The Times. If you have an automobile which you want to dispose of here is your market. (See classified heading, "Things on Wheels.") Thousands of people advertise for machines; other thousands advertise machines for sale or trade; no matter what you have to offer you will find an advertisement in the Liner columns of The Times to match your offer, and no matter what you want to buy, you will find it offered here, either for sale or trade.

MONEY FOR INVESTMENT.

In the same issue there were forty-six advertisers willing to invest from $100 to $50,000 in going business enterprises. There were 192 firms and individuals offering to loan money on all classes of security, real and personal, at current rates. Two hundred and eleven firms and individuals advertised for money, offering as security real estate, personal property in the form of diamonds, furniture, trust deeds, mortgages, stocks, bonds, personal notes and a wide variety of other articles of value.

Some 300 firms and individuals offered automobiles for sale, for cash, on easy terms, or in exchange for lots, lands, houses, trust deeds, diamonds, stocks, bonds, mortgages, or equities in desirable residence, vacant, ranch or other property.

CHOICE HOMES.

Two hundred and twelve firms and individuals offered houses and lots for sale on the easiest kind of terms at prices ranging from $350 for an attractive two-room California house on a large lot in the suburbs, to a stately Colonial mansion topping the crest of some foothill knoll and commanding a sweeping view of an attractive valley—price $125,000.

Hundreds of lots, half-acres and acres were offered at prices and on terms that will meet the financial requirements of a wide range of people. Small farms from one acre up, and ranches from forty acres to immense ranges of thousands of acres in extent, are daily to be found in the Liner columns of The Times.

POSITIONS SECURED.

The "Help Wanted" and "Situations Wanted" columns are recognized as the most popular and effective clearinghouse for meeting of the needs of both employer and employee. Thousands of employers have secured just the type of employees wanted through the medium of both these columns, and tens of thousands of employees have secured positions in the same manner.

Instances are common where the placing of a 25-cent Liner advertisement has been the medium through which real estate amounting to thousands of dollars has been sold, while the volume of personal property that is daily bought and sold through the medium of the Liner advertisements of The Times is away up in the thousands.

STUDY IN PSYCHOLOGY.

The "Liner" columns are by no means devoid of humor and pathos, they likewise furnish a diversified field for the study of the foibles of mankind, to say nothing of the deeper sciences of economics and psychology.

If a tyro in psychology and economics wishes to take a first-hand course in those valuable and interesting branches of science, he or she can assuredly do no better than to carefully read and ponder upon the "Liners" of The Times, each day for, say, one calendar month. At the end of that period the student will be prepared to look any high-brow professor of the above-mentioned sciences straight in the eye and tell him things he never heard or dreamed, regarding the wants, desires and ambitions, business methods, prejudices, aims and general characteristics of the average human being.

In beginning his course the student will probably be first attracted to the large number of "well-appearing" individuals who are constantly being sought for in all lines of business. Whether the hyphenated [illegible]ulation calls for the semblance of vigorous health, manly or womanly beauty, or raiment of purple and fine linen can only be conjectured.

Perhaps the next largest class in demand is made up of those who are "capable of meeting strangers." It would seem as if such a demand ought to be easily and fully supplied since any resident of this cosmopolitan city who is not "capable of meeting strangers" must have a wide and variegated list of acquaintances.

In the ranks of those offering themselves for various situations there are few or no individuals without "refinement." The new Century dictionary asserts that refined persons are those possessing "delicacy of feeling, fineness of taste and polished manners." If one possesses all these fine and desirable qualities, why not sternly refuse to serve as laundry maid in an apartment house or as dishwasher? Not failure, but low aim is crime.

The advertiser who desired to exchange a "gent's gold watch" for an "invisible typewriter" suggests a man who "walks the earth by faith and not by sight." While the [illegible] bold who offers to exchange a revolver and repeating rifle for dining-room furniture, evidently is highly resolved to marry and settle down. And so it goes. Here in this market-place of the world, The Times Liner' columns, the whole range of human foibles, aims and ambitions are covered, and that through this medium they are realized is evident, for day after day, week after week, month after month and year after year the countless thousands of "Liner" advertisements pour in, representing every phase of human need, activity, desire and curiosity. There's nothing like it on the face of Old Earth.

DOC WHITE AND HAM PATTERSON BUY FRANCHISE OF DALLAS, TEXAS, CLUB

Aha!

BASEBALL DEAL IS CLOSED UP.

White and Patterson Buy Dallas Club.

Local Man will Take Charge Immediately.

Gardner to Turn Over the Franchise Rights.

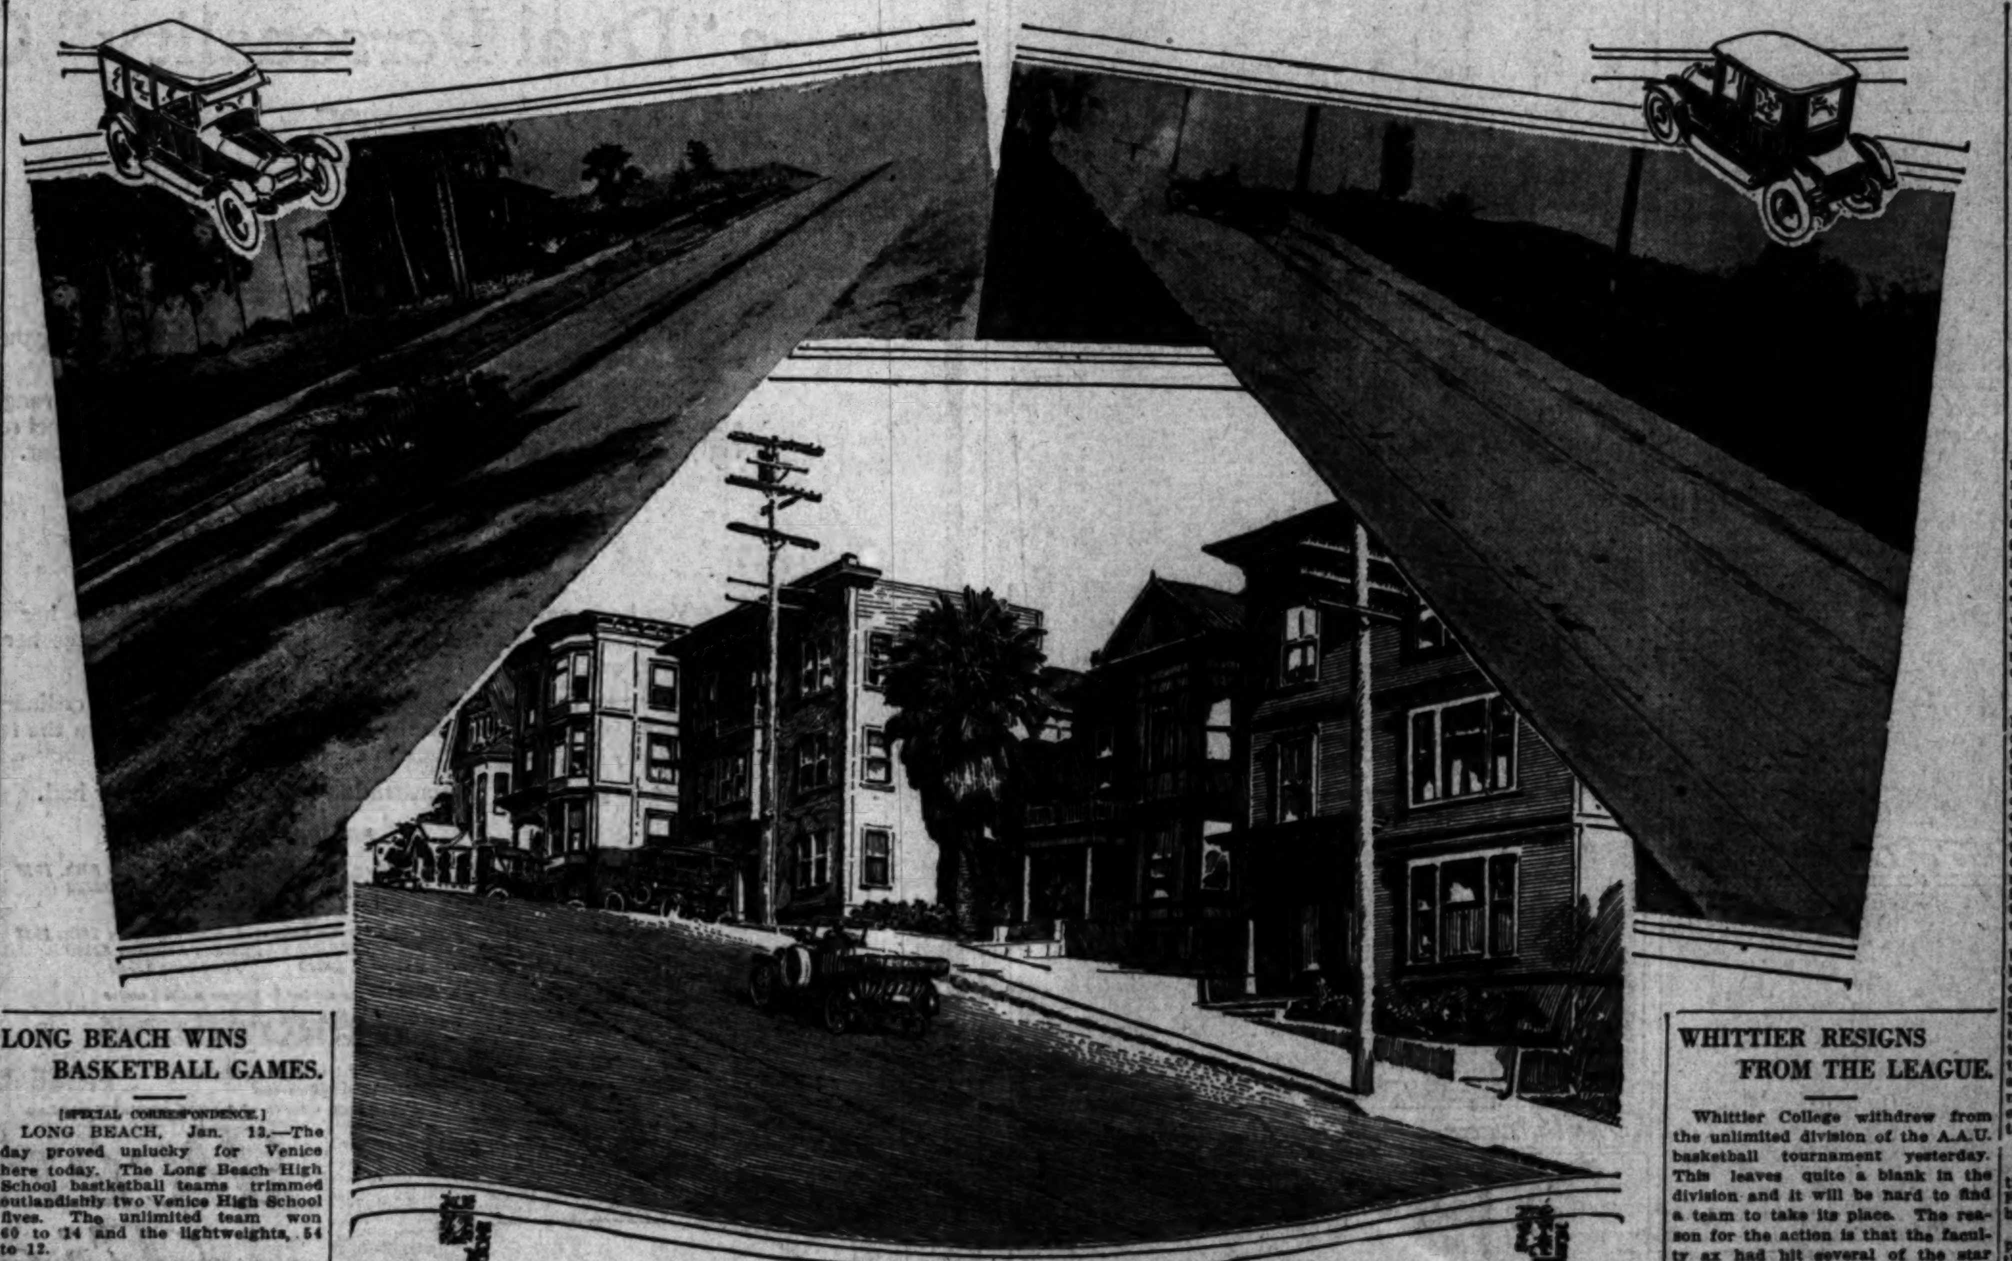
[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DALLAS (Tex.) Jan. 13.—Hamilton Patterson, of Los Angeles, announced this afternoon that he had accepted the terms offered him by [illegible] Gardner, for the purchase of the Dallas baseball franchise in the Texas League, and the deal would be closed finally on Monday. The price is $35,000.

By the terms of the agreement Mr. Gardner will transfer to Mr. Patterson and to Doc White, former Chicago pitcher, his franchise rights in the Texas League and all his contracts with ball players, including those on the reserve list.

Mr. Patterson said that immediately after closing the deal he would leave for Los Angeles, where he will confer with Mr. White, and they will return here in about ten days to begin preparation for the opening of the season.

The announcement was made some time ago that White and Patterson would buy a minor league club in partnership, but the identity of the franchise sought was not stated, beyond the fact that it would be either the Western League or the Texas League. White made overtures to [illegible], but could make no deal there for either a whole or a part interest. Beyond the fact that Patterson is in Dallas endeavoring to close the deal for that club, White last night said he had nothing new to offer. He stated that he had received no word from Patterson regarding the progress which he had made. Patterson and White would make one of the most unique partnerships in baseball.



These hills will make your flivver grunt.

On the left is the well-known Quintero-street grade; on the right the Baxter street "incline;" in the center the upper portion of the Grand-avenue hill. Possibly you have been laboring under the impression that one or more of these grades is thirty-five to forty per cent., but if you have you have another guess coming. The steepest grade is only a fraction more than twenty-nine per cent., but it's plenty steep enough to test the power of the ordinary machine.

Well, Rather.

POMONA WINS CROSS-COUNTRY.

Huns Manage to Take Most of the Honors.

Hugh Huddleson Climbs into Fifth Place.

Condition of Course Cuts Down the Time.

BY WARDE FOWLER.

Pomona won the cross-country run at Occidental yesterday without resorting to violence. In fact, the men from Claremont didn't resort to anything much. They just straggled around the course and finished, four of 'em ahead of the first Occidental man, two of 'em behind him. This is considered a rather hollow victory by the Pomona students. They had hoped to get all of their runners in ahead of the Tiger candidates.

OH, GOSH!

Ray Adkinson, Walt Sturges, V. Humiston and C. E. Orcutt, all crossed the tape together. About ten yards from the finish they threw their arms around each other, thereby dividing first honors into four equal parts. When this interesting event took place, Walt Sturges, who was on the outside of the line, went to throw his arm around Gerry, but Gerry was about 200 yards in the rear, and Sturges couldn't make it. Sturges was very much surprised at this, being accustomed to finish the cross-country six or seven abreast.

Hugh Huddleson was the man who busted up the usual ending to the long grind. He negotiated the course right on the heels of the Sage Hens and was close to the headliners at the finish. He came through with a neat sprint right at the end, intending, no doubt, to throw his arm around somebody and finish with the crowd. The Pomona men were too far ahead, however, and Huddleson had to be content with a fifth.

GOOD TIME.

The time, considering the condition of the course, was first-class. Four lengthy miles were completed by the winners in 20m. 55 4-5s.

Strange to say the start of this particular race was more exciting than the finish. The runners were lined up about six abreast and Starter Stanton hoisted his pistol for the fatal shot. The men appeared to be nervous and when Stanton pulled the trigger they all jumped like they had been kicked. But

LONG BEACH WINS BASKETBALL GAMES.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

LONG BEACH, Jan. 13.—The day proved unlucky for Venice here today. The Long Beach High School bastketball teams trimmed outlandishly two Venice High School fives. The unlimited team won 60 to 14 and the lightweights, 54 to 12.

WHITTIER RESIGNS FROM THE LEAGUE.

Whittier College withdrew from the unlimited division of the A.A.U. basketball tournament yesterday. This leaves quite a blank in the division and it will be hard to find a team to take its place. The reason for the action is that the faculty ax had hit several of the star players and that the team in this crippled condition would not put up enough fight.

It seems that the Whittier players expected to get in another division of the tourament and that they didn't like the looks of the stiffer competition.

GRAND, QUINTERO AND BAXTER STREET GRADES ARE GOOD TEST FOR ANY CAR.

GRAND avenue, Quintero and Baxter-street hills, in the order named, are among the steepest and best-known grades in the city of Los Angeles, and every demonstrator knows before the prospective buyer says so, that he will expect the machine he purchases to be able to climb them. And they do, too. But in the case of Quintero and Baxter street, don't allow anyone to tell you that automobiles go rushing up on high at thirty or forty miles an hour—for they don't. They make the grades all right, but ninety-nine times out of a hundred they go up on low or second, and crawl over, instead of speeding over these steep inclines.

Sometimes, it might as well be stated right here, they don't go over at all, especially if the gasoline in the tank be low, or all of the cylinders are not hitting just right, or any one of a number of things happens to be out of kilter.

HE GUESSES.

When it comes to determining the various grades, almost every demonstrator has a way of his own in arriving at the slope of the hills, and his "guess" may vary from 1 to 10 per cent. Take for example, the three hills mentioned. How many drivers know the exact grade? Is Grand avenue 22, 25 or 30 per cent? Is Quintero 27, 31 or 34? Is Baxter street 35, 37 or 42?

Demonstrators have made all of these "guesses," and buyers of cars have believed them, in many instances, but in each case the answer if given as above, has been wrong. To get right down to the City Engineer's figures—and the City Engineer knows—the grades of these three hills are as follows:

Grand avenue, for 200 feet, has a grade of 19.50 per cent.

Quintero street, for 300 feet, has a grade of 24.25 per cent.

Baxter street has three grades. At the start it is only 11.06 per cent., farther up it reaches a grade of 18.21 per cent., and the last pull of several hundred feet is over a grade of 29.06 per cent.

CAMERA "LIES."

Camera experts, even when they have had years of experience, encounter a perplexing problem when called upon to photograph a hill, to show its exact grade. If the picture be snapped from the bottom of the hill, even a good steep one, the pictures make it appear like a 5 per cent. grade. If taken from the top, looking down, they have a tendency to "flatten" it out as well. Side views give better results, but show only a small portion of the grade.

In attempting to get pictures of Grand avenue, Quintero and Baxter-street hills, efforts were put forth recently to show them as they are, but once more the camera failed. The pictures shown herewith do not do justice to these steep climbs. Or, in other words, "The pictures do not look as steep as the hills appear to the drivers who attempt to go up."

The car shown in the three pictures had no trouble in making all three hills, but it didn't make them all on high, for in each instance a standing start from the bottom of the hill was taken, and, as mentioned before, no car goes over such grades on high at a rapid speed.

GRADES VS. ANGLES.

Many confuse angles with grades. Tell the average driver of a powerful car that he can't climb a short hill with an angle of forty-five, or even forty degrees, and he will want to make you a bet that he can. But when he learns that a forty-five-degree angle is a 100 per cent. grade he will scratch his head, think a minute and back down.

After all, it isn't a case of power, in most instances, for almost any car has power enough to climb a telegraph pole, but after the grade goes beyond 35 per cent. the car equipped in the ordinary way cannot get traction, therefore cannot climb.

One of the tricks practiced by demonstrators is to lessen the amount of air in the tires, even as low as twenty pounds pressure, when climbing steep hills, and in this way they secure traction and make the climb easily.

WATCH YOUR BRAKES.

Those who are onto the tricks of hill climbing do not need to be warned not to attempt any of these stunts without first making sure the brakes are in the best of working order, but this advice is valuable to amateurs and should be heeded. To attempt to make a steep grade and suddenly find that the gasoline is low, or the car isn't powerful enough to go on, and at the same instant discover the brakes won't hold, produces a sensation that will never be forgotten.

Going up a hill is one thing.

Rolling downhill at breakneck speed is another.

In the first instance it means applause from those who are watching you. In the second, it may mean the morgue, slow music, a few flowers and a new grave in the cemetery.

DARK HORSE ELIMINATES LARRY COWING, BUT LOSES FINALS TO MORRIS PHILLIPS.

BY ALMA WHITAKER.

A. E. S. Johnston was the superlative surprise of the day in the Altadena Country Club's invitation tournament yesterday when he defeated Larry Cowing, State champion, in the semi-finals, by 1 up in 20 holes. True he succumbed to the prowess of Morris Phillips of Redlands in the finals by 2 up and 1, but it is not given to mortals to reap too much glory in one day.

Everyone was so sure that Cowing and Phillips would meet in the finals. Johnston was the dark horse par excellence. This is the first time he has shone in tournament play in California, although he is a scratch man in his home club, the Town and Country of St. Paul, and a 5 man in the national handicap list. But he proved himself a very long driver from the tee, and as good a putter as Larry Cowing himself, who has perfected himself in that department of the game in which he was formerly so weak.

Cowing had not suspected a hard match and was taken quite completely by surprise. In his match with Morris Phillips in the finals, Johnston holed the first five putts from a distance of at least eighteen feet. He uses clubs a good five inches longer than the usual brand owing, it is said to the fact that he once broke a wrist and cannot attain a full swing with the regulation length. He is a member of the Midwick here.

Phillips, who is the winner of the tournament, defeated Bill Bacon in the semi-finals, 3 up and 2. But both were playing first class golf, Phillips a 72, and Bacon a 76. Phillips was out in 35 and in in 37. He had a 74 in his match with Johnston in the finals, including a 7 at the 10th, due to three topped brassie shots. They halved the 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th and 15th, but at the 16th Mr. Johnston met all the trouble in the world and picked up, and completed his woe with a 7 on the 18th, after the match was over. That 16th, a par 4, Phillips dashed off in 3 and clinched his victory.

The second flight was won by Paul Wold of Annandale and Orange County. He defeated Leigh Guyer in the finals, 5 up and 4. Guyer had previously defeated C. G. Twist, 5 and 4, Wold winning from Wardman by default.

Another Orange county man in Bob Ried won the third flight, defeating Walter Leeds 4 up and 2. This is Bob Ried's very first win and celebrations were duly in order. Walter Leeds had the sumptuous victory of defeating E. N. Wright, who had been picked out as the indubitable winner of that flight, by 5 and 4, in the semi-finals. Ried beat Kirker 5 and 4 in the semi-finals, also.

The fourth flight went to Cornelius Pendleton, 1 up in twenty holes, against W. K. Parkinson of Orange county. Parkinson was the apparent winner 1 up at the eighteenth, but a complication arose over a tragic hole, where some intruding animal had burrowed a trench big enough to house a regiment, into which Mr. Parkinson's ball duly rolled. The hole was surrounded by trees, too. Wherefore "Park" dropped his ball two club lengths from the hole and Mr. Pendleton called the rules. Leigh Guyer, as chairman of the occasion, looked Solomonical and advised another hole for decision, which resulted in fate deciding in favor of Pendleton at the twentieth. But since there are runner-up cups as well as winner's trophies, Mr. Parkinson does not return from the fray empty-handed.

Parkinson defeated Garner in the semi-finals in the morning 2 and 1, and Pendleton accounted for young Mr. Up de Graaf, 2 and 1.

The fifth flight went to F. Champion of San Gabriel, who defeated G. A. Moore 2 and 1. Mr. Champion had won his previous match from Hoag by default, and Mr. Moore worked hard for his laurels, defeating John P. Cudahy at the nineteenth hole.

The four-ball foursomes were in the nature of a consolation prize for Larry Cowing, who, partnered with Craney Gartz, won the best gross score with 75—36 out and 39 in. Victor Kleinberger and Dr. Walter Brem won the best net with 79-10-69. These were the last players in, defeating E. N. Wright and A. C.

Packards Open the Ridge Route

The storm of Thursday, Dec. 28, closed the Ridge Route to travel for 30 hours. At 10 o'clock Friday morning, Dec. 29, a Packard 3-38 belonging to the Western Auto Stage Company and driven by Frank Terry, left Bakersfield, and broke through the heavy drifts in Tejon Pass between Lebec and Bailey's Ranch. This was the first car through, and, unassisted, the Packard broke the trail for other cars. At Crane Lake they met a Twin-Six Packard also owned by the Western Auto Stage Company, carrying C. R. Sheaffer and Carl Ingalls. This Packard had broken the trail over the Ridge from Los Angeles to that point. It was the two Packards that cleared the trail where every other make of car had failed. Sheaffer and Ingalls reached Bakersfield Friday night, the first car through from Los Angeles to Bakersfield.

Busy Scene on Olive Street

Auto Row is spreadin' out.

If you will look at the picture above, with the caption: "Busy Scene on Olive Street," you will understand why so many new buildings have been erected on Figueroa, and other streets, by Los Angeles automobile dealers. These new structures cost a quarter of a million dollars, and some, even more expensive and elaborate are to be built in the near future. Auto Row now covers, approximately, thirty square blocks. And it's still growing, too.

OLIVE STREET is still recognized as Auto Row, but if the Los Angeles dealers continue to swarm towards Figueroa, and continue to erect permanent homes, costing from a few thousand to $150,000 each, the time is not far distant when the classic precincts of the latter thoroughfare will claim the title.

Nine dealers, local distributors for thirteen makes of cars, have recently moved, or shortly will move, into new quarters on South Figueroa. The total cost of the new buildings erected approaches the quarter of a million mark, and even these figures are liable to be passed when plans now under consideration are carried out. Among the automobile and tire dealers who have recently moved to Figueroa, are the following:

Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, Figueroa and Twelfth. Cost of building, $150,000.

Locomobile Company of America, Figueroa and Pico. Cost of building, $50,000.

Lynn C. Buxton, Figueroa and Twelfth. Cost of building, $16,000.

Al G. Faulkner, Figueroa and Seventeenth. Cost of building, $25,000.

Turner-Whitford Company, No. 1144 South Figueroa.

Pearl Motor Car Company, Figueroa and Eleventh.

Aston Motor Car Company, Figueroa and Eleventh. Cost $8500.

Smith Bros., No. 1616 Figueroa.

The Apperson Motor Company will move into a new building at Sixteenth and Figueroa within a few months. Plans are now being drawn up and the work will be rushed.

Olive street has been, still is, and will continue to be for some time, the real automobile row of Los Angeles, but one by one the dealers are looking about for better buildings, permanent homes, and greater conveniences. These can only be secured by erecting their own salesrooms and machine shops, or by taking a long lease on buildings erected to meet their needs by others.

At the present time one may find everything in the automobile line, from second-hand cars to some of the highest-priced machines on the market, on Olive street, but on Figueroa, and other streets west of Olive, the tendency is towards permanent homes for new cars only, or for displays of tires or accessories.

"As a matter of fact," said one dealer, "someone had to move. Olive street is narrow, always crowded, and there are few buildings vacant which are suitable for the proper display of automobiles. Therefore a large number of dealers have moved, or contemplate moving, in the near future."

For a considerable distance on Main, Spring, Broadway, Hill, Olive, Grand, Hope, Flower and Figueroa, automobile headquarters are now established, which gives this city a motor district covering approximately thirty square blocks.

OLD CAR CONVERTED INTO A GOOD TRUCK.

Three months ago J. E. Burgess drove a dilapidated-looking car that he had used for some time in the transfer business to a vacant lot where used cars are dealt in and asked the operator what price he would put on the car.

"What's the matter with it?" he was asked.

"The motor is in splendid condition, but the rest of it is not in very good repair, and I'll sell it to you for what you think it's worth," he answered.

The used-car dealer examined the Burgess machine carefully and said: "I've been wanting to get a car about like this for some time to make over into a truck, so I'll give you $100 for it."

Burgess was impressed immediately by the thought that if his old wreck could be built into a truck and make money for another man it probably could do the same for him. He decided at once not to sell until he had investigated.

He drove three blocks to the corner of Pico and Hill streets and talked to W. O. Gates about the application of the Smith Form-a-Truck unit to the chassis of his car. Gates told him it could be done and he would have a truck of a guaranteed capacity of one ton. The old car was left with Gates. The Smith unit was applied and last week Burgess called to see Gates again and told him the converted truck had netted him more than $250 profit for its use during December.

DON'T BLAME HIGH PRICES ONTO WAR.

"The war has had very little if anything to do with the advance in the price of tires," said John G. Boss of the Portage Rubber Company of California, Coast distributors for the Portage line. "War or no war, the price of tires was bound to go up, and there is every reason why it should, as it is simply a matter of supply and demand.

"With the tremendous growth of the automobile industry during the past decade, the demand for long staple cotton, which is used for the fabric in the manufacture of tires, has gradually overtaken the supply, and as the production has not been increased to any extent it has come to a point where the demand by far exceeds the supply."

CLUB NEARING COVETED GOAL.

Wants Ten Thousand Members by February.

Every Effort Put Forth to Win New One.

Work Outlined for New Year by President.

A smashing finish to the membership campaign inaugurated by the directors of the Automobile Club of Southern California is now under way.

Ten thousand members by February 1 is the aim of the officials of the organization, and, led by President Fred L. Baker and Secretary Standish L. Mitchell, every department of the club and a large majority of its present members are working valiantly now to this end.

In order to reach the desired figure by midnight, January 31, it will be necessary to enroll twenty-three new members for every working day, and although that at present seems a task worthy of no one less than a modern Hercules, the officials, according to Secretary Mitchell, have every confidence in the result of the support to be accorded by the members themselves.

ALWAYS ACTIVE.

The Automobile Club of Southern California has long been known as one of the most spirited and active of the public-service organizations, organized for the betterment of motoring conditions in Southern California and working toward the exploiting of this part of the world as a motoring paradise. That it remains with the automobile-owning public to support the activities of the club is a truth generally acknowledged.

During one week of the membership President Baker personally signed 6000 letters to members pointing out the necessity of general support in enlarging the club so that the demands to be made upon it in 1917 could be met. This example went far to set the stride of all departments of the club, which have followed suit by working untiringly toward the 10,000 culmination.

WORK AHEAD.

After January 1 the energy which has been expended by all club departments in building up the organization will swing into the channels of greater service to members and the public and to the development of the plans for 1917.

In the matter of the club's work after the first of next month, Secretary Mitchell pointed out that the demands being made upon the organization for the enlargement of its sign-posting system, its work for the building of more good roads and general advancement of the betterment of touring conditions will require the full support of at least 10,000 members.

When the membership campaign was launched October 1 the club's membership totaled 8023. From a [illegible] monthly gain of 250 during the [illegible] year, the average net gain for the first three months of the campaign has been increased to 475. Each succeeding month has shown an increase over the preceding one.

BIG INCREASE.

From a net membership gain of [illegible] in October, this gain increased to [illegible] new members in November and to 550 in December. Of the new members required to make the campaign a complete success the first three months have produced 1323, leaving a net gain of 654 to be made during January.

A large part of this 654 must be obtained during the two weeks of the month remaining, and every club employee, official, director and loyal member is working practically night and day to bring in the full accounting for January.

The automobile theft bureau, the interinsurance exchange of the Automobile Club, the maintenance of a representative at Sacramento during the biennial sessions of the Legislature, the efforts of the club to open the road up Mt. Whitney, the sign-posting of automobile routes beyond the territory covered by the Automobile Club of Southern California, the establishment of branch offices and touring bureaus in each of the cities of Southern California, the compilation of touring information

Bad weather was all that stopped the Lincoln Highway crew of sign painters, who have spent the entire season in remarking and standardizing the road signs along the route of the transcontinental highway. Six States were crossed, and the marking ended in the seventh, Nebraska, after a total distance of 1750 miles. About 8000 markers were placed.

BUXTON'S NEW HOME ONE OF CITY'S MOTOR SHOW PLACES.

ALTHOUGH the building is not completely finished inside, the new home of the Stearns-Knight at Figueroa and Twelfth was visited by many motorists this week. Visitors coming away are unanimous in the opinion that the Lynn C. Buxton establishment is not only complete and modern, but will also be one of the most handsome showplaces in the country.

The interior is finished in old ivory and white, the hardware fittings being of wrought, antique bronze, which harmonize superbly with the color scheme. Against this background the Stearns-Knight models will stand out in charming effect.

The illumination system is the very latest, being founded on the indirect lighting idea.

While the salesroom and offices are the chief center of interest and embellishment, the rest of the establishment has not been slighted. Completely equipped garage, stockrooms and machine shop are included in the building.

In the garage a steam generating plant has been installed for the purpose of furnishing steam to clean the oil, grease and dirt-encrusted mechanisms of cars. This plant is an innovation, at least, as far as this city is concerned, no other similar device being in use elsewhere at the present time, it is claimed by Mr. Buxton.

Self-protection.

NEW MODEL PICTURES UNDER LOCK AND KEY.

SELF-PROTECTION is the first law of nature in the automobile business, as in other sections of the material world. What would you do if the tenth of the public who read authoritative motor journals, and are as up to the minute as the average dealer, were taking your entire allotment of new cars at the beginning of the season?

That is the condition at Smith Brothers, in regard to the Paige cars at the beginning of 1917. Things have reached a condition where C. F. Smith keeps the photographs of the startling new model four-passenger roadster put out by the Paige factory locked in his desk. There is not a chance to get one for delivery in Los Angeles before February 10, but advance reports from the New York show indicate that it is some roadster. It has created a sensation among followers of advanced automobile design, which heralds a national demand that will keep the car oversold all through 1917.

Smith Brothers are worrying already about what will happen when the first one is seen on the streets of Los Angeles. With only a few cars available for delivery at the beginning of the season, perhaps enough to satisfy one-tenth of the demand, the situation is embarrassing to say the least.

Color is to be used with greater skill than ever before in the decoration of the Fairfield 6-46 seven-passenger model, which has been standardized for 1917. In addition to this model, the Paige has brought out a still more luxurious seven-passenger model, which will be known as the Stratford 6-51.

From cotton fields to snow fields.

To drive through the cotton fields of Imperial Valley, continue through the desert roads and plow through sand, and finally reach the snow-covered mountain tops, was an experience last week of a party of Los Angeles men, in a Packard twin six. The picture at the top was snapped in the cotton fields, the one at the lower right shows the Packard making its way through the deep sand, and the one on the lower left proves a Packard will buck snowdrifts and get through, even if it has to break the trail.

ROADS LEADING TO SUNNY SOUTH AND TO JACK FROST LAND EASY FOR THIS CAR.

WHEN Mr. Kipling referred to England's holding "Dominion over palm and pine," the phrase sounded as though it covered a good deal of territory. Measured by Southern California conditions, such dominion would cover an extent of not more than ten miles or so at the outside, and scores of pictures have been taken, showing the contrast of snow-laden pines in less than an hour's drive from tropical palms.

Pictures showing an equal contrast of a striking sort were brought to the attention of Earle C. Anthony, Southern California Packard distributor, last week. They were of Packard cars, taken on the same day, and less than 300 miles apart. One was of a Packard battling a snow-blocked mountain road, under a lowering sky. Another was of a car with hood half buried in snow also—not of the chilly variety, however—but the snow of cotton fields, ripe for picking. Another showed a Packard battling with sand on a desert road, over the sand dunes.

"Because we are so familiar with the fact that these varied sights are all within easy reach of Los Angeles by motor car, we fail to realize what a land of infinite variety Southern California really is," declared Anthony last week. "Our eastern visitors appreciate it, however, and it is one of the reasons that Southern California draws each year an increasing flood of winter tourists.

"Each year the tourist is less content to see California only from the window of train or trolley. It requires a motor car to really get acquainted with any country, and particularly such a country as Southern California. The purchase of motor cars by winter visitors here has become an important and growing factor in the motor car business in this territory.

"Many buy new cars here, and ship them East after the winter's use. Others follow the practice of buying a good used car, and selling it before returning East. This plan saves them almost all loss through depreciation, for it is the first user of a car who must suffer the heaviest depreciation loss. Such usage as the average winter visitor gives a car during his stay here detracts very little from the value of it, and used cars of standard makes are not difficult to dispose of."

The Detroit Automobile Club has a plan to promote the prosecution of motor-car thieves. Members are requested to sign a pledge card, promising to prosecute thieves who steal motor cars or accessories and to aid the club and its attorneys in obtaining conviction.

What the Motor-wise buyer seeks in other cars he finds in the

Velie

"Biltwel" Six

—so we are selling Velie automobiles each day to motor-wise people who, desiring a car of luxury, comfort and superb mechanical worth, do not wish to invest one dollar more than is necessary to secure these features.

THE motor-wise often run the whole gamut of cars at various prices before they buy.

AND they do not buy on the merit of one part of a car.

WHEN we show them how the Velie-Continental motor performs they are usually satisfied that no better motor is being put into an automobile today.

BUT these motor-wise folk have an eye toward axles, too. Some of them have had experience with broken axles. They now look for the Timken mark on an axle as they would look for the sterling mark if they were buying silver.

THE VELIE, with Timken axles both front and rear, satisfies on that point, too.

THE other Velie feature—the Remy ignition system, Hotchkiss-type drive, the multiple disc clutch, the flexible underslung springs; the big, roomy, comfortable seats with real leather upholstery, the handsome body with mirror finish 20 operations deep, smartly tilting windshield and big wide doors—all of these Velie features are what the motor-wise seek in other cars—and find in the Velie.

WHEN the motor-wise buyer finds that a car embracing all of these features is priced at only $1135, he says: "I will take the Velie!"

A NEW shipment of Velie Sixes awaits your inspection.

CAR SETS RECORD ON LONG RUNG.

CLIMBS MOUNTAIN GRADES IN DEEP SNOW.

Knight's Camp, Old Baldy and Mt. Wilson Roads Conquered in Trip of Approximately Two Hundred and Fifty Miles—Two Observers Keep Check.

One of the most exacting and at the same time unique tests known to automobiling, and one which as far as known has not been duplicated, was the record made by a Grant Six touring car, December 24, 1916, when it was driven by M. C. Bekins of the Bekins-Speers Motor Company, distributors in Los Angeles territory for the Grant.

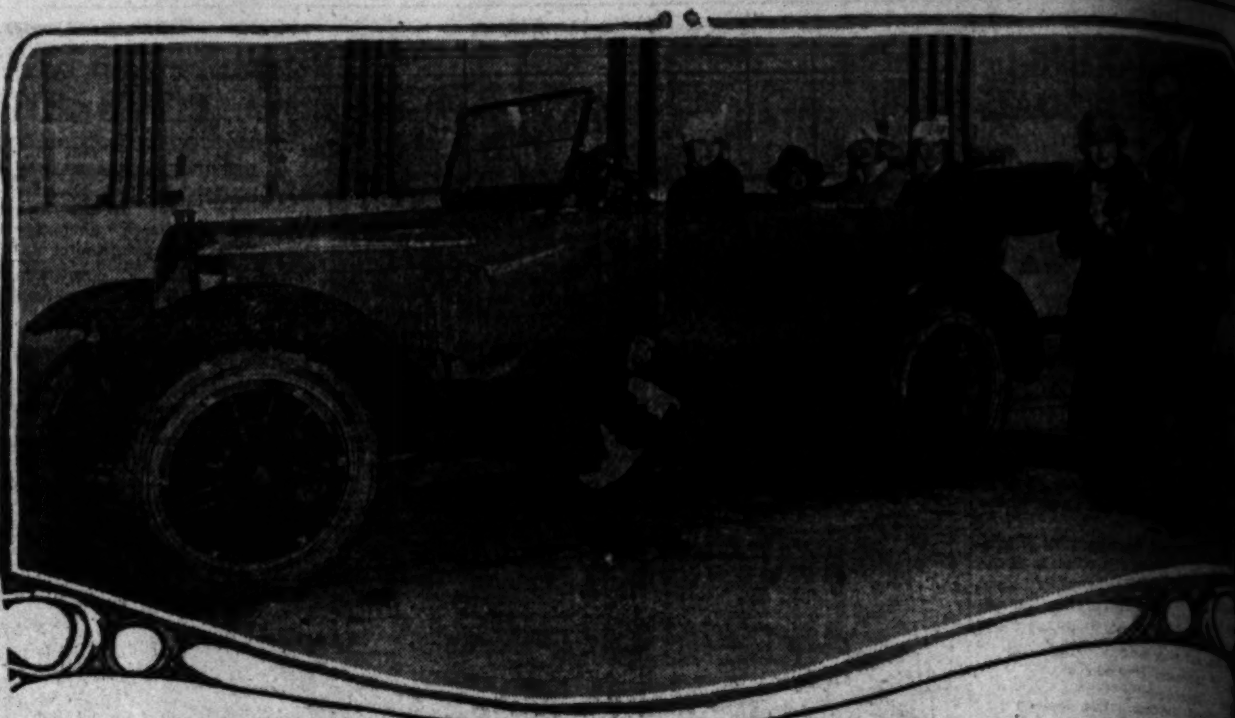
On that day the Grant Six in a few minutes less than fourteen hours traveled 248 miles and climbed three elevations, the combined height of which was 18,626 feet.

Starting from San Bernardino at 3:30 in the morning, Knight's Camp in Bear Valley was first conquered and then, in the order named, followed Baldy and Mt. Wilson. After this wonerful test of the car's engine power and cooling system, the Grant Six, in perfect condition, rolled into the company's garage in Los Angeles at 5:26 in the evening.

The climb into Bear Valley was made exceedingly difficult, as in some places on the Waterman switchbacks the snow lay from one to one and one-half feet deep. The fact that it was covered with a frozen crust only added materially to the work the overhead valves of the motor were called upon to perform.

"It was that test that demonstrated—at least in Southern California—the superiority of the overhead valves and the wonderful cooling system of the Grant Six," said Bekins. "There were two observers in the Grant and a complete check of the work of the car was obtained at all stages of the trip. I have not heard of the test being duplicated by any car."

More persons now travel by motor than by train.



Ever "hook on" behind a bobsled?

Of course you have—that is, unless you're a native son, or native daughter, and never had the opportunity. But here is something [illegible] ing onto an automobile driven over a surface of solid ice. The car is a National six, furnished by the H. C. McVey Company, [illegible] F. I. Willey. The ice for the demonstration was found at the new Ice Palace on South Broadway, where hundreds of men, women [illegible] go skating daily. In fact, the car was driven right into the rink, and for a short time the skaters had an opportunity of holding [illegible] while it was being driven over the glassy surface.

For more than three years the Cleveland Automobile Club, backed by other civic organizations, has been fighting for better streets. The movement became so general that a $3,000,000 bond issue was ratified recently. This means more than $6,000,000 will be available for the streets next year.

Detroit Electric

Somebody Told Somebody

That—the mileage of the modern Detroit Electric—on a single charge—was more than sufficient for a whole day's driving about town or suburbs.

That—the speed of the modern Detroit Electric was 25 miles per hour.

That—the modern Detroit Electric was so simple to handle, and so reliable that he had decided to stop fussing with his gas car and to avail himself of the pleasures of the Detroit Electric for his winter motoring.

That—his family as well as himself received more enjoyment and actual service from their new Detroit Electric than from any other motor car he had ever driven.

That—the automatic safety devices for controlling the Detroit Electric and its operative ease were so highly developed that he never worried when his daughter or wife drove it through even the thickest traffic.

That—the new Detroit Electric is a car of matchless beauty in design and equipment.

That—anyone who had not ridden in one of the new Detroit Electrics had missed a motoring treat.

And that "somebody" who listened to these remarks was moved to make a personal investigation of the new Detroit Electrics, with the result that a demonstration definitely decided him to discard his gas car. He is now motoring in comfort in a 1917 Detroit Electric.

Let us give you a demonstration of how far the Detroit Electric surpasses other motor cars in meeting the needs of all-year motoring.

But you'll have to act quickly if you want Christmas delivery on your Detroit Electric for they are going faster than even we anticipated.

LOWER PRICE MEANS LARGER FIELD FOR ELECTRIC CARS

"NEW and unconquered fields for the electric automobile are opening every day and the future of this industry looms up brighter on the horizon of the coming year than ever before in its history."

This, in a few words, sums up the view of W. C. Anderson, president of the Anderson Electric Car Company, makers of Detroit electrics. A pioneer in the electric motor-car industry, Mr. Anderson has followed its fortunes to the present day and in a large measure has directed the many rapid strides that the electric automobile industry has made.

"Today, as never before, the electric motor car is taking its proper place in the mind of the public," says Mr. Anderson. "It has already become recognized as the inclosed car par excellence and as the all-around family automobile.

"More than that, the electric has reached a place where it now is within the reach of the family which formerly had to be contented with a gas car for reasons of price. There is no question but that price affects sales and from the very [illegible] electric, its expensive [illegible] its de luxe finish, the [illegible] cars always has been [illegible] fiture, not excessive in [illegible] the value offered, but [illegible] the means of many motorists.

MILLER FACTORY PLANS NOW COMPLETE; SITE NOT CHOSEN

HARRY A. MILLER, local builder of automobile and aviation motors, and manufacturer of the Miller carburetor, announced this week that plans had been accepted for a new plant, which, when completed, will be the largest of its kind west of Detroit. The new factory will be devoted exclusively to Miller engines, carburetors and piston rings.

Several sites have been offered and one will be selected in the next few days, according to Mr. Miller. Chicago, Indianapolis and Detroit have come forward with liberal offers of ground and cash bonuses, but it is extremely doubtful that any sites other than those near Los Angeles will even be considered. The construction of the new factory will be started as quickly as the location is decided upon.

The welcome information was received by Earl V. Horseshoe Bend, Topanga Canyon.

Credited with being one of the most picturesque stretches of mountain road in the world, Topanga Canyon is one of the much sought after and favorite drives near Los Angeles. One little girl spends many hours every week traveling back and forth between the ocean and San Fernando Valley in her Hupmobile. The little girl is "Babe" Sedgwick, one of the youngest and most admired ingenues of the Universal Film Company. "Sunset in Topango Canyon is one of the most gorgeous sights I have ever looked upon," commented Miss Sedgwick. "None the less inspiring is a real moonlight night, when one is buried in the deep gloom of this road. Riding from the San Fernando Valley toward the ocean is entirely different from the drive toward the valley. It almost seems like two vastly separated roads. Leaving the valley, I find no trouble in making the ascent on high, and when I reach the summit I always linger there for an hour or more. The view toward the San Fernando range is wonderful. Then, as I hasten toward the setting sun, the purple tops of the hills fade into a deep lavender, made more entrancing by the last rays of the sun, as they seem to set the hills afire. I think my favorite spot is at Horseshoe Bend, where one can see the road for many miles winding in and out of the hills. Then, all of a sudden, the ocean springs into view. It is quite like emerging from a dark room into a brilliantly-illuminated drawing-room, to come out upon the road along the ocean."

SUCCESS TRACED TO "FLASH OF THOUGHT."

A MILLION dollars for an idea! That seems like a tremendous sum to be developed from a mere flash of thought. But that was the result that has been brought about in the three years ending today.

And what was this idea? Why was it engendered and how was it fertilized to such a degree of production that in three years it has become almost a national institution?

It was on January 1, 1914, that a little coterie of men were called together in the city of Philadelphia, in what was then a rather obscure automobile shop, to listen to one of their associates while he told them of his idea for development.

Up to that time these few kindred spirits had been working together in a small way building a commercial car. They had not proceeded far enough to formulate definite plans for business expansion, but the time was exactly right for the spread of the "big idea."

Said the wise one: "The entire motor world is looking for practical ideas. Keen, hard-headed business men are scrutinizing every factory product and every device.

"When merchants put their money into any development it must be along proven and economical lines. Every business man fights shy of a theory. If we are going to develop a commercial vehicle it must have real merit and a recognized earning capacity. Such a car will be welcomed for I know that merchants are eagerly watching for a vehicle that will give the maximum commercial service.

"Merchants are only interested in the economical delivery of their goods. We must build a product that is exactly suited to their requirements and we must do that or quit. If our truck is built solely for economical delivery purpose, and is built sturdy enough in construction to stand the roughest wear and tear incidental to the delivery of goods, I believe that such a car will be welcomed by 85 per cent. of the business houses of America. If we do that, I predict that in five years or less we will be the largest producers of motor trucks in this country."

Following that preliminary talk, this commercial car company laid out definite plans for expansion and definite plans for their truck. They determined that they would build one chassis, with every part and piece scientifically and sturdily proportioned to withstand the strains of rough, hard use. They built the truck with unusual strength, making the axles, frames and driving parts solely for commercial purposes and quite in contrast to the converted pleasure car delivery vehicles, knowing that the policy of frail construction, weak parts and ordinary materials in a delivery truck would never be successful with the public.

"That they have been successful is proven by the fact that in three years, they have become the largest producers of delivery cars in the world. That statement is sufficient justification for the conclusion that the Vim delivery car has made good with a large percentage of the merchants of this country, as evidenced by the fact that in the Los Angeles territory alone, a large number of sales have resulted in 'repeat' orders, some purchasers, indeed, having as many as a dozen or more Vim delivery cars in active service," said Harold L. Arnold, local Vim distributor.

We Believe In Your Discernment

We believe that you, and the other readers of this paper who are contemplating the purchase of a high grade automobile, will be particularly impressed with the Marion-Handley.

You want as fine a car in performance, in looks and in size, as can be produced, within certain reasonable limits. You have the inclination to pay as much as may be necessary to get such a car, but not more than that.

You, many of you, will ultimately buy the Marion-Handley—Six-Pre-eminent—because it represents all that is sensibly desirable in a motor car and because it is moderate in price.

This car has a remarkably sound mechanical foundation upon which is imposed a body of seven passenger capacity. It is perfectly appointed, splendidly finished, distinguished in line and modeling.

Not only has this car an abundance of power, adequate size and harmonious outline—it has also a score of touches and niceties that show a fine regard for detail and unstinting methods of manufacture.

People said this car couldn't be built at its price. Here it is—as wonderful an accomplishment as this prophetic denial would indicate.

It is fully equipped in the finest manner, and is painted dark olive green (20 coats, hand-laid.)

A big, handsome, luxurious car of pronounced individuality and personality.

We always take unusual pride and interest in demonstrating the Marion-Handley because, whether or not a sale is made, the prospect is sure to leave with a lasting and favorable impression.

ANOTHER feather in its cap. A triumph of King 8 engineering—a performance that stamps the King 8 as a marvel of flexibility—of ease of control, of perfect balance and of unequaled power and stamina.

Over wooden trestles, along narrow ledges blasted out of solid rock, winding and turning, ever climbing higher and higher, the King with full stock touring equipment traversed a pathway never before covered by so large a car with 6 passengers.

The wonderful motor always answering to every emergency—the long flexible cantilever springs absorbing every shock caused by exposed ties and open drainage culverts, the ample brakes holding the car securely on all kinds of grades and the easy steering qualities permitting of absolute safety at moderate speed on every manner of curve when only inches separated the car from destruction.

—After all, but another demonstration of the King 8's real motor car superiority and worth.

ZIGZAGGING WHEELS WEAR OUT TIRES.

"In order to secure the maximum of mileage from a set of tires, it is absolutely necessary to see that they have a fair chance to prove their worth," says F. H. Osler of the Osler-Racine Rubber Company, local distributors of the Racine country road and cord tires.

"One of the first essentials in the care of tires is, of course, to keep them sufficiently full of air at all times, but there is another feature which if neglected will play havoc and wear a tire out long before its time, even if kept blown up hard, and that is where the wheels of the car are out of alignment.

"As a part of our service department, motorists can have their wheels examined for proper wheel alignment, at any time, without any cost, and the little time spent in having this done may mean hundreds, or even thousands of miles, added to the service they will get from their tires."

A motor car museum has been established in London, where, among other models, gasoline cars of the year 1895, a steam tricycle of 1891 and a steam car of 1860 are shown.

Hartwell Motor Company's new "auto parlor."

Some might call it a salesroom, and it is, but when the furnishings and lighting system, and decorations, and fixtures suggest the interior of a mansion, why not call it a parlor? Of course, no one keeps a motor car in the parlor, but if you will look closely, either at the picture or at the salesroom itself, you will agree that it's prettier, and better furnished, than many of the parlors you have seen. The "parlor" is located at No. 1224 South Flower, just a few doors from the "old home" of the Jeffrey cars. Manager Hartwell is inclined to step a little more briskly, tilt his hat at a slightly greater angle, and put on a few airs, as a result of the completion of the "parlor," but after seeing it no one can blame him. It is one of the prettiest salesrooms on the Pacific Coast.

SALESROOM ON AUTO ROW DESCRIBED BY LOS ANGELES MOTORISTS AS A "DREAM."

WHEN the architect and contractor were called into the offices of the Hartwell Motor Company, about a year ago, to talk over plans for the new home of the company at No. 1224 South Flower, they were told to "go the limit."

In response to a question from the contractor as to the approximate cost of the building, the officials merely gave the dimensions of the structure, outlined a few general ideas, and told him to "go as far as he liked."

And the result—well, the result has to be seen to be appreciated. The building itself, the manner in which it is arranged, the conveniences provided, the furnishings, the decorations and, in short, the entire home of the Hartwell Motor Company, is what motorists would call a "dream."

It's a two-story building. Almost all of the first floor is devoted to the salesroom, and if the decorators overlooked anything in the way of making it "beautifully harmonious" no one has discovered it. A fountain has been installed in the wall, on one side of the room, and the walls themselves, from the ceiling to the floor, are covered with beautiful fresco work. The floors also have been decorated, and with the charming lighting system, the expensive furniture and the nifty cars on display, the whole effect is certainly pleasing.

In the rear of the salesroom are the general offices of the company, including the manager's office, and an exceedingly attractive ladies' restroom. Back of the offices one of the finest service shops in the city has been completed, and a large freight elevator, with a capacity of 4000 pounds, leads to the second story. On the second floor a machine shop has been put in, where a large force of trained mechanics have every facility for turning out the best possible work.

Two stockrooms, one on the mezzanine and the other on the second floor, are other features.

"The Jeffrey cars, and Jeffrey trucks have already won an enviable reputation in Southern California," said F. H. Hartwell, general manager, "and we are [illegible] of the machines we sell [illegible] of our new home—and [illegible] ting it strong.

"We feel that more and more the public will demand service, [illegible] give good service, one [illegible] equipped for it. Service [illegible] merely mean standing back of guarantees, and repairing or [illegible] ing anything that goes wrong, though this in itself is important, but also in providing a well furnished and attractive salesroom in which to receive old and new friends. In a place like our home no one will have occasion to find fault, either with the salesroom and its furnishings or the cars we sell, and therefore it [illegible] be a great source of satisfaction to do business in our new headquarters."

No Arrests.

YOUTHS "STEAL" THEIR OWN CAR; TAKE A SPIN.

"APPEARANCES may be deceptive and circumstances alter cases in the automobile trade, the same as any other line of endeavor, declares Doc Green, sales manager for Ralph C. Hamlin. Green bases his philosophy on a recent incident that occurred at the South Flower street headquarters for the celebrated air-cooled car.

The first four-passenger Franklin roadster and the only one that has been received from the factory had arrived the previous day. The car had been sold to A. H. Woodworth, a Whittier resident, last September. Mr. Woodworth had been anxious to get the car, but not half as much as his two sons. Three months is a long time to wait delivery on an automobile, especially when it has been paid for. When notified at last that the car was shipped the Woodworth sons became almost daily visitors at Hamlin's. Bright and early [illegible] morning of the day following [illegible] rival they came to the city [illegible] the car over. They were told [illegible] would have to go through the [illegible] tests, be washed up and put in [illegible] fect condition before they [illegible] have it.

Green was [illegible] was thought probably a [illegible] taken it out, but when he [illegible] had within an hour everybody [illegible] sumed an anxious expression [illegible] was made all over the place [illegible] alley and on a neighboring [illegible] lot. The washer said when [illegible] to lunch it was on the [illegible] Green notified the salesmen [illegible] fice help. Finally he dispatched salesmen in cars to make a [illegible] the city streets. Still nothing [illegible] be learned of the missing [illegible] whereabouts.

Green stood at the front [illegible] contemplating calling on the [illegible] for help when his attention [illegible] rested by the sudden [illegible] and, looking up, he saw the [illegible] car being driven into the garage. [illegible] the wheel was one of the Woodworth boys and beside him [illegible] brother. The youths explained [illegible] just could not resist the [illegible] it was their car anyhow and [illegible] not see why they should not [illegible] ride in it. They declared it [illegible] need testing, so left again [illegible] Green says he was delighted [illegible] solution, but he had [illegible] many an agonized minute [illegible] boys were having their pleasure alone.

You Can't Take Out More Than You Put In

When you sit behind the steering wheel, turn a switch, press a button and hear your motor start—do you ever ask yourself—

"How much electrical current is consumed by my starter and lights?

"Is sufficient current being restored to the battery to keep it fully charged?"

Don't guess about these things — make sure.

A lot depends on your battery—but not everything.

There are other parts of the electrical system—and you should know how they work if you expect the best results.

We have a booklet—it's short and free—that tells all about keeping your battery full of "pep." Ask for a copy.

FOR ROAD TRAVEL

EACH unit is so accurately built that the whole is a perfectly attuned motor car, running without noticeable mechanical effort. In building the Apperson Roadaplane, perfect balance was achieved. The motor, as built by Apperson Brothers, is famed for its flexibility, its extraordinary power and its utter absence of vibration.

"How Many Miles Per Gallon?"

Though of good size and powerful, the Apperson Roadaplane tips the scales at an even three thousand pounds. This low rate insures the minimum amount of gasoline for the greatest number of miles. It also saves the tires. Minimum of friction enables the car to move along without any effort—glide along—hence the word Roadaplane.

Hoodoos Barred.

THIRTEEN AN UNLUCKY NUMBER? ASK HANSHUE.

HARRIS M. HANSHUE is not a bit superstitious. That is why, when the Apperson sales force reported to him they had disposed of twelve cars the first week of the new year, he asked them why they did not make it thirteen. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the salesmen demurred. All declared they feared the fateful number would bring them bad luck.

"Well, I never have believed in hoodoos and I'll see if I can't put one over before 6 o'clock to prove it to you," he told them. He telephoned to N. S. Charnock, the Pasadena subdealer, and told him that there had arrived a chummy roadster that he believed would interest a Pasadena prospect. He suggested that Charnock get in touch with his party immediately and see if he could not close the deal.

It was 5:30 o'clock and nothing had been heard from Pasadena. The salesmen began kidding their manager about trifling with 13. In the midst of the confusion, the telephone rang and when Hanshue answered he was told "Pasadena is calling you." It was Charnock on the line and he said he had closed with his prospect and the roadster was sold.

In addition to the Pasadena sale, the Apperson buyers who heulped inaugurate the new year were: Ray Woodward, Whittier, four-passenger, six-cylinder roadster; W. C. Miller, Glendora, seven-passenger, eight-cylinder touring car; J. H. Slaughter, city, seven-passenger, six, touring; A. W. Colby, Ontario, four-passenger, six; W. C. Van Nuys, Oxnard, four-passenger, eight; Will and Frank Frederich, brothers of Oxnard, four-passenger, six, each; D. W. Miller, Long Beach, seven-passenger, eight; L. W. Ames, city, seven-passenger, six; H. A. Baker, city, four-passenger, eight; J. S. Hilend, Anaheim, four-passenger, eight; N. A. Neeley, city, four-passenger, six, who ordered the car while residing in Boise, Idaho, for delivery here, where he intends to make his home.

YOUR CARELESSNESS DESTROYS THE TIRES.

"The average driver of a car knows very little and cares less about the manufacture of a tire, being concerned solely with the service he gets," says B. F. Wade of the Wade Tire and Rubber Company, California distributors for the Dayton line of pneumatic and airless tires.

"Even to secure this service from a tire they do not take the trouble to use the ordinary precautions of keeping their tires properly inflated, which must, of necessity, be done if it is expected to get any sort of reasonable mileage, because nothing will wear a tire out quicker than to run it soft.

"Because of the attention that is required by a pneumatic tire, many motorists prefer our Dayton airless, as once on the car they never have to give their tires a thought and never have a puncture. The demand for this product during the past few months has increased very rapidly, forcing us to increase our orders materially."

Hoodoos Barred.

THIRTEEN AN UNLUCKY NUMBER? ASK HANSHUE.

HARRIS M. HANSHUE is not a bit superstitious. That is why, when the Apperson sales force reported to him they had disposed of twelve cars the first week of the new year, he asked them why they did not make it thirteen. It was 4 o'clock in the afternoon and the salesmen demurred. All declared they feared the fateful number would bring them bad luck.

"Well, I never have believed in hoodoos and I'll see if I can't put one over before 6 o'clock to prove it to you," he told them. He telephoned to N. S. Charnock, the Pasadena subdealer, and told him that there had arrived a chummy roadster that he believed would interest a Pasadena prospect. He suggested that Charnock get in touch with his party immediately and see if he could not close the deal.

It was 5:30 o'clock and nothing had been heard from Pasadena. The salesmen began kidding their manager about trifling with 13. In the midst of the confusion, the telephone rang and when Hanshue answered he was told "Pasadena is calling you." It was Charnock on the line and he said he had closed with his prospect and the roadster was sold.

In addition to the Pasadena sale, the Apperson buyers who heulped inaugurate the new year were: Ray Woodward, Whittier, four-passenger, six-cylinder roadster; W. C. Miller, Glendora, seven-passenger, eight-cylinder touring car; J. H. Slaughter, city, seven-passenger, six, touring; A. W. Colby, Ontario, four-passenger, six; W. C. Van Nuys, Oxnard, four-passenger, eight; Will and Frank Frederich, brothers of Oxnard, four-passenger, six, each; D. W. Miller, Long Beach, seven-passenger, eight; L. W. Ames, city, seven-passenger, six; H. A. Baker, city, four-passenger, eight; J. S. Hilend, Anaheim, four-passenger, eight; N. A. Neeley, city, four-passenger, six, who ordered the car while residing in Boise, Idaho, for delivery here, where he intends to make his home.

YOUR CARELESSNESS DESTROYS THE TIRES.

"The average driver of a car knows very little and cares less about the manufacture of a tire, being concerned solely with the service he gets," says B. F. Wade of the Wade Tire and Rubber Company, California distributors for the Dayton line of pneumatic and airless tires.

"Even to secure this service from a tire they do not take the trouble to use the ordinary precautions of keeping their tires properly inflated, which must, of necessity, be done if it is expected to get any sort of reasonable mileage, because nothing will wear a tire out quicker than to run it soft.

"Because of the attention that is required by a pneumatic tire, many motorists prefer our Dayton airless, as once on the car they never have to give their tires a thought and never have a puncture. The demand for this product during the past few months has increased very rapidly, forcing us to increase our orders materially."

Non-stop car goes to Chicago.

Perhaps no other car in the world has received more newspaper and magazine mention, more advertising and publicity, than the non-stop Maxwell, which traveled twenty-two thousand miles in Southern California, and then was voluntarily stopped by the Maxwell people. The car is here shown, as Mayor F. T. Woodman is handing the key of the city to P. A. Lord, president of the Lord Motor Company, just before the car started for Chicago to be exhibited at the Windy City automobile show. The key to the city of Los Angeles will act as a welcome to eastern tourists in snow-bound States, to come to the Southland and enjoy the world's motoring paradise.

WORLD'S ENDURANCE CHAMP TO BE FEATURE AT CHICAGO AUTO SHOW.

THE nonstop Maxwell—international wanderer and the world's endurance champion—known by every man, woman and child in the least interested in things of the motor world, was sent from Los Angeles to the Chicago automobile show yesterday, after Mayor Woodman had placed in its rear compartment the key to the city, with a welcome and an invitation to all motorists to come to California and enjoy a winter of motoring such as they have never known.

The car will be installed in the Maxwell exhibit at the Chicago show and its nonstop motor will be kept running during the entire show as a proof that the battle-scarred car is still in excellent condition and ready for more hard tests, which will be given it after the Chicago show is over.

The motor bearings of the car, it is claimed, have never been touched since the car was taken off the salesroom floor — a brand-new stock Maxwell, and certified to by the A.A.A. as being absolutely stock in every respect.

"This car has probably been in the limelight more than any other automobile in the world, and its entire fame and fortune were made on the roads of Southern California," said Mr. Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company, Maxwell distributors.

Starting on November 22, 1915, as a brand-new car, this Maxwell was driven for forty-four days and nights over the roads in and adjacent to Los Angeles. The motor of the car was not stopped for an instant during the entire run, and the car was stopped only long enough to take on supplies and to change drivers.

On December 18, 1915, the Maxwell passed the former world's nonstop record of 12,404 miles and became the world's endurance champion. Not satisfied with having exceeded all former records, however, Harry Lord had the run continued until January 5, 1916, when Mayor Sebastian pulled the switch key from its socket, and the motor stopped with the speedometer on the car reading 22,022.3 miles—almost double the mileage of the former world's nonstop record.

But the car was still in almost perfect condition and good for many more miles. It was then that two Los Angeles newspaper men drove it from Los Angeles to San Diego and thence from Tia Juana, Mex., to Vancouver, B. C., mapping the way for a highway from Mexico to Canada. At the Canadian line the Maxwell was seized by the Canadian customs officials and held for several months in a warehouse at Vancouver.

Finally, upon orders from the Canadian government at Ottawa, the customs officials released the car, and it was returned to San Francisco, and was then sent to Los Angeles, where its momentous career had begun.

DETROIT ORDINANCES WILL KEEP PEDESTRIANS IN LINE

SINCE publishing the symposium in The Times relative to the solution of the traffic problem in Los Angeles, there have been many comments and suggestions made. Some of them have been meritorious and others wholly impractical, but all show that the public at large is giving consideration to this difficult problem that the city authorities will have to solve sooner or later.

In line with the views expressed to the effect that attention must be directed to pedestrian and vehicular traffic other than motor propelled, which seems to have come in for almost exclusive regulation, are those of Henry W. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson is a resident of Detroit and he came here for the winter. He had shipped out his Cole eight touring car, which he will make use of during his stay. He told James L. Irving, the Cole eight distributor, of Detroit's most recent traffic regulation activities.

"Detroit has a new ordinance under way which is aimed at [illegible] rieties of traffic," Mr. Ferguson [illegible] "Previous ordinances, which [illegible] similar to those I understand [illegible] in Los Angeles, were strict [illegible] regulation of automobiles [illegible] little attention to anything [illegible] The new measure, however, [illegible] horse-drawn vehicles, [illegible] and everything else that [illegible] of the streets, and compels [illegible] abide by the same rules.

THIS MEDIUM-PRICED CAR GAINING FRIEN[illegible]

"WHAT promises to be one of the most popular of all medium priced cars on the market, before the close of the 1917 season, is the Briscoe, the car with the 'half-million-dollar' motor," said Col. L. E. Hewes, head of the Los Angeles branch of the Pacific Kissel Kar Company.

"The Briscoe Corporation of Jackson, Mich., will shortly inaugurate a nationwide advertising campaign in the interest of its production, plans for which have already been completed. Although the new Briscoe is $60 higher in price, it is also a better car for the money. Quality is Economy

THIS IS THE SIGN OF A HOOD DEALER

YOU bought the car you drive because you believed it was the best car you could buy for the money you paid for it.

You buy everything on that business basis.

When it comes to Tires that really have most to do with the riding value of your car, especially with what the car costs to run you are confronted with difficulty.

You do not see a tire made — Very few men know anything about those exacting scientific differences of fabric, rubber, tread, cubic air content, size and other essentials upon which the tire's life depends, and its service to the user.

We tell you that Hood Extra Ply Tires are superior to all others. That they will save you considerable money.

That once you use them you will have found a tire that will outwear, outrun, outserve any tire made today.

There is only one test, one proof that can demonstrate the superiority of one Tire over others.

Exchange the truth of these claims for your confidence that what we say is true.

Put Hood "extra ply" Tires on your car and prove that their quality is economy.

There is a Hood Dealer near you. Write us if you do not know his name.

THE BUICK MOTOR COMPANY OFFICIALS state that it was their sincere hope to continue the sale of BUICK cars at the former prices, but developments in the materials situation make a price revision inevitable.

THE VOLUME OF BUICK BUSINESS has made it unnecessary for the Howard Auto Company to publish this increase in price weeks ahead of time for the purpose of booming BUICK sales. Buick owners and the public at large have learned that to own a BUICK is not only a guarantee of automobile satisfaction, but that it is a sound financial investment as well; depreciation on the present line of BUICKS in a year's time being so slight as to be almost negligible. Because of these things it is impossible for the BUICK factory, gigantic as it is, to supply even one-fifth of the demand for BUICK cars!

EVERY retired boxer retains the memory of certain incidents which stand out vividly even [illegible] a whirlwind of violent events.

[illegible] would not think that a guy [illegible] had been hit seven or eight [illegible] times in the face and elsewhere would remember any particular blow, single it out as the [illegible] swat and file it away in the re[illegible] of his cerebellum to contemplate in future years.

STRANGE FACT.

Yet all boxers whom we have met [illegible] a deep impression of some special swat laid away in their mental museum. [illegible] retired boxer retains the memory of certain incidents which stand out vividly even [illegible] of violent events.

[illegible] would not think that a guy [illegible] been hit seven or eight [illegible] times in the face and elsewhere would remember any particular blow, single it out as the [illegible] and file it away in the recess of his cerebellum to contemplate in future years.

STRANGE FACT.

[illegible] boxers whom we have met [illegible] deep impression of some special [illegible] laid away in their mental [illegible]. It may have been more [illegible] than any of the others, or [illegible] it may have been received in some particular crisis, or [illegible] in a freakish and unexpected manner. There are one of a [illegible] which may have caused [illegible] registered more vividly on [illegible] negative of the brain.

[illegible] there are other high spots [illegible] champion's career such as his [illegible] battle, the worst punishment which he received, and the [illegible] peculiarities of certain [illegible] which are chiseled deeply [illegible] interior of his cranium.

CASE OF JEFF.

[illegible] never had what would be [illegible] perfect defense for his [illegible] face, and on some [illegible] it was punched until it [illegible] resemblance to four [illegible] of hamburger steak. [illegible], who learned to hit [illegible] the rear workings [illegible] bounced his best blows [illegible] countenance, and yet [illegible] previously stated, solemnly [illegible] swears that it was not [illegible] Choynski, who clouted [illegible] hardest.

[illegible] Jeffries so hard in [illegible] where he eats that it [illegible] his lips so tightly between [illegible] as to necessitate the use [illegible] knife. Not until his sec[illegible] his lips could Jeff [illegible] mouth. The operation [illegible]. Otherwise he would [illegible] been able to eat again. [illegible] keep on fighting with his [illegible] up, but he can't eat in [illegible].

MORE TROUBLE.

[illegible] same scrap, Choynski hit [illegible] rap on the ear that he [illegible] echoes of it for a long [illegible]. For two weeks Jeff was [illegible] whether he was carrying [illegible] hand organ on the left [illegible] head. It made music for [illegible] time, ranging from rag [illegible] grand opera. At other [illegible] felt like a human calliope. [illegible] his head didn't actually [illegible] sounds. Otherwise Jeff [illegible] found himself to a cir[illegible] orchestra in his head was [illegible] affair, and main[illegible] his own entertainment. [illegible] hardest battle probably was [illegible] round victory over [illegible] at Coney Island. At [illegible] passed through a [illegible] physical ordeal. For [illegible] he was compelled to fight [illegible] arm battle because [illegible] received in the earlier [illegible], the greatest punishment he received was not [illegible] by Sharkey, but by the [illegible] ring was a canopy of [illegible] of great power and [illegible]. There were only a few [illegible] the heads of the men, and [illegible] tropical temperature that [illegible] extremely [illegible].

VERY WARM.

[illegible] both men had their [illegible] out like a couple of [illegible]. Jeff probably punished more severely than [illegible] he enticed be[illegible]. The sailor was [illegible]. Several of his [illegible] were caved in and he [illegible] his worst, most [illegible] in his second [illegible]. Handi[illegible] that gave un[illegible] he was a compara[illegible] for the shifty [illegible] laid one cheek [illegible] the other, drove his [illegible] closed both eyes [illegible] them open again. [illegible] was perfectly ven[illegible] breathe through [illegible] cheeks like a fish [illegible] his gills. He didn't [illegible] disfigured, [illegible] was a perfect [illegible]. He dropped Fitz [illegible] eighth.

[illegible] NEW.

[illegible] frequently recounted [illegible] intimate friends, but [illegible] had we heard [illegible] who, in his es[illegible] hardest head. [illegible] many as[illegible] marvels and some dubs and not a few freaks. It also remained for the kangaroo kingdom to produce a boxer equipped with the strongest skull. Jeffries swears to this day that Joe Goddard, the "barrier champion," had a bean which could not be dented with a hammer. Joe could have passed his head off for a cobblestone and the deception never would have been discovered.

Jeff made this discovery when he boxed the big fellow at Hazzard's pavilion, which then reposed on the site now occupied by Temple Auditorium.

'RAH FOR TOM.

Goddard was a comparative stranger in these parts, and Tom Darmody consented to hold the watch for him and look after his box-office interests. Darmody was one of Jeff's closest friends and made several trips across the continent to witness his fights. He did this for Goddard as a matter of professional courtesy and with Jeff's consent.

Goddard was really a tough customer. While easy to hit he was hard to hurt above the neck and carried a wild and dangerous wallop. His fight with Choynski in Australia was one of the roughest little sessions in the history of the ring. Joe dropped him to the carpet twenty-five times, only to do the final flop himself.

"'E kept 'itting me and knockin' me down; I didn't know 'ow 'e 'it me or where 'e 'it me, but 'e knocked me down so much that I lost track. Then I 'it 'm, and, lookin' around the ring, I found that I 'ad won the bloody fight." This was Goddard's own story of the scrap and it got many a laugh in the telling.

EASY ENOUGH.

Jeffries soon found that knocking Goddard down with punches to the head did'nt get him anything except a cluster of sore knuckles. He floored him four times in the first three rounds and Joe would simply bounce up off his haunches and set his head to absorb another blow. Jeff found this extremely wearing on the hands, and, reflecting that he had two more fights to be attended to in the next few weeks, decided to swat Goddard in the diaphragm and in that way conserve his mitts. This plan of campaign proved more profitable and was less severe on one's fists. By emphatically ripping into Goddard's midsection Jeff had him down on all fours and helpless before the end of the fourth. He signaled Darmody to stop the fight. The crowd believed that he had quit cold. They couldn't understand how a man who had taken four knockdowns without a symptom of anguish could "get his" in such short order. Jeff delivered his body blows at such close range that few realized their force.

BADLY HURT.

Goddard in reality was badly hurt and practically unable to continue. He stated after the fight that he had every reason to believe that Jeff would kill him if he tried to go on.

"'E sure can 'it," said Joe after the fight, rubbing his ribs. He made no reference to the wallops which he had received on the beezer, they evidently having made no impression.

Jeff says all other heads that he met were as mushrooms compared with the concrete creation which Goddard carried on the end of his neck.

NEW CHAMP TO TRY FOOTLIGHTS.

[DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

NEW ORLEANS (La.) Jan. 13.—Pete "Kid" Herman, local boy, who last week won the bantamweight title from Johnny "Kid" Williams of Baltimore, will not engage in any ring contests for at least four months. Jerome Gargona, his manager, announced tonight that he was fixing up details for closing a contract by which Herman would tour one of the big vaudeville circuits for nearly three months. After that he may take on some ten-round fights and may visit Philadelphia, Boston, Cincinnati and other eastern cities to fight in no-decision affairs.

Former Champion Williams challenged Herman to a return engagement, offering to put up $6500 as his share of a purse for the fight. Herman, however, did not look kindly on this offer and, while he has not done so, it is a foregone conclusion that he will turn it down.

Dave Wartnik, Williams's manager, said that he would spend a bunch of money in trying to get Herman back into the ring.

"We will knock him out if we meet him again," said Wartnik, and "meet him we will, as I will keep behind him until he fights Williams again or shows he is afraid."

Sporting men were still sore over the verdict, as there was a tremendous amount of money bet on the fight by the race track and other elements, who were returned heavy losers by Referee Rocap's decision.

SAN FRANCISCO ONE-DAY TRIP.

By consistent driving, "Cliff" Durant, well known in automobile racing circles, has reduced his time when motoring between Los Angeles and San Francisco to one day. In his new Cadillac eight phaeton he has made the journey in a little better than ten hours. Many drivers take at least two days in which to make the trip.

For the business man who likes to drive his car between the two cities, and who does not want to lose more than one day each way, the trip can be made this way:

On the drive north leave Los Angeles as late as 5 in the afternoon and reach Bakersfield by 10 in the evening. Returning, leave San Francisco by 4 in the afternoon and arrive in Los Angeles in time for dinner the next evening.

TEXAS MAN BUCKS WIND, SAND AND SNOW, BUT GETS THROUGH

AFTER fighting snow, sleet and cold on the high plateaus of New Mexico, the heat and deep sand of the Colorado River bottom and the Mojave desert, Alfred Roos found the California sunshine and Los Angeles good roads one of the real joys of his young life.

Mr. Roos is associate dealer of the El Paso distributor of Hudson motor cars. Because of the fact he drove a Hudson super-six from Las Cruces, N. M., over the borderland route to Phoenix, then across the desert to the ferry at Parker, then by a long detour up to Needles and over the Santa Fe route through Barstow to this city.

Commenting on the trip to Harold L. Arnold, the Los Angeles distributor of Hudson motor cars, Mr. Roos said:

"Never again for a desert trip at this time of the year. I'm a sunshine man from the Lone Star State, and those high plateau winds of New Mexico, with the sleet and snow, fairly shriveled the marrow in my bones.

"Believe me, I never had anything so appeal to my family as the sunshine, the roses and the beautiful boulevards of Southern California, after fighting the desert conditions we met between Phoenix and this city.

"If we hadn't had a real car when we bucked that chopped-up sand road between Bouse and Parker, and when crossing the Gila River between Bisbee and Florence, on the borderland route, we would still have been on the road. We got in last Sunday and, thanks to the Hudson super-six, we were three days earlier than we expected to be, considering the round-about route that we followed.

"We intended to come by the way of Yuma, but at Phoenix they told us that almost the entire distance of 200 miles between Phoenix and Yuma was in such fierce condition that we had better come the longer way. If the Yuma route is any worse than Parker, I don't wonder that so many machines are broken up and fall by the wayside, for, let me tell you that no one has any business to travel for pleasure between this city and Phoenix by the Parker cut-off.

If the plans of Toledo (O.) motorists do not miscarry, an elevated way for the parking of motor cars will be provided for them. A small fee would repay the city for building.

GEARS, CLUTCH AND PEDALS ARE ELIMINATED ON NEW CAR.

R. S. FEND, chief engineer of the Woods Motor Vehicle Company, and designer of the Woods Dual Power car, is in Los Angeles, with headquarters at the Turner-Whitford Company, No. 1144 South Figueroa street, for a day or two.

The greatest interest is displayed by owners of electric and gas cars to learn about this two-power automobile, which is an electric car or a gasoline car, or a vehicle in which both powers may be utilized at once.

Mr. Fend, in an interview, said: "The Dual Power eliminates entirely the greatest inconvenience in electric cars—the dependence on charging stations; and says that it increases the electric's speed by at least 40 per cent. It has the speed and mileage of a gas car and yet it eliminates the shifting of gears, clutch pedals and other complicated mechanism.

"The simplicity of operation appeals to both electric and gas car owners. It is controlled entirely by the use of two small finger levers on the steering wheel, or by a single foot brake pedal, without the use of clutch pedal, shifting levers or transmission gears. The battery is charged or discharged at will while the car is running.

"Dual Power was designed to give motorists the most satisfactory features of both gasoline and electric power while eliminating their deficiencies. It is without question the greatest innovation in motor car construction. The combination affords power without waste and economy without the sacrifice of luxury. It is an all-service car that surpasses all expectations."

Mr. Fend says that a demonstration is always convincing and that after learning about the wonderful performance of this car and the simplicity of it, the marvel is not so much that Dual Power has been produced, but that someone did not think of it before.

MANUAL TRACK SCHEDULE OUT.

TOILERS REFUSE TO MEET THE COLLEGE TEAM.

Arrange Meets with U.S.C. and Occidental Freshmen—Longest Season in History of High School is Planned—Coach Ligda Believes in Plenty of Competition.

Eleven track meets, the longest season the Toilers have ever had, is the plan of Coach Victor Ligda for the Manual Arts tracksters.

Although the Toilers will start their season a week later than they did last year, the Purple and Gray runners will not be able to lay away their spikes until three weeks later than last season because of the change of the date for the State championship meet which will be held on the Berkeley oval on April 28.

In looking over the Artisan schedule, it can be seen that the Manual team will not be as strong as the team of last year because they have refused to meet the college varsities as they did last season. The only meets outside of high school affairs will be with the U.S.C. freshmen and with the Occidental freshmen.

The first meet of the season at Manual will be held on January 26 when the second team will meet the Glendale High second. The first team men will not get into competition until they tackle the strong U.S.C. freshmen on February 9.

Of the eleven meets on the Toiler schedule, only three will be held on the Manual Arts track. During the preliminary season the Purple and Gray runners will make trips to Pasadena, Redlands and San Diego. These trips have been planned by Coach Ligda in order to give his point winners a chance to become accustomed with competing on strange tracks. This will be done so that they will not feel lost when they take part on the Berkeley track for the first time in the State meet.

Following is the schedule: January 26, Glendale High at Manual (second team;) February 2, Inglewood at Manual (second team;) February 9, U.S.C. freshmen at Manual Arts; February 16, Occidental freshmen at Manual; February 22, Relay Carnival at Bovard Field; March 2, Redlands High vs. Manual at Redlands; March 9, Hollywood High at Manual; March 17, Pasadena vs. Manual at Pasadena; March 24, city meet; March 31, Southern California meet at Bovard Field; April 7, San Diego High vs. Manual at San Diego; April 14, A.A.U. meet at Bovard Field; April 21, interclass meet; April 28, State track meet at Berkeley.

A TALK WITH BANKS.

In conversation with Mr. Banks before the match started, he said he was sorry the match had been advertised for the world's championship, as in reality neither he nor Jordan at present were the holders of any title. But that the world's championship would have to be settled by elimination, and that he thought the winner of this match would be the logical player to be matched against Stewart of Scotland, and that the winner of that match would be heralded as the world's champion. In his talk he did not forget that Hugh Henderson was the present United States champion, but for business reasons Mr. Henderson will not be able to take part in match play for the next two or three years.

NEWELL BANKS WINS HIS THIRD CHECKER MATCH.

NEWELL W. BANKS won another game from Alfred Jordan yesterday at the L.A.A.C. in the world's championship checker tournament. This makes three wins for the Detroit man and followers of the game in this city are almost willing to concede the title. There is another week to play.

During the recent tournament Jordan has appeared very nervous. During a match he bites off his finger nails, chews his lips and twists his ears. Banks, on the other hand, is the smiling picture of confidence. He sits all afternoon huddled up over the checkers and only moves when he changes the position of his men. Some think that Banks's coolness has unsteadied the world's title holder.

BANKS-JORDAN MATCH.

The Banks-Jordan match is now in full swing and by next issue the final result will be known. Both players are in fine physical condition and have had plenty of time to prepare for the match, so the loser can have no valid excuse for defeat.

The match is being played in the Blue Room on the fourth floor of the L.A.A.C. The players have a fine natural light to play by, the room is well ventilated and the spectators show no partiality for either player, so the conditions are ideal for the players.

Banks is much the younger man of the two and is probably the greatest natural player of the day, while Jordan has had more experience in match play, and has more published play stored away in his "belfry." Jordan is also a greater natural player than most people give him credit for. Many are under the impression that he is a "memory player," but, while he takes advantage of his wonderful memory, he is also a fine analysist.

The officials for the match are John A. Rickleson, referee; D. C. Whitehill, scorekeeper; T. A. Pike, timekeeper for Banks, and H. L. Schooler, timekeeper for Jordan.

FIRST DAY'S PLAY.

The first opening drawn was the 11-16, 24-20 Bristol Opening. Both players adopted the 10-15 attack and the day's play resulted in two drawn games. In the first game, the play proceeded as in one of their Kansas City games until the twenty-fourth move, when Jordan varied by playing 32-27, and the game ran into a well-known line given in Lee's Guide.

The second game was played the same as the first until the twentieth move, when Banks played 27-23. Jordan scented a "cook" and took advantage of the time limit for the next few moves, and the onlookers thought he was developing the better game, but Banks presented him with a "Greek gift" and his game looked strong once more. Jordan was apparently in a generous mood for he immediately gave the man back, and ran the game into a familiar Paisley ending, colors reversed, and a draw was soon agreed on.

SECOND DAY'S PLAY.

For the afternoon game, 9-13, 24-20, was drawn and two book draws on the "Wagram" opening were soon over.

In the evening game, 10-14, 23-17, came out of the hat and two interesting games were played. In the first game published play was followed for the first twenty-four moves, when Banks varied from all published play and Jordan had visions of a "Chicago cook" and took advantage of the time limit for several moves. After some time the following position was reached:

Black—5, 6, 7, 8, 11, 12, 14, 16, 17, 18.
White—13, 15, 20, 21, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, and 29.
White (Jordan) to move.

Immediately after the game, I asked him why he did not play 24-19, 5-9, 23-22, 18-25, 29-22, 11-25, 20-2, 25-30, 27-24, 8-11a, 2-7, 6-10, 13-6, 10-15, 7-16, 30-25, 19-10, 12-28, 6-2, and White can win.

a—If 30-25, 19-15, 25-22, 24-30, 22-31, 23-18, etc., White wins.

Instead of the above, Jordan pitched 13-9, 6-13, and squeezed 15-10. Banks replied 17-22 and play continued 26-17, 13-22, 10 8, 26-22, 3-7, 16-19, 7-16, 19-28, 16-19, and after about an hour's more play a draw was agreed upon. Jordan seemed to have the better of the ending, but the advantage was more apparent than real, for Banks's kings were just in the nick of time to prevent Jordan from crowning any more of his single men.

The next game was hotly contested and Jordan stated after the game that he came very near losing by pitching a piece and stealing it back a few moves later, but luckily saw in time that it would not do, as he would have lost another man a few moves later.

THIRD DAY'S PLAY.

On Wednesday afternoon 10-14, 24-20, was drawn and the most exciting game of the match thus far was on. Banks again put on something new and came very near scoring a win. The game lasted over three hours, but Jordan finally secured a neat draw.

The second game was similar to one of their Kansas City games and did not consume much time.

For the evening games, 10-15, 24-19, was drawn and two orthodox draws were run off in about an hour.

BANKS SCORES FIRST WIN.

On Thursday afternoon Banks scored a win with the Black side of the Second Double Corner. The game was played the same as a Freedman-Barker game for the first thirty-five moves, when the following position was reached:

Black—5, 6, 7, 12, 16, 17, and 20.
White—13, 18, 19, 23, 25, 27, and 31.
White (Jordan) to move.

Jordan played 19-15, and Banks replied 17-21, 25-22, 16-19, 23-16, 12-19, 18-14, and eventually captured the man on 27.

In the Freeman-Barker game, Freedman, instead of 19-15, played 25-21, Barker replied 17-22 and lost, but 6-10 would have probably drawn.

Nothing new developed in the next game and it was soon drawn.

And after 21-25, 24-20, 25-30, 26-22, 30-26, 23-19, 26-22, 19-15, was given up as drawn.

Notes by "Whilter."

a—27-23 is preferable. The text has a tendency to weakness, but Mr. Holmes handles it well.

b—A few of the spectators considered that Black had a win in hand here by 19-24, 28-19, 15-24, but continue 10 7, 2-11, 32-28, and White has at least an equal game.

c—26-13, 18-27, 31-24, is critical, but drawable, Black lacking "the move" for any effective offensive.

d—Again, at this stage, "public opinion" favored a Black win, 5-9 being suggested in lieu of the text, but White has a neat and marketable draw, thus: 5-9, 7-2, 9-13, 2-7, 18-17, (30-25,) 7-11, 25-22, 11-15, 22-17, 15-18 (drawn,) 7-11, 17-22, 11-15, 30-26, (30-25, 15-19, drawn,) 15-11, 26-21, 28-24, 21-17, 24-19, 22 26, 11-15, drawn.

e—Well played, and is a neat sequel to 21-17 at "a."

18-11	15-24	17-14	16-23
8-15	28-19	10-17	27-18

a—"Kelso Exchange," thus: 10-15, 23-18, 15-22, 25-18, 6-10. Despite an exposed double corner, Black gets a sound, interesting game.

b—18-14 is the accepted best reply at this point, attacking, as the late Frank Dunne remarked in his "Praxis," Black's already weakened double corner.

c—Maintaining the counterpart by 32-27 is more usual and best.

d—The strongest continuation, 11-15 and 11-16, are playable.

e—White works out a neat draw; 6-10 follows 18-14, and White is in difficulties.

OREGON ELEVEN IS IN DEMAND.

NOTRE DAME IS NOW LOOKING FOR TROUBLE.

Johnnie Bender of Tennessee, Former Washington State Coach, Writes His Congratulations and Wants South Represented in Sectional Fight.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND (Or.) Jan. 13.—Oregon's great football victory over Pennsylvania at Pasadena New Year's Day seems to have waked the entire country. Everybody now wants a crack at the Eugene lads. First Notre Dame telegraphed for a Thanksgiving date in Chicago and now the University of Tennessee, which tied for the southern championship last fall, wants a trip to the Pacific Northwest.

The Tennessee eleven is coached by Johnnie Bender, formerly football tutor at Washington State College. In a letter, Bender says:

"I am mighty glad to hear that Oregon won from Pennsylvania. By the way, we had a good team here last fall, although I had only twenty-four men to work with. We tied for the southern championship with Georgia Tech., each winning eight games and tying one. I expect to have a fair team next year and would like to take my 'volunteers' to the Coast to play Oregon or any college or club team on Christmas or New Year's of 1917. All we want is expenses for twenty-two men.

"You will notice that one of our ends got on the third all-American with Beckett. It seems to me that Johnny Parsons should have landed one, two or three."

Bender's "surprise" concerning Parsons's failure to gain recognition from Walter Camp is no surprise at all. There is no question now but that the best teams of the West Coast rank on a par with the best football elevens of the Atlantic Coast. Washington State's 14-0 victory over Brown last New Year's Day indicated as much and Oregon's 14-0 win over Penn this year proved it.

Camp's vision necessarily is limited and as Mr. Camp is located in New Haven, a majority, and a big majority, of his stars always will be chosen from teams in that section

Here's Hoping.

TENNIS CHAMP MAY PLAY HERE.

East-West Matches [illegible] March Fifth.

Coast Players Start [illegible] Training.

Enter Coronado [illegible] of this Week.

BY HOWARD A[illegible]

The East vs. West tennis [illegible] will be held on the Hotel [illegible] tennis courts the second [illegible] March, unless it is [illegible] the eastern team to play [illegible] that time.

This is the most important [illegible] nament that has ever [illegible] to the West and it is the [illegible] time that these matches [illegible] held on the Coast. The [illegible] East vs. West struggle was [illegible] the exposition in San F[illegible] two years ago.

It is hoped that Norris W[illegible] the present national champion [illegible] be able to play here on the [illegible]ern team. In a letter to [illegible] McLoughlin he wrote that [illegible] like to pay this city a [illegible] would come if he possibly [illegible]

The other three members [illegible] eastern team will be [illegible] Church, Harold Throckmorton [illegible] Dean Mathey. The tennis [illegible] are trying to persuade [illegible] Behr or Theodore Pell, [illegible] the fifth member.

"Unless Norris Williams, [illegible] Behr, Theodore Pell, Dean [illegible] or some other of the [illegible] players constitute the [illegible] we will not attempt to [illegible] East vs. West matches," [illegible] son Sinsabaugh yesterday. [illegible] arrange a tennis tournament [illegible] come Church and Throckmorton [illegible] their return from the [illegible] we will not call the tournament [illegible] vs. West, unless the [illegible] is thoroughly representative."

The western tennis players [illegible] go into active training [illegible] matches immediately. [illegible] of the members of the [illegible] will enter the annual Coronado [illegible] nis tournament of next [illegible] Maurice McLoughlin, William [illegible]ston, Johnny Strachan, [illegible] fin and Nat Browne. [illegible] finds it impossible to play [illegible] tournament. Johnston, [illegible] and Griffin are planning [illegible] February playing in [illegible] the annual midwinter [illegible] They will meet Church and Throck[illegible]morton there, as these two [illegible] stars are to return from the [illegible] in time to participate in the [illegible] an tournament.

The Southern California [illegible] will practice here among [illegible] selves. McLoughlin, [illegible] Browne will perfect [illegible] against each other, while [illegible] stars as Sinsabaugh, Jack [illegible] and Claude Wayne have [illegible] to give them practice [illegible] Herb Hahn stays in the [illegible] the next two months [illegible] McLoughlin's chief opponent.

Unless the southern players [illegible] able to perfect their game [illegible] not play on the western team [illegible] Loughlin said yesterday that [illegible] enough of playing without [illegible] preparation.

At the present the [illegible] of the southerners is [illegible] par. Neither McLoughlin [illegible] Browne will enter the [illegible] Coronado, but only the [illegible] They intend to spend the [illegible] of this week practicing [illegible] to San Diego on the [illegible] night train and enter the [illegible] Thursday morning. [illegible] the only Los Angeles [illegible] will enter the singles.

This city will be well rep[illegible] however, in the women's [illegible] Mary Browne, Mrs. W[illegible] William Widdowson and [illegible] Sutton will leave today for [illegible] and play through the [illegible] nament in both singles [illegible] bles.

But both McLoughlin and [illegible] feel that it would be [illegible] them to try to cope with [illegible] and Strachan at their [illegible] game.

CHAMPS DEFEND LAURELS TODAY.

Lacey and Retzer to Play Handball Match.

Larson Goes into Training for Singles.

Title Holder Thought to be Overweight.

Courtney ("Joe") Lacey will de[illegible] his handball championship ti[illegible] on the L.A.A.C. courts at noon [illegible]. He has been challenged by [illegible] Retzer, the "perfect man."

[illegible] thinks that he has caught [illegible] stocky little champion over[illegible] out of condition and off his [illegible]. The challenger has been [illegible] on the quiet for nearly [illegible] months. He is as right as he [illegible] will be.

The "perfect man," however, will [illegible] that the champion is in much [illegible] condition than expected and [illegible] much on his game. Lacey has [illegible] preparing for the singles tour[illegible] in February and while not [illegible] top shape is very nearly so.

A sort of "inner circle" of hand[illegible] players has been formed at the [illegible]A.A.C. for the avowed purpose of [illegible] the title from Lacey. Every [illegible] of it takes a swing at Lacey [illegible] the same inevitable result—de[illegible]. This clique of players prac[illegible] with one another, cheer for [illegible] other and try to catch Lacey [illegible] guard. Whenever the champion [illegible] to practice with any of them [illegible] are terribly busy. This does [illegible] bother Lacey, for he would [illegible] work out by himself.

The best player of the "inner cir[illegible]" is Wen Larsen, who defeated [illegible] in a challenge match about [illegible] months ago and since then has [illegible] beaten in two tournaments by [illegible] champion. Larsen is the man [illegible] clique is grooming to get the [illegible] in the coming singles tour[illegible].

Larsen is a thin gentleman. For [illegible] last month he has not played [illegible]. He has been living with [illegible] parents and eating his mother's [illegible] cooking in an effort to [illegible] on some extra weight and build [illegible]. A marked improvement is al[illegible] noticeable.

[illegible] began his training campaign [illegible], two members of the "in[illegible] circle" giving him three hot [illegible]. Larsen figures that he has [illegible] extra weight on now to take [illegible] through the preliminary games [illegible] have him in excellent condition [illegible] the tussle with Lacey.

[illegible] wrestlers are busy again, Gus [illegible], the wild Greek, was out [illegible] afternoon all bundled up [illegible] and puffing up and down [illegible] in a frantic effort to reduce.

"I must be in better condition [illegible] before," said the Greek. "If I [illegible] I'll win quick, but if Lewis wins [illegible] take two days."

[illegible] Ed Lewis, the "225-[illegible] society butterfly," will arrive [illegible] morning with his manager, Bil[illegible]. Lewis intends to spend [illegible] entire week grinding at the club. [illegible] has much more respect for Ker[illegible] than he had a week ago. His [illegible] an open. Notice, also, that his [illegible] is coming along this time.

[illegible] lack of wrestlers with whom [illegible] is troubling the Greek. There are five or six of them [illegible] the city claiming to be cham[illegible] of everything from Asia to [illegible], but none of them seem [illegible] to indulge in a little healthy [illegible], especially with Kervaras.

[illegible] Strangler is not troubled by [illegible] of opponents. His manager, [illegible] Sandow, is an old-time wrestler [illegible] is still young. He gives the [illegible] a stiff workout. Lewis [illegible] him with great rapidity, [illegible] Sandow always comes back for [illegible]

[illegible] match is causing no end of [illegible] and discussion. Some [illegible] that Kervaras cannot wrestle [illegible] being rough. Others claim [illegible] Lewis cannot throw squarely [illegible] by fair means. Others think [illegible] Greek will be better and still [illegible] worse. A few insist that it [illegible] as natural for these two giants [illegible] rough as it is for the ordinary [illegible] to eat three squares a day, and [illegible] before fifteen minutes is up [illegible] will have forfeited their $200 [illegible] embroiled in a regular cat[illegible] fight.

[illegible] Kervaras said yesterday that [illegible] not going to use a single ques[illegible] hold. He also intimated [illegible] the match would be none the [illegible] fast and furious because of that. [illegible] will see that I can wrestle [illegible] being rough," he said, "and [illegible] Lewis."

[illegible] is not here to give his ver[illegible], but after the last match he [illegible] that he could win easily [illegible] that bout.

"[illegible] don't dare put a hold on Ker[illegible]," he said, "for fear that he [illegible] pull off an ear or a cheek."

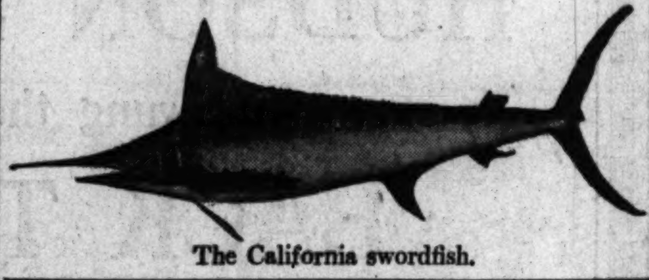
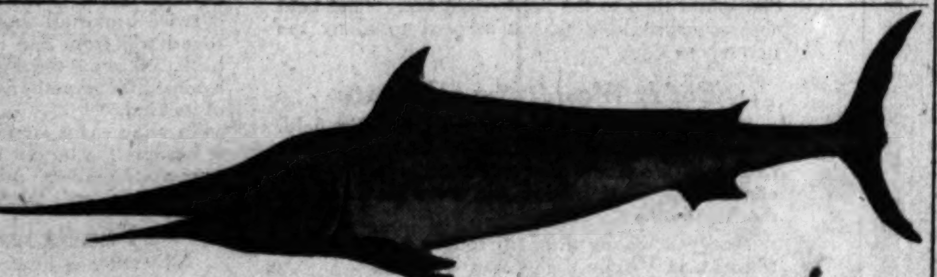
[illegible] cost of such a road is com[illegible] of $14,000,000. Of this [illegible] the State would pay $7,[illegible] and the government the rest.

NEW FIGHTING SWORDFISH HAS THE SPORTSMEN WORRIED AT CATALINA.

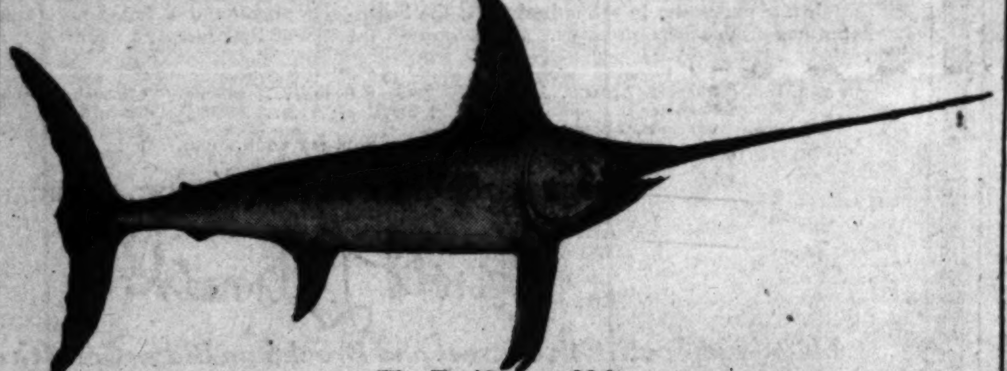
BY H. T. PAYNE,
Author of "Game Birds and Game Fishes of the Pacific Coast."



The California swordfish.



The Atlantic swordfish.



The Pacific swordfish.

THE appearance in large numbers in the waters of Catalina of a swordfish new to the California coast has created a lively interest among the expert anglers who are always looking for the most determined fighters of the sea with which to match their skill.

This new and powerful fighter has, very naturally, created no end of discussion as to what it really is, what is its relationship to the Atlantic swordfish and to the resident fish of a similar character, long known as the California swordfish.

As I have been asked by a number of our ocean anglers to give my opinion regarding this new visitor, I herewith present drawings of the three fishes under discussion, and give what little is known of the two families of pelagic fishes known as the Istiophoridae and Xiphiidae.

The common resident of the Catalina waters, and very appropriately given the English name, California swordfish, by Jordan and Evermann, has been classed as a member of the genus Tetrapturus, found on the Atlantic coasts and in the waters of Japan. I have illustrated and described this fish in "Game Birds and Game Fishes of the Pacific Coast," under the name used by Jordan and Evermann, Tetrapturus mitsukurii, as it is supposed to be one of the species inhabiting the Japanese waters. But there is at least some question whether or not this fish is the mitsukurii of Japan. I am led to the entertainment of this doubt by the fact that none of the illustrations or descriptions of the mitsukurii that I have yet seen, either show or describe the two long "feelers," which are, in fact, ventral fins, so prominent in the Catalina fish; nor do the descriptions of it correspond in many other respects. I may here state, however, that but little is known of any of the species of the families Istiophoridae or Xiphiidae, which include the sword, spear and sailfishes. It is therefore possible that a better study of the California swordfish (Tetrapturus mitsukurii) may show it to be as distinct a species as is the new visitor to our coast, and possibly separate it from the Tetrapturus to which the spearfishes belong. I am led to this opinion also by the behavior of the fish when impaled. It is the most determined and spectacular fighter known to the anglers in any part of the world. In its struggles for freedom it fights constantly on the surface, and in its mad rushes to free itself from the impaling hook leaps clear into the air thirty, forty and even sixty times before its strength and courage are exhausted, a fighting courage never even approached by any other fish. The tuna, while a hard fighter, wearies the angler by its strong, steady work below the surface. The trout and salmon, after one to three angry leaps, settle down to erratic under-water runs. The tarpon, once considered the king of fighting fishes, rarely, if ever, shows itself half a dozen times above the surface. But the California swordfish enters the contest with the spirit of the Roman gladiator, with its heart in the battle, and a determination to fight to the very finish.

An examination of the illustrations of the two swordfishes, the Xiphias gladius of the Atlantic and the new Catalina visitor, to which I have given the name Pacific swordfish, will show a very marked difference in the length of the sword, the length of the under jaw, the shape and size of the dorsal fin, the location of the pectoral fins, the size of the eye, and the presence of a large anterior anal fin in the Pacific, which is entirely absent in the Xiphias.

The swordfish of the Atlantic is fairly well known to our scientific men, and described alike by them all. Its habitat is given as both sides of the Atlantic Ocean, and its supposed spawning grounds as the Mediterranean. None of our writers on the subject, so far as I am able to learn, seem to have any knowledge of a species of swordfish distinguished from the Xiphias of the Atlantic, except Gunther, who writes of a type inhabiting the warm waters of the Pacific and Indian Oceans. In writing of these he says: "Many of the young fishes are caught in the nets of the native islanders, but the mature fishes are too strong for any net." An assertion easily believed after an examination of its powerful fins. He describes these fishes as, "distinguished from the Atlantic Xiphias by the presence of ventral fins, which, however, are reduced to long styloform appendages," but he does not mention their location. He classes them under the generic name of Histiophorus, but it seems he has not been sufficiently conversant with them to give them specific names. Nor does he describe the species herewith illustrated. For it, unlike his histiophorus, has no ventral fins, and unlike the Atlantic Xiphias it has a very large, fleshy anterior anal fin.

Jordan and Evermann, speaking of the Atlantic swordfish, the Xiphias gladius, say: "It is rare on the Pacific Coast, only five records being known." And in mentioning their value as food fishes, say: "Its dark flesh, though a little coarse, makes excellent steaks." These well known authorities also indorse the statement made by others that but little is known of this family of fishes because of its inconvenient size for laboratory work. In view of these statements it is quite possible that the five records mentioned were reports furnished them by fishermen, and not actual examinations made by themselves, for they are too careful observers, not to have noticed the marked difference between the dorsal fin of the California swordfish, or the new visitor, and those of the Xiphias of the Atlantic. Also the presence of the large, fleshy anterior anal fin in both of the Pacific species, which they well knew was entirely absent from the Atlantic species. If, then, as I have assumed, the five records were furnished by fishermen who mistook the California swordfish for the Atlantic Xiphias, it will account for the statement that the flesh is "dark and a little coarse," which is the case with the California swordfish. Whereas the flesh of the Atlantic species is quite light colored, while that of the new visitor is absolutely white and almost devoid of grain, and so delicate, that in the language of one angler, "it melts in the mouth like a caramel."

This new Pacific swordfish, which has caused so much discussion, is, as will be seen by a glance at its large, heavy fins, a powerful swimmer. The one from which the accompanying illustration was made weighed 352 pounds and required five hours and seven minutes to bring it to gaff. The largest one yet landed weighed 404 pounds, but specimens have been hooked, though not landed, that, when brought to the surface, were estimated to weigh fully 600 pounds or more.

Avoiding the technical style of the naturalist, this fish may be described as a large, powerful fish, reaching a weight of 600 pounds or more. Color, dark green above, with a metallic luster, shading to silvery below; upper jaw extending into a hard, bony sword, four or five inches wide at the base and tapering to about one inch wide by a quarter of an inch thick at its point, and in length about three-fourths of the length of the body, measured from the eye to the base of the tail; under jaw sharp and pointed and about one-fifth the length of the sword; dorsal fin three to four inches thick at the base, a little higher than the depth of the body, fleshy like that of the shark, rising abruptly from the head a little in front of the gills and about one-half the width of its length; second dorsal unconnected with the first and reduced to a mere adipose teat close to the tail; pectoral fins longer than the depth of the body and located on the throat just under the gills; ventral fins absent; anterior anal fin thick and fleshy, located about half way between the pectorals and the base of the tail and nearly as wide as it is long; posterior anal fin very small and about half way between the anterior and the base of the tail and without the two spiny points of the Atlantic species; flukes of the tail very long, thick and powerful; eye brilliant light blue and very large with a hard crystal encased in a movable bone cup; skin smooth, oily and without scales.

This species quite likely belongs to Gunther's Pacific Ocean type to which he has given the generic name, Histiophorus, although he has failed to describe this species. Nor can I find any mention of it in any of the authorities at my command. I can, therefore, draw but one conclusion, and that is, that it is a type heretofore unknown.

HOT TIME IN COAST LEAGUE

Rival Managers are Right After Each Other.

Chance and Stovall Scheduled to Clash.

Season Should Prove Interesting at Any Rate.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

That there will be a hot time in the Coast League this season was indicated yesterday when Frank Chance shot George Stovall in the back of the neck.

QUITE LOGICAL.

If the rival managers make a practice of shooting each other in the off-season, it would be entirely logical for them to carry bowie knives and stab each other on the ball field during the regular schedule.

The tragedy occurred when Chance and Stovall were shooting from separate blinds. George paddled out to pick up a dead duck which Chance figured belonged to him. In defense of his property, the P.L. pointed his fowling piece at the proper angle, and blazed away. After the "Firebrand" had picked the shot out from behind his ears, he admitted having taken a broadside at Chance earlier in the day, but he claims that the P.L. was poaching on his preserves.

COMMON.

Peppering each other at long range is a common practice at the club where Powers, Chance, Oldfield, Stovall, Jack Doyle and several others go for their birds. In this way they serve to enliven the dull moments. Receiving a charge of duck shot in the seat of one's pants even at long range is something calculated to enliven the dullest moment, especially if one is stooping over at the time. Although no gore has been spilled, it is regarded as a favorable sign when baseball managers take to shooting at each other.

Viewing the situation more seriously, the conditions this season seem to be excellent for considerable hatred in the Coast League this year. There is hardly a manager in the league who does not have some sort of a grudge against some other manager, unless it is Bill Bernhard, who has not been on the job long enough to get peeved.

NO ENMITY.

True there is no real enmity between Chance and Stovall, but each is of the type who is unable to recognize a friend on the ball field, and each has his own particular peeve against some other leader. Chance is a fighter, as the records show. He never has learned the art of looking back when he once starts. There likewise are quite a few K. O.'s in Stovall's record. Also he is hot headed. At times it gets so hot that smoke can be seen coming out of his upper story. That's why they call him the "firebrand," or "human torch." The groundkeeper will be instructed to keep one of those chemical extinguishers on the bench all the time so as to prevent Stovall from going up in flames.

Baseball is a good deal like any other sport. One night two players on rival teams will be seen resting their wishbones against the mahogany and lapping up a brace of beers in a most brotherly fashion, yet the following afternoon they are found trying to cut each other off at the knee with their spikes. The same is true of boxers, wrestlers and football players, except that they don't all drink beer. It is just as well that athletes do not carry their rivalry off the field with them, and brood over the wrongs committed against them. If they did, life would be just one free fight after another.

SUMMING UP.

Summing up the elements of dislike among the managers as a whole, it may be recited that Chance took Wolverton's job in New York, and Harry Wolverton grabbed Howard's in San Francisco. Of course, they all claim that these things merely were part of the fortunes of war, but human nature is a good deal the same on the diamond as elsewhere. We never yet found a guy who entertained any real affection for his esteemed successor. At least he wouldn't get up in the middle of the night to bail him out of jail, or voluntarily offer to loan him money.

For a number of years there was a feud between Chance and Howard due to a remark by one of them which was distorted. Last season this was smoothed over to the extent that they do not longer drive around the block to avoid meeting, but neither is one the other's calling list in private life.

Wolverton lies awake nights when he should be asleep devising ways and means to "show up" Chance, while Howard because of his double feud with the P. L. and Wolverton, has to scheme with both sides of his head.

Stovall and McCredie were in a row before the former really belonged. Mac opposed George's entrance into the league, and as usual, spoke his mind in the matter. So the "Firebrand" was nicely "het up" right from the jump. Stovall admits he is preparing a speech to be delivered immediately, that deal with Toledo, is closed making him a regular member. This will be sent to the papers on sheets of asbestos and will leave no lingering doubts as to George's individual opinion of the Portland manager.

There were no new developments yesterday in the so-called "strike" situation. Few of the players seemed to take it seriously.

Stovall said that he was paying no attention to the matter.

"I always have done everything that I could for the ball players," he said, "and I know that Chance has the same reputation. It would seem to be up to the players to decide what steps they will take."

Several players who are members of the Fraternity stated privately they would not consider so radical a step. They went into the frat in the expectation of receiving certain benefits and with no thought of being asked to disrupt the institution on which they depend for a livelihood.

ROY MOORE WINS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 13.—Roy Moore, Minneapolis bantamweight, won a technical knockout over Jack Douglas of Denver in the ninth round of a scheduled ten-round fight tonight when Douglas's seconds tossed the sponge in the ring.

Some heat to this finish.

Four Pomona College runners are here seen finishing abreast in the four-mile cross-country run with Occidental, which was held yesterday. From left to right, they are Humiston, Adkinson, Sturges and Orcutt. Hugh Huddleson of Occidental, who won fifth place, was about 150 yards to the bad.

GOLF AMATEUR RULE STRICT.

OUIMET'S FRIENDS ARE IN MINORITY.

Drastic Measure Reads that Any Player is a Professional "Engaging in Any Business Connected with the Game of Golf"—Keep the Sport Pure, is the Big Cry.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13. — Several golfers of national reputation will be driven from amateur ranks by the application of the new definition of amateurs, approved early today at the annual meeting of the United States Golf Association. The meeting also sustained the rule under which Francis Ouimet, Paul Tewksbury and J. H. Sullivan, Jr., of the Woodland (Mass.) Golf Club, were deprived of their amateur standing.

A motion for a direct vote on the action of the Executive Committee in giving notice to the disqualified golfers and calling on the Woodland Club to withdraw their names from the handicap list of the Massachusetts Golf Association was ruled out of order, after the vote on the main question had shown that Ouimet's friends were well in the minority.

After a spirited debate the delegates, by eighty to twelve, upheld a report of the Executive Committee, sharply restricting the status of an amateur. The rule, as amended and adopted, makes ineligible as an amateur the player "engaging in any business connected with the game of golf wherein one's usefulness or profits arise because of skill or prominence in the game of golf."

The interpretation put upon this is that it will class players engaged "in laying out, construction or upkeep of a golf course or any part thereof," commonly known as "golf architects."

"In making the latter change the committee does not intend to alter the intent or comprehensiveness of former ruling No. 6," the report stated. "The new wording is used simply for the purpose of greater clarity and to avoid any impression that discrimination is intended between employer and employee."

Ruling No. 6 had made ineligible players "accepting or holding any position as agent or employee that includes as part of its duties the handling of golf supplies; or engaging in any business wherein one's usefulness or profits arise because of skill or prominence in the game of golf."

Determined efforts were made by the Woodland Golf Club to have the delegates take some action looking to the reinstatement of Ouimet, Tewksbury and Sullivan. W. M. Noble of the Woodland club did his utmost to convince the gathering that the three players had been dealt with unjustly.

Frank L. Woodward of Denver, retiring president, rose to the defense of the Executive Committee in reply to Mr. Noble's allegation that Ouimet, Tewksbury and Sullivan had been debarred without having been given a chance to be heard, and made an impassioned plea for "sport for sport's sake and not sport for gain."

Silas H. Strawn of the Old Elm Club, Chicago, also defended the Executive Committee. "All the committee asks," he said, "is that there shall be no discrimination between the man who sells golf clubs and the man who lays out a golf course for pay."

Frank M. Bowers of New York declared that the defeat of the report would be "the end of a gentleman's sport in this country."

The national amateur championship tournament of 1917 was awarded to the Oakmont Country Club, Pittsburgh; the national open championship to the Braeburn Country Club, West Newton, Mass., and the national women's championship to the Shawnee Country Club, Shawnee-on-Delaware, Pa.

Howard W. Perrin of the Pine Valley Golf Club of Philadelphia was elected president.

FEATURE RACE IS POSTPONED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13. — On account of the rain, which has made the track at Tia Juana sloppy, President J. W. Coffroth has postponed the San lDego Business Men's Handicap with $2500 purse from tomorrow until Sunday, January 21. Special trains were to have been run from San Francisco and Los Angeles for the big stake race, the largest stake of the meet, and so it was considered wise to postpone the event.

The races were today on a slow, sloppy track, but a fair-sized crowd attended in spite of the weather.

Golf Tournament.

Volk out of their nearly-won glory, for their score, 37-39-76, less 6 handicap, had stood best up till that time. Frank Tatum and Dr. West Hughes brought in a net 71 on 7 handicap, and were prepared to fully explain how easy it would have been for them to have saved three strokes had they only appreciated the necessity.

And thus endeth the Altadena tournament, which one day's rain failed utterly to damp effectually. All's well that ends well and the weather yesterday was all that could be desired. It repented in time.

The next big invitation tournament takes place at the Annandale Country Club February 7. First round matches in the Los Angeles and Griffith Park tournaments will be completed today.

By the way, Oscar F. Lindman says he is not 85 years of age, but 55, and as this isn't China, he does not consider it any sort of a compliment to be credited with thirty years more wisdom than he has. He has a wholesome reverence for age—in other people. For himself he is satisfied to be regarded as ridiculously youthful.

Over at the Los Angeles Country Club, George H. Schnieder and C. H. Palmer, Jr., tied for the class A prize with 1 down on 1 and 2 handicaps, respectively, Palmer winning in the play-off. Class B went to R. J. Culber with 1 down on 9 handicap.

ALEXANDER IS NOT SIGNED UP.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Reports that players Grover C. Alexander, J. C. Smith and Harold Janvrin have refused to sign contracts "should be significent," declared David L. Fultz, president of the Players' Fraternity, in a statement issued tonight. Fultz added that there will be many more refusals in the next few weeks.

"Attempts have been made to inject the salary question into this controversy," said the statement. "The salary question is in no way involved. Only one of our requests, the one regarding traveling expenses, has anything to do with money and the amounts of these expenses are entirely in the discretion of the clubs. That is the reason we think they should pay them."

President Fultz declared the players are ready to have their grievances heard by an impartial tribunal.

"The fraternity is not hungry for power," asserted the statement. "It wants only enough to get a square deal and is now, and always will be, willing to have any of its grievances decided by an impartial tribunal. If the national board thinks its position is right, let it agree to give the national commission jurisdiction. We should be very glad to strongly recommend to the fraternity that it agree to abide by any decision of the commission. We use the word 'recommend' because, in spite of the reports to the contrary, the players run their own organization and are right in behind it. Now let us hear what the board has to say and let the public decide whose position is fair."

SAN DIEGO TEAM IS BANQUETED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN DIEGO, Jan. 13.—A banquet was given this evening at Rudder's grill to the football squad of the San lDego High School in honor of their victories this season. Business men gave the banquet and many prominent men attended to show their appreciation of the team.

Every boy who played at least one-quarter on the 1916 squad was present. Coach Nibs Price, Captain-elect Karl Deeds, Mounty Pfefferkorn and Prof. Gould made addresses.

MIDWINTER TENNIS TOURNAMENT CLOSES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

PINEHURST (N. C.) Jan. 13.—The midwinter tennis tournament closed today with the finals in the women's singles, which Miss Florence Ballin of the West Side Club, New York, won, by defeating Miss E. M. Cohen of the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, 6-1, 6-1.

TINKER THINKS HARD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Jan. 12.—Joe Tinker said tonight that he was not acquainted with anyone of the name of G. V. Van Brunt, but he said he did talk in Columbus on Wednesday with one Weldon D. Wells. Tinker said he understood that Wells formerly was a broker's clerk in Kansas City.

Cross Country Run.

the gun didn't work and the experts were called back for another start.

This time Stanton was going to take no chances. "Wait a minute," he remarked, "and I'll see if she works."

The men all straightened up and turned to watch the official tryout of the gun. All but Adkinson. When the shot was fired, this young man jumped off his marks like he was on his way to Europe. In a couple of steps he caught himself and came back, laughing nervously. The coach stepped in and advised Adkinson to keep cool.

O. K.

All went well in the third attempt and the cross-country runners had an even start.

On account of the rain there was considerable mud strung out along the line of march and several stretches of water had to be negotiated. These obstructions cut the time down several seconds at least.

About ten minutes after the start the men came in sight. Five of them were running together with a sixth man not five yards behind. The rest were strung out with several hundred yards between the first and last.

When they went out of sight again the six leaders were in a bunch, apparently running on each other's heels.

ARGUMENT.

A terrific argument arose among the Pomona leaders about a couple of hundred yards from the finish. The men couldn't agree whether to finish in a bunch or to sprint for it and all take a chance.

"I think I'll leave you, boys," said Adkinson, as they were coming down the final stretch.

"Wait a minute," requested another, "and we'll all go across together."

After all arguments had been presented it was decided to conclude the race as a unit.

Following is the order of the finish:

Adkinson (Pomona,) Sturges (Pomona,) Humiston (Pomona,) Orcutt (Pomona,) tied for first place; Hugh Huddleson (Occidental,) fifth; Gerry (Pomona,) sixth; Himrod (Pomona,) seventh; Rowe (Occidental,) eighth; Beckman (Occidental,) ninth; Hills (Occidental,) tenth; Searls (Occidental,) eleventh; Krug (Occidental,) twelfth.

STANFORD WILL PLAY IN BOSTON.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

BOSTON (Mass.) Jan. 13. — The students and alumni of Boston College are enthusiastic over the 1917 varsity baseball schedule, which was announced by the graduate athletic board of Boston College yesterday. The schedule, by far the hardest ever attempted at University Heights, calls for thirty games.

Owing to the success of the southern trip last spring, the nine will again invade the territory south of the Mason and Dixon line in April. Leland Stanford, Penn State and Lehigh University will come to University Heights for the first time, this year. "Bill" Sweeney, one-time captain of the Boston Braves, who developed the nine which humbled Harvard on Soldiers' Field last spring, will again have charge of the coaching staff. Sweeney will have an abundance of material to work with this spring, as, in addition to seven members of last year's varsity, there are a large number of former secondary school stars available.

HUNTINGTON PARK VICTORS.

The basketball players of Venice High School passed a rather uncomfortable evening at Huntington Park last night. The first team of Huntington Park beat the big beach team, 35 to 20, while the 125 pounders trampled on the little Venice team, 39 to 12.

The Los Angeles county track and field meet has been awarded to Huntington Park.

ELECTRICAL MEN IN GOLF TOURNEY.

[BY DIRECT WIRE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

DEL MONTE, Jan. 13.—The Electrical Jobbers' Convention at Del Monte indulged in a golf tournament today.

The winner of the jobbers' cup and the Del Monte cup, in the manufacturers' class was John Morris of Los Angeles, net score 94, handicap 15.

T. M. Debevorse of New York won the copper cup and the Del Monte cup in the jobbers' class, net score 96, no handicap. S. V. Walton won the jobbers' cup, net score 108, handicap 12.

BACK TO SIXES

Up to show time last year it seemed to most insiders that the Six was doomed. It had too great a limitation. It retained too much vibration. It seemed that all Six makers must follow the makers who adopted multi-cylinder types. But mark how that trend has changed. The Super-Six dominates now.

Again and again motor engineers have arrived at what seemed to them a permanent type.

Again and again some added efficiency has thrown their favorite type into the background.

Thus motors progressed from one cylinder to Six. And then to the lightweight Six. That held supremacy so long that it seemed to many the permanent type.

But It Wasn't the Ultimate

Hudson stood foremost in the Light Six field. So we, better than others, knew that type's limitations. We knew that vibration was far from eliminated. That friction and wear sacrificed too much endurance.

And we, among the first, sought a way to betterment, in V-type Eights and Twelves.

But, during our experiments, Hudson engineers found a way to correct the Six. They evolved an invention, now controlled by our patents, which added 80 per cent. to the Six-type efficiency. That is, to its power and especially endurance.

Tests made in our factory proved that no other type compared with this Super-Six. So we abandoned all others—Sixes, Eights and Twelves—and committed the Hudson to this.

The Showtime Sensation

At last year's Shows the Super-Six was the center of attraction. Our claims—based on shop and laboratory tests and on speedway tests—then seemed too good to be true. But the records were official. And from that day to this the Super-Six has held the ruling place.

Proof Upon Proof

In the past year, in a hundred tests, the Super-Six has proved its supremacy. It has won all the worth-while records. Again and again it broke all stock-car records for speed, for hill-climbing, for quick pickup.

And, above all, it showed an endurance never before thought possible in a motor car. In the 24-hour test it broke all records by 52 per cent. It twice broke all transcontinental records in one round trip from San Francisco to New York and back. It won the Pike's Peak hill-climb record against 20 competitors—the world's greatest event of its kind.

In one year it won 25,000 enthusiastic owners. It became the largest selling front-rank car. And numerous makers, finding V-type motors so far outmatched, quit them and went back to Sixes.

The Super-Six Will Stay

All evidence now marks the Super-Six as the true permanent type. It comes very close to perfection.

The Super-Six is not like old-type Sixes. The Six limitations are what forced this invention. The vital feature which redeemed the Six is controlled by Hudson patents.

Many men, delayed in getting a Super-Six, have turned to other Sixes. Many have since regretted they did not wait for the Super-Six. There is no relation between the Super-Six and other Sixes. Its performance and especially endurance and smoothness, is greater even than that between a four and an ordinary Six.

Now we have added a gasoline saver which means to the Hudson owner tremendous economy. And now we have brought all Hudson bodies up to the Super-Six standard. You never have seen more exquisite creations.

If you want the greatest car built, regardless of price, it must be a Super-Six. Any Hudson display—and a half-hour's test—will convince you of that fact.

A Big Car But Also A Very Lively One

Mere size is not a thing to boast about in a motor car.

But, if everything else is as it should be, then size is a distinct advantage.

The Hupmobile happens to be about the biggest car in the world for the money.

And when you add that fact to all the other Hupmobile values and virtues, it is important.

It means more space and comfort for your money, linked to a superlatively fine performance.

The Hupmobile is emphatically a light and a nimble and a flexible car.

It "handles" beautifully.

You can "turn" the Hupmobile in an astonishingly small circle.

And yet its wheelbase length is 119 inches.

Size in the case of the Hupmobile does not mean sluggishness, as is so often the case.

It is up and off from a dead stop when many a shorter, smaller car is fussing and fumbling in the get-away.

High gear performance on the hills or on the level or at any speed is a Hupmobile characteristic which is celebrated.

So its bigness isn't a handicap, but a blessing—an invitation to leg-stretching and loafing, which is a perpetual joy to the motorist who has been accustomed to cramped conditions.

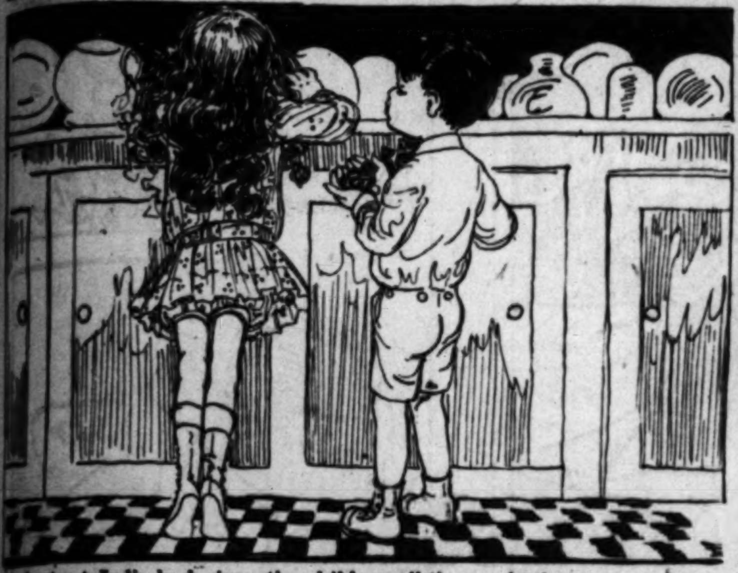
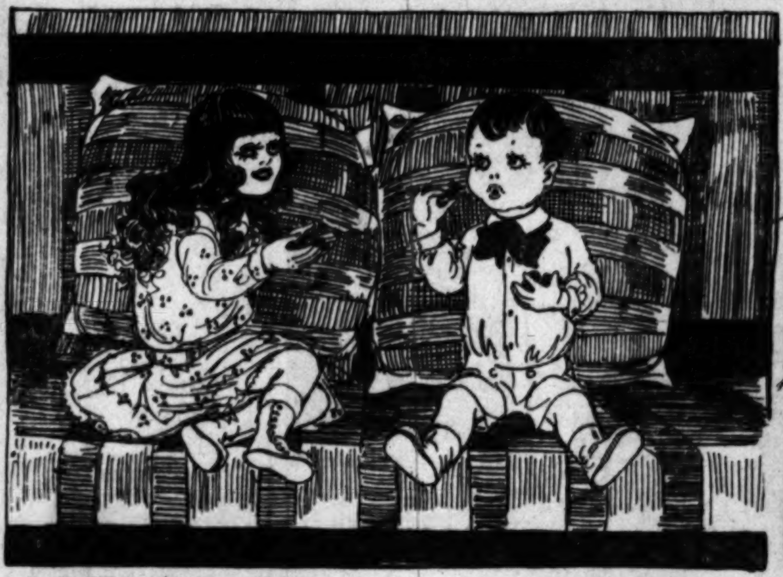
ONCE UPON A TIME

BY CLYDE LUDWICK

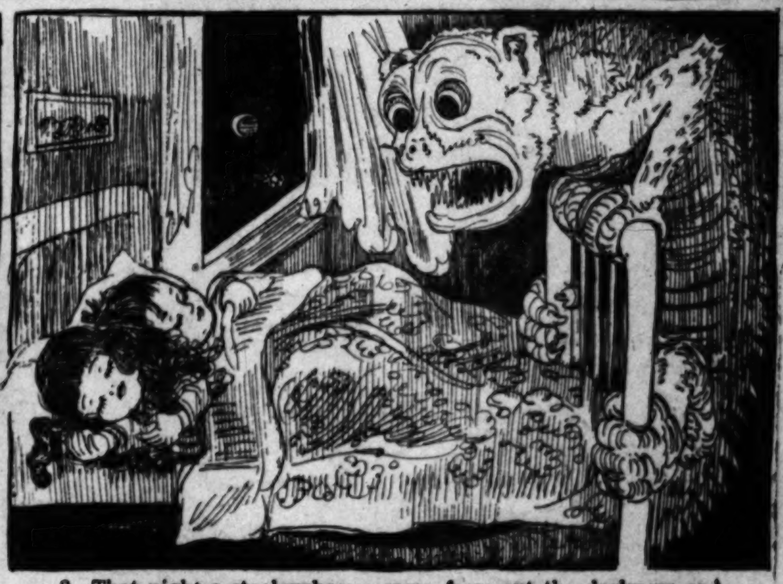
AUNT JUDIE HAD SOME DELICIOUS CANDY HID AWAY IN THE PANTRY.



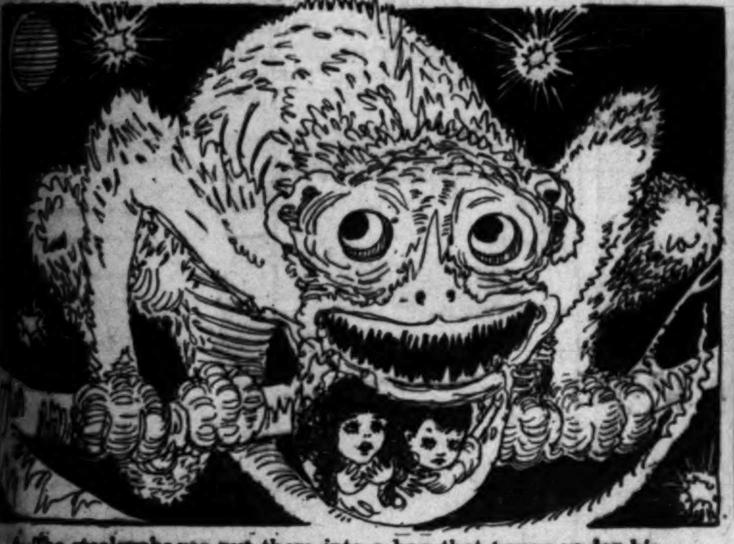
Aunt Judie had given the children all the candy that was good for little boys and girls, but they wanted more. Son Bud was thinking how good the candy was when Sis said, "Let's go and take some more. Auntie will not know." So they did.



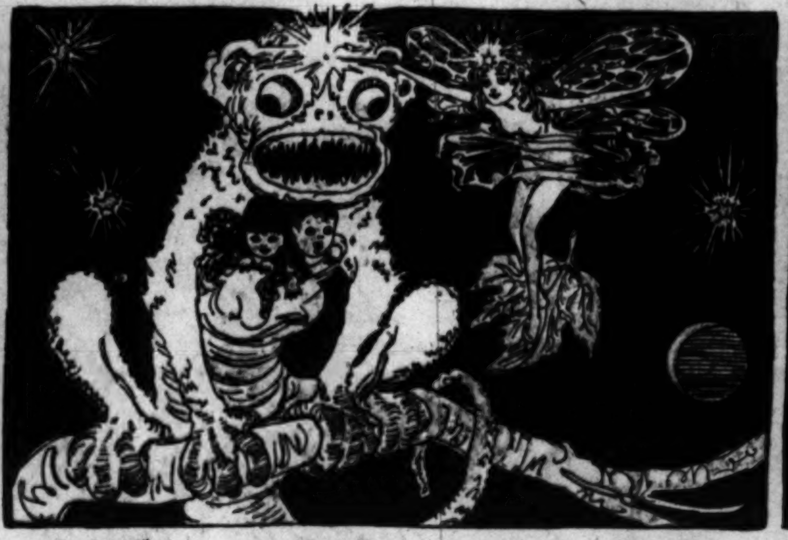
2—When their hands and pockets were full they went into a dark room and ate the candy all up. Auntie never suspected.



3—That night a stealgrabagoo came from out the darkness and smiled at the children as they slept, for the children are as sweet tasting for the stealgrabagoo as candy is for children, and now was his chance for a nice meal.

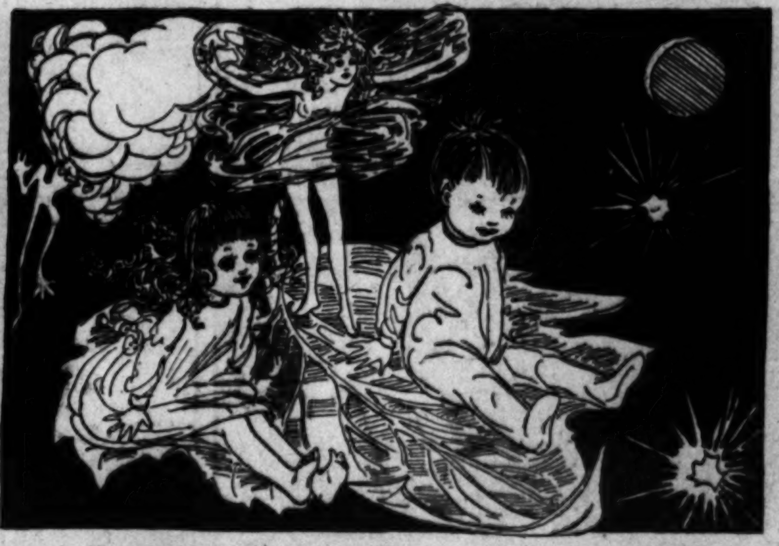


4—The stealgrabagoo put them into a bag that hangs under his chin and carried them away. He was sitting on a tree that bends over the bottomless pit and was just about to jump in. Then the children remembered they had stolen Auntie's candy and felt very sorry.



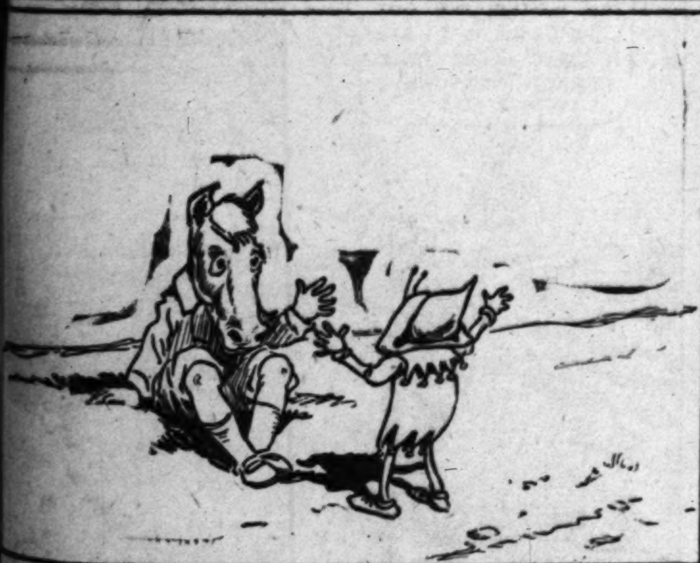
5—Just then the pretty fairy Repentance came floating down on a sailing leaf. She struck the stealgrabagoo on the head and made him very angry.

(COPYRIGHT, [illegible], BY THE NEW YORK HERALD CO. All Rights Reserved.



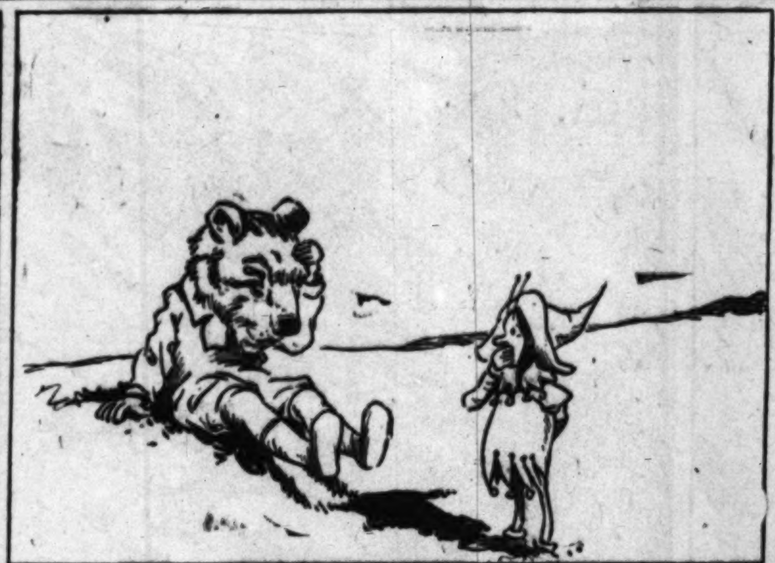
6—The stealgrabagoo was so angry that he burnt up, and the beautiful fairy took the children sailing home on the leaf. Now Son Bud and Sis know what is apt to happen to children who steal candy. Just suppose that leaf had not fallen!

MR. TWEE DEEDLE.



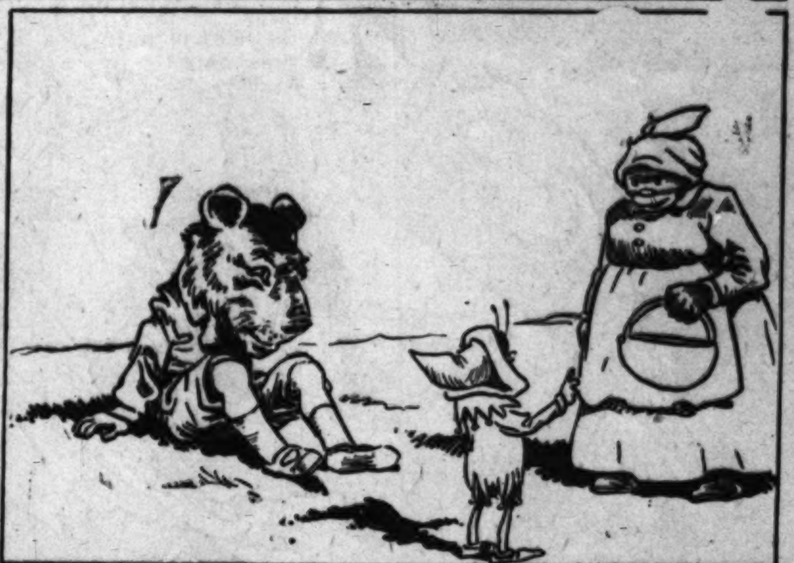
—When the Amateur Magician had changed Dickie's head into a pawig's head and gone home, Dickie said to Mr. Twee Deedle, "Can't you change my own head back?"

"I'll try!" said Mr. Twee. So he said a few magic words.



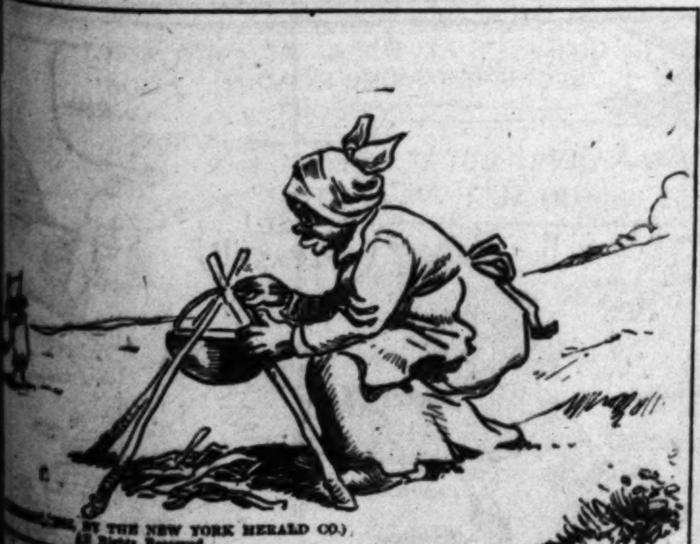
2—"Oh, dear!" cried Mr. Twee Deedle, "I've made it worse!"

"What kind of a head have I now?" Dickie asked as he felt of it. "A tiger's head!" cried Mr. Twee Deedle. "I do not believe I can help you a bit!"



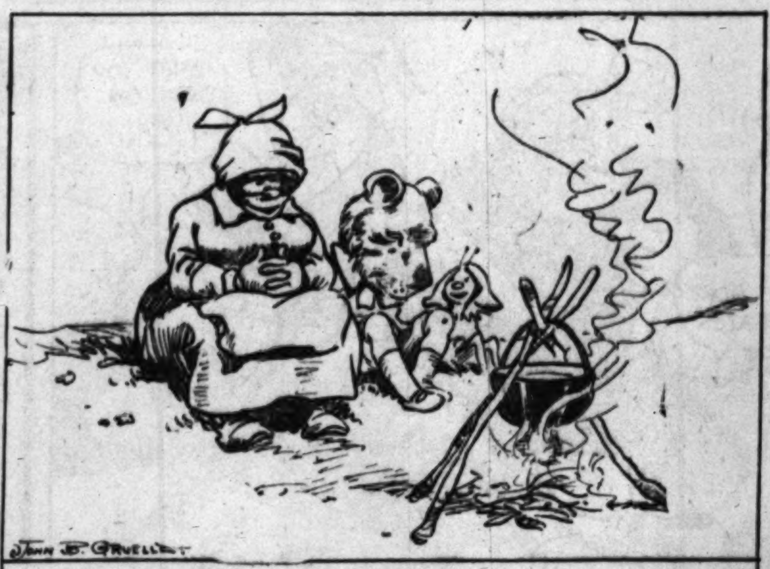
3—Just then a Black Mammy came up to them and asked what the trouble was. Mr. Twee Deedle told her.

"I know how we can undo the magic!" said Black Mammy. "You boys gather some sticks for a fire!"

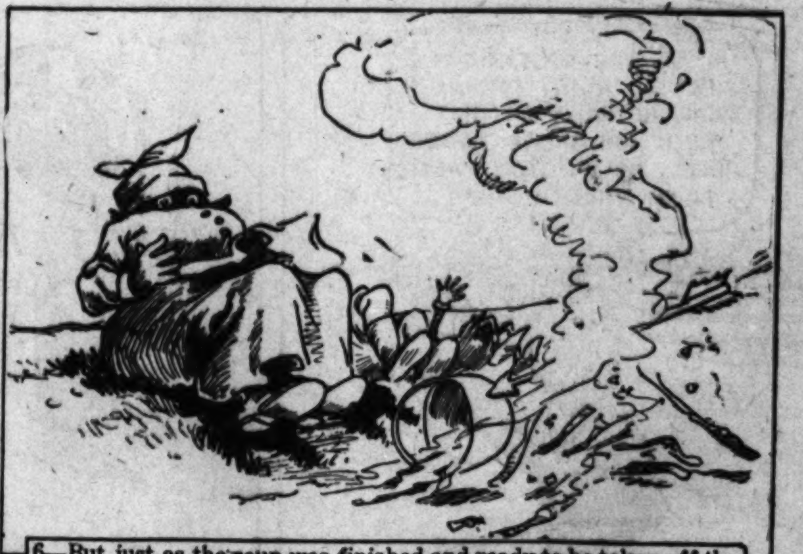


(COPYRIGHT, [illegible], BY THE NEW YORK HERALD CO.) All Rights Reserved.

4—When they had gathered the sticks, Black Mammy said:—"Now we need a red daisy, a purple buttercup and a round white pebble. Then we make a soup of these and pour over the tiger's head and it will undo the magic!"



5—So Mr. Twee Deedle and Dickie found the flowers and the stone and Black Mammy put on the kettle and they sat down until the soup was ready. "It's beginning to boil," said Black Mammy, "and we will soon have you fixed up!"



6—But just as the soup was finished and ready to be taken off the fire the Magician shot an arrow from his house and it knocked the pot of soup to the ground and spilled every drop.

"It's done spilled and spoiled!" said the kindly Black Mammy. "What will we do now?" "He's a mean, wicked man!" said Dickie as his tiger eyes filled with tears.

FRIED FOODS FOR COLD WEATHER.

The best season at which to partake of them is in cold weather

FRIED foods are never to be commended for persons of delicate digestions. They should not be eaten too frequently even by the possessors of normal gastric powers. But once in a while they may be served, and if properly cooked need not be unwholesome. The best season at which to partake of them is in cold weather, when the stomach is or should be at its most robust condition and the quality of the atmosphere assists in the assimilation of diet which would test one unduly at other times.

Food may be fried in such a way that it is not soaked in grease, or even strongly permeated with the fat. But when the frying medium is only lukewarm, when fritters or croquettes or anything else is permitted to lie in the tepid bath and absorb it, the result is a test for the strongest stomach and is likely to wreak havoc.

A few essentials should be borne in mind in connection with cooking food of any sort in deep fat. First, there should be enough of this to cover completely the articles dropped into it; second, the fat should be boiling hot, so that a bit of bread put in will brown almost immediately; next, as soon as the object immersed is brown it should be lifted out and laid in a hot colander, on soft paper that will take up any superfluous grease. Such food should be eaten in moderation, and, as I have said, not too frequently.

When croquettes are to be cooked they should be mixed, shaped, and made ready for frying a couple of hours before they are to go over the fire. They should be kept in a cold place until just before they are cooked. By this treatment they become firmer and are less likely to break when put into the fat. Oysters, cutlets, and other articles to be breaded should be prepared a while in advance of cookery, and crullers, doughnuts, and similar fried cakes will be firmer and cook better if they are cut out and allowed to chill for half an hour or so before frying.

Both croquettes and fritters offer excellent methods of using small quantities of leftovers and presenting them in an attractive form. Nearly any meat or vegetable may be converted into either croquettes or fritters, and the method given below may be varied infinitely. One of the first and simplest of croquettes is that made with chicken, veal, or other white meat.

CHICKEN CROQUETTES.

Cook together a tablespoon of butter and one of flour until they bubble, stirring all the time; pour upon them then a cup of liquid and continue to stir until the sauce is thick and smooth. This liquid may either be strong chicken stock, or half stock and half milk, or half oyster liquor and half milk, if you wish to give the flavor of oysters to the croquettes. When milk alone is used a little onion juice—half a dozen drops—and a saltspoon of celery salt should be added to the sauce as well as plain salt sufficient to season it. Into this sauce should be put two cups of minced chicken, the white and the dark meat, and the mixture should be well stirred, turned out upon a flat plate, and set aside to cool. Care should be taken that this compound is seasoned satisfactorily. If eggs are plenty the mixture is made richer by adding a beaten egg to it a minute before it is taken from the fire. It must be watched that the egg does not curdle.

When the meat and sauce are cold and stiff they may be made into croquettes. An egg should be broken and mixed with a tablespoon of cold water in a saucer. A cup of fine cracker crumbs or cracker meal should be put on a plate or bread board, and the meat mixture shaped into croquettes with the hands. It is better to make them rather small, as they are less likely to break in cooking. As each is formed it must be rolled in the egg and then in the cracker meal, so that it is thoroughly coated with the latter, laid on a plate that has been sprinkled with cracker meal, and as soon as all are done the plate must be put in a cold place.

The fat for frying should be set over the fire fifteen minutes or more before it is to be used and heated slowly. To test it drop a cube of bread in it. Thirty seconds will color it right if the fat is the proper heat; if it blackens, the fat must be moved to a cooler part of hte stove; if it does not brown quickly the fat must be hotter before the croquettes go in. Cook a few at a time and take them out with a skimmer as soon as they are a delicate brown. If a frying basket is used the task will be easier, since the croquettes may be arranged in this and all put into the fat together. Never cook more than five or six at once; if a larger number go in together the fat is chilled so that the cooking is done more slowly and the grease is likely to be absorbed. When properly cooked the croquette is coated at once with a covering which does not permit fat to get to the inside.

CROQUETTES OF OTHER MEATS.

As I have said before, any croquettes of meat or fish may be made on this same plan. When beef or mutton is used the seasoning may be varied. Croquettes made with a tomato sauce, prepared in the same proportions, are excellent of either one of these meats and the combinations possible are large.

Canned mushrooms may be mixed with the meat or chicken; the liquor from the can may be mingled with stock or with milk for the half pint of fluid required, and the seasoning may include a sauce, catsup of different kinds, onion, parsley, celery, thyme, or other sweet herbs, etc.

Always the proportion for croquettes of this order, whether they are made with meat, fish, lobster, etc., is the same; half a pint of the sauce, consisting of the tablespoon each of butter and flour cooked together and the cup of fluid, and two cups of the meat or other solid ingredient, cut up fine or chopped, and all seasoned adequately.

Combinations of croquettes can also be made, utilizing more than one kind of left-over.

Rice croquettes are made a little differently. One of the simplest methods of compounding these is to add two or three tablespoons of milk to a pint of cooked rice and when the mixture is soft to put with it one egg, well beaten, a tablespoon of butter, half a teaspoon of salt, and a little pepper. If desired a tablespoon of minced parsley may also go in. The mixture is formed into croquettes, rolled in egg and crumbs, and set in a cool place for at least an hour before frying.

Macaroni croquettes may be made in the same way, using a similar proportion of boiled spaghetti or macaroni chopped fine.

POTATO CROQUETTES.

To make these a tablespoon of butter, half a teaspoon each of plain salt and celery salt, six drops of onion juice, and half a saltspoon of pepper must be added to a pint of hot mashed potato. When all are well blended the yolk of one egg, well beaten, may be whipped in and a teaspoon of chopped parsley. The mixture is then shaped into croquettes with the hands, rolled in beaten egg and in crumbs, and allowed to cool for an hour before frying.

A mixture made of meat or fish, according to the preceding directions, may be converted into fritters. The blend is made into small balls, slightly flattened, dipped into a fritter batter, and then dropped into boiling fat and cooked like croquettes.

FRITTER BATTER.

Sift one cup of flour and pour upon it slowly a cup of warm water in which has been mixed a tablespoon of melted butter. Add salt to taste, and, last of all, the well whipped white of an egg. The batter should be only thick enough to coat the bowl of a spoon dipped in it, and may be used to make a number of different kinds of fritters, both savory and sweet.

CHEESE FRITTERS.

Grate four tablespoons of cheese and mix with them the same quantity of fine bread crumbs, a tablespoon of melted butter, a saltspoon of dry mustard, the same amount of salt, a dash of [illegible] pepper, and the yolk of an egg. When all have been well blended form into small cakes with the hand, dip into frying batter, and cook.

ORANGE FRITTERS.

Peel, seed, and slice sweet oranges. Prepare a frying batter as above directed, dip the slices of orange into this so that they are well coated, and drop them into hot fat; fry to a delicate brown. Lay on soft paper in a hot colander to drain, and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Serve at once.

APPLE FRITTERS.

Make a batter as directed, adding one teaspoon of baking powder to the flour before sifting. Peel and core the apples, cut into small pieces, mix with the batter, and let it stand for an hour before cooking. Drop by the spoonful into boiling fat, and brown delicately. Or you may make the fritters by following the same plan as is given for orange fritters.

PERFECTION CRULLERS.

Cream together three-quarters of a pound of powdered sugar and half a pound of butter, beat six eggs light and mix with the butter and sugar; put in nutmeg to taste and enough flour to make a dough to roll into a thin sheet. Cut into rings or other fancy shapes and fry in boiling lard. There must be plenty of this, and you will have better results if you cut out all the crullers before you begin frying, unless you have some one to do this while you attend to the frying. Lay on soft paper in a hot colander and sprinkle with powdered sugar while still warm. These are better the day after they are made than at first.

DOUGHNUTS.

Beat one egg light; mix with it a cup of sugar, one cup of milk, and a tablespoon of melted butter. Sift two heaping teaspoons of baking powder and half a teaspoon of salt into three cups of flour, stir this into the liquid ingredients; add enough flour to make a dough to handle, roll into a sheet, cut into shapes, and fry in boiling fat as directed for crullers.

Music for Orchestras.

"I NOTE in your Corner that there are several calls for music. I have perhaps 100 pieces of music that I want to get rid of. This music is what is termed 'orchestration' and is published for leaders of orchestras. The music has the ten parts to it for full orchestra. This music would be good for those who are trying to get up a little orchestra. I also have some sheet music, but not much. I would glady send the music to those whom you would recommend and I know you would get it into the hands of those who would appreciate it. In giving this music I think the recipients should be willing to pay the postage.

In this view I entirely agree with L. F. V. I feel that when so generous a gift as this is made the least those who receive it can do is to defray the expense of getting it. I will be glad to supply the address of L. F. V. to any one who wishes it and who will write to me. I do not know that we have many leaders of orchestras in the Corner, but there may be those who could use this music arranged for orchestras.

Chinese Bulbs Wanted.

"I am sorry to say it, but I have no more dolls and doll pieces to give away, as I have given all I have. Has any one any Chinese bulbs to give? I want only three or four and I will do anything for them except doll things, if it is in my power.
E. G."

I am sorry the doll things have all been given away, but I am sure they went where they gave pleasure. I hope some one has the Chinese lily bulbs and will write to me for the address of E. G.

Young People's Weeklies.

"I have a quantity of Sunday school papers and young people's weeklies which I would like to send to some shut-in or to any one who would enjoy them, and I will send them postpaid to any one who will send me her address.
"H. H."

This is an offer which is sure to be accepted by some one.

Subject Fully Covered.

"Some time ago you wrote in the Corner on the advisability of spanking. I should be glad if you would discuss the subject still further.
F. E."

As three talks have appeared on this topic and a large number of letters, I do not feel justified in giving any further space to the matter, important though it may be. It appeared to me that our Cornerites had not left much to say on the subject.

Fried Rabbit.

"I send a recipe for fried rabbit which may be of use to some one: Clean and dress the rabbit and cut it up in joints as you would chicken for stewing, season to taste, add one teaspoon of vinegar, one large onion, three stalks of celery or three bay leaves, and about one quart of water, or a little more if it seems necessary. Let simmer for one hour; then take the meat out of the water and drain. Roll the pieces in flour and fry in good fat until brown as you would chicken. Use the water the rabbit has been stewed in for the brown gravy. This dish makes a good substitute for fried chicken.
Mrs. E. W."

I am glad to print this recipe or any other for rabbits. They are not enough appreciated in some parts of the country, and now that poultry has become so expensive that most of us cannot afford to have it on our tables except as a rare treat it is well to know how to cook the rabbits, since the price for these has not yet become prohibitive.

Always Room for More.

"I have seven correspondents now through the Corner, but there is always room in my heart for one more who is lonely. I have written to you several times for addresses and have found them all to be as you would wish the members of your band to prove. I am 21 years of age, but young for my age, and almost all my friends are about 17, and no one would take me to be over that. I just don't want to grow up and I love games and things that children and young girls do. I am a girl who loves to make others happy and bring sunshine into dark places, and if there is anything else you would like to know about me I will be glad to tell you.
"L. J. McC."

I print this letter for no reason except to show the spirit of the girl who writes it and to say how glad I am that she has found satisfaction and pleasure in her work for the Corner. Evidently she carries her torch of brightness with her everywhere she goes and it is no wonder she finds her correspondents pleasing. Her own gay spirit shines upon them and they respond in kind.

Baby Clothes Needed.

"I am a lonely poor woman and have two small children, a boy of 4 years and a girl of 6. We live eighteen miles from town on a farm and have no neighbors. I am to become a mother again next month and would be grateful for any old baby clothes that some one might care to give me. I have not the means to buy what is really needed.
"Mrs. H. W. W."

We have many appeals of this sort and they never fail to touch me. I trust they may have the same effect upon others and that before long I may receive a request for the address of the expectant mother.

* *

Reading Matter Wanted.

"I have been a reader of the Corner for some time, and would like much to have some reading matter. I would like to get some old magazines.
S. M. D."

"I am a girl 13 years old, and live in a lonesome part of the country. I would like some reading matter if you can get it for me, although not so much that the postage will be too high. I hope the Corner will appear for many years to come!
D. L."

I have put these two requests for reading matter together in the faith that some one will send for the address of each writer with the offer of magazines. Good reading matter probably is never so much appreciated as by those who live far away from books and people and amusements of a social nature. Here is a chance for those of us who are more fortunate to lend a hand and bring in sweetness and light.

Can Sit and Sew.

"I see that G. A. J. has some sample silk pieces to give. I will pay postage on them and will be glad to get them. I have been sick for some time and am not able to do much, but I can sit and sew.
Mrs. M. W."

I am sorry to say that the pieces offered have all been given away. Has not some one else a few silk pieces to bestow upon this invalid and give her something to do in the hours when all she can do is to sit and sew? I shall be glad to send her address upon request.

Words of Old Song.

"I would like to find some one who can give me the words of 'The Diamond Wedding.' My sister used to sing it, but has forgotten it. I will pay for the postage, if that is required. I enjoy the Helping Hand and always turn to that first.
M. L. C."

No doubt there is some one who knows this song. I have never heard it myself, although I recall fragments of a ditty called "The Golden Wedding." I will send the address of this correspondent to any one writing for it. I am grateful to her for her pleasant words about our Corner.

Sour Cream Cake.

"I am glad to send P. M. G. a recipe for the old fashioned sour cream cake. The recipe I give is more than fifty years old, and the cake is delicious when properly made, but thick loppered cream, which is not easily obtained nowadays, is essential to its success: One and a half cups of granulated sugar, one cup of thick sour cream, three eggs, the whites and yolks beaten separately and light; three cups of flour, one level teaspoon of soda dissolved in a little warm water and stirred into the cream. Flavor with lemon. This may be baked in a square loaf, to be cut into slices, or in a round tube pan, and it is nice with a small cup of raisins seeded and cut in half added to the batter. Bake in a moderate oven.
M. E. H."

It is a pleasure to read a recipe that is so clearly given and written in such a beautiful and distinct hand as that in which this recipe is sent. May I add that the raisins should be dredged with flour before putting them into the cake?

The following recipe is something like the one just given, but differs from it enough to make it worth while to print it:

Two eggs, beaten light; one and a half cups of sugar, one cup of sour cream (into this beat one teaspoon of soda), one saltspoon of salt, one and a half cups of sifted flour, one and a half teaspoons of cinnamon, one teaspoon of cloves, one cupful of seeded raisins. This is sent without signature.

Another recipe is practically the same, but adds a recipe for icing for the sour cream cake, as follows:

"Two-thirds of a cup of sour cream, two cups of white sugar, half a teaspoon of vanilla or of orange extract. Cook sugar and cream together until it threads; cool until tepid; add flavoring and beat until the cream will spread upon the cake.
A. B. B."

I never heard of an icing made in just this way, and I wish that some one who has access to a dairy and a liberal supply of sour cream would try it and report upon it for the benefit of the Corner.

Santa Always Forgets Them.

"I have two small boys, aged 5 and 8, who badly want a tricycle and a small play automobile, though they would be delighted to possess just one of these two things. We farm in the country, where crops are poor and money scarce, and my husband's health is not good. Each Christmas the boys look for Santa Claus to bring these things or something they can play with and enjoy, and always they are disappointed. Perhaps some one will see this request in the Helping Hand and may have something stored away that could be sent to my boys.
Mrs. W. F. C."

I am sorry this plea comes too late to be printed and receive an answer before the holidays, but it may be that some one may be able to gratify the wish of the little lads. I print the letter on the chance of this, knowing that all lovers of children will rejoice to grant the desire of the youngsters, no matter at what date it appears.

* *

Asks for Quilt Scraps.

"I would be glad to have the address of the woman who has quilt scraps for postage. I live in the country and do not have the advantages of picking up remnants.
Mrs. J. B. McC."

This correspondent does not give the name of the Cornerite who offered the pieces and I have thus no way of identifying her. The only thing I can do is to print this request in the hope of some one being able to supply the demand. I regret that I cannot use the rest of the letter, but as I have said often before, we cannot advertise for such exchanges as she desires. If any one wishes her address she can secure it on request.

GOOD FORM, HEALTH AND BEAUTY

"As the Twig Is Bent"

Dumbbells Encourage Daily Exercise

See That He Walks With Feet Straight Ahead

The Awkward Boy Is Better for a Pair of Roller Skates

Insist Upon Correct Breathing and Carriage

T[illegible] old adage, "As the twig is bent so is the tree inclined," comes into my mind every time I see a youngster, especially if the youngster is not being given the proper start in life. Of course, we all realize that the health of the child is dependent, to a certain extent, upon its ancestors for generations back. It would appear, however, that many persons use this [illegible] as a means to shift all responsibility [illegible] accept a certain condition in a child as a necessary evil and let it go at that. What they should do is to make strenuous efforts to wipe out all defects which will work hazardous results if not given the proper attention.

It is impossible to state the number of things one should do to put one's child on the right track, but there are a few important things which I would like to impress upon the minds of all those who have a child in their care.

First of all, see to it that the child acquires the habit of walking properly. This means that the body should be comfortably erect, the head likewise, the chest out, the abdomen in and the toes pointing straight ahead. It is remarkable to note the number of children whose toes incline to point in as they walk. One way to overcome this fault is to have the child practice walking the chalk line. Every time you walk out with the youngster remind him or her of the habit and get the child to break it.

One way to impress upon the child the importance of holding the body in a [illegible] position is to tell him that inside [illegible] are two lungs which clamor for all the fresh air possible. Let him know that every time he sits or stands with his chest sunken, he is keeping the proper supply of fresh air from his lungs, and, consequently, his [illegible] become strong. One mother who made this appeal to her little boy never had difficulty after a few weeks of hard drilling. Every day she would have the boy stand straight against the wall and stretch his body to its fullest height, inhaling properly at the same time and expanding his chest to its limit. To add zest to this part of his training, she kept a tiny mark on the wall so that they could both watch any increase in his height.

We have only to recall the action which many authorities in various cities take to allow children the freedom to roll around on skates to realize the value of roller skating. In many cities certain streets are blocked off for several squares so that the youngsters can exercise and enjoy the fresh air without any danger of being injured by passing vehicles. The roller skating sport is splendid, and does much to improve awkwardness, so often evident in children. Skating, like dancing, does much to inspire grace and beauty of motion. I firmly believe that every little boy and girl should be allowed to engage in both exercises, provided he or she can do so in pleasant surroundings.

Other forms of exercise can be introduced. Dumbbells of a convenient size will do much to develop the body. Since the purpose of exercise falls short if practice is dry, it is advisable to have two or more youngsters go thru the exercises together.

Every form of outdoor exercise, like sledding, tramping, etc., should be welcomed as a legitimate means to cultivate hardiness and vigor.

And, then, a very important thing for all persons to remember when they have charges to keep is to guide them thru the awkward age with as much tact and help as possible. So many fond aunts and intimate friends have a habit of telling the growing girl or growing boy that his or her complexion is not so clear as it used to be, or they joke unmercifully about his or her ungainly legs. There is nothing so sure to make the growing child self-conscious as this. What one should do is to help the child forget the change which is taking place. It is a fortunate thing for a child whose mother was an awkward girl, and who remembers the unhappy hours she lived because of unthinking elders. Indeed, to hear some women talk, you would think they had been nothing but graceful all their lives.

It is every mother's duty to acquire wisdom to hit upon the happy medium with her children so that she can keep them from becoming vain, when she knows they are attractive in looks, and also so that she can help them to get rid of the thought that they are unsightly when they have certain features which are not good.

There are plenty of books and literature to be found on the subject of child rearing, if mothers will but take the time to find them and will equip themselves to be better able to train the children in the way they should go.

WHAT WOULD YOU SAY?

[illegible] YOUR daughter grows up to be a puny, round-shouldered [illegible] woman and reproaches you for letting her develop [illegible] such a miserable individual, what will you say to her? [illegible] your plea be that you were too busy to bother, or that [illegible] didn't know what could be done? You mothers of growing children have an opportunity to prevent such a tragic [illegible] in your home. Read what Mrs. Symes advises you [illegible].

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs. Charles Adams [illegible]

[illegible] personal reply is desired a self-[illegible] stamped envelope should be [illegible].

ARE YOU GUILTY?

[illegible] car was crowded, and every [illegible] was trying to make herself [illegible] above the babel. I squeezed [illegible] with a meekness rather [illegible] and gathered in scraps of the [illegible]. "Corduroy!" said a nerve-[illegible]. "What do you want with [illegible] now? They're com-[illegible] wearing them, and I [illegible] one." "Neither would [illegible] be seen at a dog fight in [illegible], why did you get it?"

[illegible] persons turned in their [illegible] the speakers; as for me, I [illegible] in my corner, and was [illegible] imagining what they [illegible] when the answer came: [illegible] get it. Mother got it at [illegible]. She doesn't know anything [illegible] and was tickled to death [illegible] and Aunt Jane were in the [illegible] when I got in from work, [illegible] said, 'I've got something [illegible].' She was pleased as pie with [illegible] but I let her see I didn't like [illegible]. She knew what I thought [illegible] I just stood and looked at it [illegible] told me how cheap she got [illegible] it would make such [illegible] as so many girls on the [illegible] wearing them. Then, I [illegible] and said, 'Well, it's [illegible] you got it cheap. It's so out [illegible] they're giving it away; but I [illegible] wear it, so I don't know what [illegible] do with your wonderful [illegible]!' Oh, she knew what I [illegible] all right.' "

[illegible] turned to Al Some-[illegible] I could not help thinking of [illegible] who had been "tickled to [illegible] the bargain for her girl, [illegible] girl had trampled on [illegible] in payment for her mis-[illegible]. The car stopped sud-[illegible] owners of the voices got [illegible] from the window, [illegible] pretty girls you meet every-[illegible] only a different version [illegible] you hear and see every day.

The husband who bought his wife a wrist watch when she wanted a lavalliere, and the aunt who bought her niece a lavalliere when she wanted a bracelet—it is all the same. The fact that they loved us and were trying to make us happy means nothing in comparison to the fact that we did not get what we wanted, and are selfishly disappointed. John may have spent weeks selecting Clara's wrist watch and may have carried that square case in his pocket thinking of the delighted surprise in the eyes he loved. Whether Clara will fly into a rage and tell him he wasted his money, or be politely sweet and thank him in an injured tone, letting him know as thoroly as if she told him that it was not what she wanted, is a matter of temperament; but the fact remains that she will, in many ways, see that he is made sufficiently miserable because of her innate selfishness.

I heard Edna's aunt say, "I wish I had never heard of that old lavalliere. Next year I shall give her $5 and tell her to suit herself." Edna had robbed her, in a polite fashion, of all the joy of giving. But it is not always giving; it is often just the doing of the little everyday things.

The little wife where I spent the week-end asked her husband what he would like to have for dinner. He "didn't know"; but he did know, on his return, that it wasn't lamb. His wife had confided to me when we shopped that she felt sure lamb would please him; but her lord and master preferred fish that day—and we dined on nettles.

Are you guilty? Do you see that your loved ones are sufficiently punished when they do you a kindness, and then are you proud of the unhappiness you cause them? The invariable remark after we have been ungrateful and unkind is this—you have heard it—you will hear it—"Oh, she knew I wasn't pleased, all right! I may not have said anything—but!"

Think it over: Are you guilty? ARE you?

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Meaning of "Dansant"

MY DEAR Mrs. Adams.

What does R. S. V. P. mean when placed on a calling card? What is a "The Dansant?" IGNORANT.

The letters R. S. V. P are from the French and signify that the favor of a reply is requested. They do not appear on a visiting card unless the card is used as an invitation. The dansant is French for tea-dance.

An Explanation the Solution

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I have been going with a young man until recently. He wrote to me saying that he intended coming to see me. He lives out of town. I did not answer the letter. When the day came for his arrival, he did not come. I think it was because I did not answer his letter. I realize I loved him and do now, and wish to regain his friendship. Would it be improper for me to write to him after two months' silence, and tell him that I wish to see him? WORRIED.

I agree with you in supposing that the young man did not keep the appointment because he received no letter from you as to whether or not the visit would be agreeable to you. Yes, write and explain. Clearly this is your duty. In this way you can mend things, no doubt.

Faint Heart

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Having followed your advice for some time, I am coming for some.

I have known a girl for about a month or two, and of late she has always something else to do when I wish to make an engagement with her. Do you think that, when you tell a girl you will call her on the phone at a certain time, and when you do she does not want you to visit her or accept an invitation to go any place, that she does not care for you? Is it proper after meeting a young lady for the first time to ask her if you might call, or is it better to wait a week or so? I am 21 years old and have brown hair. I am told that I will never marry, because when one girl jilts me, I never try for another. How can one tell when a girl does not find a young man's company agreeable?

Do you think that one should give her a present? Should you give it or send it? Thanking you in advance, I remain, DISHEARTENED.

Try again, Disheartened; the young lady may be simply coquetting. It is not at all courteous of the young lady to act in this way; if she finds your society agreeable, she should give you a definite answer. There would be no impropriety in asking the young lady if you might call after the first meeting. Faint heart seems to be your difficulty. Send her a present if you care to; it may smooth things.

Dance Dress Proper

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Knowing how you have helped so many others, I would like to ask you a few questions.

I am a young girl, 16 years old, and rather tall for my age. I have been invited to a party which will be given soon. Would it be in good taste to wear a dance frock and white satin pumps, as I am sure that they will dance?

My hair is short and curly and comes just below my shoulders. Am I too old to have my hair this way, or should I put it up in a knot?

My brother will take me to my friend's house. Would it be all right for him to wait for me until the party is over, or should I allow one of the boys at the party to take me home, my brother not being invited? Thanking you for your advice, I am, A CONSTANT READER.

Yes, it would be quite proper to wear the dance frock and the white satin pumps.

Wear your hair down in curls, little Reader, if you prefer it that way; that is "Sixteen's" especial privilege.

Don't you think that it would be better form to have your brother call for you when the party is over? Or you might, as you suggest, permit one of the guests to escort you home.

Parental Objection

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a girl of seventeen and am beginning to become very popular among folks of my own age. I am not allowed to have boy friends, so I am deprived of many pleasures, such as dancing, since my parents oppose it. I have had a few invitations to private dances and could not accept them. In this case, should I keep on doing so, or would it be proper for me to try to accept these invitations and in what way? Thanking you kindly, I am, AN INTERESTED READER.

Remember you are only a little girl in the eyes of your parents. Why do you not tell them of the invitations that you receive, and perhaps when you are a year or two older, they will have no objection to your accepting. For the present, however, I would advise you to decline politely, explaining that your parents think you too young.

Name for Club

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Would your kindly give us a suitable name for a club of seven girls? CHUMS.

The following names might answer: The Heavenly Seven, Seven Virtues, Sevensome Club, the Seven Sages, the Seven Stars.

Mother Objects

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a girl of 18, and am in love with a certain young man. He is a good young man, and has been going out with me once or twice a week for over eight months. My mother does not like him on account of difference in religion. What shall I do?

When introducing a man is it proper to say Mr. Frank Jones, Mr. Jones or Frank Jones. Thanking you in advance, I remain, YOUR CONSTANT READER.

If your mother has not forbidden you to see the young man any more, there should be no cause for worry. Perhaps she would think more kindly of him if you would emphasize his good qualities and tell her of your liking of him.

When introducing a man, it is proper to say "Mr. Jones."

Is She Too Old?

My dear Mrs. Adams.

I am a girl of 16, and will graduate from grammar school in June. Illness is the cause of my being so far behind. Am I too old?

What is a becoming way to wear the hair? CONSTANT READER.

No, you are not so much older than the average graduate from grammar school. Since illness is the cause of your being a bit behind the others, there is no reason why you should be sensitive on this point.

A very becoming way for the girl of sixteen to arrange the hair is to part it on the side, wave it slightly over the forehead and draw it over the ears into a curl at the back.

Order of Precedence

My dear Mrs. Adams.

Would you be so kind as to answer these questions? When two boys and one girl enter a church pew, should the girl or one of the boys go in first? Also should the boy or the girl hold the book while singing?

Is a girl of 14 too young to write to a boy of about her age? If a girl is going to visit in a town where she has been once before, would it be all right for her to write to a boy who has been nice to her on her first visit and tell him that she is coming?

Also, what is something pleasant and agreeable to say to a boy or girl just after you have met them? It is always embarrassing to me unless I have something to say right after saying, "I am glad to meet you." Thanking you very much, I am, GRATEFUL.

It is proper for the boys to stand aside so that the girl may precede. It would be courteous for the boy to hold the book.

It is not the most discreet thing for a boy and girl of fourteen to correspond unless distance prevents intercourse in person. It would be better, perhaps, to let the boy know in some indirect way of the intended visit. The hostess might tell him.

The merest commonplaces, or better still, any recollection of having seen the new acquaintance before, will help to set the ball rolling.

THE DESTROYING GERM

THERE is a germ of which scientists have taken no account, and this is the germ of unappreciation. It is the germ which destroys in another all impulse to do a good turn. It is one of the highest forms of selfishness. Read and talk on this page today and ask yourself, "Am I guilty?"

Beauty Queries Answered

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Dry Shampoo

My dear Mrs. Symes.

My hair is very damp and oily only a few days after it is washed. Would you advise me to continue brushing the hair? I thought, perhaps, this might be the cause. How often should I wash my hair under these conditions? DISCOURAGED.

Equal parts of corn meal and orris root makes an excellent dry shampoo. Wash the hair fortnightly and use the dry shampoo weekly. Do not discontinue brushing the hair; the brush spreads the oil. It is not necessary, or beneficial either, to stroke the scalp directly with the brush.

Remedy for Blackheads

My dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you print a formula for blackheads? I have tried everything I have ever heard or read about, and I am getting discouraged. Hoping to see my letter in print, I remain, A CONSTANT READER.

Following are two treatments for blackheads. Indigestion, constipation or any other stomach disorder may be the cause of the condition. It is advisable that you eat simple, nourishing foods, avoiding all sweets, fatty and rich foods. Drink plenty of water, and exercise daily.

Green Soap Treatment for Blackheads

Tincture of green soap	2 ounces
Distilled witch hazel	2 ounces

Let this mixture stay on only a few moments, then wash off with hot water.

If the green soap irritates the skin, as it sometimes will, use it every other day. Apply a cold cream.

Green soap may be purchased at any drug store. It is not a regular "cake soap," but is of about the consistency of custard.

Open each seed acne with the point of a fine cambric needle. The hardened mass must be pressed or picked out. The empty sac of the gland should then be bathed with a little toilet vinegar and water, or with a very weak solution of carbolic acid and water. Sterilize the needle before using it by dipping it into boiling water, as the use of any instrument, unless both it and the skin are thoroly cleansed, is always dangerous.

Lotion for Blackheads

Pure brandy	2 ounces
Cologne	1 ounce
Liquor potassa	½ ounce

Apply at night, after washing the face thoroly with soap and water.

Treatment for Superfluous Hair

My dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me how to remove superfluous hair from the face? I would like to know of some treatment for a double chin. GRATEFUL.

The use of a depilatory is the only safe way to remove superfluous hair at home. I am printing below a formula, should you care to try it. The effect of a depilatory is, however, but a temporary relief. For that reason I prefer to advise a bleach. Either lemon juice or peroxide of hydrogen makes an effective bleach if applied full strength until results are apparent.

Following is an exercise for the reduction of a double chin. It will effect an improvement if practiced regularly and systematically. Rubbing a bit of ice on the sagging muscles will help to tone them up and holding the head high will make the superfluous fat less conspicuous.

To Reduce a Double Chin

To help reduce a double chin, practice the following exercise: 1. Stand erect, in military position. Place the hands lightly on the hips, fingers forward. Drop the chin slowly on the collarbone; then throw the head back with a quick, even movement that is not a jerk, but yet puts all the muscles into quick play. Repeat ten times. 2. Turn the head quickly to the right till the chin is just over the right shoulder, then turn the head to the left in the same way. Repeat ten times. Do not tire the muscles of the neck, but gradually increase the number of exercises daily until you can practice each one about fifty times without after-discomfort.

Depilatories

Sulphide of soda	[illegible] grains
Flaked lime	30 grains
Starch	30 grains
Limewater	4 fluid dram

Barium sulphide is also used as a paste for depilatories. The standard formula is:

Barium sulphide	80 grains
Powdered chalk	400 grains

Mix with water. The barium sulphide must be absolutely dry to be effective when it is mixed with the chalk. Enough water should be afterward added to make a thin paste. Sulphide of strontium makes also an efficient depilatory. It is made as follows:

Sulphide of strontium	2 dram
Oxide of zinc	1 dram
Powdered starch	1 dram

To Develop the Bust

My dear Mrs. Symes.

I would appreciate your telling me what to do to develop my bust and cheeks. Will exercise develop the bust? I am 20 years old. L. L. R.

If you will rub a skin food into the cheeks with the directions that I am printing below, it will help to fill out the hollows. I am printing also a massage cream for the bust and a developer to be taken internally.

To Develop the Bust

Lanolin	1 ounce
Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Sweet almond oil	1 ounce

Put in small bowl set in hot water until melted. Beat together and cool. Each night, after laying hot cloths on bust, rub it in by massaging gently and thoroly in a circular direction for fifteen minutes.

Dr. Vaucaire's Remedy for the Bust

Liquid extract of galega (goats-rue)	9	fl. dr.
Lacto-phosphate of lime	154	grains
Tincture of fennel	30	minims
Simple syrup (sugar and water 2 to 1)	13½	ounces

The dose is 2 soupspoonfuls with water before each meal.

Doctor Vaucaire also advises the drinking of malt extract during meals.

A Skin Food

Oil of sweet almonds	4	ounces
White wax	6	drams
Spermaceti	6	drams
Borax	2	drams
Glycerin	1½	ounces
Rosewater	2	ounces

Melt the first three ingredients, add the glycerin to the rosewater and dissolve the borax in the mixture; then pour it slowly into the blended fats, stirring continuously.

Circles Under the Eyes

My dear Mrs. Symes.

My face seems dark and drawn sometimes and my eyes have very dark circles under them. Please tell me what to do for this. Is there anything that I can do to remove big ugly pimples? My thumbs are very big. Is there anything which will make them a nicer shape? I am a little more than 15 years and am 5 feet 5¼ inches tall. I would not care to be any taller than this. What can I do? When do you generally stop growing? My elbows look dark and wrinkled. What can I do for them? WORRIED.

The dark circles under your eyes may be due to any number of internal disturbances. Be very careful of your diet, exercise freely in the open air and be sure you have enough sleep. I am printing below a lotion that may help. Internal disorders or lack of sleep may be the cause of the drawn appearance of your face. Massaging with a good cold cream and applying a lotion composed of equal parts glycerin and lemon juice may help. I am printing a local treatment for pimples; it will give temporary relief. If the thumb structure is large, then nothing can be done; massage will reduce superfluous flesh about the thumbs. In all probability you will not grow much taller, but any attempt at frustrating further growth may impair your health. The treatment that I have prescribed for your face will do equally well for your elbows.

Shadows Under the Eyes

There is always some internal cause for the black circles under the eyes. The tendency is sometimes hereditary, but dark lines are usually due to some congestion of the veins of the part and are rarely, if ever, found excepting under one or more of the following circumstances: When the subject is anemic and there is an impairment of the chemical constitution of the blood; or when the system is being drained, as it would be in prolonged study, lack of sleep, or dissipation of any description. The external treatment is sometimes effective temporarily, but cannot be permanent while the cause exists.

For Chapped Hands

My dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly print a cream for the prevention of chapped hands, a tooth paste that will whiten the teeth, and a soap for the complexion? Thanking you in advance, I remain, A FRIEND.

I am printing below a cream for chapped hands, and a good tooth paste, also a cleansing cream should you care to use it. I have no formula for a complexion soap; but any mild soap—castile, if you prefer—is harmless for use as a toilet soap.

Cream for Chapped Hands

White petrolatum	3¼	ounces
Paraffin wax	¼	ounce
Lanolin	1	ounce
Water	1½	ounces
Oil of rose	3	drops
Alcohol	½	dram

Melt the paraffin wax, add the petrolatum and lanolin. Stir constantly, beating the water in during the process. Add the oil and alcohol when nearly cold.

Chapped hands should be treated by keeping the hands as dry as possible and applying some such emollient at night before retiring.

Cleansing Cream

White wax	2 ounces
Spermaceti	2 ounces
Sweet almond oil	12 ounces
Distilled water	1 ounce
Glycerin	2 ounces
Salicylic acid	20 grains

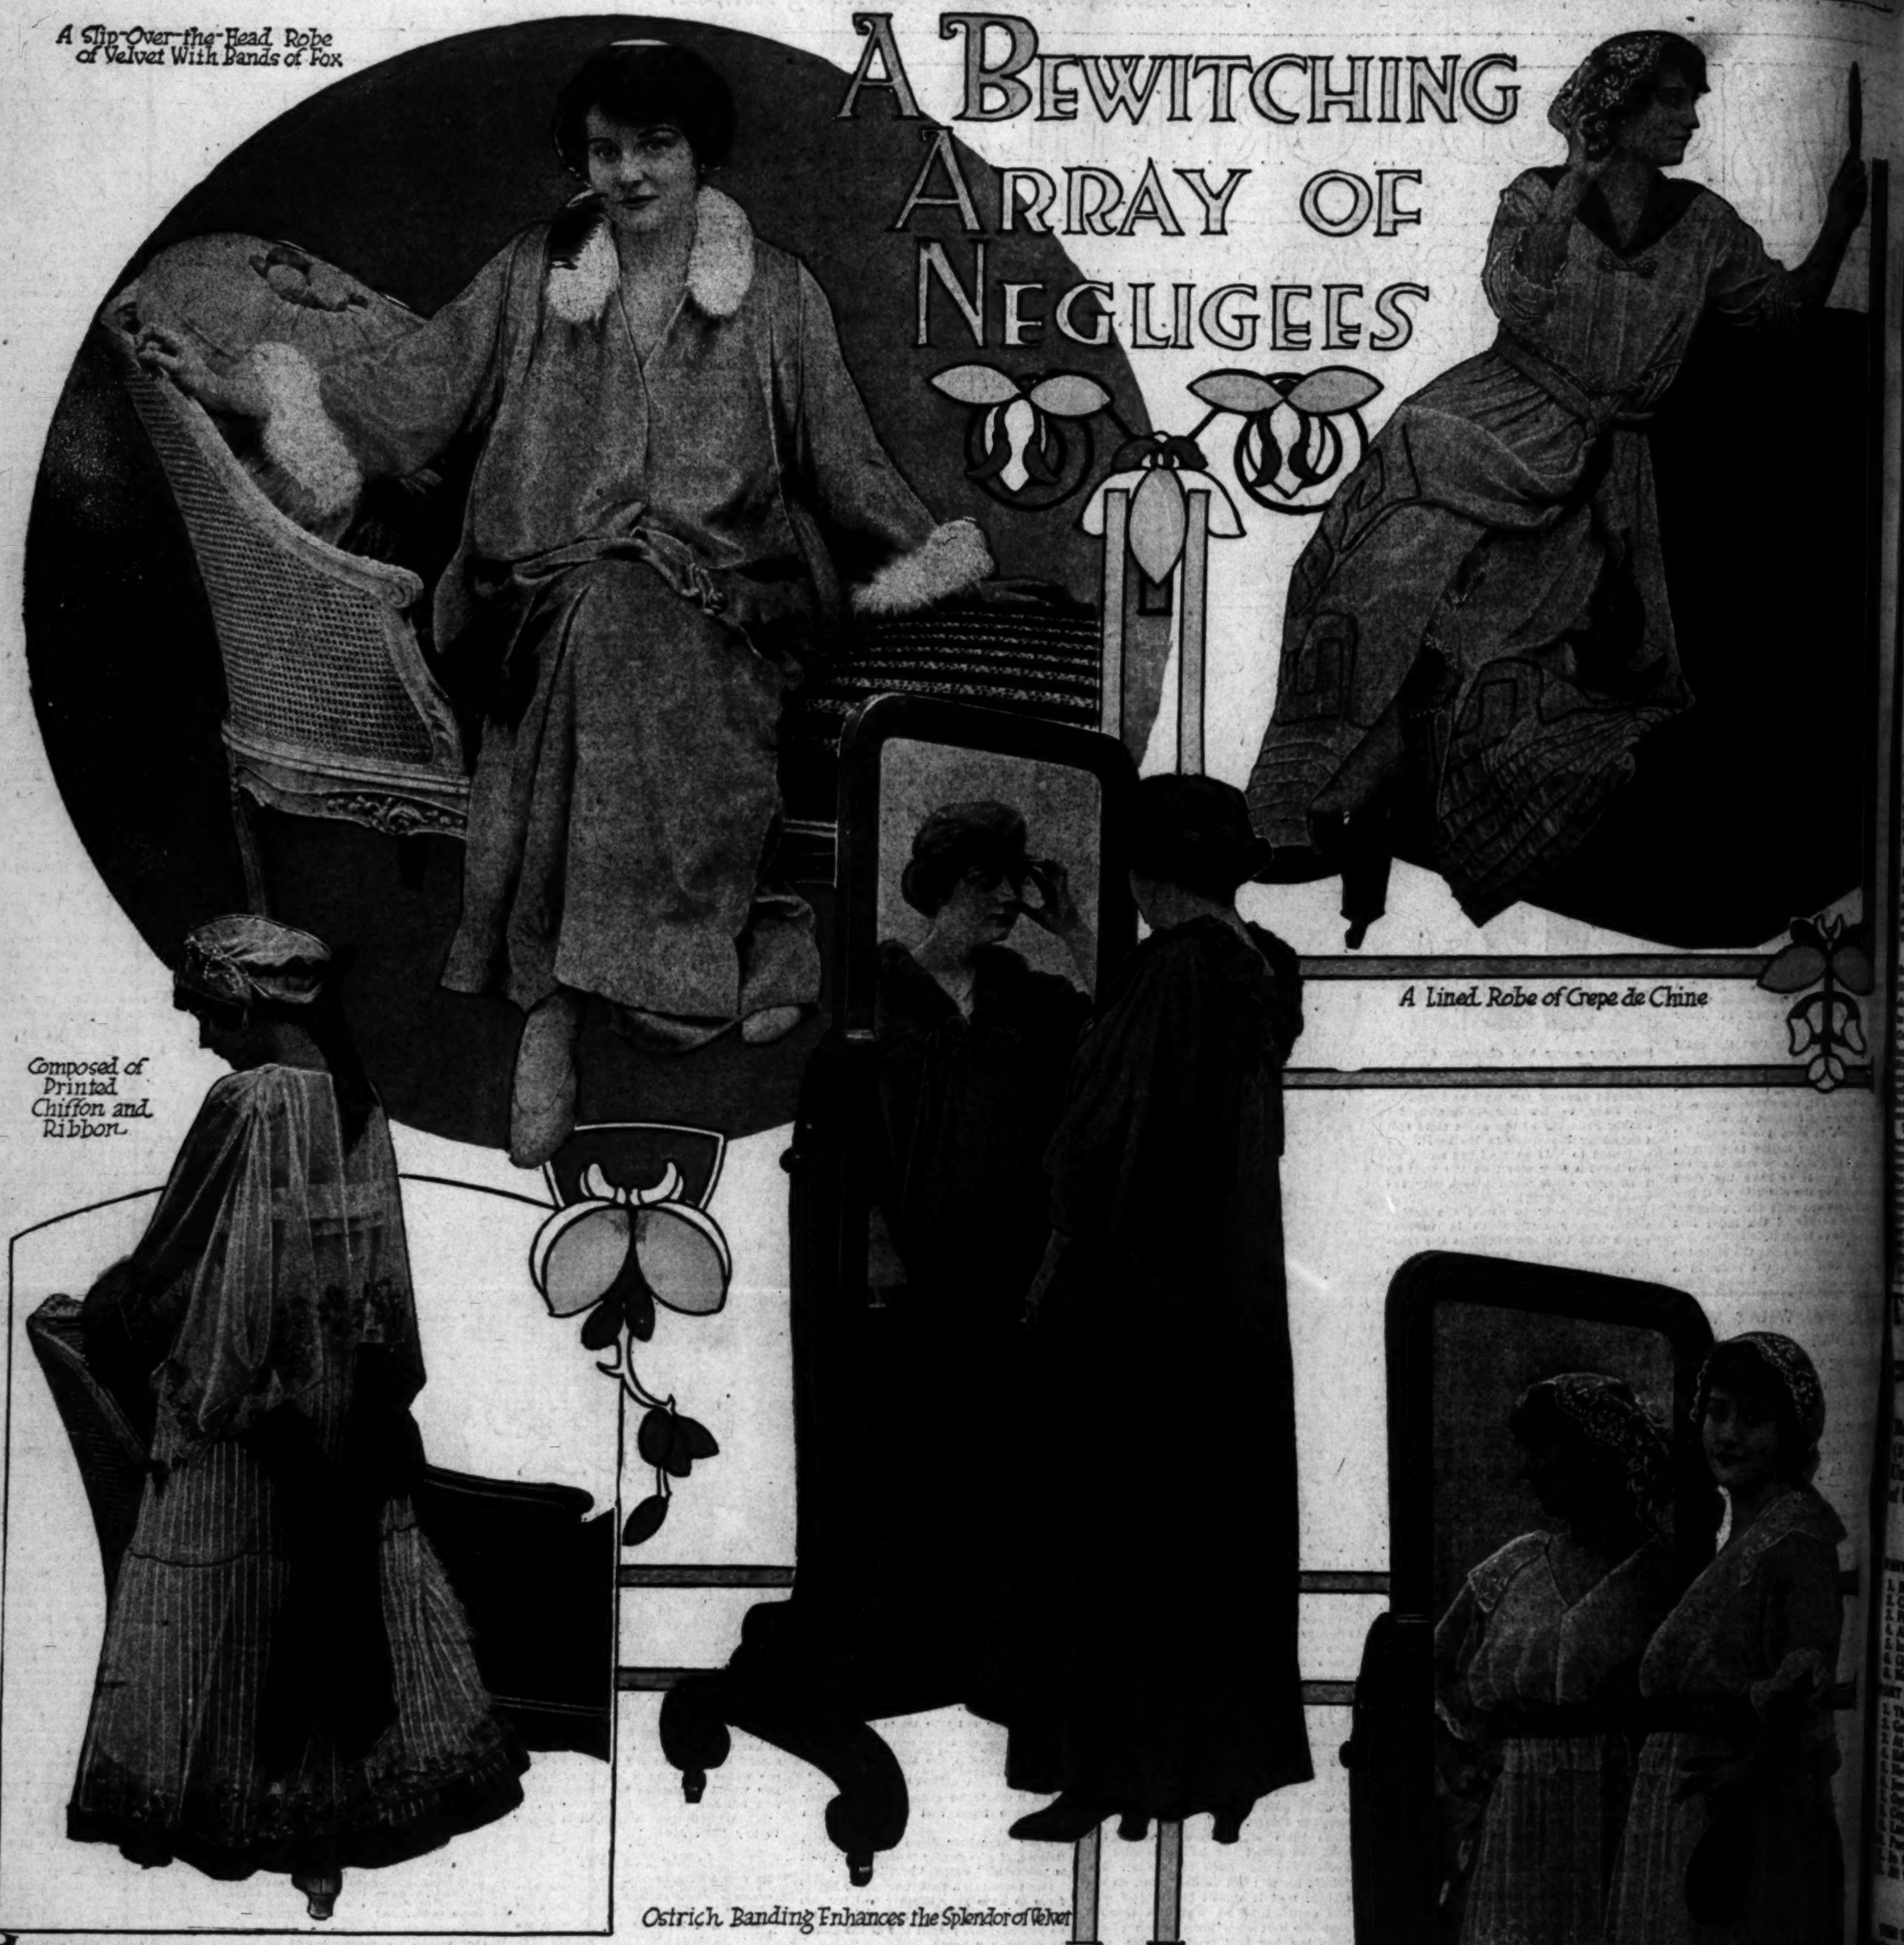
Tooth Paste

Orris root powder	8 ounces
Myrrh powder	8 ounces
Oil of cloves	2 drams
Oil of lemon	2 drams
Oil of rose	20 drops

Solution of carmine sufficient to color.

Honey enough to form paste.

A BEWITCHING ARRAY OF NEGLIGEES



A Slip-Over-the-Head Robe of Velvet With Bands of Fox

A Lined Robe of Crepe de Chine

Composed of Printed Chiffon and Ribbon

Ostrich Banding Enhances the Splendor of Velvet

Lace and Crepe Make This Lovely Creation

IF WOMAN possesses any charm at all, she is bound to display it when enveloped in a negligee of becoming color, of soft, flowing lines and of richest material. In the group of negligees shown today every fair reader can find at least one model particularly suited to her type of beauty.

The dainty affair composed of yellow printed chiffon and blue ribbon is pleated. The ribbon is folded and placed to suggest the Empire line, and is tied in an ornamental knot at the back. The cape of chiffon at the back preserves a graceful length of line. The boudoir cap is of yellow silk gathered to fit the head. Ecru lace and pink rosebuds trim the front of the cap, while streamers of blue ribbon at the back suggest the nurse's cap.

The peplum idea in an exaggerated form has invaded the realm of negligees, as can be seen in the pink robe with a peplum of ecru lace. Blue ribbon defines the waist line. The skirt of the robe is of box-pleated pink crepe de chine. The cap, which reminds one of sweet Juliet, is of ecru lace trimmed with loops of pink ribbon.

A most practical robe is that of orange panne velvet. It deserves this distinction because of the fact that it slips on over the head and requires but one clasp (and that at the neck line) to hold it together. A frog made of velvet joins the two panels which project at either side and thus hold the robe rather snugly about the figure. The all-important fur trimming is here used in the form of white fox bands.

Beauty and comfort are combined in the negligee of pink crepe de chine. Blue silk forms the collar and lines the ornamental sash. Blue braid has been used to trace the Grecian design on the sash end and above the rows of corded tucks.

A gown which impresses one with its dignity is the model of peacock-blue velvet. This, in spite of its elegance, is really a very simple affair made on the straightest of lines. It is lined thruout, even to the sleeves, with china silk. A salient feature of the garment is the use of taupe ostrich, which finishes the neck line and enhances the splendor of the whole negligee.
